BULLDOGS PUT UP FINE FIGHT TO LOSE 7-0

Enochs Makes Lone Touchdown in Second Quarter To Take Game.

Ranger High school's fighting Bulldogs were nosed out by the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm at Lillard field Saturday afternoon by a score of 7 to 0, the superior number of reserves forcing Ranger out of the running in the race for the state championship.

The lone Amarillo touchdown came in the second quarter when Howes punted from his 39 yards line to the Ranger 30 yards line, where Gloyd Lyon got his fingers on the kick but did not hold it and Amarillo recovered.

This is a national service, which is presented in honor of the departed brothers of the order.

In the evening at 9:30 a broadcast of the national service will be on the air.

MEMPHIS.—Memphis' needy will require $976,678.14 this winter, the Community Fund has estimated. Of this sum, $92,792.56 can be raised direct through endowments and earnings of the 27 agencies supported by the Community Fund; $250,000 has been requested of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and $533,885 must be raised by contributions.

BASKETBALL PLANS MADE AT MEETING

At a meeting held in the Ghoulson hotel Saturday morning to formulate plans for the Oil Belt basketball season, it was decided that the games would be played in much the same manner in which they were scheduled last year.

All teams refused to play in Ranger because of the small gymnasium and the small court, so all Ranger games must be played out of town, unless another court is provided.

Early this week Coach Francis Schmidt of T. C. U. visited the high school basketball court and inspected the theatre building, and said that Ranger should, by all means, put a court in the building, saying that it could be used as an auditorium at any time by re-arranging the seats.

REPEAL BILL VOTE WILL BE TAKEN MONDAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Speaker Garner was informed today by democratic leaders who have been polling the house that his prohibition repeal resolution stands "a good chance" of passage when brought to a vote Monday.

Republican repealist leaders have promised between 115 and 135 votes.

The judiciary committee, heavily democratic, rebelled against Speaker Garner late yesterday. It voted 13 to 6 against the speaker's unqualified repeal plan.

Nevertheless, Speaker Garner, using his parliamentary rights, will bring about a vote in order to "keep faith with the American people," he declared.

Services Held for Former Rangerite

Short funeral services were conducted in Ranger this morning for J. B. Ritchie, formerly of Ranger, who was killed in a crossing accident near Big Spring early this week.

Services were conducted in Big Spring before the body was shipped to Ranger and only short services were held prior to interment.

The deceased lived in Ranger until 1926, where he was employed by Black, Sivalls & Bryson. He was killed in a crossing accident near Big Spring when his car was dragged for more than a mile by the train which struck his car.

WILDCAT WELL NOW DRILLING AT 625 FEET

The Donley & Chastain wildcat well, which is being drilled on the Hawkins tract 16 miles north of Ranger in Stephens county, was reported Saturday to be drilling 625 feet, with the log of the well being very favorable.

Ten-inch casing has been set at 625 feet and the drilling operations are being conducted 24 hours out of each day, two 12-hour shifts being worked.

The well is a wildcat on a tract that has never been drilled and is being watched with much interest. Plans call for drilling to a depth of 2,100 feet, though a good showing of gas was encountered at 570 feet.

Congressmen Are Asked To Visit Old Garner Home

DETROIT, Texas, Dec. 3.—Replics from leading Texas democrats, invited to stop here and visit the Garner home and the grave of the vice president-elect's mother while en route to the presidential inauguration, were awaited today.

A campaign by letter and wire to hold a reunion of democrats here was launched by Claude Council, president of the Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Garner Will Continue to Work

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Mrs. John N. Garner, who has been a wage-earning office worker for 30 years, intimated today she will shatter Washington's gold-braided social and political precedent by continuing to work after her husband becomes vice president of the United States.

"A man or woman who suddenly retires after he has been in business for the greater part of his life, generally dies," she said. "And I don't want to die."

It would be simple to move the coffeepot and portable stove from her present office in the capitol to the luxurious chambers of the vice president in the senate office building. There she could continue doing her husband's work and warming his stomach with her own brand of chili con carne at mid-day.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Harvard men of the class of 1932 will average more than six feet in height, if the current trend is maintained.

The average Harvard man today stands 5 feet, 10-11 inches tall—1-3 inches taller than his father, and weighs 149 1/2 pounds, whereas his father weighed but 147 1/2 pounds.

Statistics, assembled through more than 18,000 measurements of Harvard men and their fathers by research students in anthropology, reveal that the present generation of Harvard men is one of the tallest groups in the world. As far as can be determined, their average height is surpassed only by that of the adult males of the Sara, a Central African tribe averaging 5 feet, 11 1/2 inches in height.

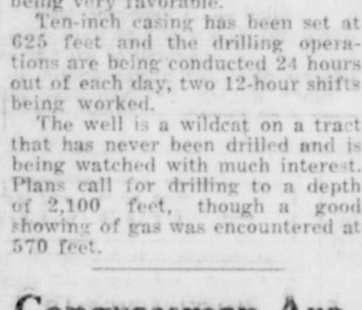

Soft Tires Waste Gas, Survey Shows

AMES, Ia.—Gasoline mileage has a direct ratio to tire inflation, Ray G. Paustals, of the Iowa state highway commission has discovered after three months of research.

Soft tires mean wasted gas, Paustals says. His tests show that for every 10 pounds the tire is allowed to drop below its normal pressure, an 8 per cent decrease in mileage is obtained from gasoline. The experiments also showed that the tire diameter increased one-half inch as the speed of the car varied from zero to 60 miles per hour. On the cars used in the experiment, there were seven fewer revolutions of the wheels per mile at 60 miles per hour than there were at five miles per hour.

NO DECISION IS RENDERED ON SATURDAY

AUSTIN, Dec. 3.—The two major "jims" of Texas politics clashed before the Third Court of Civil Appeals here today at a hearing on the temporary restraining order against the state highway commission.

Attorney General Jimmy Allred termed the injunction suit as "foolish and absurd." Former Governor James E. Ferguson replied that there was a shortage approximating $9,000,000 in the state highway commission funds, which should be investigated.

The high court heard the argument of both sides and announced a recess without specifying when a ruling would be made. The suit may go to trial on its merits Tuesday in district court here.

Today's hearing was on the temporary restraining order. Tuesday's trial will represent an attempt to decide if the allegations made by former Governor Ferguson justify a permanent injunction.

Appearing with Ferguson and Judge Ocie Spear for maintenance of the injunction today was Representative Bailey Hardy of Breckenridge, who joined with Ferguson and J. N. Chamberlain of Palo Pinto county in asking the injunction.

Allred confined his argument to the Ferguson claim that the road bond relief act of the third special session of the legislature repealed former highway appropriations. Allred said that instead of doing that it specifically directed the department to go ahead under appropriations already made.

If Ferguson's contentions are true, he asserted, the highway department employes have been paid unlawfully, since that act took effect.

"It is my duty to represent the departments of the state so long as they conform to the law, whether I agree with their policies or not," said Allred.

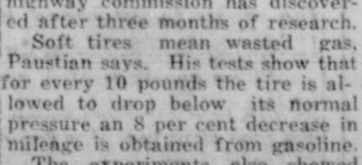

An immediate decision is imperative, Allred said, for conditions really are represented by the injunction a condition of "chaos and confusion" exists in state affairs.

There was a notable increase in attention as former Governor Ferguson faced the court.

"They are about to bind the credit of the state for and underpass at Temple to cost $1,000,000. They are about to bind the credit of the state for the Weatherford-Strawn cutoff at a cost of $1,300,000 and they are about to contract for a highway in the Gulf of Mexico at a cost of $3,000,000," he declared.

"It's astounding," Ferguson said, "that a branch of the government, charged with an excessive expenditure of more than $9,000,000 for some reason doesn't dare to deny the record and contest this charge against them. The petition stands uncontradicted before the court. They can laugh that out of court if they want to, but the fact remains there is $9,000,000 they haven't got and ought not to spend."

PASS KEY MAY BE A CLEW TO WOMAN'S DEATH

DALLAS, Dec. 3.—A pass key to all apartments in the building where Mrs. H. K. Buchanan was found choked to death Thursday is missing and disappeared two days before the slaying, authorities learned today.

Detectives began a search for the key with the new development, starting them on a new track in their investigations.

E. Buchwald said the key was turned over to one of his tenants about three weeks ago. On Tuesday, he said, the tenant moved to Fort Worth without returning the key.

Buchwald said he sent a friend to Fort Worth to get the key but this person came back with the report the tenant told him the key was thrown in an incinerator at the apartment house before moving.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE GOLDEN RULE: Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.—Matthew 7: 12.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

A republican administration is planning to go out in the near future. A democratic administration is planning to roll in. Three republican presidents have dominated the republic for 12 years. In all the 12 the federal power commission must have been "feeling its way." Now a broad expansion of its regulatory authority over public utility companies has been recommended to congress by the federal power commissioners. While the recommendations had to do only with federal licenses, those operating on public lands or navigable streams, the commission gave notice that a program for general regulation was being held in abeyance pending investigations in that field by senate and house.

These are the two fundamental purposes in view: First, regulation of the holding companies in relation to the operating companies and through the operating company to the consumer of electrical companies and through the operating company to the consumer of electrical energy. Second, regulation of the holding in relation to the investing public, which is principally interested in the securities of such holding companies. Furthermore, the commission declared that any draft of holding company legislation must incorporate three major provisions: First, a declaration of jurisdiction. Second, a declaration concerning evidence of control and the burden of proof. Third, a grant of authority to acquire complete information upon which such regulation and control can be predicted.

All this is a reminder that the president-elect covered all the ground in his opening campaign speech and declared for all the policies of control that this commission, appointed by three republican presidents, recommends to the lame duck session of congress. Samuel Insull was a Napoleon of his period. He created a $3,000,000,000 power empire. It crashed in the early days of the campaign and its crashing is said to have caused a loss of $1,000,000,000 to 300,000 investors. Now the recommendation goes to the lawmaking department of the government that regulation of holding companies as well as their issues of securities "is a demand of the hour."

HARVESTER COMPANY PROVIDES JOBS FOR THE JOBLESS

Four thousand jobless men will be placed on the payroll of the International Harvester company, Chicago. That is, its managers will add about 4000 part time employees in its plants during the winter and early spring months—half of these in the Chicago plant. All these additional workers will be added gradually. Purpose of the managers in increasing factory operating forces is to provide supplies of goods which they hope and expect will be required during the coming year. In order to spread the work as far as possible they will not increase the working time of those now employed, but will call back longer service men who have been out of work for some time. Encouraging to say the least. Furthermore, if there were no employers of labor, with the necessary capital to function all the time or most of the time, this would be a dreary old world for the hand workers, regardless of all of the biting criticisms made of what is known as a capitalistic civilization. Soviet Russia has a civilization just the opposite or reverse. There is no freedom of action in Russia. There is no freedom of speech unless the speaker accepts the dictum or the decrees of Stalin. There is no freedom of worship. There is no mounting the rungs of the ladder except for the favored few. Man has iron bands around his head, and shackles bind his feet. Regardless of this the Russians are entitled to go their own way, to create their own industrial and economic system, and be the willing slaves or peons of a dictator who rules with iron hand and from whose decree there is no appeal except the torch and the sword of revolution.

BRITTEN OF ILLINOIS PLEDGES HOOVER TO FREE BEER

Representative Britten of Illinois, a stalwart republican who escaped slaughter at the polls Nov. 8, held a conference with the President. Later the Illinois statesman delivered a formal forecast that if a bill to legalize beer is passed by the December session of congress, it will not be vetoed by the chief magistrate. Indeed, he promised the press correspondents gathered around him that "New Year's will be celebrated in good beer rather than bad wine." Well, get seats in the bleachers or on the sidelines and watch the New Year's procession ambling along. It is only just to say that one of the many secretaries of the president is responsible for the statement that the Illinois representative "was talking through his tall hat."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

JOSEPH J. CANNON, editor of the Salt Lake City (Utah) Desert News, says:

"It is easy to feel the romance that illumines the lives of past generations. The story may be of plain living, sober fashions and hard toil, yet even these, which would be dreary now, quicken us, because they touch life as we live it in the higher, perhaps truer, consciousness of the imagination. It is not difficult, either, to anticipate the romance of the future, when new experiences only suggested now by advanced thinkers will be realities to those who live after us.

"If then the past and the future are both glorified by romance, it follows that to our ancestors looking forward prophetically or to our descendants looking backward historically, the present would be a romantic era also. That it fails generally to seem so to us is due to our letting the sense of reality suppress the sense of the imagination. The 'now' should be of deeper significance and stimulation to us than what was 'now' to our fathers or what will be 'now' to our children. Yet because of being with us from the cradle to the grave, it has grown to be commonplace, tiresome, to some even ugly.

"The really useful newspaper not only tells the story of the present with stark truthfulness but makes its readers feel genuine pity for common suffering, indignation at usual injustice, cheer before the unfolding comedy of life and happy surprises in the discovery of everyday beauty. In other words, the good newspaper dramatizes the present and makes its readers feel the romance of today."

Some cities are order takers; they take what comes to them. Other cities are order getters; they make up their mind what their city needs and then go after it until they get it.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

This column is used as a feature and should not be construed as representing the editorial views of the paper. The expressions contained in the column are the views of one individual and do not reflect the policy of the paper.

Its story is told on an inscription by the door: "The Oldest House in the United States. Under Three Flags. St. Francis St. St. Augustine, Fla. It is recorded in the archives of the church this house was occupied by the Monks of St. Francis from 1565 to 1590. The chapel they used can still be seen. In 1590 it came into possession of a deputy of the Spanish government, and descended in the same family until 1882." The entire town of St. Augustine was destroyed when Sir Francis Drake made his raid in 1586; that is, all structures save this one house. It stands as a symbol of what was, what might have been, and a delightful comparison with what is. It is now used as a museum by the Historical Society of St. Augustine.

In this same city the famous "Fountain of Youth" gushes up from an undying spring, reminding one of the ill-fated Ponce de Leon who set sail from Spain in search of the fabled Isle of Bimini. Landing one beautiful morning soon after Easter Sunday in 1512, he went ashore with sword, cross, and royal decree... and called his find Florida.

Is it not another strange chance of fate that such a fountain of supposed life should stand so near the historical old house? Youth and age so near and yet so far; dull ruins and crystal drops, dying memories and fabled hopes, death and life.

Now, the man whose fancy turns toward tarantulas to be sworn lovingly on his head beneath his hat, the charmer who pipes a tune to a row of swaying serpents, and the woman who wears tight and thrusts her head in a lion's mouth are all very good in their chosen line, I suppose... but, as for me, give me safety or give me space, wide open space and plenty of time to make my get-away. I have never boasted a strong heart and great courage, caring for nothing wider than a cow and having a distinct dislike for even reptile-trimmed footwear. Unlike the great majority of the female clan, I do like mice. I attribute such an affection to the fact that at one time I was the proud owner of a white rat, said animal possessing many worthy characteristics and a great amount of intelligence... much more than many people I know. He was a skillful rat, named "Snookums" after nothing particular, having mastered the art of hanging by his tail. Such an accomplishment is not to sneered at... neither is the habit of hating and book-nibbling; he had both. But we were very fond of him, he really was the center of the family, and gave him a quite royal funeral when it came his time to cross the river, following an overdose of ant poison. I still do not like spiders and snakes and lions. They are about as safe as elephants and donkeys.

Josh Billings, who really was Henry Wheeler Shaw, left us a number of things to think about. In this day of professions and unemployment, I am reminded that he said "Every man should know something of law. If he knows enough to keep out of it, he is a pretty good lawyer." It was clever when he said it, no doubt, but it strikes pretty deep these days when a man finds it very hard to live up to the advice. Somehow it seems almost impossible to stay away from the judge with bankruptcy and divorce laws staring us all in the face. 'Tis for the good old caveman days when it was a case of simple clubs and hearts, and a snake was a piece of flint, and diamonds had nothing to do with it. Civilization doesn't seem to be getting us very far and the rats are getting rugged. All that America, the land of the free with a tax on everything, and a big price to get here and a bigger one to die.

Resolution

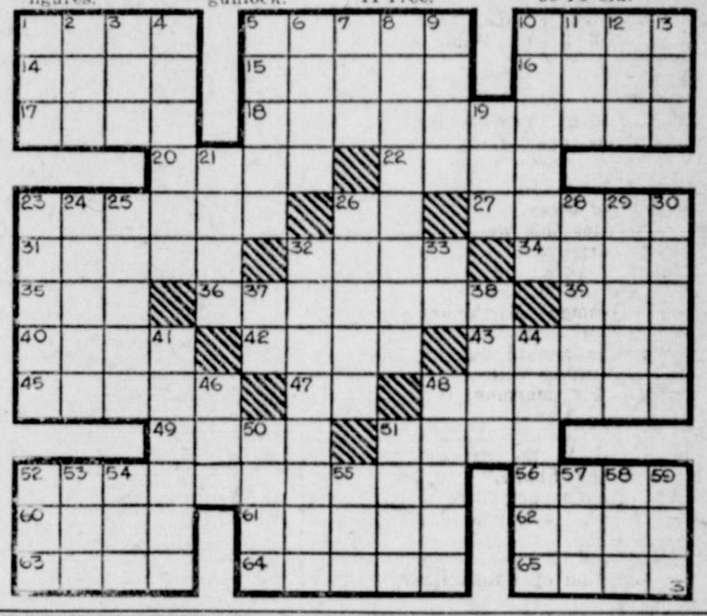

To the Eastland County Bar Association: Gentlemen: We, your committee on Resolutions, beg leave to report.

Jasper Lee Carley, a member of this bar association, was born Sept. 20, 1882, in the State of Mississippi and at the age of 8 years was brought by his parents to Bell county, Texas, where he was educated in the public schools. In 1901, in Bell county, he married Miss Ida Spoons, and to this union eight children were born, six of whom with his widow, survive him. He was admitted to the Bar at Austin, Texas, and removed to Jones county where he engaged in the practice of his chosen profession. He served Jones county as county attorney, where he made an enviable record as a prosecuting officer. In 1919 he moved to Eastland county, opening a law office at Cisco, where he remained until Nov. 11, 1932, when he died from a throat trouble, from which he had suffered for many months and was buried at Anson, Jones county.

For 35 years he was a member of the Methodist Church and died triumphant in the ancient faith. To a member of this committee, when he knew that death was near, he expressed with hope and cheer the tenets of the Christian religion. His life was largely dedicated to the service of the poor, the un-

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The Republican progressives in the Senate are not going to give up their committee chairmanships to Democrats during the short session. The Democrats are not going to permit Republican progressives to retain those chairmanships after they gain Senate control.

President-elect Roosevelt is not going to appoint any Republican progressives to his cabinet. All that is rather thoroughly agreed now, although there have been various rumors and speculations to the effect that Democrats and the liberal Republicans who supported Roosevelt in the campaign were going to be rewarded just as if they were Democrats and that the progressives were going to gain control of the short session Senate to the party which won the election but will be in a slight numerical minority in the upper house until March 4.

There may be extensive co-operation between the two groups, but it appears that no one is going to give away anything very tangible.

NOT even a hint has reached the progressives that they can retain their chairmanships in cases where they campaigned for the president-elect. To do so they would have to become Democrats—which is unthinkable since they were elected as Republicans and none has ever indicated any thought of changing his label—or the Democrats would have to deprive their own brethren of honors fortunate and the distressed and thousands to have occasion to bless his memory. J. Lee Carley loved his fellowman, was loyal to his friends, an honest man, a faithful and affectionate husband and father and in his loss our Bar loses a faithful lawyer of the old school.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be furnished his widow, a copy furnished the press and a copy be spread on the minutes of each of our district courts. FRANK JUDKINS, R. N. GRISHAM, Committee.

INDIANS TO CUT TIMBER By United Press. GREAT FALLS, Mont.—From 50,000 to 75,000 feet of spruce, fir and lodgepole pine will be cut by members of the Blackfoot Indian tribe this winter for use in constructing homes and development of Indian property. The timber, cut from the Lewis and Clark national forest, was set aside for the Indians' use by federal authorities. A sawmill may be erected by the government to permit the Indians to finish the timber.

CAT SAVES AN INJURED WOMAN By United Press. HANFORD, Cal.—When Mrs. Catherine Hockderffer's big black Persian cat wants an extra saucer of milk, or even a saucer of cream, he gets it now. Mrs. Hockderffer, 89, slipped, fell, and broke her leg recently while taking an after-dinner walk. Unable to arise or make her cries heard, she was forced to remain helpless on the ground all night. The cat found her, apparently realized her plight, and curled itself against her, keeping her warm.

1920 Club Program is Delightful Feature

The 1920 club program presented under the direction of Mrs. S. P. Boon, in the green room of the Gholson hotel, Thursday afternoon, with a course of study selected from an interesting title, "Norway and Sweden" afforded one of the most delightful studies the club has experienced for several months. The meeting was opened with the first vice-president, Mrs. Mills Davenport, presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Barney Carter, who in turn presented the leader of the study.

Mrs. Walter Jackson rendered her assignment, "General Characteristics of Norway and Sweden" in an interesting way, as did Mrs. R. R. Stafford, who spoke on "Religion and Social Life." Mrs. I. N. Griffin, who substituted for Mrs. Fred Warren, added to the subject when she gave a resume of "Education."

Current Events the concluding number proved extremely interestingly read by Mrs. J. E. Fletcher. Members composing the program personnel acted as co-hostesses during the brief social period when they presented Mrs. A. N. Larson, an honor guest of the hour whose parents are natives of Sweden. Mrs. Larson, gave a talk of several minutes on the home life and preparation of foods in Sweden. As the social drew to a close all members were invited to the Gholson hotel coffee shop where they were served at tables appointed with clusters of yellow and purple violets, Sweden's native blossom.

Delicious cakes prepared from a favorite Swedish recipe known as "Stigman" were served with coffee.

Places were designated for the fall group of 1920 club members and guest of occasion, Mrs. Larson.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

THE latest reports by food chemists tell us that "six medium sized dates furnish as much working force as a large baked potato or three half-inch slices from a sister's loaf of bread." Since they are also rich in iron and other minerals, they are a worthwhile addition to the diet of growing children. They also lend themselves to many delicious concoctions.

Cooked breakfast cereal gains interest and nourishment if a few chopped dates are added. Three dates add approximately 100 calories to a dish of cereal.

Sandwiches are good and of great food value made with a filling of dates and nuts chopped together and made moist with cream.

Try dates rather than raisins in the next rice pudding you make. Flavor it delicately with cinnamon and vanilla.

Several salads use dates effectively. Chopped apple, nut and date salad with French dressing made with lemon juice is splendid on crisp, finely shredded cabbage. Fine large dates stuffed with a mixture of cream cheese and finely chopped salted nuts make a hearty bridge salad.

Two cups stoned and coarsely chopped dates, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Pour boiling water over dates. Drain, dip in cold water and remove stones if necessary. Chop coarsely and stew in a very little water until soft. Mix and sift flour, sugar and salt and add to stewed dates. Stir well and add well beaten egg. Mix and add milk and vanilla. Turn into a deep pie dish lined with plain pastry. Bake shell and cover with 1 cup cream whipped until firm and sweetened with 2 tablespoons powdered sugar and flavored with a few drops of vanilla.

One cup coarsely chopped dates, 1 cup chopped nut meats, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup powdered sugar, 2 eggs, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat whites and yolks of eggs separately, beating whites until stiff and almost dry. Beat in sugar and add yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and combine with dates and nuts. Mix lightly and turn into an oiled and floured cake pan and bake 50 minutes in a slow oven. Serve cold with whipped cream. This pudding can be baked the day before it is wanted for use.

Living With People of Other Races
Text: John 4:5-10; Acts 10:30-35
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 4.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist.
Two things are very clearly marked in the world today and are our own America where we have such co-mingling of types and races. One is the unmistakable and tragic fact of prejudice. Almost the entire American history has been characterized by the line between black and white, and the problems involved in connection with it, and there are other racial prejudices not confined to these extremes.

There is prejudice against the Jew; there is prejudice in some quarters against the Italian; there has been prejudice against the Irish; there are those who dislike the English; in fact, there is no race that is not disliked by some other group in the community.

One of the interesting things is to find groups that have suffered themselves from intense racial prejudice manifesting the same intensity of racial prejudice toward other groups. The circles of racial prejudice are involved and interwoven.

The other fact is the clear teaching of humanity in instincts of kindness and consideration, and the plain dictates of a religion of love which, as it has been manifest in its greatest souls and in life's richest experiences, has broken down prejudices and barriers. Here in our lesson we have two great instances—the one the case of a man in whose soul and in whose attitude there were no prejudices to break down, who in a condition of extreme unfriendliness between his race and that of a neighboring race treated a woman of the despised race with all the courtesy and fineness of gentleness and friendly interest.

The story of the meeting of Jesus with the woman of Samaria is all the more remarkable when one considers the general prejudices and customs of the time in addition to the bitterness of feeling between Samaritans and Jews. It was against all the custom of the time for a man to be found thus openly and freely conversing with a woman even if the woman had been a woman of good repute and character.

The incident in itself reveals Jesus as displaying the utmost courage and the utmost freedom from the prejudices of his day.

The other instance in our lesson is that of the man whose very religion was deeply rooted in prejudice. As a proud Jew, believing that he and his race had a privileged place in the regard of the Almighty, he looked upon others as common and unclean.

Even though Peter had shown himself capable of following Jesus, he had not freed himself from those deep and strong prejudices, and it was necessary that he should have a vision to show him plainly how narrow and wrong he was, and how he should not call anything common or unclean that God had made.

Can there be any solution of our problems of religious and racial prejudice except as men of godliness strive to see and treat all men in the light of God's love? Is not the very essence of godliness to take God's view of men and God's view of life? If we believe the Gospel is there, any creature in this world, righteous or sinful, that God does not love? Is not that the very message of the Gospel that God loves us and seeks us regardless of our condition and our situation?

The problems of racial prejudice are not confined to any one group or to any one section of our coun-showed. The leases are made for 10 years to individual citizens, churches, sportsmen's associations and other organizations. The leases vary from one-tenth to one-quarter of an acre. The lessees pay an annual rental of from $7 to $15.

Here in our lesson we have two great instances—the one the case of a man in whose soul and in whose attitude there were no prejudices to break down, who in a condition of extreme unfriendliness between his race and that of a neighboring race treated a woman of the despised race with all the courtesy and fineness of gentleness and friendly interest.

The story of the meeting of Jesus with the woman of Samaria is all the more remarkable when one considers the general prejudices and customs of the time in addition to the bitterness of feeling between Samaritans and Jews. It was against all the custom of the time for a man to be found thus openly and freely conversing with a woman even if the woman had been a woman of good repute and character.

The incident in itself reveals Jesus as displaying the utmost courage and the utmost freedom from the prejudices of his day.

The other instance in our lesson is that of the man whose very religion was deeply rooted in prejudice. As a proud Jew, believing that he and his race had a privileged place in the regard of the Almighty, he looked upon others as common and unclean.

Even though Peter had shown himself capable of following Jesus, he had not freed himself from those deep and strong prejudices, and it was necessary that he should have a vision to show him plainly how narrow and wrong he was, and how he should not call anything common or unclean that God had made.

Can there be any solution of our problems of religious and racial prejudice except as men of godliness strive to see and treat all men in the light of God's love? Is not the very essence of godliness to take God's view of men and God's view of life? If we believe the Gospel is there, any creature in this world, righteous or sinful, that God does not love? Is not that the very message of the Gospel that God loves us and seeks us regardless of our condition and our situation?

The problems of racial prejudice are not confined to any one group or to any one section of our coun-

showed. The leases are made for 10 years to individual citizens, churches, sportsmen's associations and other organizations. The leases vary from one-tenth to one-quarter of an acre. The lessees pay an annual rental of from $7 to $15.

Living With People of Other Races
Text: John 4:5-10; Acts 10:30-35
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 4.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist.
Two things are very clearly marked in the world today and are our own America where we have such co-mingling of types and races. One is the unmistakable and tragic fact of prejudice. Almost the entire American history has been characterized by the line between black and white, and the problems involved in connection with it, and there are other racial prejudices not confined to these extremes.

There is prejudice against the Jew; there is prejudice in some quarters against the Italian; there has been prejudice against the Irish; there are those who dislike the English; in fact, there is no race that is not disliked by some other group in the community.

One of the interesting things is to find groups that have suffered themselves from intense racial prejudice manifesting the same intensity of racial prejudice toward other groups. The circles of racial prejudice are involved and interwoven.

The other fact is the clear teaching of humanity in instincts of kindness and consideration, and the plain dictates of a religion of love which, as it has been manifest in its greatest souls and in life's richest experiences, has broken down prejudices and barriers. Here in our lesson we have two great instances—the one the case of a man in whose soul and in whose attitude there were no prejudices to break down, who in a condition of extreme unfriendliness between his race and that of a neighboring race treated a woman of the despised race with all the courtesy and fineness of gentleness and friendly interest.

By ELVIE R. JACKSON

"Good will to me": The old familiar sound comes at this special season, of these four words that if applied would cover with happiness the whole world from each of the four corners and unite in a peaceful and prosperous universe.

But this Utopian idea or dream remains still to be solved by the future. The application in the present may be held good along the lines of practical every day living and undertakings, from large to small affairs.

We cannot exercise good will to men, without exercising also forbearance, consideration and kindness.

Selfishness has no part in good will, and the rights of others, must be an integral foundation in the practical application of this good will.

When we are sending away our tokens of remembrance to those we love or like, and that convey our good will for the beautiful Christmas season, we should remember to prepare our packages carefully, so that the post or express offices may not be subjected to the annoyance of slipping strings, blurred addresses and weak paper wrappings.

In our Eastland Chamber of Commerce, many conveniences are arranged for the sender of Christmas gifts, letters and messages.

Good will is exercised here in the free Christmas wrapping service afforded the patron, and the many small things in labels, paper, twin, ink and blotters, all ready to use, and nice polished tables, when packages are addressed or regular patrons.

Week-end MURDER

GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH
© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

AMON PEABODY, elderly cousin of LINDA VERRILL, falls to his death from the second floor balcony of the Averills' Long Island home. Linda reaches him just before he dies, in time to hear him say a few words which convince her he was murdered. Linda rushes upstairs. Someone tries to smother her and she falls. There are four guests in the house—all suspects of the crime. They are: WILL STANTON, business associate of TOM AVERILL; CAPTAIN DE VOS, former Belgian; MARVIN PRATT, former editor of Linda's; and LIAN SPIEGELHAGEN, Irish priest. When Linda tells her husband what happened she persuades him they must keep these four men in the house until they can decide which one is guilty. There is no evidence sufficient to arrest Tom and Linda are aided in their plan when DR. BOYLE, one of the medical examiners, sends word that everyone must remain until he has completed his report on the fishing trip and can not return for several hours. Linda looks to Pratt who is noticeably suffering from strain. He refuses to go. He has been drinking with Cousin Amon the night before the older man's death. Later, supposing the house is empty, Linda gives her directions for the day. Tea on the lawn—time between that and dinner for the girls to rest and change—the arrival at 6:30 of a certain Mrs. Pritchard, supplementary kitchen aide when guests increased the family.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

ROSIE'S voice went on. "Tis the shirt you wheeled me to laundry, sir?" she said. "Well I knew what in your mind you would be asking! Sure, I took out the stains with the liquid I told you of—all but one I must work over a bit more—and when 'tis dry there will be no sign of them to spoil the white front of it. The cuff too—I had to work over that harder. 'Tis drying upstairs at my window where no one will see it and before I iron it out the best I can I'll mend the small tear. That can not be hidden altogether but 'twill be the best mend I can make and saints can do no more."

"That's the girl, Rosie!" From the evident relief in the man's voice Linda knew Rosie had indeed spoken what was in his mind. "Do that for me and my gratitude'll be eternal. 'Tis an angel in disguise you are—and you've saved me from worse trouble than you know of."

"Ah, that's as may be—" Rosie's voice was non-committal and Linda realized she was moving away, back toward the kitchen. That meant the talk was over—and also that Shaugnessy might come around the end of the house. Stepping back she quickly and silently along the grass, Linda soon reached the flagged terrace.

Deciding to give Rosie a moment to recover herself, she ran upstairs rather noisily, hurried about in her own room, and then came down by the service stairs which took her directly to the kitchen. She did not allow herself to think of what she had heard. She had a gift, of ten used to advantage, of being able to repeat almost word for word a conversation which had interested her. She knew this one was stored in some back corner of her mind and that she could repeat it to Tom just as it had been registered there.

"I should like to have claims tonight," said Linda reflectively. "Rosie, call up Mrs. Pritchard and ask her to bring what Annie'll need."

Rosie tossed her Irish head and flashed a look of scorn at the suggestion. "I know what you mean!" Linda pondered. Mrs. Pritchard wasn't distinguished for her clear-headedness in executing orders, still less those given by telephone. "But Flannery won't deliver so late."

"I've got to Rosie 'n' me," commanded Annie. The two had exchanged glances and Linda knew the matter had been taken out of her hands.

Going back to her chair on the lawn, Linda was glad for several reasons that she had made that visit which had restored her to a sense of orderly housewifeliness. Then, too, it had brought her face to face with Rosie whose faithful loyalty she would have thought she could never doubt but had found it astonishingly easy to doubt when everything seemed indeed topsyturvy. She still was anxious about Rosie, not knowing what kindness she had shown this palvering countryman of hers. But to suspect her of any knowledgeable part in the crime—one look into those nonpareil eyes dismissed that idea at once. The uneasy feeling lingered, however. In what was poor Rosie in-olved? She caught herself up sharply. She was doing what she meant not to try to get at what talk suggested before she subjected it, just as she had heard it, to Tom's always sensible reactions. She firmly dismissed the subject from her mind and as she did so looked up to see coming toward her, across the lawn, the graceful figure of the guest from Belgium.

CHANCE had selected DeVos for her next victim, but Linda could have wished for a more tranquil frame of mind in which to meet the opportunity. It would have to be a smooth and subtle DeLilith to jerece the guard of this man's self-possession.

He was good-looking... he was charming... and he had a way with him. Flirtatious? Not exactly. Hypnotic? That was a silly word and a silly idea. Compelling? Yes, perhaps, but that implied staccato, not the fascinating, to guide the man's mind into any channel which he did not wish to explore.

Suddenly he sat up with an exclamation of keen pleasure and she turned toward the water to see what had attracted his attention. Running close inshore, past their tiny dock, whizzed a long, racing speedboat, beautiful in its clean lines and flashing speed, cutting a flare of white water on each side of its pointed, skimming bow. Evidently there was purpose in this sudden, dramatic dash into their immediate waters, for as it passed, a white arm semaphored violently toward the lawn and both Linda and DeVos waved in answering greeting.

"That's the Comet—the Stoner boat," Linda vouchsafed as the apparition quickly dwindled. "That was Fleur, of course—born Florrie but she changed it to be the same as Galsworthy's heroine. She does her best to live up to the model in other ways, too," she added. "I felt horribly caty," she admitted to Tom afterwards, "but I meant to be provocative—and I was."

FOR a moment, however, there was no reply to what she had said. Her ears told her she had spoken in just the right offhand way, letting the words carry their own malice. Then, a cigaret lighter having been deftly manipulated, DeVos spoke with an air of deliberate speculation.

"Miss Stoner is the daughter, I understand, of one of your great capitalists?"

"If you call him that. He's made millions in patent medicines."

"Ah. It is not usual to inquire too closely into the source of a fortune after half a dozen zeros have been added to the leading figure."

Though she was sufficiently sensitive to catch the rather insolent evaluation in the man's tone, Linda could not help her quick laughter.

"I have just passed a very pleasant hour driving with Miss Fleur in her motor—" he gestured expressively—"shall we say, astonishing, car?"

Again Linda could not help smiling. Fleur's perfectly outrageous imported sport car was known through the island both for its startling appearance and for its owner's equally bizarre fashion of driving. Fleur, delighted at the chance to show it off to any such unusual visitor, would have been quite confident of his unqualified admiration on both counts.

"Unfortunately," the Belgian went on reflectively, "Mademoiselle had a date—I believe that is the proper term—for this speedboat trial with a local expert and we returned without exploring your lovely island further."

"So being dismissed by the lady fair, you came back to me."

Quite affably, he agreed. It certainly was difficult to pique this suave foreigner however easy he might be to insult. Linda considered this as though her mind passed a picture of that terrible scene on the Country Club porch—Cousin Amon's blandly innocent face and the gray, tense fury of the man now stretched indolently on the lawn.

"I should have liked an hour or so on the water," he went on, unconsciously of her thought, "but there was not room for—supper, so I think Miss Stoner called it. Or rather the speed test made it necessary to have no extra weight in the boat. I believe there are to be races."

"Next week-end," said Linda. "They were postponed from this because the commander of the yacht fleet is away."

"You have a capable looking little boat there," he nodded toward the trim cabin cruiser, flanking deck chairs at her mooring beyond the downward dip of the terrace. "That is yours, I think Mr. Averill said?"

"The Pinafore? Oh yes—she isn't a racer, of course."

"Excellent lines, nevertheless," he nodded approvingly. "A good size yet not too large for one person to handle. So many women nowadays can manage their own boats, as Miss Stoner does. I suppose you are as skillful as she?"

Islands Had Good Business Year

WASHINGTON. — Although suffering from the world depression, the United States' insular possessions came through the year without intense suffering and made some progress in education and public health.

This, in general, was the tone of an unusual report submitted to Secretary of War Hurley by Major Gen. F. Le J. Parker, Chief of the Insular Affairs Bureau of the War Department.

Public revenues in the Philippines in 1931 totaled $32,881,587, a decrease of $5,345,905 under the deficit of $6,054,810, Parker said, but made this up out of a surplus accumulated in past years.

The United States continued to dominate Philippine trade, taking 80 per cent of its exports and supplying 63 per cent of its imports in 1931. Total trade of the islands with the United States was valued at $145,562,080.

Health in the Philippines improved, the general mortality rate in 1931 being 22.07 per 1,000 as compared with 22.78 in 1930. Cholera accounted for 766 lives, a sharp drop from the 2,079 deaths from this disease in 1930.

Puerto Rican finances during the last year were "satisfactory beyond all expectation." The revenue of $12,662,359.76 was the largest ever collected in the island. This was accounted for by an increase in customs receipts.

Foreign trade of Puerto Rico for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, amounted to $147,698,039 as compared with $174,838,337 in the previous fiscal year. Over-population continued to be Puerto Rico's most national problem.

Toy Microphone Injecting New Life Into Many Parties

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The boy who used to be the life of the party with a water shooting flower in the lapel of his coat has a new racket here as a result of the police radio system.

"Officers, pick up Bill Doe, last seen driving a green sedan, Missouri license number such-and-such, wanted for wife desertion and chicken theft," a radio will announce at a party where Bill Doe is appearing, probably without his wife.

"Pick up Mrs. Flossie Roe, driving a yellow coupe, license number so-and-so, wanted on charges while intoxicated, transportation and possession of liquor and resisting an officer," the sonorous announcer may continue.

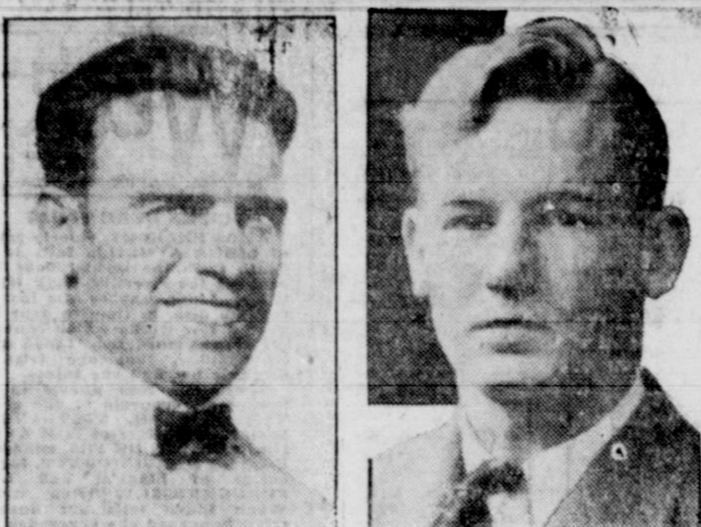

Mrs. Roe, perhaps a little hilarious, and the philanthropic Doe will become highly embarrassed at first and then likely as not will rush to the telephone and inquire irately for the basis of the charges broadcast.

The police will know nothing about the matter. The other guests, at least some of them, will be laughing, however, over the use of a new radio gadget which permits any practical joker to "broadcast" anything he pleases over his radio set.

When police receive calls from angered victims they advise them to look about the house and see if there isn't a small home microphone and some equipment in another room. There usually is.

"American Madness" Treats Of Present Day Problems

"American Madness," Columbia's dramatic spectacle romanticizing the melodrama dealing with the America of today, is the current feature, beginning today at the Lyric theatre, Eastland.

Walter Huston, regarded as one of America's finest actors, is seen in the featured role, that of a great banker whose courage and foresight prevent the ruin of his bank, as well as the breaking up of his domestic life.

Kay Johnson, the blonde actress who has appeared in "Dynamite" and other films, plays Huston's wife. Constance Cummings, last seen in "Attorney for the Defense," and Pat O'Brien, who was the hero of "The Front Page," play the juvenile leads. Gavin Gordon, remembered as Garbo's leading man in "Romance," plays the heavy. In addition to those well known players, the cast includes more than a score of such character actors as Robert Ellis, Edwin Maxwell, Arthur Hoyt, Edwin Martindale, Burton Churchill and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

The timeliness of "American Madness" is hailed as one of its outstanding features. "American Madness" has dramatized the leading topics of the day.

According to critics in other cities where it has been shown, "American Madness" is one of the outstanding pictures and will merit serious consideration when the best 10 films of 1932 are chosen. "American Madness" was directed
