his column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. That follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

It's not always so easy for one of these here column writers to go exactly what he means. It is a pretty easy, however, for a reader to misunderstand what is written and get under the collar of the said columnist. And then, frequently the alleged columnist is cussed out for what he didn't say. All of which leads up to the following.

Squeakin' Axle Garner read this column yesterday and turned white around the gills. Hot dawg, that by was mad. He thought I had got the impression with the reader that his show, the Columbia, wouldn't be a show left in Ranger. In other words, he is a firm believer in the old proverb that the squeakin' axle gets the grease and he proceeded straightway to get me on my phone and do a little resenting.

Further, if you got the idea that people are tired of going to shows, you got it wrong, again. People are not tired of going to shows. I know that to be a fact because Honest Garner told me so. He told me a lot of other things besides, but I'm not going to tell you all of it because a good sport for it comes under the head of my and his private affairs. However, he paid me a rare compliment when he admitted the influence of this column and the far reaching effect its implied meaning might have on its readers. But I'm sorry I made him sore. And this apology doesn't mean him he can still write me a letter.

Then Ty Grasiago got sore over the same story. He said he thought I was his friend until after reading yesterday's column. Then he got down a report sheet and proceeded to show me the reason the Arcadia is being closed. From the figures it seems that the receipts are not big enough to cover the expenses by something like $300 a week. In which case they have a perfect right and reason to shut the house down.

Figures don't mean a great deal to dumb guy like me, but if I was running a business and running at a loss of $300 a week, I'd have to shut it down about 9 a. m. on the first day of the week for the reason that I wouldn't have enough money to get my first day's films out of the express office.

H. C. (Andy) Anderson bought me a cake yesterday afternoon in order to get his name in the paper. I planned to put it in the personal column, but he gave me some valuable information and I'll just put it in here and he'll owe me two more glasses of iced tea. I asked Andy what was a Calcutta pool. I didn't know but what they had opened a swimming pool at the Country club or something. The subject has been bothering me all week, but I thought by keeping my mouth shut and listening I might get it explained to me without having to ask questions. However, it seemed that everybody knew what it was but me and they all took it for granted that I was wise to it. In case you don't know, it has something to do with golf and golf players and if I understand correctly, has the same relation to golf that the pari-mutuel system has to horse racing. If you get what I mean.

One Prediction That's Pretty Sure Not to Fail!

HUNDRED MILLION FOR HOOVER

Speaker John Nance Garner, after a successful career of 30 years as a wise and resourceful lawmaker, has sent a program from his workshop. It calls for a $2,100,000,000 relief plan, and this without requiring any additional governmental machinery to handle the huge sum. This is the way the speaker would go about it:

"Increasing from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 the capitalization of the reconstruction finance corporation to make loans to states, counties, and cities and to broaden its base to permit the organization to exercise its judgment in making loans without restriction.

"Second, a billion dollar bond issue for a governmental building program, based largely on existing laws, with a tax of one-third of one cent a gallon on gasoline to provide a sinking fund and interest in order not to disturb the federal budget operation.

"Third, passage of the Huddleston bill to place $100,000,000 in the hands of President to relieve extreme suffering in any section of the country."

As president of the United States, Herbert Hoover is president of the American Red Cross association. He would direct the handling of the $100,000,000 relief fund—that is to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, shelter the homeless, visit the sick and bury the dead. Now what will happen to the Garner proposal? He may be the nominee of the democrats for president of the United States. There is a convention coming late in the month of June. What will be the attitude of democratic senators and democratic representatives? Will they ditch the proposals submitted by the speaker and then let it go at that?

ANOTHER CALL FOR TAX REDUCTION

A demand for reduced taxes and strict governmental economy was made by all the speakers addressing the 20th annual convention of United States Chamber of Commerce in session in the city of San Francisco, Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific railway, was one of the speakers. He predicts a revolt by railways against unfair government regulation. He said competition on inland waterways, intercoastal steamship lines, motor buses and trucks had the advantage in avoiding governmental interference. With these competitive services subsidized in reality or in effect and losing money they were forcing the railroads to take disastrous losses while they were running themselves. The rail executive pleaded for uniform regulation of transportation services of all types.

A reminder that the interstate commerce commission has recommended to the congress legislation for the regulation of all transportation carriers on the national highways as well as on the steel rail. Perhaps the recommendation will be crystallized into law by the congress in a late fall session. Why a summer recess of the congress? Why a summer recess of courts the nation over with clogged dockets and anxious litigants facing the courts?

NEWTON D. BAKER HANDS OUT ADVICE

Newton D. Baker is in the picture again. He has advised the American people to follow their leader. Well, uncover the Moses. Hoover isn't leading. He has an opposition senate and a rebel house on his hands. Majority Leader Jim Watson and Minority Leader Joseph Taylor Robinson of the senate are not leading. They are talking—buck passing, if you will. A rebel house coalition tosses aside the speaker regardless of advice and tells Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey and Minority Leader Snell of New York where to head in. This same rebel house tears to tatters the recommendation of Chairman Crisp and the house ways and means committee. Where is the modern Grover Cleveland? Where is the modern Theodore Roosevelt? Where is the modern Woodrow Wilson? Newton D. Baker should be more specific. He should name the leader who is to take over and lead the Moses-Mussolini army of leaderless people.

GEORGE C. BUTTE GIVEN A PROMOTION

President Hoover appointed George C. Butte of Texas to be associate justice of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands. He is a former professor of law and dean at the University of Texas. He is widely known for his work in Porto Rico as well as the Philippines. In 1924 he was the republican nominee for governor and gave Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson a race that was a race around the political track. It will be recalled that many democrats bolted their party nominee that year to vote for Dr. Butte. Mrs. Ferguson won. Butte has been in high favor with republican administrations ever since. He would have made a splendid governor-general of the Philippines but young Teddy Roosevelt was given the place. Are Texans in the picture? More and more all the time.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT the time for action has arrived. The progressive spirit must be preserved. Citizens should be proud of their home city and be prepared to fight for its betterment. Pessimists and other whose propaganda indicates a desire to hold back progress for the home city should be shown that they are out of step.

Pessimists are prone to create dull business conditions through their idle talk and lack of optimism. Every city has set-backs once in a while—nothing serious, but things that can be easily overcome. Whenever these things happen the pessimists see only the dark side and try their best to make conditions worse.

The foundation of the success of a city is accomplished through the cooperative genius of its optimistic citizens. Every citizen should point to the advantages of the home city and tell of its enterprises and resources. Every city should recognize opportunity and never have to look back regretfully at things that should have been done.

The ability to see and grasp opportunities of ten marks the difference in the success or failure of a city. The business of a city is far more complex than any individual business. Therefore, even greater consideration should be given its plan for future development.

By Rodney Dutcher, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON General Winfield Scott Hancock, nominated by the Democrats for the presidency in 1880, said the tariff was a local issue. They laughed at him and pelted him with ridicule and he was defeated.

But the tariff was a "local" issue and has never seemed more so than in the fight which began in the Senate over the provisions in the tax bill which would levy import duties on oil, lumber, copper and coal.

It became a local issue with nearly every member this time, almost as much so as if a general tariff bill had been up.

These are the facts behind the strange situation which developed into a threat to tie up the Senate indefinitely and which led to the remarkable promise of Speaker Garner and House Majority Leader Snell to keep the Senate in session through the national conventions if it didn't pass a revenue bill.

Adding Fat to the Fire

The bill was theoretically a pure tax bill. The lobbyists brought pressure, engineered combinations and made it a tax bill and a tariff bill at the same time.

At a time when nearly everyone was aiming to balance the budget through a tax bill and an economy bill, both extremely controversial measures in which members were under extreme pressure from all types of lobbyists, a third controversial issue—tariffs—was brought in, as it to make a difficult matter worse.

The duties on the four commodities were inserted in the Senate Finance Committee's tax measure on the pretense that they would help raise needed revenue.

Claims and Counter-Claims

THE generous calculations of the tariff advocates were that they would raise $6,000,000 a year, a relatively trivial sum. Enemies of the duties concluded that the tariffs would result in complete embargoes and hence would raise no money at all.

The oil, lumber, copper and coal lobbyists and senators had made mighty efforts to obtain tariff cuts on their commodities during the formulation of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill. They failed. But they came back into this session.

From Bad to Worse

THE four tariff Democrats, naturally, were considering the victorious demands of their local industries and presumably their chances of reelection. So were other Democrats and Republicans waiting on the floor to support the bill.

But, aside from bitter opponents of high tariffs who objected to the new duties on principle, there were many senators whose own constituents were beginning to demand why they were asked to protect coal, Connally in the tax bill, if, after all, it were going to be a tariff bill as well.

Their best hope seemed to be to beat the tariffs out of the measure entirely. If they could do that they wouldn't be heckled all summer and fall with demands as to why they didn't do as much for their local people as the oil, coal, lumber and copper senators had done for theirs. That sort of thing was what made it something of a local issue for everybody.

Taking that along with the doubtful tactics of inserting tariff into tax bills, the probable resultant embargoes and increase of prices on the protected commodities, the despair of Democrats who want to make a successful campaign and the further likely damage to our export trade with Canada, Venezuela, Colombia, Mexico, Peru and Chile, it should be fairly clear why some senators expressed themselves willing to fight against the duties all summer long if necessary.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

With any kind of a break as far as the weather is concerned, the second annual invitation golf tournament, qualifying rounds for which are now under way, should be even better than the first tournament held last May.

Gus Moreland, who won the title last year, is defending his state title at Texarkana and probably will not be on hand. However, there will be many prominent golfers present who will make the matches interesting.

The chicken barbecue and Calcutta pool is to be held tonight after the visiting golfers have turned in their qualifying scores and Saturday morning will see the match play under way in earnest. No report has been made to us as yet as to how many golfers will be entered, but it is expected that there will be from 150 to 200. Some place the estimates even higher than that.

We were informed yesterday that something had been done about cleaning up the vacant lot where the dilapidated studio building stood for so many years. One load of the debris had been hauled away, according to George Murphy. And other loads are to be hauled as soon as possible. So the trash may be hauled away soon.

And the chief passed our house about dark with three or four fellows to do the work and some fire hose to use and went up to the Willows to flush out the drain pipe and clean out the lower end where the rainwater has accumulated. He stopped long enough to tell us that, for once, we had given the fire department a break in the writeup about the Joseph fire the day before.

But we thought they deserved credit, for there was excuse enough for much more damage to be done. By careful and efficient work they kept the damage localized where it did not cause nearly as much loss as was anticipated by those who saw the blaze when they arrived.

Yesterday about press time A. H. Henderson of Olden stopped in to see us. He said he was on his way to Shreveport to get Miss Maxine, his daughter, and bring her home for the summer. Mrs. Henderson was sitting in the car outside the office, so we went out to meet her. We didn't know how our reception would be because we once ran a notice in the paper that Miss Maxine was a trombone player when, in fact, she plays the piano. Mrs. Henderson didn't appreciate our mistake, so we had to run a correction.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

THERE IS NO FIRE IN VOLCANOES.

THE "FLAMES" which flash above the crater of a volcano are reflections of the molten lava on the clouds of steam and ash. Volcanic ash is generally used to describe the material blown from volcanoes, but it is not a material that has been exposed to fire, and is not a true ash. It is a lava that has been cooled, and shattered into glassy particles by the explosion of the eruption. Small amounts of hydrogen and sulphur ignite, but these flames are only incidental.

NEXT: How was the first flashlight made?

Mrs. Henderson proved to be a good sport, however, and laughed over our error. We admitted we were uneasy for a while because we couldn't persuade the men in the shop to keep the back door open so we could make a hasty exit in case she came in looking for trouble.

And remember that Saturday is Poppy Day and the members of the Auxiliary of the American Legion will be selling flowers on the streets. This is a reminder so everyone will remember to have a little money in their pockets with which to pay for the poppies and will not have to ask for credit.

All the money raised in this manner goes to buy a few necessities and conveniences for veterans of the World war who have been in hospitals since the end of the war and have very little for which they can be thankful, but are carrying on in the best way they can. Each poppy bought a little more sunshine for those who made a sacrifice for you and me.

South Ward School Program of Promotion.
 The Eastland South ward school 5A class, whose list was given in a recent issue of the Telegram, held their promotion day, or informal graduation exercises, in their class room, 9 a. m., Thursday, before an interested audience that filled the room and corridor, for this beautiful occasion.
 Fathers and mothers and friends listened with interest to the various lads and lassies presented.
 Faculty members assisted in receiving, and in other ways.
 A background of flowers, ferns and plants formed a miniature stage, against which the little folk in their pretty summer frocks, and summer outfits, resembled a garden of flowers.
 Program numbers were announced by Mrs. C. W. Hampton.
 At close of program, handsome scrolls of heavy paper in old English print, "Certificate of Award for Punctual and Regular Attendance, and being neither Tardy nor Absent, through this school term, 1932," with blank or certificate, filled in with name of child, and scroll signed by Principal Mrs. A. C. Simmons, were presented Dickie Martin, Bert Edmonson, Mary Wright, Edna Dunnam, Thomas Price, Frances Lane, Louise Cook, Marie Plummer, Mary Jane Harrell, and Jim Taylor.
 The prize of $1 offered by the Better Homes committee to the boy or girl of South Ward school, who made the best garden during Better Homes week, was presented on behalf of the committee, by Mrs. Simmons, to Thomas Price, the winner.
 The program was given as published in the Telegram, opening with ensemble singing by audience and classes, of "America."
 The piano, massed with larkspur and roses, was a part of the pretty stage setting. Mrs. Hampton was pianist for the program.
 Parents were called upon for personal expressions, and County Superintendent of Schools B. E. McGlamery, in an interesting talk, expressed his appreciation of the teachers, their unselfishness, and their ability.
 The entire morning was marked for the feeling of good fellowship and co-operation, between parents, teachers and students.
 The salutatorian, Mildred McGlamery, made an original and delightful address, and the valedictorian, Alice Jones, was also very charming and timely in her little paper.
 These two students had the highest grades, in class A, 1932, South Ward school.
 The program closed with a brief expression of appreciation of the co-operation of parents and teachers, by Mrs. A. C. Simmons, principal of South Ward.

A Hopping Success; Too Many Frogs.
 A secret society organized a couple of years ago, in the Technical high school at Atlanta, Ga., and known as Ancient Order of Horned Toads; through the principal of the college, Prof. T. L. Smith, wrote the Eastland Chamber of Commerce this week requesting a shipment of 71 horned toads for their annual horned toad race, to be held on June 1.
 The price was inquired by the seeker, Dr. Tanner, the general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, found he could get them for five cents each, and was wired in reply, to send on the toads.
 A message was wireless to the Eastland boys to round up the Monday, Memorial day, unveiling of monument at cemetery. Boy Scouts, citizens and Campfire Girls assisting all-day observance arranged by Dr. H. B. Tanner, chairman.

 Roly Texas product of reputation and to the intense surprise of the chamber, the office was flooded with several hundred frogs. It was too bad for those children who came in too late, as but 75 could be purchased.
 The outcome of the race is awaited with interest by the entire population of Eastland, who are but that this class of work would have to be subjected to examination before passing into desired grades.
 Mrs. Spencer stated in an interview held yesterday that she was ready to assist or coach any other student higher than the fourth, but that this class of work would have to be subjected to examination before passing into desired grades.
 Mrs. Spencer has taught children for the past 10 years and is very successful in her special line. She is a woman of charming personality and culture, with all the social manner and that can be imparted with ease and grace by those who are with children, and understand their needs.
 She has had several very beautiful kindergarten entertainments and children's operettas, which Eastland has enjoyed immensely.
 The commencement exercises of her kindergarten and an operetta is announced, and program will be in Sunday's Telegram.

Woodmen Circle District Convention.
 The district convention of the Woodmen Circle, an auxiliary of the Woodmen of the World, will be held in Mineral Wells, June 2, in an all-day session at the Baker hotel, opening at 10 o'clock in the morning, so Mrs. W. C. Marlow states.
 All the lodges of the 17 counties in the district are invited.
 Eastland will be officially represented by Mrs. J. M. Wilcox, guardian of the Eastland lodge.
 In the evening a formal reception will be held to which many visitors are expected in addition to the convention visitors.
 Degree work will occupy the afternoon.
 The entire program is in honor of Mrs. Mary LaRocca, national president of Woodmen Circle. Her residence is in Omaha, Neb.
 Mrs. Marlow and a contingent of 10 other members of the Eastland circle will also attend the convention.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

JOSEPH, THE DREAMER

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 29.
 By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
 Editor of The Congregationalist
 Much of the ambition of Jacob was inherited by Joseph—a young son among jealous and forceful brothers. The ambition that made Joseph did not find such crooked and devious ways as his father's ambition had found, but it created in Joseph a lack of proper sensitiveness about the feelings of others, and a lack of reticence concerning his attitude toward the world and what he anticipated that the world would do for him.
 The man who lives too exclusively in a world that centers about himself is not apt to be liked either by those of his own household or by those of his immediate environment. We do not like the man who talks too much about himself, whose conversation is in his favor more a matter of preference, and revolves around all that the world is going to do for himself and that he is going to do for the world.
 Even in religion there is a danger that our familiarity with the Almighty and our confidence in his favor may be more a matter of vanity and ambition than of humility and true faith.
 Joseph, as a matter of fact, was a very good and very competent man. He was a child of fortune in more ways than one. But in the opinion of the youth he grows up among his brethren, talking too freely about himself and making too much of his dreams, there is something that is not altogether attractive.
 There were lessons that Joseph had to learn in adversity, and his character came to its true greatness through a long experience of suffering and trial—experiences through which, also, his brethren were to learn much and to find a nobler character.
 If, however, the dreamer may be unwise and voluble in too freely exploiting his dreams, there is no warrant for hating the dreamer. The attitudes of Joseph's brethren were wrong. They allowed what might have been a just cause for amusement, and for passing resentment, to develop in them a studied and intense hatred, awaiting only its opportunity for expression and action.

 After all, our sympathies must be with the dreamer, for how could the world go on without him and without his dreams? The tendency of the world is not to make too much of rather too little of its dreamers.
 The psychologists today tell us that our dream life has largely to do with our suppressed desires, and they make the suppressed desires of this dream life move almost wholly in the world of dark and ignoble things.
 Why should not the suppressed hopes, and aspirations, and longings of men for higher and better things affect their dream life quite as much as the suppressed desires of evil? At any rate we can certainly think of the day dreams, if not of the night dreams of men, as linked with the conception of better lives and a better world.
 In the ambition of Joseph there was at least nothing ignoble. At a later time Paul referred to his own great Christian career as beginning in obedience to a heavenly vision. In Joseph there was that same spirit of obedience—the

When you shop

Do you buy what you want

OR WHAT SOMEONE WANTS TO SELL YOU

What a pleasure it is to shop when you know exactly what you want and can get it without trouble.
 And what dissatisfaction often follows, if you let yourself be talked into buying some other article instead!
 You probably know how disappointing such purchases often are. Most women do! For even at the grocery or drug store insistent salespeople will sometimes urge you to buy something "just as good" as the product you request.
 When you ask for certain products which you know are dependable, why should any clerk insult your judgment by insisting that you take other brands instead?
 There is always a reason. Usually a very selfish one!
 At times, of course, a store "runs out" of the brand you ask for. But some stores seem to be deliberately "out" all the time. Others, even though they have the brand you want, will very often try by sheer persuasion to sell you some other in its place.

 When this happens, frequently it is because the merchant reaps extra profit, or the clerk a commission, by switching you to the unknown and often inferior merchandise!
 Many of the best stores everywhere forbid this practise. When you buy from them you are always sure of getting exactly what you ask for; certain of receiving full value in the merchandise you want for every penny you spend!
 But if you are offered something "just as good" as the thing you ask for, be firm! Insist on packaged products which you know through experience, by brand, or by the reputation of the maker. Such products are often advertised in this newspaper. Be guided by what you know, and you will always be sure of full value for your shopping dollars.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
 NEA Service Writer

It's all right to be "green-eyed" when you go marketing in the spring-time.
 There are at least a dozen kinds of leafy greens now obtainable in plenty. Almost all are rich in iron, sulphur, phosphorus and calcium. All essential to bodily growth. All supply "roughage" to keep the system vigorous. All may be prepared so appetizingly that they should be enjoyed as a delicacy rather than endured as a necessity.
 You have undoubtedly seen a lot of "green" in your market. It is familiar with the variety of more or less at a loss as to how to cook and serve them, and so hesitates to buy. If you make a habit of trying these vegetables, you will be able to add variety to your menu at small cost.
 The tender, fine-textured and generally flavored greens like spinach, young chard, beet greens and escarole are cooked without the addition of extra water, the drops clinging to the leaves after washing, giving sufficient moisture. The coarser leafy greens like dandelion, chlorey and escarole must be cooked in a small amount of boiling water.
 There are three major ways of serving leafy greens, with various variations of each. Many may be used raw and all may be cooked and served with a piquant dressing as a salad.
 Chicory and escarole are more succulent if they are cooked when they are young and of a pale green color. When fully mature the leaves become yellowish and are more palatable eaten raw with any good salad dressing.

Baked Escarole.
 One bunch or two pounds escarole. 2 tablespoons fat or butter. 1 bouillon cube. 1-2 cup boiling water. Salt, pepper. Steam escarole by plunging in to boiling water for five minutes. This removes excess bitterness. Drain and put into a buttered baking dish. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water, add fat or butter.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Sliced fresh pineapple, broiled cottage cheese, potatoes hashed in milk, graham wafers, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Creamed asparagus with hard cooked eggs on toast, salad of mixed greens, sugared strawberries, milk, tea.
DINNER: Hot veal loaf with mushroom sauce, chicken with currant jelly, glazed carrots Julienne, tomato and cucumber salad, rhubarb whip, milk, coffee.

ter and salt and pepper and pour over escarole. The amount of salt depends on the kind of fat you use. If you use bacon fat, less salt will be necessary than if an unsalted fat is used. Cover baking dish and bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes, until tender. Serve from baking dish.
 A very simple way to cook beet-greens is with bacon fat and a thick slice of lemon—sliced and sliced. This gives the greens an excellent flavor without the bother of making a tart sauce.
Beet Greens with Lemon.
 Two pounds beet-greens, 4 tablespoons bacon fat, 1-2 lemon, 1-4 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon ginger, few grains white pepper, 1-4 teaspoon salt.
 Wash and chop greens and put into a sauce pan. Mix and add fat and water. Cover and cook hard for twenty minutes, stirring frequently to prevent sticking. Let stand over a low fire for fifteen minutes. Remove slices of lemon and serve.

Something About School Board of Eastland; C. of C. Gracious Compliment

The strenuous efforts of the school board of Eastland to bring to a successful conclusion a full year's session in face of serious financial condition of the school district, has brought a well deserved compliment from the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, that also commends the faithful service of devoted teachers, and the co-operation of the graduating class of our Eastland high school.
 A copy of an article of appreciation by the C. of C., headed: "Greeting Officers, Teachers, Scholars," was issued to each member of the school board, to the 28 teachers, and to each of the 43 graduates of high school.
 The school board was assured of the recognition by the C. of C., of the financial problems that confronted, and the many difficulties surmounted, to the point of a successful year achieved, and congratulated the board on their efforts and success.
 The teachers were assured that their self-sacrifice and devotion to duty was known and their constant enthusiasm and interest in their work, when pay checks were slow in coming, was greatly appreciated. Indeed the entire community echoes this attitude.
 The Eastland Chamber of Commerce extended congratulations to the graduating class, with best wishes for health, happiness and prosperity, and the hope that they might continue their education in Texas, and that their progress would be watched with interest.
 That should they remain with us to share in the city's prosperity, they are assured of every help and co-operation possible with the C. of C.
 The message was personal with the Chamber of Commerce and Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary.

Some were slightly patronizing, without meaning to be so, ushers flitted here and there, clutching sheaves of flowers, gifts for the graduates, in their warm, eager hands, waiting patiently for the right moment to present them.

Speakers on the stage held undivided attention of the audience, even when at times they were so modest, that but every other word could be heard.

Occasionally they arose above the difficulties they were experi- encing and satisfied their hearers, by some unusually good sentence or description.

The graduates must have been very warm, though they looked cool enough in their long gray gowns, mortar boards and flowing sleeves.

part of the ceremonial of receiving the diploma, when each boy or girl stood before K. E. Tanner, as he presented the coveted sheepskin, to put up the left hand, and swing the tassel of the cap to the right side.

Time after time this was done involuntarily. It's curious how instinctively human beings resent a discomfort, and evidently, that tassel hobbling in their eyes as they curtsied, was something to sling aside.

They made a pretty sight, that long string of boys and girls, from a tall six-footer to wee Mary McCarty, her golden curls gleaming from beneath her gray cap.

The three little people who received the medals for all around excellence grammar and junior high schools were so taken by surprise, over securing this longed for distinction, that they were pale and speechless.

Tiny Nan Mickle, no higher than your hand, looked like a sprite, aroused from a dream, as she was told to step up on the stage and accept her gold medal from West ward school.

It was no surprise to her friends that Clara June Kimble secured the junior high school gift for general excellence, pious demeanor, punctuality, scholarship and lots of other things.

Mildred McGlamery was so surprised over being awarded the gold medal from South ward school, she seemed in a daze. Mildred won the Better Homes committee prize last year, for the best essay on "Our Better Homes."

Judge B. W. Papperson, a noted lecturer and orator, held his audience even through the murmuring of children, noise of late comers, and the inevitable rustle of a restless gathering.

Judge Patterson was famous in Oklahoma, where his pleadings before courts has drawn large crowds. His ease of manner, wide reading, Christian outlook, and experience of life, makes him an irresistible speaker.

J. Frank Sparks' quiet, forceful manner, in giving the oath of allegiance to the graduating class, brought instant response from the audience, in their acquiescent silence.

It was an impressive and dignified moment, when those 40 odd young men and women arose, four lines deep and in tone with Mr. Sparks, in unison, this most sacred pledge to good citizenship.

Mr. Sparks' introductory remarks made an interesting opening for the pledge.

White Collars Fool Dolphins

By United Press.

HOUSTON.—The arrival of warm weather off the Atlantic seaboard means the end of monotony for Capt. Anthony Rudan, master of the S. S. City of Fort Worth, and John P. O'Donnell, first mate of the vessel.

Both men will admit that plying regularly between Houston and Philadelphia, as they have done for many years, becomes a bit tedious. Along about this time of year, however, comes dolphin fishing.

Dolphin fishing, as practiced by Rudan and O'Donnell in a manner of their own invention, could hardly be a sport. Nevertheless, it is an acceptable pastime and, what is more important, it keeps the ship's ice box well filled with fresh fish.

Under the Rudan-O'Donnell system, the fisherman takes first as many large hooks as is desired and conceals each with a strip of white cloth. Captain Rudan uses his old collars. This arrangement is attached to a 200-foot heavy line, one end of which is fastened to the ship's stern rail.

As the vessel makes about 11 knots an hour, the hook is pulled through the water. The ship's speed causes it to skip across the surface. The white cloth leaping along looks like a flying fish.

Dolphins, being fond of flying fish, snap at what they think is their prey and soon find themselves snared. The special hooks are so constructed to prevent escape. All the fisherman does then is pull in the dolphin. They weigh as much as 40 pounds and are excellent eating.

Sailors on the City of Fort Worth are used to the sight of Captain Rudan or Mate O'Donnell suddenly sighting a dolphin while standing watch or enjoying a smoke on the boat deck, racing madly aft to haul in the catch.

By United Press.

AUSTIN.—The "Walton State Building" has been adopted as the name of the Old Travis county courthouse here, recently remodelled into an office building by the state.

The name was selected in honor of the late Attorney General Buck Walton who won many noted cases in the building. Representative T. H. McGregor, who submitted the name, also pointed out it honors Izaak Walton. The state game, fish and oyster commission is housed in the building.

HEN ADOPTS THREE KITTENS

By United Press.

Back-to-Farm Plan To Aid the Unemployed Is Gaining Support

AUSTIN.—A concentrated and unified back-to-the-farm movement, guided and aided by the federal government, is essential in the alleviation of the current widespread unemployment in the United States, J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, declared today in commenting upon the steadily increasing consideration being given the plan by both lawmakers and industrialists.

Last fall Commissioner McDonald proposed this plan as a sound and permanent manner in which to reduce unemployment and since that time many methods to put it into effect have been suggested.

The commissioner said his correspondence indicated many financiers are giving serious thought to it.

"It is conservatively estimated that there are between seven and nine million unemployed in the United States," he said. "Many of these are permanently, not just temporarily, displaced from their jobs in industrial and commercial centers because of the installation of modern labor-saving machinery. Many of these unemployed are of our finest type of citizenship, who have contributed to the support of our government, schools and all constructive endeavors.

"The unemployed, confronted with the problem of finding some means of livelihood, must turn to one of two places—the government dole, as symbolized by the breadline, or be established on a farm, the prime source of our wealth. If they turn to the farm interest, these bonds, secured by making a quick fortune but to earn a living.

"Life in industrial and commercial centers has given to many of the families now unemployed advantages of education and society and when re-established on farms they will become real assets to our rural communities and will contribute to the upbuilding of our rural life, which is so essential to the welfare of our nation."

Commissioner McDonald pointed out that many plans for effecting a nation-wide back-to-the-farm movement have been suggested. Some have proposed that it be sponsored by private organizations and private capital; others, that the state governments finance the project and others that the federal government take responsibility for it. T. M. Dues of Midlothian, a candidate for the legislature from Ellis county, who has been identified with many constructive programs, proposes state sponsorship of the movement in his platform.

"The very fact that the federal government has appropriated two billion dollars to refinance private concerns is evidence that the individuals do not have funds to finance this project," he said. "The several states neither have the money nor power to print currency. That leave sit to the federal government as possibly the only practical means of establishing finance for this project.

"Congress can appropriate a sum of money to be used as a revolving fund, which would be sufficient to finance a back-to-the-farm movement. As an illustration: After Congress had appropriated funds, unemployed man No. 1 would be furnished $3,000 to establish him on a farm. He would give 30 bonds of $100 denomination, payable over a period of 30 years at a nominal rate of interest. These bonds, secured by the property, could then be placed with the Treasury and against them $3,000 in currency issued. The new issue of $3,000 could be used to finance No. 2 on the same plan.

"By that means the federal government could furnish funds to

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Lorna Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, pretty, 19, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets DAN PHILLIPS, reporter on the Wellington News. Cherry has few friends because her wealthy parents consider most of the other young people of the town socially inferior. She has become acquainted with Phillips without her parents' knowledge.

She and Dan lunch together and are about to start for a drive in Cherry's roadster when another reporter tells Dan the city editor has been trying to find him. DIXIE, a suave, bank robber, has escaped jail and the city editor wants Dan to find INEZ MALLORY, Smith's sweetheart, and get an interview. Dan and Cherry drive to the apartment where Inez is staying. He enters, promising to return in 10 minutes. When he does not come Cherry grows nervous and goes into the apartment to find him.

"Just a minute, Dan," the man called. Dan called. "Do you live in the policeman's den?"

"No."

"Then what have you there?"

"Why, officer, we've an apartment. Some there were any did not like the look."

"Oh, you didn't motion while you were 'No sir'?"

"Sure of that?"

"Why, yes, I'm hear anything. Is wrong? Has anything Phillips' tone not completely convincing the policeman and entered the hall by his companion. nor Phillips gave the a second glance.

They hurried across the roadster. As Dan the engine the girl my purse!"

"Can't go back now?"

"Not with that fastener I get you in a I'll come back for it."

Cherry's arm gripped Two great teeth gripped her teeth, she cry out.

Twice Dan's eyes catch side-long girl's white face. He created the roadster minutes later he was into a physician's office.

"It's her left arm, doctor." "Gun went off. We tried to stop it a tourniquet."

Cherry asked slowly, "Dan—what happened?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

SOME of the names above the mail boxes tilted tipsily so that they were difficult to read. Others lacked identification of any sort. Cherry searched the list but nowhere could she find the name "Baker." It must be there, though. "Baker" was what Dan had said. Unless he'd found the place he'd have come back.

But there was no such name on the list of tenants of the apartment. The girl turned uncertainly. The exterior of the building had proven deceptive. The small square entrance way in which she stood was soiled and down-at-heel. Brown walls with hideous panels of scenic wall paper on either side. Finger marks smudging the woodwork. The simulated tile floor in need of soap and water.

What should she do?

Cherry's fears were rising. It was at that instant that a grimy urchin, capless and wearing a sweater too large for him, appeared on the other side of the outer door and stared at the girl through the glass panel.

She drew back the door. "Do you know if some people named Baker live here?" she asked.

The urchin nodded. Traces of some sticky stuff showed on his cheeks. The blue stare of impassive eyes regarded her, but the child did not speak.

"Can you tell me where to find them?"

The urchin pointed a sticky finger to the door at the left. Through the glass portion of the door a short flight of stairs was revealed. Evidently it led to a hall.

Somewhat the child reassured Cherry. It couldn't be such a dreadful place if there were children about. Timidly she put a hand on the door. It opened.

She went up the steps gingerly and found herself in a long passage. There was a dim yellow light half way down the hall. Its meager rays showed doors on either side—probably a dozen of them. Gray daylight filtered through a window on the landing where the stairs turned.

The thing to do now would be to knock at one of these doors and ask where the Bakers lived.

Cherry took two steps forward—and drew back in dismay. There were voices, men's voices, raised and angry, behind the nearest door on the right.

Now they were gone but she dared not go down. Stealthily Cherry crept up the stairs to the second floor. She must find someone to help her. She must find Dan! Marshaling all her courage, Cherry stepped forward. She raised a hand and knocked at the door before her.

She could never remember the rest. The deafening roar of a gun's report, the sharp, stinging sensation in her arm, her own shriek—they seemed all to have happened at once.

Out of the darkness she was able, vaguely, to hear voices. One that was familiar. A pleasant voice. Whose was it? Cherry opened her eyes.

"That's the girl, Cherry! Feeling better now?"

Why, it was Dan who was bending over her! He seemed to have his arm about her.

"Dan—what happened?"

"Never mind about that now. Here, see if you can drink this."

He held a glass to her lips. It was sharp, biting stuff that stung her throat but she drank it. Dan's face looked worried. What was the matter?

Suddenly Cherry began to remember things. That drive down strange streets—Inez Somebody whom Dan must find—waiting outside in the car...

FOR another 10 minutes activity—tense in the small office. Coffey took her as the probation and cleaned had torn the flesh of an ugly, jagged laceration there.

"A quarter of an hour this would have been physician told them. Dr. Ryland and, framed diploma school which hung on had been practicing years. "The bullet an artery. Your splendid idea. It was her life."

"How's that now?" addressing the girl, "It's all right."

The bandage was taken. Ryland stood back, painful, he told the don't think you've any trouble with it. will need to be changed now is quiet. He talked on until ruptured. "Listen, Dr. could I use your plasters?"

"Why, certainly." Dan picked up a gave a number. "said brusquely and later, "Bates? This I've just been talking to. Gave me a good [—WHAT? What do Both of the issue. There was something tion that was elect bound, they watched see the youth's whole "No!" he exclaimed. "God—no!" The words dead, not even died. Slowly he turned the instrument.

GIRLS---

WOULD YOU ASK A MAN TO BE YOUR HUSBAND?

An interview with several of the bachelor girls of the city reveals the fact that some of them don't want a husband, while others express themselves as not wanting to "pop the question" themselves.

Only one girl was interviewed that said that she would ask a man to marry her. She was quite positive she would if she found a man whom she thought suitable in every way. She expressed herself as being doubtful of finding a man who would meet her strict requirements.

MEN---

WOULD YOU SAY "YES" TO A LEAP YEAR PROPOSAL?

Several eligible men of city were asked the above question. Each of them made practically the same answer: "It would depend on who the girl was." Most of them seemed sure they would not likely be approached.

The consensus of opinion seemed to be that, even in this modern age, the man should be the one to choose his mate rather than to be the object of choice by members of the opposite sex. One man said, "Yes, two can live as cheaply as one, but my shoes wouldn't fit her."

NEW BRIDGE MAGAZINE STIMULATES FRENCHMEN
By United Press.

Very arbitrary methods of playing also are discussed, but no mention is made of the natural high card discard. Despite her claim that contract bridge originated in France, the country is far behind both America and Great Britain in the science of the game.
