One Dog That Will Never Bite Again!

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Plans are being made to have a free Easter egg hunt at the park south of the Willows swimming pool on Easter Sunday for all the kiddies of Ranger. The exact time for the hunt has not been announced, but will be given out through the columns of this paper sometime before Easter Sunday.

Eggs for the hunt are to be secured through the means of a matinee at the Arcadia theatre, to be held at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning, March 26, the day before Easter. The admission price of the matinee will be two or three eggs, the price to be determined later in the week.

When the eggs are secured Fire Chief George A. Murphy is to take charge of them, see that they are boiled and dyed and hidden around the park for the kiddies to find.

Every child in town is invited to take part in the Easter egg hunt on Easter morning, according to the present plans, and everyone who can prevail on their hens to lay a few eggs before now and the Saturday before Easter can get in to see the picture show. In case you do not have hens, store-bought eggs will be accepted without question, according to Chief Murphy and Ty Grasianno.

THE IDEAL "DAD"

Parents usually have plenty to say about the shortcomings of their children. The youngsters, though, don't often get a chance to express themselves about their parents.

The other day, however, children in a middlewestern school were asked to write compositions on the general subject, "The Kind of Dad I'd Like to Have." And the things they wrote might provide a good many fathers with some useful tips.

It's a wistful, pathetic little list, really. Here are some of the things the children put down:

"I'd like my dad not to laugh at me when I do things.

"I want my daddy to be kind and cheerful and kind to mother and everybody.

"I don't want my daddy to whip me when I don't mean it—I want him to give me a chance to explain.

"I don't want my dad to holler at everything.

"I want a daddy the fellows like so we can have a club in our basement.

"I want him to be able to fix things and make things."

Those are representative samples of the kind of desires these school kids expressed; and, really, they form about as mild a set of injunctions as any mortal could be presented with. It's amazing, when you stop to think of it, how little our children demand of us.

What would be required of a man to score 100 per cent on that list? Simply that he be decently kind, good-natured, tactful and understanding; that he be likable enough so that other children will like him, and that he have some rudimentary knowledge of how to repair those little defects that are constantly developing in a boy's toys.

That, surely, isn't asking an awful lot, is it?

To win and hold the love and admiration of a child is the easiest thing on earth. Your youngster doesn't ask that you be brilliant, successful, wealthy or clever. The standard that is set for you is so pathetically simple. Wouldn't you feel ashamed if you ever failed to measure up to it?

CRACKS IN THE DOME

AUSTIN, March 12.—Not a cent more of county money on state highways—a declaration of policy is one Gov. Ross S. Sterling said he would follow if he were a member of the highway commission now.

The present highway commission, two of whose members served during his four years as chairman, had not, at its last meeting, got around to this point. . . . The commission told Panhandle counties they still will have to find some local money to match state funds for building of a main north-south highway system to the west of Amarillo.

Washington LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—A great deal of the smelt has been taken out of the Bureau of Investigation in the Department of Justice during the last six or eight years.

Edgar Hoover, its chief—who is no relative of the president—has built up an organization of skilled investigators and criminal catchers which seems to attract the admiration of most people who know anything about its work.

It was one of the first agencies called in on the Lindbergh kidnaping mystery. It has operated without scandal for a long time now and sometimes is referred to as America's "Scotland Yard."

Probes 34,000 Cases

LAST year it received 34,310 cases which required investigation. Its field includes crimes on government property, violations of national banking and Federal Reserve laws, stolen automobiles taken across state lines, military desertions, impersonations of government officers, the Mann white slave act, anti-trust laws, thefts of government property, special investigations for federal departments, and checking up on applicants for federal departments.

Many Have Legal Training

HOOPER, a former lawyer who first appeared prominently in the government's "red" deportation cases a dozen years ago, has developed a list of law school graduates—73 per cent now have legal training as compared with 16 per cent in 1924.

Even at Vera Cruz!

ONE agent cleverly solved the murder of Henrietta Schmecker by an Apache Indian at the White River Reservation. A man who had embezzled $12,000 from a bank in Portland, Ore., in 1916, was located at Vera Cruz and returned to this country for sentence.

The bureau has 30 special agents here, 59 in New York, 29 in Chicago, 14 in Detroit, 17 in Birmingham, 14 in Cincinnati and Pittsburgh and smaller units in other cities, all covering nearby regions.

TRAYLOR INVADDES HIS OLD HOME STATES

Melvin Traylor has as many native states as Homer had birthplaces. Away down in Texas he is known as a native son. In that dark and bloody ground known as Kentucky he is known as a favorite son. In the state of Illinois where he votes and is engaged in the banking business on a large scale he is a native son. He addressed a joint session of the Kentucky legislature on taxation. This is the wake of a mob invasion of the executive mansion of Kentucky by belligerent women who are fighting a state sales' tax. This favorite son of Texas and Illinois and Kentucky has many friends in the land of Daniel Boone who are urging him for the democratic presidential nomination. He was born in an humble farm home in Adair county in the foothills of Kentucky. Now he is an internationally known financier and should the democrats win in November his friends say that he may be secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of a democratic president. There are others who say that Col. Jesse H. Jones of Texas may take down that plum in the event of a democratic victory. Of course this is counting chickens before the hatching of the political egg.

WHY MANUFACTURERS SHOULD COME TO TEXAS

President M. H. Cahill of the Katy railway system sees no reason why Texas should not become one of the leading manufacturing states as well as chief among the agriculture states of America. Speaking of Texas, he said: "In the firm, uninflated, and consistent growth this section has achieved, it has laid the foundation for an era of unprecedented industrial, commercial, and agricultural progress. The wealth of its widely diversified products staggers the imagination. Cheap power for industry is available, production costs are low, and both climate and labor supply are low favorable for the most satisfactory operation of manufacturing plants. The matter of satisfaction on the part of employees is one of industry's greatest assets in this section." It is true that the Southwest has more to look forward to in a business or developing sense than any other section of the American republic.

ANOTHER SPECIAL SESSION

Will there be another session of the legislature this year? The chances are 50-50 now; but prospects are very slim that the session, if held, will occur before the second primary in August. . . . The only thing in sight that will force it earlier will be for the decision against martial law to stick and for some court to knock out the new oil proration law, too.

There probably will be required tax legislation and tax relief measures before next Jan. 1, but they can be written as well after August as before.

The tax rate already has been limited by law to 69 cents . . . and the homestead exemption will be voted in November.

Religion is the best armor in the world, but the worst cloak. Seeking of religion, reminds us that today is Sunday and your place, no matter who or what you are, is in some Sunday School or Church.

Happiness is easily procured. The following is given to insure it. "Take one hour a day in helping someone." Simple, isn't it?

The political observer says that candidates for the various offices are getting pretty thick—while some are thicker than others.

Our pessimistic friend says he has a wife that is so disagreeable that sometimes she won't even agree with him when he agrees with her.

Dancing by couples was introduced some 400 years ago—and, my what a scandal it created at that time, according to history.

Honesty can not be secured in private life by thoughts of the best policy—but only by high principles.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

J. David Stern, publisher of the Philadelphia Record, says: "When you say that the sun rises, you don't mean it, because you know that the sun doesn't rise but that you dip down on the revolving earth toward the sun. It is a habit of mind to think of ourselves as the center of the universe.

"And just so it is the habit of mind to think of our dollar as a fixed entity. Just as we talk about the sun rising, we talk about values going down when, in truth, the value of the commodity remains constant while the value of the dollar is increasing.

"Professor Irving Fisher tells of his experience in Germany some 10 years ago, when the mark was going rapidly to nothing. The Germans did not think of it that way; they talked about prices going up. The mark was still the mark even when a loaf of bread was priced at a million.

"We have the antithesis of this in America today. Dollar credits are shrinking; therefore dollars are becoming more valuable. The higher the dollar goes, the lower prices go.

"In addition to the confusion that this causes, it has a depress-

WORLD Mayor Trial On A Treasance Count

By United Press. CLERK, Pa., March 15.—H. Kline, first mayor of Pittsburgh ever to be indicted, and former director of supplies, in L. Succop, was placed on trial Monday on charges of embezzlement in office. The charges are Elysian rugs for the city at approximately $100,000, but bids, was among the 45 counts of a purchase of supplies totaling $1,000,000 on one count each. The investigation of the supplies was one of the three city departments to come under a year's start-up March. John D. Houston, the first humane grocer, first called attention to the alleged irregularities in the letting of contracts for canned goods. He was high bidder for getting the closing of the Franklins and Trust company, in which some city funds had been deposited. An inquiry was ordered by Mayor Kline. The inquiry into the bank, which its president, Charles A. Tolp, was charged with embezzlement of more than $250,000, was not completed. Kline and Succop were granted a change of venue from Allegheny county Jan. 19, when they were indicted. They could not receive a fair and impartial trial in Pittsburgh. More than 60 witnesses will be called by District Attorney Henry T. Park, Allegheny county, who is to be assisted by Attorney F. Reed, special prosecutor. The case is being handled by a citizens committee, headed by Thomas D. Finletter, Philadelphia, was named by the committee to preside. Attorney E. B. Coll and C. B. Prichard are the defense counsel.

len forced herself to eat and to respond, as best she could, to his mood of deep and quiet happiness. It almost brought the tears she had held back when she saw how very little of herself it took to make him happy.

When he bent across the table to kiss her Ellens lips were willing, fresh and young. She knew something was lacking from that kiss that never would be there, but Steven did not know. His arms tightened about her. His voice filled with passion as he whispered that she was his own.

Somehow she heard the ringing of a telephone and felt an inward gasp of relief as he released her. She saw her husband frown, saw the queer, unfamiliar look fade from his eyes.

"It's Symes again, I imagine," he told her irritably. "He's called a dozen times today, Fergus told me."

Ellen felt a dull surprise. "You haven't talked to him?" "I'm not going to. He's not to spoil my first evening with my bride, Oh, Ellen, Ellen—"

Again the girl was swept with fear. Steven was her husband. He had a right to use that possessive, caressing tone. She belonged to him.

Fergus appeared on the veranda. "It was Mr. Symes calling, sir," he said to Steven. "I told him you were not to be here tonight, as you informed me, but he was considerably upset. He said it was imperative for him to see you, sir."

"It's always imperative for him to see me," Steven grumbled. "This time he'll have to wait until morning. We'll stop at his office before we sail."

"Very well, sir." Fergus was gone with one curious, sidewise glance at Ellen—a fleeting glance that seemed to the girl to convey contempt and condemnation, as if Fergus thought she had no right to be setting at Steven Barclay's table.

"I don't like that man," she said sharply. "Then he's lost his job," Steven told her. "Oh, I don't want that!" she protested, dismayed. "It's only that he makes me nervous."

She arose from the table and went to one of the windows, pulled aside the silken curtain and stared out at the night. Soon Steven was at her side.

"Would you like to see your new home now?" he asked. "You haven't even seen half of it."

"I led her through the vast house, snapping on lights and showing her one perfect room after another. There were flowers everywhere cut from the gardens and hot-houses of the estate. Everywhere there was evidence of luxury and taste.

Last of all Steven showed her the suite that was to be her own, a pale pink bedroom, a golden living room, a tiny dressing room that was all mirrors and a bath with a sunken tub. Her traveling case had been unpacked and put away as though she were to spend weeks here instead of one night. On the dressing table lay her familiar brushes. Lying across the bed were the pale peach pajamas and a negligee, overlapping the silver mules on the floor.

"I'm sorry you'll have to do without a maid," Steven told her. "Do you realize, Steven, that I've never had a maid in my life?" He had seated himself in her golden living room. She knew he meant that she should sit beside him, but she was too restless to do anything except stand. She moved about nervously in a state of excitement which she tried to conceal.

Steven knew that she was not at ease and asked if he should leave her for awhile. She understood that he thought she was near tears from homesickness and the strangeness of it all.

"No, don't go away," she told him. "Let's go some where and dance and dance and dance!" She saw that he was disappointed but she could not help it. It was only 11 o'clock. She was remembering that at Dreamland she had often danced until nearly dawn.

Steven suggested a popular supper club. "I'm sorry about the Country Club," he said apologetically. "You'd like it much better there, but I'm afraid we'd see people I know and we must wait until later. Anyhow, you want to dance and dance and dance."

"I do," she said again. Ellen was disappointed with the supper club. Steven had wanted a private room. She yielded to him, although she really wished to be with the gay and rowdy crowd outside.

Presently the manager brought champagne in a bucket of cracked ice. Ellen had never tasted it before and Steven watched amusedly as she lifted the pale, amber liquid to her lips. He made a wry face at his first sip and left the remainder of the glass unfinished. But Ellen thought the champagne delicious.

Her troubles began to lose substance and she became really gay. Steven was so accustomed to women who were practiced drinkers that he thought her rapturous spontaneous and was glad they had come to dance.

After a while when he was called away to the telephone Ellen poured a great deal of champagne for herself and drank it. She knew she was attempting to escape reality and that she must keep that knowledge from Steven. But the important thing was to escape! When he returned, a worried frown between his eyes, and told her that Symes had called the house again it did not seem important or even interesting.

She hardly remembered the hours as they passed. She hardly realized they were leaving and that Steven, deep circles of fatigue beneath his eyes, was adjusting her silver cape about her shoulders, paying a check and leading her through a brightly lighted room filled with noisy people.

Out in the cold night air her head cleared instantly. Her fears were back. Silently she got into the car and was silent as they drove away.

"All right, Ellen?" Steven asked. She thrust cold hands into her cuffs so that he should not claim them. "I'm all right," she said, adding in a ashamed voice, "I took some of the champagne when you were out of the room."

He laughed and called her an audacious child. They were back at the house again, stealing like conspirators into the great, dark living room and up the stairs. He was whispering to her in the darkness, intimately, tenderly.

How to Escape FLU and Grippe

- 1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; over-crowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.
2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.
3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.
4 Try, particularly, to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin; remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. And if you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this relieves the soreness, and it usually reduces the inflammation.
5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

The Age of Selection is here

Our times are marked by one vast advantage over all past history—freedom of choice for the average person.

A young man now has a hundred interesting careers to consider. His grandfather had ten. Many paths are open to the scientist, writer, teacher, athlete, business man. When we travel, we often choose between rail and bus and car and plane. Every last thing we buy is one of many offered.

This is the Age of Selection. For advertising keeps us informed. Tells us the special benefits of this, the new features of that. Shows us how to build houses and how to make muffins. Explains why and where and when and how much.

As we read we learn how to discriminate, to recognize worth, to be sure of value received. Before we buy a car or a refrigerator or a can of beans, we know what it is and what it offers. Advertising teaches us how to live by this year's rules.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They bring you up to date in this Age of Selection.

IMPORTANT

When you asking for a product by name, as a result of advertising, do not accept a substitute—substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

PARIS STYLES
By MARY KNIGHT,
United Press Staff Correspondent.
PARIS.—This is for you people of five feet two, whether your eyes are of blue, black, brown, grey, green—or pink. And whatever you think about the disadvantages of being small, 1932 is your big inning and the beginning of good times in your wardrobe.
Listen to what one of the most famous shoe designers here says: "The woman with a very small foot is very fortunate and we try to even enhance further its enviable appearance by giving a shoe with a delicate high heel (a bit higher than for the average or taller woman) and a slightly rounded toe. A small foot does not want too many straps to cut it up and spoil the perfection of the line."
"For the small woman who is always seeking to add to her height, we have bouclier slippers with high fronts, some of wired lace and some of plaited crepe finished with a silver bow." And since I am telling this story and reporting the facts as I saw and heard them, I cannot refrain from adding that I, being one of the subjects mentioned in the first two lines of this story—five feet two and a quarter with eyes of green—tried these things on to prove that their virtues were all true.

NEXT BIG OIL BOOM EXPECTED IN WEST TEXAS

By United Press.
FORT WORTH.—The next big oil boom in the United States will be in West Texas, Oil experts predict, which will culminate in that area becoming the center of American petroleum production.
Vast deposits, experts believe, are hidden beneath the earth's surface in this immense territory, covering an area equal in size to North Dakota and larger than Oklahoma, the nation's third ranking crude oil producer.
Within this area, comprising some 70,000 square miles, 19 counties are producing oil, some in large quantities, as the Yates pool with a daily potential capacity of 4,000,000 barrels. At least seven other counties are actively engaged in drilling.
Considering only the most active part of the region, the northeast portion, it is 45 times the area of Rhode Island. Oil financiers, producers and geologists hold high hopes for West Texas.
They cite five principal reasons: several fields in the area have been proved; scattered "wildcat" tests have shown oil in paying quantities; other areas are calculated to deplete their supplies; the area is the largest known oil zone in the United States the cost of drilling compares favorably with other areas—East Texas, Oklahoma and California.
Despite these favorable factors, West Texas must wait. Its heyday is several years ahead, oil leaders say. With the curtailed market demand and the depressed price of crude oil there is no need to hurry development.

Astronomers Will Watch Four Eclipses

By United Press.
PASADENA, Calif.—Four eclipses of the sun and moon will be watched this year by astronomers from the Mt. Wilson observatory of the Carnegie Institution here.
The first, a near-total eclipse of the moon, will be visible through the western United States and the Pacific ocean on the morning of March 22. It will reach 97 per cent totality at 4:32 a. m., beginning at 1:58 a. m. and ending at 7:05 a. m.
A partial eclipse of the sun, visible in Australia and the southern Pacific ocean occurred March 7.
A total eclipse of the sun, visible in the new England states, but reaching its greatest degree of totality near Montreal, Canada, is scheduled for Aug. 31. A moon eclipse, which will not be visible to the United States, will follow on Sept. 14.

Oldest Pike's Peaker Is Dead

By United Press.
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Mrs. Anna Faulkner, who was probably the oldest living resident of the Pike's Peak region, having lived in this vicinity 71 years, is dead.

When she was 24 years old, her parents came to this region and settled in 1861.
She was 15 when she and her mother were the first white women to live at the site of what later was Cripple Creek. They lived over a fabulous fortune in gold and did not know it.
It was her family that named the crooked little stream that flowed there Cripple Creek.
Then it had been called Pisgah Park, because it stood in the shadow of massive Mount Pisgah. They called it that because stock which they put out to graze in the region suffered a long series of accidents from falling into the creek, and because of a queer series of accidents to members of the family.
That was in 1866. The hired man broke a log there when his Indian pony reared and threw him. Her father shot himself in the hand accidentally, and a brother injured himself when he fell from the roof of the house they built.
Her husband opened and operated the first livery stable in Cripple Creek when gold was found.
