100 PILOTS TO JOIN IN RACE TO CLEVELAND

By United Press. EL PASO, Aug. 23.—Forty-six planes, presumably were winging their way to Roswell, N. M., today in the Cord Cup transcontinental air derby. Forty-eight left El Paso but Charles Spencer, Jr., Douglas, Ariz., returned to the city airport because of motor trouble and reported that one of the fliers was down 25 miles east of El Paso. He could not determine if anyone was injured.

By United Press. EL PASO, Aug. 23.—John Hardesty of Taft, Calif., lead the fleet of 48 fliers who took off here today on the third day of the Cord Air Derby from California to Cleveland, O.

Hardesty's plane left the field at 8:40 a. m. He was followed in three-minute intervals by the remainder of the contestants. The fliers are due at Roswell, N. M., shortly before noon, where they will stop on the first leg of today's hop.

William J. Powell, Los Angeles negro and his passenger, Erwin Wells, negro, landed here at 9:10 a. m. today. They had been missing since they left Tucson at 5:10 yesterday. Powell said motor trouble forced him to land on an emergency field at Mount Riley, last night.

The second leg of today's flight will be from Roswell to Lubbock, Texas, where the fliers will stay for the night, before continuing to Bartlesville, Okla., tomorrow.

By United Press. BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Aug. 23. Five thousand spectators, including delegations of Ponca City and Osage Indians in full regalia, will greet the 100 pilots and officials of the transcontinental air derby when the two flights converge here late tomorrow.

By United Press. SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 23.—The body of a man and woman, apparently dead for some time, were discovered here today by police, who used their night sticks to prod through heaps of old magazines and papers which littered the house the couple occupied.

Detectives identified the couple as Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Smith and from neighbors learned they had lived at the house for some time. They were regarded as recluses.

An inquest will be held this afternoon to determine if the couple was murdered.

HUMAN BLOCKADE OF 10,000 MINERS STOP WORK IN ILLINOIS COAL FIELD

Like a veritable "army of occupation," 10,000 or more union miners have thrown a human blockade around coal mines in southern Illinois to make their strike against a reduced wage scale 100 per cent effective in that area. This picture shows a part of the "army" encamped in a ball park at Kincaid, Ill., near Taylorville, where the strike stopped all operations. The invading miners converged on Taylorville from various parts of the state, forming probably the largest army of pickets in Illinois labor history. National Guard troops were held in readiness for a quick call in case of disorders.

MA FERGUSON RALLY TO BE ON THURSDAY

Judge R. C. Roland of Ranger announced today that a big Ferguson rally would be held in Ranger on Thursday night at 8 o'clock with a number of prominent speakers and one main speaker from Fort Worth.

The public address system from Eastland is to be secured in order that all might hear and a complete program of the rally is to be worked out tomorrow.

No announcement was made today as to who the speaker from Fort Worth would be, but it was stated that one of the best orators speaking in behalf of Mrs. Ferguson would be secured.

The voters from this entire section of the country are invited to be present at the rally, whether they are going to vote for Mrs. Ferguson or not.

Unemployed To Be Guests of Theatre At Free Matinee

A free show to all the unemployed of Ranger and this vicinity is being offered on Wednesday by the management of the Arcadia theatre.

The picture to be shown is one of the best that has been booked for this theatre since it opened. Constance Bennett in "What Price Hollywood," along with a number of short subjects, will be presented.

This is one of the regular summer bargain shows that is being offered by the management of the Arcadia to which the unemployed of the city are extended an invitation.

BIG CROWD HEARS JUDGE W. R. ELY IN RANGER MONDAY

The largest gathering of people to assemble in Ranger in many years was on hand Monday night to hear Judge W. R. Ely, chairman of the state highway commission, discuss the campaign issues in the race for governor of Texas.

Judge Ely launched into his talk by denying Ferguson's repeated assertion that the state highway fund was short $100,000,000 by branding it as "typically Fergusonian and too absurd for public credence."

"If Jim Ferguson is sincere in his preposterous assertion that the state highway fund is short $100,000,000," Judge Ely said, "why hasn't he gone to Attorney General James V. Allred with his charge? Allred, quick to enforce the laws of the state, would be the first to investigate any such situation if there were one part of suspicion attached to the highway department."

In pointing out the ways in which Ferguson figured erroneously to arrive at the sum of something over $100,000,000 he claims is short, Judge Ely classified it as follows:

He is wrong in his statement of cash to be accounted for to the extent of $17,837,074.09. He leaves out entirely the cost of more than 57 miles of bridges, at a cost of $13,621,568.55. He conveniently overlooks and leaves out entirely disbursements for purchase of equipment; for administrative salaries, expenses, and overhead, directly authorized by the legislature; and for refund of motor bus seating tax and maintenance of state highway patrol, research work, etc., amounting to $9,400,980.50.

Total of errors in cash to be accounted for, and legitimate items of expenditure entirely left out of Ferguson's calculations, $40,859,723.14. He is wrong in his computation of construction cost in that he used a total of $84,172,754, instead of $116,634,941.69, the error in his favor being $32,462,187.69. He is wrong in his computation of maintenance cost in that he figured maintenance on 14,343 miles for five years at $300 per mile instead of figuring maintenance on 18,309 miles for five and one-half years at $600.28 per mile, maintenance under Mrs. Ferguson averaged $765.18 per mile) the difference in his favor being $38,933,297.02. He does not add his own figures correctly in his published statement, and is wrong in that respect by $400.

The total of his errors is the total amount claimed as a shortage in the highway department, amounting to $112,255,607.85. Judge Ely then turned to attack Ferguson upon the highway department record made by Ferguson's highway commission during the administration of his wife.

FAMOUS SPEED PILOT HAS A CLOSE CALL

By United Press. WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 23.—Major James H. Doolittle, famous air ace, landed his plane safely at the airport here at 12:55 p. m. today after a thrilling hour in which he faced possible death or injury.

With his retractable landing gear jammed in the fuselage of his tiny biplane, Doolittle circled the airport for many minutes, struggling to restore the wheels to normal position.

At last, his gas, nearly exhausted, he succeeded in restoring the right wheel to normal place and in bringing the other wheel down about half way from the fuselage.

Then he cut his motor to its slowest speed and attempted a landing.

The plane rocked back and forth as the uneven landing gear struck the runway and seemed about to overturn. Finally, losing speed it nosed into the earth, breaking the propeller.

Hurricane Caused Ranger Company Additional Work

The storm of Saturday night, Aug. 13, interrupted the plans of the national guard encampment to a great extent, Captain Wayne C. Hickey said today in commenting on the training camp from which the national guard recently returned.

The storm warning was received on Saturday and all that afternoon was spent in getting the company tents down and the men and supplies in safe quarters.

Sunday, which was to be a day of rest and recreation, at which time the guardsmen could go for boat rides, go into town, go swimming or take part in any of the recreational facilities offered, was also spent in working, so that the men in the Ranger company had very little time in which to enjoy themselves.

An inspection on Tuesday again made plenty of work for the men, so that many of the important drills were called off.

Competition in many forms, which has marked previous camps, had to be eliminated in some instances as was the seven-mile hike during which the men camped in the open air went through the maneuvers of an early morning battle the next day.

OIL MEN OF BRECKENRIDGE FAVOR THOMPSON

By United Press. BRECKENRIDGE, Aug. 23.—The Petroleum club, foremost organization of oil men in West Texas, has unanimously gone on record as favoring the candidacy of Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo for the post of railroad commissioner, to serve out the unexpired four years of Pat Neff's six-year term.

Mr. Thompson, former mayor of Amarillo, who characterized his administration with a determined fight against high utility rates, has been gaining strength rapidly within the past few weeks, especially with the independent oil operators, lease and royalty holders, and owners of equitable holdings in lands of actual or potential oil value.

The Petroleum club, an organization of oil men occupying two floors of the Burch hotel, has studied the qualifications of the two candidates, and has made public announcement of the stand of members.

"We believe," a statement issued by the Petroleum club members, representing Breckenridge, Caddo, Ranger, Eastland, Olden, Cisco and Albany, "that Mr. Thompson is entitled to be elected to the office to which he was appointed. When former Governor Pat Neff resigned the place, Mayor Thompson, due to the enviable record he had established while at the head of the Amarillo city officials, was appointed to serve.

"From the time he took the oath of office to the present moment he has studied the Texas oil situation and has launched movements in an effort to cure the evils as they now exist.

"Probably one of the outstanding actions taken by the former Amarillo mayor was the engaging of geologists and engineers to study the oil situation, not from the viewpoint of the major companies and not from the eyes of the independent or the commission, but from the standpoint of an unbiased opinion. Heretofore in litigation involving the interests of the independent, and the commission the big companies had furnished all of the 'expert' testimony."

The movement for Thompson has swept down from the plains country where Thompson's popularity is widespread, through the rich oil fields of the sand-covered sections of far West Texas, and has penetrated the rich oil lands of Central West Texas, known as the Oil Belt.

Various organizations of oil men throughout Texas have given unanimous endorsement to Thompson's candidacy. They believe that the future of the oil industry in Texas, from the standpoint of the small operator, who, in reality is the backbone of the business, depends entirely upon the type of man placed in office. Realizing that the railroad commission literally "holds the future of the oil industry in their palms" the operators have launched a statewide campaign in favor of the West Texas.

Thompson, who started his successful business career as a success boy and climaxed it by acquisition of leading West Texas hotels, a sweeping victory in the Amarillo election for mayor, and appointment to the railroad commission, has gained strength steadily since the July 23 primary when he went into the runoff election.

CONDITION UNCHANGED. CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick today continued her staunch fight against the disease which doctors say must inevitably cause her death. Her condition was reported unchanged from the improvement noted Sunday.

BOY KILLED WHEN SHOT IN ACCIDENT

FIRST RACE ACROSS OCEAN MAY BE STAGED

By United Press. The North Atlantic, already crossed by airplanes at least a score of times, today drew further aeronautic endeavor with the possibility of a race over the hazardous course.

Thor Solberg and Carl Petersen left New York for Harbor Grace, N. F., where they will take off for Oslo, Norway, a few hours later. Clyde Lee and John Hochon left Barre, Vt., also for Harbor Grace, where they will start to Oslo. There was a possibility the two crafts might race over the course—which already has claimed many lives—for the honor of the first arrival in the Norwegian capital.

Meanwhile the Hutchinson family—George, wife and two children—left New York for St. Johns, N. B., on a leisurely trans-Atlantic crossing to London. They plan stops in Iceland and Greenland.

Captain James A. Mollison, who last week flew from Ireland to New Brunswick, was in New York preparing to fly back to England. He hopes to get away this week.

Committee Works On Fund For A Disabled Veteran

A committee was today making up a fund to buy a railroad ticket to Harrisburg, Ill., for Horace Neil, who was overcome in Ranger Monday afternoon while en route home to his two children.

Neil, a World war veteran, was in the City-County hospital today where he was taken when found in an exhausted condition in Ranger. He stated that he had been in a hospital in California, but knowing that he had but a short time to live, had started to his home.

Neil has asked no funds from anyone, saying that all he wanted was to rest long enough to be able to continue his journey to his children. Nurses at the hospital said today that he was one of the most polite patients that had been taken into the hospital in some time as well as one of the most agreeable.

Neil is a musician and song writer, having been associated with Al Jolson at one time. He has insisted that he be allowed to continue his journey to his home. The fund was being collected today without his knowledge.

WIPINGS

By GUS. Column is published as a daily feature and is construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. It follows is merely what one man says at the time it was written, and he reserves the right to change and retract any subject, without explanation or apology.

Monday I attended the Eastland Rotary club as guest of Mr. Williams. He was paying in the bet I am to win off about his windows sweating with his new-fangled Jack Lewis attracted more attention by removing his glasses to read out of the song and then putting them back on he got through reading.

GAMBLE was called on by Mr. Horton to tell some of his vacation trip he returned to Monterey, Mexico, such a dilled around for seven minutes on the subject of the conditions and comment on the number of factories in the city and the comparatively neat buildings. Finally some more boisterous members desired him to tell about his incursions into the liquor situation requested that no publicity be given that part of his record thus come to an abrupt very interesting part of his

DAY, or may not, be good for one alleged columnist to the writing of another man, especially on the same subject. However, after reading Mrs. G's extended remarks on "The Dark" in yesterday's paper, I am beginning to somewhat the wisdom of old Solomon, who remarked, "Prayer, vanity, all is vanity."

Jackson would phrase it, "sting, whistling, all is sting." All wait until I have had opportunity to conduct some research I accept her statement that primitive wild man whistled to state, even before he had learned to speak together to form words and phrases. And I also have doubts as to whether a bird is or not. From what little we know of birds, the shrill sound from their throats is more shrill scream and is not made by the beak and forcing air through the orifice, but a force as to set up a vibration.

I certainly have my doubts as to whether a Catholic is "sting in the dark" when he signs the sign of the cross overest.

Mrs. Jackson will permit take the position that whistling in the dark is not to bolster his courage, so much as it give warning to whoever or over may be listening. . . . to the effect that here one who is not afraid of known and unseen and to the concealed listener comment and trouble, it would ill for said listener to remain silent until the whistler has said by.

ITED the City-County Hospital, where I talked to Horace the man who collapsed at P. & P. water tank yesterday. The folks I've known with power, this man has them all. He's a mighty sick man, to look at the wound in his men you'd wonder that he have to have an anesthetic. Neil grins and bears it. He and tells you with a laugh of getting wounded in Belleau of his playing trombone in and in Ranger in 1926 with Brothers Circus, and I must things about which I must a feature story soon.

ALL asked me to thank the people of Ranger for the nice they've done for him. He exhausted and sick, but not out funds to feed himself. His wouldn't cover a hospital buy him a ticket to his in Harrisburg, Ill. But he is to start home tomorrow, ride the cushions, thanks to the of Ben Rigby and a few more these hard boiled oil field folk. I appreciate the kindnesses of him, the visitors he's had hospital, the cheering made to him by those who did I guess most of us who did I am glad we met He's entirely free from hardships and criticisms of poor their ways. Good luck to Neil!

CHAIRMAN FORT ON BANK MORTGAGE ACTIVITY

Chairman Franklin W. Fort of the home loan bank board is ready to function. This after considerable talking. He is a financier and has a record as a successful business man. He predicts that large numbers of banking institutions throughout the country would re-enter the mortgage business as soon as the system to be administered by his board is set up. He insists not intuition are impressed by the need of remaining in a liquid condition where in an emergency they may realize on their assets. He is telling it to the American world that mortgages are not liquid. Consequently throughout the country it has become almost impossible to borrow on them. Speaking of the home loan bank created by the congress, he lets it be known that the plan of operation renders home mortgages held by member banks instantly liquid in the hands of those banks. He has no doubt that when the system is once set up many of these institutions will immediately re-enter the mortgage market. Then and very much to the point, Chairman Fort made this observation: "The can't make money without lending it. When they find they can get money almost overnight they will recommence to loan." Moreover, he said the banks might loan directly to individuals as long as government capital remained on their books, but borrowers would have to prove that they were unable to get the money elsewhere. Here is hoping for quick action. There are thousands who are willing to borrow. They are home owners. They find money hard to borrow. If the home loan bank is the agency for relief then it is to be hoped that it will begin to function at an early date.

CREEKMORE AND HIS CO-OPERATIVE PROGRAM

Officers and directors of the cotton stabilization corporation were re-elected at the New Orleans meeting. A reminder that three years ago the corporation was formed to carry out the federal farm board's stabilization policy. Alexander W. Legge is one of the public directors of the organization. E. F. Creekmore continues as general manager. This is the future program: "The stabilization corporation is proceeding with the sale of one half of the 300,000 bales of the 1929-30 crop purchased from the cotton cooperative." Furthermore, the officials of the stabilization corporation said that since 500,000 bales were turned over to the Red Cross through authorization by a recent act of congress the stock will be reduced by the end of the year to approximately 150,000 bales or about 10 per cent of the original holdings. There is a lean crop predicted this year. Cotton price levels are hiking. Regardless of all this, the surplus will fix the price, and in the cotton belt over there are many senators and representatives who are clamoring for the federal government "to get out of business." Now what will happen next?

MITCHELL AS A MUSSOLINI

Attorney General William D. Mitchell has made a ruling against any permanent expansion of the currency under the Glass-Borah rider to the home loan bank law. A reminder that the maximum expansion under the law has been estimated at $1,000,000,000. He also ruled the tax on notes issued under the act to be one-quarter of one per cent semi-annually. He held all currency issued against bonds given circulation privilege by the legislation must be retired in an appropriate manner three years from the date of enactment, or July 22.

Why do the White House correspondents who cluster around the publicity as well as the dining table, always refer to William D. Mitchell "as the democratic member of the cabinet?" How can a man be classed as a democrat who has voted a republican ballot ever since he voted against Woodrow Wilson for President of the United States?

TRADE JOURNALS PREDICT BETTER BUSINESS

Editors of American trade and industrial magazines, said to be "usually hard to convince," are beginning to report there are indications of betterment in the lines of business represented by the publications. As an indicator, the publishers of these papers say several magazines in the general and business field show gains in space booked ahead so that fall and winter activities are expected to reach the level of at least a year ago. Retail advertising made the best showing during July, holding at 70.4 per cent of its four-year advance.

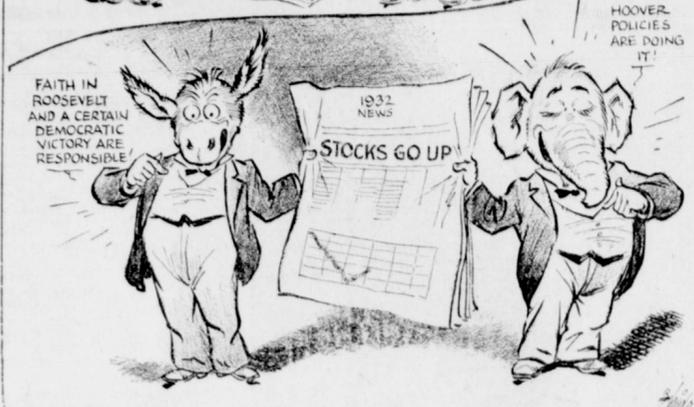

All this is a reminder to the Texas voters that constitutional government with all its blessings and its wise laws and honest expenditure of the public money is the prize at stake Saturday, Aug. 27. There should be an overwhelming vote cast for the repudiation of proxy government—first because it is unconstitutional, second because it is wholly irresponsible, third because in the days of its power it was the most extravagant and the people of Texas had known, and lastly, because the archives of the state and the records of the file courts of Texas furnish exhaustive and convincing evidence why it should never be permitted again to function under the dome of the Texas capitol.

This is not bunk; this is not bluster; this is not bragging; this is not inspired by hate; this is the record as planted in the state archives and that trial court records which can never be destroyed or effaced or blotted out of the memory of Texas of yesterday, Texas of today or Texas of the future.

PUBLICITY FOR R. F. C. LOANS

Publicity of R. F. C. loans for the first month of functioning will be open for inspection Monday. Clerk South Trimble of the house of representatives has made the announcement that monthly reports would be made public by him as received. This because Clerk Trimble had been notified by the leaders that it was the purpose of congress that the data be public property "to enable the people to know what became of their money." All this is as it should be. Why shouldn't the people know where their money is placed? They are taxpayers. They are said to be the masters. That is, they make and unmake governments and public servants and in days ago there was a suspicion rife in the new republic that "the voice of the people is the voice of God." Of course, there is a suspicion rife today that the voice of the people has not been inspired by the Lord in recent years.

Politics!

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

With BILL MAYES

Football fans who have not taken the trouble to look at the calendar recently could tell that the football season is approaching by watching the columns and alleged columns of sports writers and alleged sports writers. No one in particular meant.

By that we mean that as the football season approaches the scribes, in want of something more tangible about which they can write, start picking out parts of the columns thought up by other scribes and making comments, wise cracks or criticisms. Seldom is praise given for the irksome task of giving the people some bright and scintillating remarks about the prospects, if any, of the local football squad. We are guilty ourselves. And we seldom, if ever, praised any sports writer for what he wrote, just as they never, if that often, commented favorably on what we have written.

The direct and indirect cause for the above two paragraphs is the following, clipped from the Breckenridge American and written by one Robert Craft Campbell:

"Eck Curtis, the diminutive albeit cowardly coach of the Ranger Bulldogs also has returned to the native fold and has surveyed with a more or less critical eye what he has on hand for the ensuing conflicts. The scintillating Ranger Times scribe, Mr. Willy William Mayes, interview Mr. Curtis almost as soon as he set foot upon the flowing gold, and discovered that in Mr. Curtis' opinion the only one of the new rulings likely to cause trouble is that one declaring the ball dead when any part of a player's body come in contact with the ground with the exception of his pedal extremities and his finger-tips. "When a fellow falls," mused Mr. Curtis to Mr. Mayes, "it is second nature, or something, for him to get up and run, even though he knows it will do no good."

And Yet—
"What Mr. Curtis means to convey, no doubt, was that it was second nature to get up and run or something unless, of course, the fall happened to be from the eighteenth floor of a modern hostelry or something akin to a hostelry. A hotel maybe."

Having resided, at one time, in Ranger, Mr. Campbell knows full well that there is no "18-story hostelry or something akin to a hostelry" in Ranger, so there is no fear in the mind of Eck Curtis that some of his young hopefuls might fall from that height and then try to run. Trying to run under such circumstances would be about as foolish as Mr. Campbell's comment. Maybe less so.

And all the football material that has not fallen from an 18-story hostelry or hotel or something is to report at the school and lated at Lillard field on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 1, to begin the grind in preparation for the coming football season. Coach Curtis has announced that date as the one on which practice will start.

Joe Gibson of Eastland has announced fall practice will start on the same day, thereby giving the two teams an even break as far as practice sessions is concerned.

Incidentally, the Eastland field has been worked over considerably in the past few months. Much water, much rain, much work, a few of the customers, some grass and several members of the football squad have put the field in better shape than ever before. The field is well sodded, so that visiting teams next year will have a grass field on which they can work a few of the customers, some grass and several members of the football squad have put the field in better shape than ever before. The field is well sodded, so that visiting teams next year will have a grass field on which they can work a few of the customers, some grass and several members of the football squad have put the field in better shape than ever before.

Lillard field has been going wild, but men with hoses, lawnmowers and a lot of ambition are fast getting it into shape. Due to the unusual amount of rain that fell this summer no water was needed and the grass has been growing rapidly. When cut the field will present about as good an appearance as it did last year.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

GEORGE H. SEIGLE, editor of the Missouri Valley (Iowa) Daily Times, says:

"The structure of an advertising campaign is a good deal like the structure of a meal. There are certain basic articles of diet—meat, potatoes, bread, butter—the foundation, the first consideration in the planning; then come the side dishes, the salads, the jellies and jams, and desserts. The best meal brings these all together in a perfect proportion, just as the best advertising campaign is a perfect blend of media.

"In advertising, the newspaper is undisputedly the basic article, the meat and potatoes, the first noted factor in the whole project. Perhaps direct mail advertising might be regarded as the salad, and radio advertising as the dessert; a part of the diet, but not the sturdy foundation.

"No fair-minded person interested in the best advertising results can hold up any one type of advertising and truthfully claim it alone to be worth while, any more than a dietitian interested in the best possible health can say that only salads or desserts make up the best balanced diet.

"But both the basic articles of food and the basic medium of advertising will carry on further, faster, and with better results than any other single factor or group of competing factors, and must be accorded prominence of proportion if the best results are to follow."

Constance Bennett Boosts Enviably Achievements

She's blonde and slender, looks almost frail, but Constance Bennett is one of the film capital's most accomplished members. One of the best tennis players in Hollywood, she boasts a score of other enviable achievements. She appears born to the drawing room, but she is as much at home swimming in the Pacific, or roughing in the mountains.

Her new picture is RKO Pathe's "What Price Hollywood," now showing at the Arcadia theatre and in it she plays a working girl who makes good in the films.

Oct. 22 is her birthday. New York city her birthplace. She was educated in three private schools: Miss Shandor's on Park avenue; Mrs. Merrill's in Marmaroneck; and Madame Balsan's in Paris. She made her first trip to Europe when she was 22 months old and can't remember the exact number of times she has been back since. She speaks French as fluently as she does English.

The star is noted for her gowns and her ability to wear them, but sport pajamas are really her favorite garb. For colors, she prefers pastel shades. She wears little jewelry, but rubies and pearls are her favorites. Like most stars, she has hobbies. Old jades and prints are hers. She also writes poetry and has had some of her verse printed anonymously.

Crowds frighten her and for that reason she vetoes personal appearances. Poised and perfectly at home in social gatherings or with people she knows, she becomes panicky and self-conscious when before large groups of strangers.

Her mother wanted her to follow a social career but fate, and the Bennett blood, decreed otherwise. She attended an Equity ball with her father and met Samuel Goldwyn, the producer, who induced her to enter pictures.

Winning stardom seems natural to her. She started with lead roles and had her name in the big lights when she left the screen to live abroad. She came back at a time when Broadway stage stars and established film luminaries were fighting for supremacy in the new era of talking pictures. Stepping right into starring roles she became one of the outstanding drawing cards of screen history.

It was really much easier for her than it is for the girl she plays in "What Price Hollywood." But the girl of the picture is one of many. There is only one Constance Bennett.

Sterling P. Strong Issues Statement On Candidacy

F. E. Walker of Ranger, is in receipt of a letter from Sterling P. Strong, candidate for congressman-at-large, place 3, in which was enclosed the following statement issued by the candidate from his Dallas headquarters:

"When I announced as candidate for congressman-at-large, I made this statement 'that I favored prohibition of the liquor traffic in the smallest political unit, and to the utmost parts of the earth, but I believed the individual or organization attempting to make prohibition an issue in this campaign should be considered an enemy to our country, for all efforts should be concentrated on bringing relief to the suffering people throughout the nation.'"

"The policies of the republican party have bankrupted the nation. The president himself, in a public address, stated that the economic conditions now confronting us were equal to, or worse, than those of a great war. Millions of people unemployed, their families suffering from want of food and clothing while the country is filled with food products and clothing materials; home owners unable to pay even the interest on mortgages against their home, while the tax burden is unbearable, farm products selling for less than cost of production; merchants forced out of business, factories suspending operation; bank failures running into the thousands, in fact, the industries of the nation are on the brink of ruin.

"The tariff wall of the republican party and the manipulation of the finances of the country by the continental bankers in New York and the federal reserve board at Washington is the main cause of the depression and suffering of the people throughout the nation.

"Congress is vested with power to relieve the country of the awful depression now prevailing and the power to so legislate as to make the return of panics impossible.

"I shall support the nominees of the democratic national convention held in Chicago, and have repeatedly stated this in my speeches and letters throughout the campaign.

"On July 23 the democrats of Texas voted in favor of submission of the eighteenth amendment, to the people. Therefore, if elected, I will carry out the will of the democrats as voiced in the primary election and vote for the submission of the eighteenth amendment.

"The liquor issue is out of the run-off primary, as all candidates for all the places for congressman-at-large have announced in favor of submission.

"If elected to congress, I will use all the power conferred to bring the relief to which the people are entitled. If there ever was a time in the history of this nation that the people should take charge of their government, that time is now, and if relief comes, it must come through the individual voters of the nation."

An American worker who has been in Russia for four years says he wishes he was back in Chicago. If he had been a Russian in Chicago for your years, he would probably be wishing he was back in Moscow.

MISS MONA TODAY
 MISS MONA, born on New York's East Side, married JOHN BARNETT TOWNSEND, millionaire. The strange marriage is arranged by Mona's employer, also Townsend's lawyer, who tells her a wealthy client wishes to marry her with the understanding that she will occupy her own apartment and have unlimited charge accounts for one year. At the end of that time she must decide whether to become Townsend's wife in actuality or secure a divorce.

Mona believes her bridegroom to be young BARRY TOWNSEND whom she loves. Not until just before the ceremony does she learn the man is Harry's uncle, Young Barry, who is not friendly with his uncle, has returned to South America where he and STEVE SAVARELLI are partners in a diamond mine. Believing young Harry lost to her, Mona goes through with the marriage. LOTTIE CARR, fashion model, is Mona's closest friend.

Six months pass. Only occasionally does Mona see her husband. He buys a huge diamond, called the Emperor, and offers it to Mona. She tries to soften her husband's bitterness toward his nephew. He tells her that if she agrees that their marriage shall be permanent he will "do the right thing for Barry."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX
 MONA stared at her husband. What could she tell him? Should she say that she had thought him cruel, scheming and revengeful toward his nephew? That she had believed he had married her only to torture both Barry and herself? She reminded herself that, save for hearsay, she was not even certain that young Barry had ever loved her. The admiring glances, the suave flattery might all have been part of a game, the merest flirtation. By accepting that flirtation for more than it was worth she had lost Steve's love (if she had ever had that) as well as young Barry Townsend's.

All this did not alter the fact that she loved Barry. Now, should she decide against ending this marriage, she could bring Barry into his rightful inheritance.

"Suppose," she said quietly, "that I think this over until after the holidays. Then we can make plans—either to remain here as we have been or to start on our honeymoon—"

"A Mediterranean cruise?" Townsend suggested eagerly.

"Would you like that?"

"I've paused," she said, "I've been everywhere. Suit yourself, my dear." He added tenderly, "I hope you'll see things my way. I'm not a bad fellow at heart, really." He was silent again. The day closed between my brother and I began in the cradle. Then when he stole the woman I was to marry—

"She must have been willing," Mona pointed out, "or she wouldn't have gone. After all, that wasn't Barry's fault!"

"No, Barry can hardly be blamed for that."

There was no more said on the subject nor was it raised again during the days of preparation for the holiday festivities.

CHRISTMAS came and went merrily. Mr. Townsend had planned a dinner at Twilands with Mona presiding at the table, flushed and lovely, in gleaming white satin and emeralds.

Christmas morning lay gleaming white about them. Snow had fallen and the day was a veritable "Christmas card holiday" as Mrs. Faxon exclaimed. At three o'clock the car arrived for Mona who was to spend the afternoon with her family. The Morans had declined an invitation to Twilands. Ma's new fortunes had taken material form and the neighbors were dropping in for a bit of celebration. Ma was a flutter with mince pies in the oven, tissue paper and holly everywhere.

Dad, comfortable and smiling, wearing a new silk robe, was seated in his armchair smoking and chatting with one of the boys who had dropped in for "a bit of a laugh and a joke."

The Donahue twins, fresh in starched rompers, were dragging new fire engines up and down the hall amid shouts of glee.

Kitty, it seemed, was entertaining Mr. Townsend had sent theater tickets and she had departed with a crowd of friends. The telephone rang and Ma answered it. Alice's voice came over the wire.

"Of course not. He has to wait anyhow. I want to run over to 63rd street a little later."

Mona left shortly after Alice's arrival. A new cheap blue gown hung pathetically about what once had been, in Lottie's terms, "a knockout figure." All the more pathetic, it seemed, because Alice herself did not realize apparently the change that had come over her. Alice had married for love. Well, she had loved—and with it struggle and poverty and a hopeless future.

The Callahans' tree was still to be admired. Mrs. Casey appeared and invited them all down for ice cream. Lilly Donahue, coming to collect the twins, set a lemon meringue pie down on the table.

"Oh, what fun, really, it is to be poor!" Mona thought to herself. "What friendliness. What neighborliness. Fancy anyone in 63d street dropping in with a pie!"

A LITTLE later Mona stopped to see Lottie who had attended a Christmas Eve celebration with the latest swain and now lay blinking and looking a trifle weary, surrounded by a mass of wilted flowers.

"He sent over practically the whole shop window," Lottie explained. "Now look at them!" Rising, she began arranging her hair before the mirror.

"Hear from South America?" Lottie queried.

"No. Did you?"

"Yes. Maybe you did too. This just came an hour ago." She produced a yellow cablegram in which Steve wished her, rather stiffly, a merry Christmas.

Obviously Lottie accompanied Mona to the 63d street house but there was no yellow envelope on the hall table.

"That settles it!" Mona thought despairingly. "He doesn't love me. He would have sent a cable at least. He could easily enough."

Her thoughts were blither as she prepared for the night. Barry did not love her but she loved him. And it lay in her power to arrange his future. Well, she would do it. Her husband and Barry would both be happy. Only she herself would suffer by the arrangement. Suffer! That might be too strong a word. She might learn to love her husband. She could try.

It was 11 o'clock but she could not sleep. The fire she had ordered earlier while she and Lottie talked, still glowed softly and sent little tongues of shadow across the ceiling.

It had been a happy Christmas but now she was alone. She wondered if her husband had found and liked her gift, an Italian leather case fitted with two photographs of herself. Silly to give one's own picture but what was there to give such a man? A man who had everything!

ly schooled, widely traveled, he is a connoisseur in the highways and byways of life. He lacks the unnatural qualities of the pseudo sophisticate, and is replete with the coveted attributes of the modern gentleman.

Contrary to his general nature, his latest screen role with Constancia Bennett is "What Price Hollywood," now at the Arcadia theatre, presents the actor in a fly-high, gay, frivolous film director whose course of tragic events in the film veer him toward a repentant and remorseful character. Sherman is reserved but princely in his bearing, and distinctly individual.

Sherman has his own pet ideas about the what's-wrong-with-talkies problem. He believes that their chief detriment lies in the outset, the story. Pictures, he asserts, must be written for, not at. A good written script must first be procured and then enacted exactly as written, he maintains.

Lowell Sherman has been a director of note as well as an actor. For RKO he guided the players through "Lawful Larceny," "Ladies of the Jury," "The Royal Bed," "The Pay Off," "Bachelor Apartment," "High Stakes," and others. He appeared in each of his productions except "Ladies of the Jury," in which Edna May Oliver played the featured role.

The entire cast of "What Price Hollywood" includes Miss Bennett, Sherman, Gregory Ratoff, Neil Hamilton, Louise Beavers, Eddie Anderson and Brooks Benedict. George Cukor is responsible for the direction. The story was written by Adela Rogers St. John.

Childrens Story Hour

Next Thursday The Last

The delightful story hours held for children, Thursday of each week, under the auspices of the three federated clubs of Eastland, will come to a close, with that of Thursday morning of this week, and the general chairman for the story hour period, Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin, extends a special invitation to every child who has attended any meeting of the story hour, to be present next Thursday as the first practice for the pageant will be held at the close of the program, for the hour.

The story hour for children was inaugurated with the first Thursday morning in June and was the first venture of this kind in our city.

The primary object of the hour has been, to draw the children closer relationship with the reading material in the public library of Eastland, which is sponsored and maintained by the Thursday Afternoon Study Club.

The venture was an experiment on the part of the clubs backing the movement, but has been successful beyond all expectations, each children's story hour drawing a large attendance.

So all the children who have attended any one of these hours, are urged to be present next Thursday morning.

The program for Thursday will be in charge of Mrs. M. J. Pickett, assisted by Mrs. Charles Fagg, Mrs. Hubert Jones and Mrs. Ray Lerner.

The pageant to be given the following week will be under the leadership of the Thursday Afternoon Study Club, represented by Mrs. James Horton, assisted by Mmes. F. M. Kenny and M. C. Hayes.

The Book club, represented by Dolores Tanner and the Music club, represented by Mrs. Art H. Johnson, with Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin as general chairman.

The presidents of these clubs respectively, are Mrs. B. M. Collie, Mrs. E. E. Freyschlag and Mrs. E. C. Satterwhite.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

Do you know that two-thirds of the homes in the United States, nearly 30,000,000, have been wired for electric light and power, with New York leading, Pennsylvania second, and Illinois third, in the percentage?

At least that's what we glean from the science news.

It's a far cry from the day of the "virgin with her clap lamp," filled with oil, on which floated a tiny wad of lighted cloth that was held to light her pathway, to the present day of pushing a button, and flooding the pathway with a white glare of electricity.

Light through the ages has slowly developed in efficiency and convenience. From the clay lamp with a floating wick, the use of light has progressed to the flaming torch, to the candle, home-made and hand-lipped; to the glass coal oil lamp with its crude wick, and heavy glass chimney, and so on, to the improved lamp with mantle for household use.

Then, lamps made of pottery, of bronze brass or marble, and in the early '90s hung with cut prisms, in red, yellow, blue, green and white glass. Chandeliers of those days were great pyramids of prisms, and the old fashioned open house was a thing of beauty, sparkling with myriads of rays from the enormous central mountain of prisms, built in oval pyramid shape, and lighted with a million small gas jets, reached by a man on an enormously tall ladder, armed with a long iron lighter, tipped with a blazing wick.

Today the gorgeous theatres are illumined by cleverly concealed lights, that represent lotus blossoms, flowers of varying designs; that sparkle through star-studded lofty ceilings, and that are held in gently tinted form by tall pedestals or caryatids.

Nowadays, mildy punches a button, sticks her slices of bread in a toaster and in a few seconds has crisp, fragrant brown slices, ready to be buttered.

She turns another switch, lifts her electric iron, and quickly presses her flounces and hankies. A curl is out of place, perhaps, and an electric curling iron soon brings a fetching ringlet. Perhaps a fat strikes mildly, too weary to worry with alleviating measures, so out comes the electric pad, with its warm coverage, and that soon brings relief.

No longer does she plod wearily to the kitchen stove to heat water, pour in a bottle or a rubber bag, and drag herself to the weary
