CHICAGO TAX FIGHTERS ORDERED TO COME ACROSS.

A strike of taxpayers in Chicago was ended by a ruling of the state supreme court. Collection of back taxes and the restoration of Chicago's financial credit were made possible by a court decision which held valid the assessment rolls of 1928 and 1929 as well as of 1930 by reversing a decision of Judge Edmund A. Jarecki.

A great wave of optimism swept over Chicago when the court decision was made known. Now real estate associations that had fought the tax rolls threatened to carry the case to the United States supreme court.

BYRD OF VIRGINIA HAS A PLAN

Former Gov. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia is one of the outstanding young leaders of the democratic party of the nation. He is a dry but a regular and for the rule of the majority. He was one of two speakers at the Victory Drive dinner. Indeed, he was one of the surprise speakers, as he declared for nation-wide referendum.

"The prohibition law and all other laws must be enforced but we must recognize that no law is stronger than the public sentiment to sustain it. The democratic platform should declare for the enforcement of all laws, but an immediate task of the democratic party is to work out the most fair and feasible method to carry the prohibition question to the people. I suggest a constitutional amendment to provide the legal machinery to permit the people themselves to solve the vexing question."

This Virginia leader declared himself opposed at all times to the Smith-Raskob plan of state control. He declared against the proposal to make wet states wet and the dry states dry.

Gov. George D. White of Ohio, democrat and dry, led in his address to the W. C. T. U. of Ohio. He chided the good women for their opposition to a nation-wide referendum and bluntly told them that they had made the political blunder of their history. To date, all democratic possibilities with the exception of Gov. William H. Murray have declared themselves as favoring a referendum.

MRS. HAL SEVIER TALKS WITH HER MONEY

Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier is the national committeewoman of her party for Texas. She did not attend the Thomas Jefferson function in the city of Washington. Money talked louder than words. Mrs. Sevier sent a telegram contributing $1000 to the victory fund which the democratic party is trying to swell to a million dollars.

Thomas B. Love is authority for the statement that there are 400,000 conscientious objectors in Texas and that they will walk out of the democratic wigwam should a democrat moist in the slightest degree capture the presidential nomination. From the birth of civilization on down the highway to the present there have been prophets of victory and prophets of gloom.

GARNER FILES FOR HIS OLD POST

Speaker John Nance Garner has filed for re-election in each of the 23 counties in the 15th congressional district in Texas. Speaker Garner is serving his 15th consecutive term. He has not lost his sense of humor. Texas democrats will present his name as presidential choice of the democracy of his native state.

A BIG CUT FOR THE VETERANS

And it has come to pass that the house economy committee eliminated provisions affecting World War veterans that had been estimated to save $28,000,000 a year. Others of President Hoover's proposals to cut the veterans' administration of $30,000,000 were approved. In this a direct answer to the Patman Thomas bonus proposal? There is a merry war on under the big dome on the banks of the potomac.

Young Chemist, Prize Winner, Reveals Plans

By United Press.
EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Oscar K. Rice, 20-year-old Harvard chemistry instructor, has been awarded the $1,000 Langmuir prize for 1932 as the most promising young chemist in North America.

By DR. OSCAR K. RICE
(Written for the United Press)
Research has been prosecuted in three fields: (One) Colloid and surface chemistry; (two) chemical kinetics; (three) application of quantum mechanics to problems which, while not necessarily to be classed as problems in chemical kinetics, are nevertheless of interest in that connection.

To give a better idea of the nature of the work carried on under the last two headings, the following more detailed statement may be made. Certain organic vapors; for example, a number of ethers (one of these is the anesthetic, but the ether of which Einstein treats is not involved), decompose when heated, that is, the molecules of the gas tend simultaneously to break up. It is well known that such a molecule needs to acquire energy far in excess of the energy of the average molecule of the gas and it long has been supposed, and it seems practically certain, that this energy is obtained through collisions with the other molecules in the gas, that is, those which have not yet or have already decomposed.

Charlie a Good Bet

INASMUCH as the presidential nomination of the Republican party is certainly sewed up by Mr. Hoover and the Democratic nomination is, according to most of the present dope, likely to go to Governor Roosevelt on the first or second ballot, the matter of running mates for those two good offer the delegates their only good chance for a real vote fight such as is traditionally associated with political conventions at their best.

Even that, however, assumes that the movement to scrap Vice President Charlie Curtis gets somewhere among the Republicans. The chances now seem to be that Charlie will be renominated without a struggle.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON — At Chicago in June there will be many red-hot nominating speeches and various noisy parades around the convention hall, allegedly for the presidential candidacies of various governors, senators and perhaps other public officials.

But the ballyhoo will in reality be designed to promote the vice presidential aspirations of those who and nobody will be fooled about that.

After the presidential candidates are nominated the vice presidential possibilities will have their innings without any camouflage, but with the benefit of whatever impression they may have been able to make while shadow-boxing for first place.

Barley's Prospects

THE Democratic party seems overloaded with vice presidential possibilities, including some who will receive tribute votes of their own states on the first ballot for first place and other "favorite sons" who have bowed themselves out, with or without declarations for Roosevelt.

Except in the case of an unlikely compromise deal, the Roosevelt forces will nominate one of their own men for vice president in case they control everything. That fact makes the outlook bright for Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, who threw his influence to Roosevelt and has been selected as the party keynoter.

Speaker John N. Garner is not an impossibility and doubtless could gain the Roosevelt support if he declared for the governor, but it is not likely that he would form the habit of coming to Ranger to trade whenever they have money to spend.

We didn't realize, as few do, perhaps, that Second Monday was as far reaching or as important as it really is. And plans are under way to make it even better by offering more inducements to the traders and farmers.

We notice an advertisement in today's paper that a business house in Ranger is advertising for empty whisky bottles. Now, we wonder what they can want with empty whisky bottles. Your guess will be as good as ours.

importance of buying the things they need at the present time. A dollar will now buy more and better things than ever before.

It's just too bad that in this day and time some towns are inflicted with some distorters of the truth—citizens who have no better judgment than to say all the mean THAT the majority of the people are conservative is true, but this trait of conservatism should not blind them to the things they can about the home town by finding some fancied faults and, with a vivid imagination, enlarging on them.

Pinedale, Wyoming, is a splendid little town in the heart of a cow country. It is also a tourist and hunting section. Here E. V. Cockins publishes the Pinedale Roundup, which is doing much to tell the world about that country. Mr. Cockins says that Pinedale is 104 miles from the nearest railroad, and the Roundup is published farther from a railroad than any other newspaper in the United States.

It is the duty of every citizen to support the chamber of commerce because it is the peoples' workshop for the building of the city.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

F. O. Mackey, president of the Broadway of America, accompanied by several other officials of the association, left El Paso yesterday en route to New York, where a motorcade will be started from Broadway, New York, to Broadway, San Diego, Calif. The motorcade will reach San Diego in time for the annual Broadway of America association convention.

The motorcade will leave New York Tuesday morning, May 3, at 6 o'clock and will arrive in Ranger at 11:45 o'clock Sunday morning, May 8. A stop will be made in Ranger for lunch.

Plans have been made for a big barbecue to be held at some place to be selected, probably the Willows or the Country club. Barbecued kid, with the customary pickles, onions, bread, coffee, ice water and barbecue gravy will be served to the members of the motorcade. Citizens of the town are to be invited to attend the barbecue, which will cost 50 cents.

Luncheon stops will be made at Baltimore, Md., Roanoke, Va., Rockwood, Tenn., Brownsville, Tenn., Texarkana, Ranger, Van Horn, Texas, Lordsburg, N. M., Tucson, Ariz., and Wellton, Ariz.

Ranger is planning something different for those who will be on the motorcade as many of them will be from the east, where a goat is something of a rarity and barbecued kid is unknown.

John Thurman said that he would furnish meat, barbecued, for 125 cents, free of charge. It was estimated that there would be 75 in the motorcade by the time it reached Ranger and that approximately 50 Rangerites would want to spend 50 cents for a Sunday dinner of barbecue and the trimmings.

Incidentally the trip from New York to San Diego, all on one highway, will require 10 days and an average of over 300 miles per day will be made by the motorcade.

At the meeting of the directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce last night, J. B. Ames, who has had charge of the Second Mondays in Ranger, told of some instances that happened in Ranger on these trade days.

He said that a man who lives north of Cisco in the Leary community came into Ranger one Second Monday. Ames hadn't seen him in many years and asked him where he was living. When he told where he was living Ames asked him how he happened to be so far away from home and he replied that he had heard of the Second Mondays and came over for the trading day.

Several weeks later Ames saw him driving out of Ranger with a large load of groceries. He asked what the man was doing over here that time and was told that ever since the Second Monday he had been shopping in Ranger because he found better things to buy and better prices on what he needed than in the other towns nearer him, so he had been doing all his buying in Ranger. He would come over and buy supplies for a couple of weeks at a time and take them 30 miles to his home.

Another instance of which Ames told was a man coming from Lingville with a team of mules, which a buyer from Brownwood bought for $80 and the man bought $80 worth of supplies from Ranger merchants and took them home with him.

Men have come from as far as 75 miles to be in Ranger on Second Monday, Ames said, and invariably they bought something before they left. Some do not have any money when they hit town, but when they sell a horse or a cow they spend most of the money right in Ranger. And they form the habit of coming to Ranger to trade whenever they have money to spend.

We didn't realize, as few do, perhaps, that Second Monday was as far reaching or as important as it really is. And plans are under way to make it even better by offering more inducements to the traders and farmers.

POOR Duncy sat and looked around. The horse was sprawled upon the ground and seemed to be quite satisfied to stay right where he was. Then Duncy said, "What can I do? Come, help me, lads! It's up to you. The skinny should have told me of the tricks this strange horse does."

"It's your own fault," the skinny cried. "When you set out upon your ride, you slapped the horse. That isn't right. You always should be kind."

"I didn't blame him when he dropped. He meant that your ride should be stopped. Just pet him and he'll get right up and trot around, you'll find."

"You lads should take this tip from me: To all dumb animals you see, be just as kind as you know how. Then they will treat you right."

"Why chase a dog or slap a cat? It's not nice, doing things like that. Just cuddle them or pat them and you'll fill them with delight."

The Tynmites agreed that he was just as right as he could be.

Yea, Siam One Passenger!

These little sisters spoke up with one voice when Miss Peggy Burns, United Airlines hostess, at right, attempted to collect a second fare following a trip between San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif. The twins, Daisy and Violet Hilton, are of the Siamese variety. They took off from San Francisco with one ticket. Air line officials wired ahead, ordering collection of another fare. Now the California courts may be asked to decide the difference. The girls certainly pull together.

Burned Jail Was Link Between Old Days And Present
 numerous notorious prisoners had been confined within its walls in decades gone by.
 During the Catarino Garza revolution of about 40 years ago, the old jail held many of the border desperadoes of that day who were arrested on suspicion of being accomplices of Garza in starting his filibusters on the American side of the Rio Grande. In other days prior to the Garza period it had confined many of the roving gamblers and bad men who infested this frontier section 50 years or more ago.

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
SUSAN CAREY, 19 and an orphan, works in the office of ERNEST HEATH, Chicago architect. One of her admirers is BEN LAMPMAN, a moody young musician who asks her to marry him. She refuses. JACK WARRING, who works in the same office, asks Susan to go driving one night. Warring kisses her and Susan realizes never to go with him again. She falls in love with BOB DUNBAR, young millionaire whom she meets at business school. She has been engaged to DENISE ACKROYD, pretty debutante. Her father's paternal interest in Susan but his wife dislikes her. Denise Ackroyd asks her to attend a week-end party and ROSE MILTON, Susan's best friend, lends her a suitable wardrobe. In the way Ben informs her they have been invited because Denise thinks them freaks. Bob Dunbar appears at the party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIV
"WHISTLING in the dark, I'm only whistling in the dark." Susan slipped through the French door and stood shivering in the darkness. A wind from the west blew across the prairies and the stars shone with uncanny brightness over her head. It was quiet here. She could almost shut out completely that hateful tune, the swish-whish of feet, and the babble of voices. She felt a misery too deep for words. That was why the vastness of the night comforted her.

The events of the day marched before her eyes like the unrolling of a film. There was the dinner. The oval table with its lace and ruby glass, the exquisite food, the deft servants gliding in and out. Susan had scarcely tasted anything. From the moment when she had come down stairs wearing her frock of white lace to find Denise in Bob Dunbar's arms she had been miserable.

"This is what she asked me for," Susan told herself bitterly. "Her, hers and she wants me to know it!" Why such a course should give the girl any satisfaction Susan could not understand. The tall, young man had been her friend, her confidant, and that only briefly. If Susan had imagined that some divine flash of understanding had passed between the two, she had been wrong. She must get over it; other girls did. If her heart felt like a stone in her breast that was her affair and no other's. This interminable night would be over. There would be tomorrow, when she could return home and resolutely forget all her foolish dreams.

The worst of it was that Denise was bad for him. With laughter and encouragement she had had Bob's glass filled again and again at the table. What had sent her out into the night was the fact that Bob Dunbar, now quite drunk, had danced with her. It had been hideous! Through the crowd Susan had caught a glimpse of Denise's bright, malicious face as she watched them. Bob had said not too steadily, "Didn't know you belonged in this artist crowd. Surprised to see you." She was too sick at heart to answer him clearly, to explain that really she did not belong with them. As soon as she could she had slipped away from him and come out here to think things out. But she could not stay much longer. She was shuddering with cold now. Her only evening wrap, the beautiful rose shawl that one of the Careys had brought to his wife back in the '50's, was in the dressing room.

The girl's instinct was for flight. She could find her way back to the house she thought. She could pack her things and leave a note and walk to the station. It would be childish, she knew, and perhaps cowardly but she longed terribly to be away from all this.

"You'll catch your death of cold," she heard a voice saying. Susan wheeled. The young man who had sat at her left at dinner, the one they called Dum-Dum, was standing just below her on the gravel, lighting a cigarette. She forced herself to speak naturally. "I suppose I shall."

He cleared the low railing and took her arm.

"Come along inside," he said agreeably. "They're sending out a search party for you. Denise wants to go on to 'The Blue Mouse.' It's too stuffy here."

Susan allowed herself to be led back indoors. Some of the dancers looked at her curiously as she threaded her way past them, the tall, pale young girl, with the cloud of dark hair.

A small, argumentative group was gathered in the hall of the club. Sonia, a preposterous yellow frock sliding away from her shoulders, had her hand on Ben's arm. She looked up guiltily as Susan advanced.

"Oh, here she is," she said with animation. "I told you she was around some place."

Ben looked black as a thunder cloud. He growled, "And yet you were all willing to go off without her!"

Susan's eyes searched for the face she longed yet dreaded to see. The youth, Dum-Dum, murmured, reading her thoughts, "Bobby's nearly out. Some one took him to walk around the grounds. He'll be o. k. in a few minutes." He seemed to be a very knowing young man but, considering Susan's eyes thanked him as she went to get her wrap. The face that looked back at her from the dressing room mirror was startling in its pallor. There were great rings under her eyes. Sonia had followed and stood staring at Susan with frank curiosity.

"Don't take it so hard," she advised.

Anger flared up in Susan. "I don't know what you mean."

"Yes, you do." Sonia adjusted her extraordinary earrings and patted her oily hair with satisfaction. "A child could see what's the matter with you," she said coolly. "Buck up and show you have a little fight."

Susan squared her shoulders. "You're talking riddles."

"Oh, well, Sonia shrugged. "Don't mind me. I only meant to give you a friendly tip."

The warm color had come back into Susan's face and her eyes had darkened. So that was it! They were all feeling sorry for her. They knew what this was about. Well, she'd show them. She threw the shawl about her shoulders, liking the picture she made.

"I'm ready," she said crisply.

She took Dum-Dum's arm. She looked gay, even gallant. Denise, rushing in a moment later with Bob Dunbar at her heels, stared at the transfiguration. They made a great clamor in the hall. Three or four older couples, sedately waiting to the strains of an old-fashioned tune, turned to glance at them disapprovingly. Susan's laugh rang out at something Dum-Dum had said. Ben glowered.

"Hurry up, everybody," shrieked Denise. "We want to get away before the air of this tomb gets us."

She linked her fingers in Bob's. Susan managed to avoid his glance. With desperate intentness she answered Dum-Dum's sallies. So they thought she hadn't any fight in her, did they? She'd show them! Deliberately, Bob Dunbar detached himself from Denise's grasp and walked over to Susan. He held something out and the girl saw it was a flask, incredibly long and fat. "Have one?" he challenged. "You need it."

She put out her hand but before she could touch the flask Ben's long arm shot out and seized it. Ben said, loudly and forbiddingly, "She doesn't want it—you fool, you!"

What followed was all sort of nightmare. There was a tussle in the course of which the flask clattered to the floor. Someone said sharply, "Get 'em outside." Denise screamed and the boy, Dum-Dum, pulled the wrestlers apart. A club attendant rushed up, with a scared white face and closed the doors on the dancers.

Then suddenly they were all out beneath the stars, Susan shaking more with emotion than with cold and Ben holding his jaw and looking murderous.

"Take Bob away," Denise ordered. "He'll kill that fool." She glared at Ben. "If Daddy hears about this I'll be wrecked. I won't have a prayer—"

"Just a minute." That was Bob, oddly sober now. "I'm sorry. My error." He put out his hand to his adversary but his look was directed at Susan. Ben, after an instant's hesitation, took the hand. The crowd melted together again, moved by a common impulse of relief. Denise was issuing voluble directions. Arnold and Sonia and Dum-Dum in that car. She would drive with Bob. She looked around. Dunbar had melted into the shadows. And where was Susan?

The youth, Dum-Dum, lifted his eyebrows and put a hand under Denise's elbow.

"Where are those two?" Denise demanded, icily regal and clutching her white fur wrap around her slim figure. The boy shrugged. Denise stamped her foot and someone in the big car sounded a horn sharply in the night stillness.

"Let's move," Dum-Dum said easily. "I hear Bob's engine down the hill. They'll be trailing us."

There seemed nothing else to do. Denise, her head high, stepped in and raced the engine. They roared away.

Meanwhile Susan sat still and cold in the roadster's front seat. The man at her side cupped his hand over a cigarette. In the match's flare she could see his stern young profile.

"How did I get here?" she asked. "I feel as if—as if a hurricane had picked me up."

"I was it," Bob Dunbar supplied easily. He seemed quite sober now and there was a steely glint in his eye. "I kidnaped you. Now were you going to drive around a bit while I find out what this is all about."

Susan felt unaccountably happy. "I don't know what you mean," she told him.

"Yes, you do." His voice was grim. "I want to know if it's true—that you're engaged to this lad who just walloped me."

"Who told you that?"

"I give you one guess," said Bob Dunbar.

Marked Coin Ends Journey
 BAKERSFIELD, Cal.—Twenty years of travel, over thousands of miles and through many states, by the hand of honest men and thieves, ended here for a marked 50-cent piece, when Lee Bryant returned the coin to its rightful owner.

Bryant, grocery store manager, was a clerk in the C. A. Blodgett store in Spokane, Wash., on March 17, 1912, when his employer marked the 50-cent piece with his initials and the date, to commemorate the birth of a son. Bryant watched the ritual.

Blodgett put the marked coin in the office safe. It nestled alongside a prized dollar, dated 1794.

Six months later the strong box was opened by burglars. They took the two keepsake coins along with other loot.

Recently, the Bakersfield grocer was counting up the cash at his store. He noted a familiar coin. It was the marked half dollar, with "C. A. B.—March 17, 1912," scratched on its face.

Bryant sent the coin back to his former employer.

TROUBLED ALL LIFE WITH CONSTIPATION
 But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Real Relief

If you are subject to headaches loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness and other effects that so often result from constipation, read Mrs. Turner's voluntary letter.

"For the past six months I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and cannot praise it too highly. "Am fifty years of age. All my life have been troubled with constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has not only helped me, but has cured me. "I thought I couldn't like the taste of bran, but Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious."—Mrs. C. J. Turner, 507 Hanover Street, Fall River, Mass.

Tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things which overcome constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Certainly this is more natural than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.
