

Around And About

The Sports Circuit

By Tom Beasley

HIGH SCHOOL football "excess" are all steamed up. They want to give the spring grid candidates a real rough and tough lesson.

BASEBALL COACH Ray Fisher of the University of Michigan believes he has the tallest pitcher in captivity—John Gee, 5-foot-9 south-paw.

WINNERS IN the county meet may get those awards. Donations have amounted to $12. That leaves $48.

THE U. S. Olympic basketball team to be selected at New York early in April has been invited to play two games in Europe before going to Berlin.

FRANK G. Menke, writing in the All-Sports Record Book, gives this interesting history of baseball: "Baseball is called 'America's National Game,' yet it is merely a combination of the games of cricket and rounders, as played in England for centuries.

The earliest form of baseball, played for the first time nearly 100 years ago, bore an infinitely closer relation to cricket than it did to rounders.

"Rounders calls for the use of three bases. The American boys who first played the game had no base at all, and then started using a single base.

"Baseball of today differs radically from rounders, and is a thousand miles removed from cricket in rules and method of play. But it was not always so. Just as the Yankees took English soccer and English rugby, and evolved American football from them, so they took rounders and cricket, plus their own ideas in later years, and invented baseball.

"Tricking back to the long-gone days, when baseball first was played, there is evidence that there were no bases at all. There are none in cricket. The first bats were flat at the ends—really boards which the family jack-knife had whittled so that one end could be gripped by the batter.

"The first uniformed baseball team—the New York Knickerbockers of 1849—was dressed in an outfit identical with those which garb English cricket players. In early days, 100 runs constituted a game in baseball, teams taking equal turns at bat.

"Cricket was played in the U. S. A. before the idea for baseball was conceived. Some Britons who settled in New York state brought along cricket regalia, but play was only spasmodic, and regular games did not happen.

"If there had been a plethora of cricket players in New York state to form teams, and play games on a fairly regular schedule, at a time before baseball gained its impetus, there would have been no baseball. Boys are more inclined to play established games than to originate new ones.

Tomorrow we'll give Menke's story of when, where and how baseball really started.

George Puccinelli Heads List Of Players From Intl. Hopes For A Berth With The A's

ORLANDO, Fla., Mar. 10 (AP)—Ed Lincke, the pitcher without a pulse in his throwing arm, figures to be one of Washington's starting hurlers this season.

Lincke isn't the best pitcher in the American league—and he isn't the worst. And there'll be no rally-hoo to the announcement that Lincke is due to pitch.

But, just imagine what Barnum Thorne, pitcher of the Senators, might have accomplished for the Senators with this tag line—"The world's most unusual pitcher, the unique among big-league stars, the man without a pulse in his salary wing."

There's little circulation in his right arm and hand. His fingers stiffen, particularly on cold days.

He has ordered a small contraption known as medical heat. This gadget, a miniature hot water bag filled with a chemical that diffuses constant heat, Lincke expects to keep in his hip pocket. He plans to keep his right hand warm between pitches and between innings in an effort to limber up his stiffening fingers.

Lincke came up with his mysterious malady while pitching one rainy day late in the 1934 season. Feeling a numbness in his right arm, he found he couldn't hold a comb. Trainer Mike Martin was unable to find his pulse. There was none and doctors have been unable to detect one since.

His ailment has been described as a blood clot on the chief artery that carries the life stream from the shoulder into his arm.

George Puccinelli Heads List Of Players From Intl. Hopes For A Berth With The A's

Connie Mack hopes George Puccinelli has finished with the International League and will be ready for the Athletics. Puccinelli led the International League sluggers last season with a .359 average.

TINTAGEL GETS A HIGH NICHE IN DERBY RANK

Distance No Handicap To Futurity Champion

Editor's Note: The following is the second of a series on Kentucky Derby contenders. By THOMAS H. NOONE, United Press Racing Editor

NEW YORK, Mar. 10 (UP)—Tintagel, winner of The Futurity and $75,000 last year, is a real contender for this year's Kentucky Derby.

Like Gallant Fox, winner of the 1930 renewal of Col. Matt Winn's historic contest, Tintagel ran his best races 2 after mid-summer. His dam, Heloise, has sent several stake winners to the post.

George Odum, one of America's greatest horsemen, is handling Tintagel. He is now in Florida. It was Odum's intention to race the bay fello in the $20,000 Florida Derby at Hialeah park, but at the 11th hour Odum decided to prepare the Sir Gallahad colt for the Churchill Downs feature May 2.

Although Tintagel won The Futurity for his only stakes victory, his record fairly scintillates with brilliancy. He finished second in the Arlington Futurity and raced nine times winning six, and was second once. He competed against all the crack horses of the year.

Many are of the opinion the mile and one-quarter route of the derby will be too far. These wise men base their opinion on the record of his half-brother—Sgt. Byrne. The latter was strictly a

The only blood now fed to the arm is seepage, Lincke says thus the lack of pulse. The blood supply appears sufficient on warm days but in the spring and fall a stiffening of the fingers sets in.

Lincke, a 23-year-old right-hander, who stands five-foot-ten and weighs 195 pounds, also has been troubled by extra weight. He expects to trim himself to around 190 and stay there. Ed reported to training camp in fair shape and says he believes he can get the arm into condition.

Every Branch Of Sport Has A Sister Act

Smith Girls Hold Women's Skiing Titles In This Country

CHICAGO, Mar. 10 (AP)—Sister acts in sports are springing up in almost every branch of athletic activity. It is getting so that when a girl champion bows up, you can expect to find a sister along side of her, or right behind her.

The Smith girls, Ethelwynne and Ellis-Ayr, of Tacoma, Wash., hold about all the women's skiing titles in this country—the national downhill, slalom and combined skiing championships.

Louise and Estelle Wigzell of Buffalo finished second and fourth in the national fancy skating championships to win places on the team which competed in the winter Olympic games.

Pretty Elizabeth Komp and her sister, Erna, have been grabbing the headlines on the sports pages with their wholesale wrecking of backstroke swimming records at the southern resorts.

Chad Kimesy, who won 16 games for the Royals last year, went to the world champion Tigers, and Harry Lambert, ace Oriole hurler, was purchased by the New York Giants late last season.

Bill Terry gave Jimmy Ripple of Montreal 'his chance with the Giants after he hit .333 and won a place on the league's all-star team last season.

Cal Chapman and Whitey Hilcher of Toronto and George McQuinn of Newark were graduated to the Cincinnati Reds, with whom McQuinn is being groomed to fill Jim Bottomley's place at first base.

The Rochester Red Wings contributed Gene Moore and Buster Mills to the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Phillies took Woodley Abernathy from Baltimore; Nolan Richardson left Newark to battle Frank Crosetti for the Yankees shortstop post, and Duffale sent Dick Siebert to the Dodgers and Harold Meyers to the Boston Bees.

Catchers Frank Hayes of Buffalo and Albany respectively, and George Savino of Syracuse reported to Connie Mack. Johnny Mize, former Red Wing, is with the St. Louis Cardinals.

A 219-pound meteorite, which was found near Social Circle, Ga., about 15 years ago, is on exhibit at the Georgia museum.

Point N. C. joined the world champion Detroit Tigers as the best fielding third-sacker on the coast. His percentage as fielder was .994 for 171 games.

Cleveland looked on Joe Becker, San Francisco Seals' catcher, after the St. Louis-born boy wound up with a .372 batting average, fourth from the top.

The Yankees took the most players out of the league, DiMaggio and Pitcher Jimmy Tobin and Outfielder Bernard Uhalt, both Oakland club developments.

Brooklyn claimed Wayne Osborn, right-handed pitcher from the Mission club, in addition to Eckhardt while Detroit called up a second player from Portland—Jake Wade, diminutive fireball twirler.

Manuel Salvo, steaming right-hander, answered the call of the Boston Red Sox. The big Portuguese pitcher was sixth in league rankings last season.

Emil Matheo, outfielder, went to the Athletics for a trial and Bill Raymond, catcher, reported to Cincinnati. Both were with Oakland last year.

Interest In Grand Natl. Soars High

Discussion Favors Wider Scope For Handicapper Of Big Race

NEW YORK, Mar. 10 (AP)—With several American-owned horses among the likely starters, the Grand National Steeplechase, to be run over the Alintree course on March 27, is stirring up enthusiasm wherever racing fans gather.

There was considerable discussion favoring a wider scope for the handicapper of the big race but nothing came of it. It was proposed that the present minimum of 147 pounds be revised and the old standard of 133 pounds be adopted, with the maximum weight remaining at 175 pounds.

It is impossible to make differences in weight among a large number of horses at the lower end of the handicap, making it necessary to bunch as many as 20 or more animals with the minimum weight.

Opponents maintained that such a move might result in the old complaint of too many runners. Regulations governing the entries for the race, however, are a substantial safeguard against the presence of many bad horses in the field.

No horse can be entered which has not been first, second or third in a steeplechase of three miles or upwards, value $1,000 to the winner, or in a steeplechase of any distance at Alintree, or has not won any steeplechase value $2,500 to the winner.

It still remains, despite these restrictions, as difficult as ever for a horse to win the Grand National more than once. No animal has accomplished this feat since Manifest was first under the wire in 1897 and 1899. The reason for this is perhaps best expressed in the words of a jockey who has a "National" success to his credit:

"When you win the Grand National you need all the luck that is going; above all, you have to steer clear of interference and avoid having your horse being brought down through no fault of his own. You may enjoy this luck once, but it is odds against your being so fortunate a second time.

In the coming race only two horses—Miss Dorothy Page's Golden Miller and Major Noel Furlong's Reynoldstown, winners of the 1934 and 1935 races, respectively—will have a chance to repeat. Golden Miller indicated a return to form with a convincing win at Newbury, while Reynoldstown gave a brilliant display of jumping when he won the Mappery steeplechase over three miles and 50 yards.

The American-owned Castle Irwell is well regarded. He has shown himself to be an ideal "National" horse as far as jumping is concerned, and the only doubtful point is his ability to stay four and a half miles.

Another American steeplechaser expected to do well is Bagatelle, sent to England for the Grand National by Alvin Untermeyer. The last horse sent from America to compete in the National was Troublemaker, which completed the course in 1933. Another, Billy Barton, was near to winning the great event in 1928. He and Tipperary Tim arrived at the last fence almost level—the only survivors of 42 starters. Billy fell in jumping this final obstacle. He was remounted and finished second.

Accessories Don't Match; Look Like A Walking Flower Garden If You Want To Be Up To The Very Last Minute

By ONA R. PARSONS

Next Sunday The Big Spring Herald is getting out its swellest spring fashion edition; in anticipation of the big event I've been sticking my nose into the shops seeing what else they had that they didn't show at the Fashion Revue.

Grand as the revue was, it only touched the surface of spring styles. Big Spring merchants went on buying sprees this spring; they knew that most women's wardrobes were in need of all sorts of tricky gadgets, beginning with hats and going down. They aim to please, and they have what it takes on their counters or ready to pull out at your request.

Color Rules Accessories

There never has been a season in my shopping career (and I wasn't born yesterday) when handbags and gloves and every other accessory was so busy being colorful. That's why you must shop with the utmost care, and assemble your petit ensemble thoughtfully, with great regard as to what goes with what.

Ideas in the Bag

There are lots of new ideas in bags and you are going to have a great deal of fun choosing yours. First of all, top handles are tops! When they were first shown last season, women loved being able to swing a bag along when they walked at a clip. . . so don't think the designers would give up the idea so soon. Top handles are included again, and with a vengeance.

The kodak shape continues to be smart. It is a great favorite with me, and I especially like it with suits. Another of the newer shapes is that with cut off corners. This gives a kind of pagoda shape that is in harmony with all the other Chinese fashions.

Patent Leather Important

Patent leather, gleaming and glowing, is the pet of the season. You will see it in every shape under the sun, big bags and small, dark colors and light. One of the nicest things about these new ones is that they can carry out the vogue for color so brilliantly. Reds, greens, bright blues, yellows, various pastels are perfect in patent, for they retain their good looks after weeks and weeks of carrying. Why? Because the leather may be wiped off with a damp cloth, and kept as bright and clean as the day you bought them.

New and smart among the Spring colors is London tan, or luggage tan, or saddle. I found different stores calling it different colors, but it is all the same to you and me. It is a glorious shade of tan with a slight coppery glow. . . here is nothing that can top it for chic.

Gray bags are seen here and there. If you have lots of bags, buy one, for they are smart, but they cannot be used as extensively as the other colors.

You will be glad to know that big bags still are smart. And designers have found more places for tricky pockets and envelopes. There is almost no end to what you can stuff into the new bags without their showing a sign of strain.

Crushed goat, pinsea calf, baby calf, and plain calf in matt and satiny finishes are the leathers I liked best, but if you go for novelties you will find them to your heart's content.

Glove News

Whatever other kind of gloves you buy be sure to have one pair of manish ones. Cut short, one button to be exact, buttoned on either side of the wrist, or slashed the 5th to 8th chapters of first Corinthians.

Mrs. A. C. Blackerby joined the circle as a new member. Two visitors were present: Miss Dorothy Nummy and Mrs. R. C. Hatch.

Members present in addition to those were: Mmes. Vernon Mason, Vernon Logan, F. J. Gibson, C. K. Elvings, J. C. Loper, and Miss Phillips.

Mrs. Gibson will be hostess next Monday at her home at 608 West Fourth street.

at the back. . . this is the short way to glove chic. And these are the gloves you will wear with your tailored suits and coats. In doo- skin, there is nothing smarter. . . and they are extremely important in fabrics.

String gloves have enormous importance. I like them immensely fectly. In this same family I have seen other crocheted gloves. Some of them are works of art, done entirely by hand. They are often dainty enough to wear with your afternoon frocks.

Inexpensive as they are, fabric gloves are tremendously popular. We have seen them fashioned in all the smartest styles of the season, and they are knockouts. You will find them in every color under the sun, from darks to lights, from pastels to brights, in white, and more and more white.

Costume gloves of fine kidskins are very much in the picture, and you will find that no other glove will ever take their place in fashion.

A scarf goes with almost every costume this Spring. For several seasons now smart women have been knotting up silk handkerchiefs around their necks as a finish to sports frocks and sweaters of all yeps. They look chic, they have a nice silky feel about the neck. . . they give a touch of color that nothing else will. These scarfs are going to be more and more important. I have seen them in hand blocked effects. . . I have seen them imported from England, from Japan and from India. Some are no bigger than a man's handkerchief, and must be knotted very simply. Others are a yard square, and what tricks you can do with them. You can even wear them as a blouse!

An expression of thanks to the public and all who made the performance a success was voted by the members.

The group decided to use the proceeds toward repair of the church rectory.

Plans were also made for an all-day meeting of the members next Monday to make curtains for the welfare nursery cottage. There will be lunch served at the parish house and the meeting will begin at 10 o'clock. At the same time the members will bring shrubs to be planted on the church property. Mrs. George Garrette is chairman of the shrub shower.

A program was rendered, the first of a series from "The Witness," church magazine, that the members will give during Lent. Mrs. Van Gieson talked on "The Church and the Virgin Islands"; Mrs. Bulot on "The Church and Haiti"; Mrs. Spence on "Fellowship"; Mrs. Phillips on "Church League," and Mrs. Clarke on "Talk It Over."

Mrs. A. M. Ripps was hostess for the afternoon and served delicious refreshments to Mr. Henckell and the following: Mmes. S. P. Jones, T. C. Thomas, Verd Van Gieson, C. A. Bulot, E. V. Spence,

FARM DEBTS AND FARM PURCHASING

What must be the groundwork for an eventual sounder economic condition in Texas as an agricultural state is the recent progress in adjusting farm loans and the increased purchase of farm land.

Reports from both the farm debt adjustment division of the Rural Resettlement administration and the federal land loan associations show an encouraging trend.

In the matter of debt adjustment, it is shown that in the last three and one-half months of 1935, farm debts in the United States of more than $20,000,000 were cut down by compromise by $6,000,000, almost one-third.

That these adjustments, as well as general improvement in the agricultural picture, have been important in stabilizing farm conditions is revealed in the report of the federal land bank at Houston which shows that in the past five months, nearly $3,000,000, or about 20 per cent, of loans applied for have been for the purchase of farms.

Farm investment, as well as other types, was brought to a dead halt during the 1930-35 period, perhaps as a result of depressed conditions—but this halt also was a cause of prolonging difficulties in the agricultural sections.

Adjustment of debts has cleared the situation for many a farmer and consequently for the agricultural areas as a whole. With producers placed in a position of being able to pay, the whole farm economic structure is reinforced.

And, arguing well for agriculture is the renewal of purchase of farm land. While the situation of the tenant farmer is still a poor one indeed, it can gradually be improved through providing of loan facilities and interest rates that will permit the buying of farms.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Personal Notes off a New Yorker's Cuff: Ruth Gordon, who made such a hit as the wronged girl in that play about the Scottsboro trial, is playing the role of the poor relation in "Ethan Frome."

Guy Endore chooses the meatiest subjects for his books. Before he wrote that shocker, "The Werewolf of Paris," he penned a life story of Joan of Arc and a biography of Casanova.

That old flip about Broadway musical comedies having lots of good ideas but not many clothes should be turned against the nightclub revues. The Broadway shows this season, while offering plenty in the way of nudity, are models in nud-like modesty compared to the cabaret performances.

Barbara Beck, who dances at the Paradise, bears a startling likeness to Merle Oberon, and Judy Williams, who pirouettes at the same place, could be Bette Davis' twin.

The fable of the busman who takes a bus ride on his day off is equalled by most actors and actresses. . . . On nights off they always attend the theater. . . . It is, they say, the only way they can keep up with the drama.

Duselina Giannini is really the "dark lady of the concert stage." She is dark with slick, shiny black hair, an olive-ivory skin, and vividly red lips.

For months I've been harping on Mary Nolan, wondering what ever happened to her. . . . I know now. . . . An obscure note in a lost paragraph far back in a suburban newspaper lists her as singing at a remote cabaret somewhere in Queens.

During the elevator strike most hotels rushed special staff-men into the breach. . . . But it was noted that a genial, Bull Montana-like fellow accompanied each novice operator—just in case. They were a friendly ylot, but if you turned out to be a strikebreaker you got a quick skulking, and a good one.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—A score of big business men who are members of the business advisory council went to the White House recently to tell the president what they thought the government should do about various economic and financial problems.

One point on which they laid great stress was the necessity of cutting federal expenditures and balancing the budget.

"Government spending to relieve unemployment," he said, "will continue. It will continue as long as such aid is necessary. You might as well make up your minds to that."

"I know some of you gentlemen are very eager to have me retired to private life. Let me give you, a bit of advice."

"If you want to get me out of the White House the first thing you will have to do is to stop chattering. Stop chattering on your employees."

"Every time you breathe a word or lower wages—as I have evidence is being done—you make thousands of votes for me."

The words says to himself: "It was not that way under NRA. The new deal is for me. It is my friend."

Washington and New York will soon see a Roosevelt on the stage and dancing in the chorus of a musical show.

The show is the 1936 production of Harvard's Hasty Pudding club. The Roosevelt is the president's son John, Harvard sophomore.

Eight of the sixteen will be dressed as women, John's "female" partner will be George F. Baker, Jr., chairman of the financing, who is a critic of the president.

When John went out for the show, he faced the competition of about fifty chorus aspirants, but survived first one out, then another. His voice did more for him than his legs.

Other notables in the show are Marshall Field, Jr.; Gaspar G. Bhoon, Jr., son of the Massachusetts lieutenant governor; Francis Lee Higginson; Wendell Williams; Hunt II, son of the architect William Morris Hunt; and Ben Welles, son of Sumner Welles, assistant secretary of state.

Welles will do two specialty dances, a rumba and an Apache.

The president doesn't go in for autographs, but there is one in-terested person which he treasures highly. It bears the permed words, "To President Roosevelt with affectionate regards, J. Ramsay MacDonald, May 1935," and stands on a table in the sun room of the Roosevelt family quarters.

Official reports of the senate, who take down the debate every day for the Congressional Record, keep a private score on this.

Their records reveal that only seven of the ninety-six speak regularly, and twenty-one never speak at all.

Here is the score: 21 never speak, 24 speak very infrequently, 21 speak occasionally, 12 speak frequently, 7 speak regularly.

Chapter 26
LADY IN DISTRESS
"You said you'd help me," the woman declared. "Perhaps I shouldn't have come."

Here Bobby broke in, finding words and assurances at the same time. "Shouldn't have come? Non-sense! You did quite right to come. Of course you should have come. And I'll do anything—anything in the world to help you. You're not frightened, are you? You're quite safe now. The color rose a little in the girl's face. She said abruptly: "Who are you? You're—you're not a chauffeur. I mean you may be a chauffeur, but you're not one really."

Bobby understood her meaning in spite of her confused words. "One does all sorts of jobs nowadays," he said. "I used to be in the Navy. As a matter of fact I'm not exactly a chauffeur—but that doesn't matter now. Anyway, I assure you you can trust me and tell me all about it."
Her flush had deepened. "You must think me mad," she murmured. "You must think me quite mad."
"No, no."
"Yes—coming here like this. But I was so frightened—so terribly frightened—Her voice died away. Her eyes widened as though they saw some vision of terror."

Bobby seized her hand firmly. "Look here," he said. "It's quite all right. Everything's going to be all right. You're safe now—with a friend. Nothing shall happen to you."
He felt the answering pressure of her fingers.
"When you stepped out into the moonlight the other night," she said in a low hurried voice, "it was like a dream—a dream of deliverance. I didn't know who you were or where you came from. But it gave me hope and I determined to come and find you—and tell you."
"That's right," said Bobby encouragingly. "Tell me. Tell me everything."
She drew her hand away suddenly. "If I do, you'll think I'm mad—that I've gone wrong in my head from being in that place with those others."
"No, I shan't. I shan't really," she said. "I shan't tell you."
"I will. It sounds mad. I shan't tell you. Tell me. Please tell me."
She drew a little farther away from him, sitting very upright, her eyes staring straight in front of her. "It's just this," she said. "I'm afraid I'm going to be murdered."
"Murdered?"
"Yes, that sounds mad, doesn't it? Like what do they call it?"

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed. How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs is one of the most thorough and dependable of all medicinal preparations. It cleanses the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and bacteria.

Harold Lloyd Film At Ritz

Famed Comedian Appears Today, Wednesday In 'The Milky Way'

Respected Harold Lloyd, for years ranking only below Charlie Chaplin in the field of film comedy makes a new bid for popularity with a new laugh hit, "The Milky Way." The picture plays Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz. It marks the first appearance of Lloyd on the screen in several years, but is said to be in keeping with the old-time Lloyd pictures.

Harold is seen as a humorless, shy, ineffectual book of a milkman whose only aim in life is to deliver more milk bottles to more customers. When a drunken fight champion takes a swing at the milkman, an adept at ducking, and knocks himself out (how it happens is one of the biggest laughs of the picture) the milk-bottle boy gets credit for a terrific wallop and is launched as a contender for the middle-weight championship.

Good Gardening

19. Mint Bed

If you're willing to spare a space in your garden three by three feet from vegetables you can have a mint bed that will provide plenty of leaves for flavoring drinks like—well, say iced tea. Five or six plants will be enough. Spearmint is more widely grown by amateurs than peppermint. First you plant indoors and then transplant, after what may be reasonably expected to be the last frost in your area, to the garden mint bed. The main thing is to make sure that the plants don't blossom; when they do they become tough. It's a good idea to keep part of the bed sheared down while the mint is being used from the other part, thus providing a continuous supply of fresh tips. The seeds may be grown indoors in a big flower pot before the transplanting period.

Tomorrow—Nasturtiums

ADVANCE—NOT RETREAT

Questions and answers compiled by Alice Hyatt Mather, executive secretary of the Boys' and Girls' Anti-Cigarette League.

Question—Does a person in ordinary health and under ordinary conditions require a soother?
 Answer—No. No one ever begins the use of tobacco for its soothing properties. Indeed, the first effects are far from soothing in character.

Question—Why is smoking by women so greatly to be deplored?
 Answer—Because the question of motherhood comes into consideration.

Question—Why so?
 Answer—In Nancy, France, the death rate among breast-fed children was extraordinary high because of the presence of nicotine in the milk of mothers employed in tobacco factories. (Dr. Mitrul) An Austrian physician, found nicotine in both the milk of nursing mothers, and in the fluid surrounding the infant before birth.

Question—What are the symptoms of poisoning in an infant from exposure to tobacco-laden atmosphere?
 Answer—Loss of appetite, "smoker's eyes," listless ways, restless nights, nausea and vomiting.

Question—Does smoking tend to unsex women?
 Answer—Yes. By producing premature degeneration of the sex glands. One evidence of this is the development of the feminine mustache which is becoming notably more frequent among young women smokers of Paris (Kellogg).

Adults as well as children must be taught that the great scourges of mankind are war, alcoholism, syphilis and tuberculosis. They can and must be swept off the earth. Civilization cannot endure unless they are stamped out. They cannot be regulated or licensed, and they cannot be quarantined or restricted to certain areas or localities, and people cannot be vaccinated against them, and prophylactic serums and anti-toxins will not cure them. They kill, maim and destroy not only the living but they deform the bodies and weaken the intellect of generations unborn. They are the primary and direct progenitors of the idiots, imbeciles and other defectives. They seldom attack the aged and infirm. They destroy the fathers and wither the growing child in its mother's womb. They gather in their deadly embrace the young and vigorous, leaving the weaklings and defectives to reproduce their kind. They leave a trail fraught with disaster and poverty wherever they rage.—Dr. John Graham Wilson, in Norristown Times-Herald. (Submitted by the local WCTU.)

Fort Worth Fans Eye Young Southpaw Hurler

(By United Press)

Fort Worth baseball fandom had its eyes on a young left-handed hurler who was sent to the local club by Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe.

The left-hander, Virgil Hape, admitting 22 years, showed a fine pitching arm yesterday as he and nine others, including Manager Harry McCurdy, started training.

Not even the presence of Pitcher Ed (Beardslee) Greer was sufficient to take the interest of the ballfans away from the youngster from Auxvasse, Mo. Greer, the only veteran present yesterday, was in fine shape after a winter spent in running a steam shovel at Pueblo, Colo. In 1935 he pitched 22 victories for the Houston Buffs.

All the others working out yesterday were youngsters, including Harry Chosen, Frank Krole, R. C. Easterwood, catchers; Leland Terhune, Paul Schoen, Britton Horton, Wilson and Hape, pitchers.

Active training for pitchers and catchers starts this morning, with the rest of the squad due to start practice here next Monday.
