GRIPINGS

By GUS This column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper.

Well, bless my soul... by a peculiar coincidence this column boasts yesterday about the great number of presidents and secretaries in the county, and then Saturday the writer hereof goes out to the market meets nearly all of the fiddlers in a group and they treated me mighty nice, I'll tell you.

'Twas at the all-day session of the County Federation of Women's Clubs held here in Eastland and they invited me out to the luncheon at which the Eastland Better Homes committee was hostess.

Ge, I wish I could remember all those folks' names. Mrs. W. K. Jackson engineered me around but I was in a way embarrassed and couldn't quite catch the names of many people... there were about 50 ladies there.

J. C. Patterson escorted me up there. Incidentally he made a speech. Or rather he announced something about the community short course in Eastland Feb. 1 and 2. Ge, it must be great to be a farm demonstrator or something and get to go to all the free feeds in the county.

Then I came up town and ran into Boyce House. The talk he is out here trying to get a lineup on the political situation for his paper. He didn't ask me to vote for anybody for governor. He's the kind of a fellow you can't talk about too much because he's got too many friends to take up for him.

Whilst there Joe Jones came in and wiped the sweat from his brow and said he had just finished his argument before the jury in which a man was favorably prosecuted for shooting the bull. The jury reported in about five minutes that the bull shooting was not to be tolerated in these parts without attendant punishment and that the defendant must pay $10 and costs for the offense.

I think Joe was disappointed at getting a conviction in the case because he plans to make a vigorous campaign this summer in trying to outshoot Tom Blanton.

A Cloudburst Isn't Really That at All—It's Caused by Up-rushing Warm Currents of Air and Falls When Current Ceases.

A standard dictionary defines a cloudburst as "a sudden copious rainfall, as if the whole cloud had been precipitated at one time."

The rainfall attending a tornado is doubtless sometimes of cloudburst intensity, but the majority of cloudbursts are now believed to be the product of thunderstorms.

FIRE AGGRAVATES UNEMPLOYMENT AND DEPRESSION.

Speaking over the radio recently, Governor Ritchie of Maryland emphasized the necessity of making it possible for men, women and children to enjoy the privileges of American living. He pointed to well-equipped factories and stores standing idle or operating on reduced force, and to willing workers unable to find employment. "Under present conditions, unnecessary and costly waste should be reduced to a minimum," he said, referring particularly to the economic waste from preventable fires.

He called attention to the fact that our one-half billion dollar yearly fire loss is equal to the assets of the recently organized National Credit Institution formed to aid banks in restoring public confidence. He said that this figure also represents two and a half times the cost of the Panama Canal and was emphatic in pointing out that the loss from preventable fires is a significant factor in our economic situation, since there is no salvage in the national ash heap. He referred also to the appalling loss of human life resulting from fire.

He developed a point which is usually overlooked in considering fire losses: that a decreased store of raw materials actually means less potential prosperity and that although insurance usually covers the cost of reconstruction, business activities often become temporarily demoralized and industries lose customers and profits. A reduction in the number of preventable fires will aid in assuring more continuous employment to workers now engaged, since there is almost certain to be a loss of employment during the reconstruction period after an industrial fire.

Governor Ritchie dwelt upon the principal causes of fire: defective chimneys, accumulations of combustible waste materials, defects in electric, gas and oil installations, and exposure to fire on adjacent property, indicating that it is also important to maintain property so as to avoid fire hazards and to build to resist fire.

A NEW LIFE PROMISED FOR THE NATION.

Now the $2,000,000,000 government financial relief measure is moving forward with the promise by congressional leaders that it will be enacted without delay and the pledge "that it would give new life to the nation and deflation." This is an administration measure, not only recommended but urged by the president, and is said to be certain of enactment. An amendment is pending to the bill to extend its government arm of help to depositors of closed banks. Sen. Walcott of Connecticut gave assurances that $2,000,000,000 would be available to closed banks which are solvent, but he joins Secretary Mellon in the view that separate provision must be made for relief of depositors of closed institutions. It is well to administer to the relief of a patient who is ill before he passes out of existence.

PLANNING A FIGHT ON GAS RACKETEERS.

Forty of the leading oil men of America held a session in the city of Chicago to invent a plan of combating the growing evasion of state gasoline taxes. They will submit their plan of procedure to the directors of the American Petroleum Institute in Chicago Jan. 18. One plan under consideration is for the organization of six regional committees to work with local officers in efforts to collect gas taxes from bootleg and fly-by-night concerns. It is said by the investigators that the racketeers by tax evasion pile up profits of more than $50,000,000 a year. Why not turn the prohibition enforcement agents loose on these racketeers who are said to be building up an amazing industry of tax evasion and commercial piracy?

STERLING AND THE MARTIAL LAW PROBLEM.

A newspaper correspondent quotes Governor Sterling as having said that should the martial law test case tried before three federal judges be adverse to the state an appeal will be taken to the supreme court of the United States. Incidentally, he said, "the governor paid high compliment to former Governor Dan Moody who made the principal argument in support of martial law regularity and validity." It is said that appeal to the highest court in the land requires much time for a decision and martial law would continue in East Texas during the appeal (if the governor knows where to find its hat), which might take it up to or beyond the time the troops could be safely withdrawn from the East Texas oil fields. It is a long journey to the big courthouse on the banks of the Potomac river.

THE SLOTHFUL SERVANT.

The president of a prominent life insurance company points out that those who are hoarding their money as a means of overcoming the depression would do well to turn to the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthews and read the parable of the talents. In that parable the Master relates how a certain man lent talents to each of three servants. Two of the servants put their talents to work but the third, when questioned about his stewardship, replied "I was afraid and hid Thy talent in the earth: Lo, there Thou hast what is Thine." When the Master learned that his money had been idle he was indignant and condemned the slothful man.

There are multitudes of people all over the United States who are afraid to put their money to work. Many millions of dollars have been withdrawn from circulation, tucked down into the toes of socks and stockings or buried away from all usefulness. Those millions represent a diminishing stream of circulation. Prosperity is based upon circulation and those who have money are doing not only the nation but themselves and their personal interests a grave wrong by failing to invest it in stable enterprises through which jobless men and women can be given employment and enabled to add to the buying power of the country rather than being dependent upon the bounty of charity.

Growing Pains!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASH. Service Writer
WASHINGTON—This political season already is so marked with internal disagreement in the Republican and Democratic parties that you wonder what kind of a show we will be seeing after Congress and the presidential nomination campaigns really get going.

EVERYBODY is in wrong with some group of his teammates. Hoover especially, but not merely with the progressives. Vice President Curtis because he took so long to decide whether a renomination was worth having this year. National Chairman Simmons. Feas has the wits on his neck and nobody wants him to remain very long. Even Senate Floor Leader Jim Watson having demanded his departure in favor of Postmaster General Brown. Executive Director Robert H. Lucas gives many Republicans a pain when they think of him because of his various errors of real estate.

Such regular Republicans as Senators Smoot, Reed, Feas, Watson and Bingham and Congressman Hawley and Buchanan have ideas on taxation which seem to range all the way from the theories of Senator Brookhart of Iowa to those of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. The regulars also disagree on unemployment relief, prohibition, navy and other issues important to the administration.

Indians Take Up Drug Habit

By United Press.
RENO, Nev.—Officials charged with administration of Indian affairs in this state have a new problem on their hands, for their charges, who used to go berserk on "firewater," now are narcotic addicts.
Relegated to a necessarily minor part in the commercial life of the new west, the Indian has been forced down the social scale until his course has crossed that of narcotic peddlers, officers say.
Most of the Indians living near here are of the Washoe and Pygote tribes. Stolid, short of stature, they may be seen on infrequent trips to the city, a little bewildered by the noise and bustle, sitting on the curbstones and street corners.

Two Ohio Colleges Show Big Growth

By United Press.
CINCINNATI, O.—Enrollment figures of 444 American institutions, compiled by Dean Raymond Walters of Swarthmore college, revealed that of the "fast-growing" large universities in the United States, two were Ohio institutions.
Dean Walters' survey, completed as of Nov. 1, showed that in the last decade the University of Cincinnati, Western Reserve university of Cleveland, and the University of Minnesota had surpassed all other major universities in growth.
In grand total enrollment, Western Reserve has increased slightly more than 200 per cent in the 10 year period. Minnesota 185 per cent, and Cincinnati nearly 150 per cent.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES
We never have any luck. Yesterday Mrs. G. A. Murphy was up at our house to play bridge with a bunch of ladies and out she went the whole afternoon hoping it would rain so hard she would get stuck on our street, which we have dubbed Mud avenue, and have to send for the chief to pull her out. Then we would have gotten something done about the street.

It did get a little cloudy, and even that made the street so slick she nearly skidded her car into the ditch. The weather was just what the weather man calls partly cloudy but if a real road blowup she might have been forced to call for assistance.

Some day we are going to get our wife to pick the rainiest day she can and invite Mrs. Chief up for the afternoon. And you can bet if she travels over Mud avenue on a day like Saturday, George will get busy on the street pretty pronto.

Our personal nomination for captain of the Ranger municipal track team—if one is ever formed—is Roy Gilbreath. We had no idea Roy was a long distance runner until some Mexican boys swiped five shirts out of his store Friday afternoon. He took after the culprits, ran them down alleys, past the back of the postoffice, down to Commerce street and out the highway as far as the Prairie crossing. We don't know the distance, but would estimate it, over the course he took, at about a mile. And he was apparently going strong when the boys were finally captured.

The chase developed into one of those old-time moving picture comedies where everybody in town joins in the chase before it is over. R. S. Lemma grabbed a young cannon and joined in the chase, firing one shot over the heads of the boys, but that only added speed to their flight and forced Gilbreath to take on a little more speed.

Admits Slaying Kidnaped Girl

Charles Bischoff, 45, who has been held in jail in Cincinnati since Dec. 22, confessed the murder of 6-year-old Marian McLean after days of questioning. Bischoff signed a detailed statement of his actions during the five days which followed little Marian's kidnaping Dec. 17.

STIMSON TELLS COMMITTEE OF COLOMBIA LOAN

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Secretary of State Stimson was called before the senate finance committee to explain the refusal of his department to produce correspondence relating to Colombian loans and a coincident reinstatement of the Harco oil concession.
The concession in Colombia, said to be worth two billion dollars, is now supposedly controlled by the Gulf Oil company and the Carb Syndicate. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and associates are understood to control the Gulf Oil company and J. P. Morgan & Co. the Carb Syndicate.

Four Are Killed In Grade Crash

By United Press.
ADDISON, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Four persons including three members of one family, were killed when a large sedan carrying 12 persons home from a party crashed into a railroad train at a crossing here today.
Six others were injured, four seriously.
The dead were Arthur Woodbeck, 30; Floyd, 3, and Ethel, 4, two of Woodbeck's five children, and Harold Sanford, 27.

Nature Proves Banks Safest For Savings

By United Press.
HOQUIAM, Wash.—Even if they do occasionally fail, banks may be the safest place for money. At least one Hoquiam resident is certain of the fact. He recently withdrew $15,000 from a banking institution and hid the money in a box under the floor of his house.
Recently, during an excessive high tide, the man suddenly thought of his money. He peered under the floor to see $50 and $100 bills floating about. After considerable diving and crawling under the house he recovered the majority of the cash. Pinned to a large cardboard he placed the bills behind a stove. Many of them became scorched, almost to a crisp.
He has a brand new bankbook now with most of the $15,000 to his credit.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.
United States Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, says: "That habits make us what we are. Habit cause us to arise at a certain time in the morning, eat a certain kind of breakfast, return at certain hours in the evening and eat certain food."
Habits, while we are young, influence our activities through life and most of all, influence our method of thinking. The greatest benefit of an education is not the information which children secure in school, but the training of the mind in the solution of problems of different kinds. The boy or girl who from a night habit of studying acting in a taking will find them invaluable later years.

The return of the world baseball championship to the National league after four years of American league rule...

The St. Louis Cardinals, last National league club to win the world title in 1926, wrested the championship from the Philadelphia Athletics in a Tony-typy seven-game series...

Cardinals Triumphed. The Cardinals, champions of the National league for the fourth time in six years, triumphed over the Athletics, three-time American league pennant winners, four games to three.

"Wild Bill" Hallahan and Burleigh Grimes, Cardinals' pitching ace each of whom won two games and lost none, shared world series laurels with Pepper Martin.

The total receipts for the seven games were $1,050,723, the first million-dollar world series since the 1926 meeting between the Cardinals and the Yankees.

The pitching of Hallahan, who won the second game, 2-0, and the fifth game, 5-1, and Grimes, who won the third game, 5-2, and the seventh and deciding game, 4-2, and Martin's spectacular play proved superior to the pitching of the A's two stars, Grove and Earnshaw, and Connie Mack's strategy.

Despite the depression the two major leagues had moderately successful seasons. The National league attendance was off only 15 per cent from 1930 when it was 19,000,000.

President John Heydler attributed the decline in attendance in the National league primarily to the fact that the Cardinals made a runaway race of it. Except for three days the Cardinals were in first place in the league throughout the season.

The altered baseball put new life in base-stealing and Ben Chapman, New York Yankees' youngster, stole 61 bases, scored 120 runs and drove in 120, a record unequalled in 15 years.

JOBLESS AID IS UP TO INDUSTRY, SAYS RITCHIE

FOUR RITCHIE-GRAMS GOVERNOR ALBERT C. RITCHIE

"If we didn't have unemployment, we would not have Socialism, Communism, Hitlerism and the like."

"If business and industry do not accept this government government will."

Editor's Note: In his speech at the Jackson Day banquet at Baltimore, in which he announced his willingness to become a candidate for the presidency, Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland declared that the obligation of unemployment rests upon industry itself.

By ROBERT TALLEY, NEA Service Writer. (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.) BALTIMORE, Md.—The problem of America's 8,000,000 jobless rests squarely on the shoulders of business and industry.

Business and industry should make provision for caring for their employees in times of depression. If they do not accept this responsibility, congress or the state legislatures may be forced by public demand to enact some sort of governmental unemployment insurance plan which would be as burdensome on taxpayers as the dole system that now weighs upon England.

These are the views of Governor Albert C. Ritchie, first major presidential candidate to announce for that office. They were expressed by Maryland's democratic chief executive, four times elected to that office, in an exclusive interview here.

"These are preventive days," Governor Ritchie began. "There is prevention of illness by health measures, prevention of accidents by safety measures and many other forms of prevention. "Maybe we can't prevent unemployment, but we can do something to alleviate it when it comes. "We do have periods of recurring unemployment, Mr. Hoover says we have passed through 15 major depressions in the past century. If we didn't have unemployment we wouldn't have Socialism, Communism, Hitlerism and the like."

"We Must Look Ahead. "I think we should look ahead with reference to a man's job in the same way that we look ahead to other things. "The best method that I know of is to set aside some kind of insurance reserve when times are good so when forced unemployment comes we will have that to draw on."

MARYLAND HAS TWO SEEKING PRESIDENCY Thus far only two persons openly announced their willingness to become presidential candidates in 1932, and both of them are Marylanders.

The first was ex-Senator Joseph P. Kamp, who months ago announced an apparently forlorn candidacy, presumably for the purpose of getting public attention for causes he espouses.

The second is Governor Ritchie, four times elected to that office, who is expected to be a leading contender for the democratic nomination.

"There are two ways this can be done: The federal or state government can raise or contribute to such a fund. "Industry can raise such a fund, with labor contributing its share. "Various European countries

Ancient Main Building of U. T. Will Be Razed

By United Press.
AUSTIN, Jan. 16.—Ivied walls of the north wing of the venerable main building of the University of Texas soon will crumble under hammer blows for the sake of a new library.

The wing will be razed to make room for a $1,000,000 library building, bids on which will be opened by university regents here on Jan. 29.

The main building itself, which in 1883 harbored the beginnings of a great university, will remain a pledge to the past. Regents contemplate its use until it "falls down or burns down," President Y. Benedict declared.

Fifteen years ago the north wing was condemned as unsafe. The "English Channel," a hallway flanked by offices of professors of English, has shifted to the new Wagner hall. The reserve library also has been removed from its danger of a roof collapse.

But buildings plans of 1932 will not disturb memories of 1883, when Texas patriots laid the cornerstone of their plans for a "university of the first class." The main building, whose tower is older than the dome of the state capitol a few blocks away, was the only sentinel on College Hill for many years.

The ivy which mantles its walls as brought by Dr. Leslie Wagner at Pecos, Texas, immortalized by the poet Thomas Gray. Its rich entrance sheltered a student demonstration in 1897 which made March 2, Texas Independence Day, a state holiday.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE BY KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

Ann and Cecily Fenwick have for years supported themselves, their younger sister, Mary-Frances, and their grandparents, known as "The Grand." Because of this financial responsibility, Ann, 28, is unable to marry Phil Ercroft, young lawyer to whom she has been engaged for 8 years. Cecily, 22, loves Barry McKeel, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name their wedding date for the same reason.

Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl DeArmount, vaudeville actor, and meets him secretly. He tries to persuade her to become his stage partner.

Ann and Phil quarrel when she has to leave for the evening at Phil's office building, address him with endearments.

DeArmount continues to urge Mary-Frances to join his act and she promises to give him her answer next evening. Cecily is disturbed when she learns Barry has left town without telling her about it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIV
"Hypocrite!" said Cecily. "I don't see how you bear it, angel. Truly I don't. If they start acting toward me, now that Barry and I—Well, if they act about us as they act about you and Phil, I will not stand it."

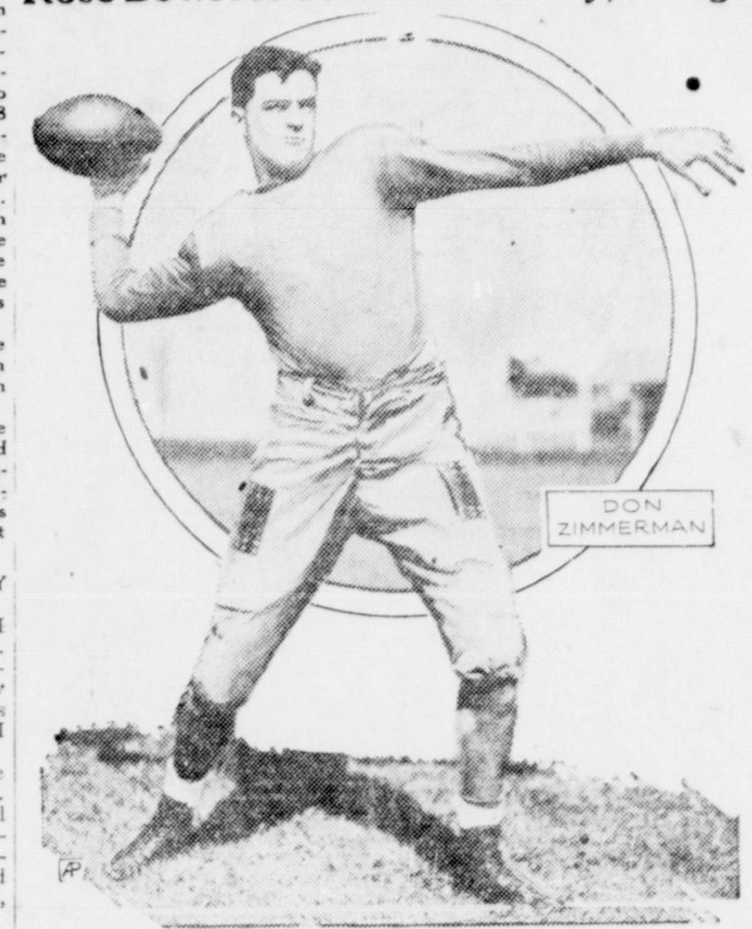

"Yes, you will see through them, can you? I can read them like a primer. They are so glad and so relieved—away down deep, I mean, they don't know that they are, of course—that they have to cover quickly, and petulance is always at hand and easy. All that I can't understand is about Mrs. Carmichael's sister and her husband being so happy and well off—I suppose you didn't get that, either?"

"No, I didn't. Do you think they were just pretending to think that the old people's home was pleasant?"

"Honestly, as Marta would say. No they weren't pretending that the Days—is that their name?—were well off, nor that the home was pleasant. They were thinking so with all their mights and mains, so that they couldn't possibly be glad that Phil and I were no longer engaged, and that we both were working for them, and that there was no danger of their ever having to live in such a place."

"It is all very well for us to be sentimental and say they don't know that we are keeping them, and keeping this ding-dang old house for them to live in. They do know it, they'd have to. But knowing and recognizing or admitting are different things. We are as bad as they are. We don't admit that they know—because we don't want to be sorry for them or ashamed of them. Grand has been disagreeable and ugly about Barry from the very first. The only excuse in the world he could give for trying to make trouble was because we weren't engaged. He'd have had a better excuse, and made more fuss if we had been engaged the minute we met. No—they are afraid. They are scared to death."

and Mary-Frances—"and years you and Phil have been engaged."

"You're evading. You know what I mean. Phil has waited for you, all these years, because you are the most beautiful thing in the world. Barry wouldn't wait for me like that. I shouldn't allow him to—maybe. And even Phil got tired. Not tired of you, angel—but tired of waiting and hoping. He doesn't care for that common little King thing—he couldn't, after you. But, well—men are men."

"So I have heard," said Ann. "Women are women, too. That is repetition. That's not reasoning. At best, it is a cute little convention men evolved to use in place of decency and loyalty—ages ago. They've needed it. We haven't. But there is this, Cissy, honey. I wasn't going to say it to you right now, because I thought it might make you more unhappy, in a way. But now I think I'll say it anyhow. I've been thinking the last few days, and if Barry comes back, as I know he will, and begs you to marry him, I want you to do it—soon. I really want you to, dear. I want to know that you're happy, and I want to insist that you do."

"Big chance! Let you down and leave you with all this burden. I couldn't and wouldn't, and you know it—or you should. You have not let me down, all these years."

"Oh, poor dears."

"Stop it, Ann. You make me sick. They can be blissful enough now."

"Just the same, whether you like it or not, Cissy, we do owe them a lot."

were. I wouldn't play with him. He is 22 years old, and he's found the game of love and thinks it is fine fun, and I'm an interesting opponent."

"Or partner?"

"He is 22 years old, I said. And young for his age. In many ways he seems younger than Mary-Frances."

"Twenty-two isn't an infant in arms—even for a man. And especially not with all that money. Just think of the money that kid has. Barry said someone told him that old Mr. Smith left nearly two million dollars—half of it Kenneth's when he came of age, and all of it his sooner or later. Think of it, Ann!"

Ann said, not altogether humorously, "What shall I do, Cissy? Marry him, or ask him to endow our family?"

"Angel—you could marry him if you wished to?"

"Yes, I think so; if I'd hurry about it and kidnap him before he comes out from under the anesthetic."

"My word, Ann! Don't go off like that. I was only thinking that, after all, not many girls in our class ever even have a ghost of an opportunity to marry two million dollars."

"Our class is better than his class. His father made most of his money in junk—just plain junk, during the war and right after. 'Smith and Rozenblat,' so I think it probably wasn't even the Smith brains that made it. Kenny is a nice, sweet child; but I don't feel particularly set up because of his attentions."

"Isn't it queer," Cecily mused, letting Ann's remarks pass, "that when the King girl had her fingers on all that she didn't hold tight—clutch?"

"Not so very," said Ann with a trace of chilliness. "Kenny's and her friendship was a next-door-neighbor affair—since childhood. She dances extraordinarily well, and dresses well, and is good fun—he says. He liked to play with her, sometimes; but he never dreamed of marrying her, and she knew it. I imagine she is tired of working and wishes to marry. And then Phil is so handsome, and poor Kenny is so homely."

"I don't think he's homely," Cecily said.

"Uh! Big freckles, and crowded teeth that leap out at you from above, and almost no chin. I'd as soon kiss a quince."

"Have you kissed him?"

"Not that it is any of your affair, but I haven't—and I won't. See here, Cissy, if you're so mad about him, and his money, and his looks, and his family—why don't you take him? I'll trade him for your new green satin mules that Barry gave you. I'll trade him and give you something to boot for—"

"Sh-h-h!" warned Cecily. "But it was merely Mary-Frances. She had come directly to the kitchen from her tryst with Earl in the moonlight. Her face was searaphical. She said, 'I'm starved. What is there to eat?'"

Play is Progressing Nicely.
Work on "A Wild Flower of the Hills," a play which is to be presented early in February at the university auditorium, is progressing nicely.

The cast is working hard on this play and it promises to give some good entertainment.

The play concerns the life of Chloe, a 16-year-old mountain orphan, who is lonely as the little fir tree, but with a proud and tender heart. She is a much abused child and her actions are alternating between hate and love. This part is played by Nina Smith, a well known Eastland high school graduate of '30.

The part of John is played by Aubrey Forrest of Big Spring, Texas. He is a member of the junior class of W. M. U. He is a happy, dashing, young aviator who becomes serious-minded through affliction. John is the source of Chloe's hope, but in the end—Come and see!

Humor is added to the play through the actions of the "Gardies." J. W. Greathouse, also an Eastland high school graduate of '30, plays the part of Mose, a "good-for-nothin'" nigger. These who have seen him play know his ability for playing this part.

The play promises good entertainment. Watch for further announcement concerning actors, plot, and time.

Stags Play Eastland All-Stars
Last Thursday evening the Stags played the Eastland All-Stars and went down to defeat. The All-Stars had a very good team and the Stags played well, but were unable to score as many times as the All-Stars. Kardatzke and Foster tied for high point honors. This game was played at high school. On Friday evening the Stags again met defeat at the hands of the All-Stars. This game was on the Warner floor. Our boys put up a good fight but again they had to walk off the floor with the short end of the score.

On Tuesday, Jan. 12, the Stags went to Mineral Wells to play the high school there. A good game noon. Mrs. Ed Graham led a very interesting devotional session. Reports were given by several committee chairmen. The second chapter of the "Pupil" was discussed by Mrs. A. F. Taylor.

Sandwiches, fruit cake with whipped cream and coffee were served to Mmes. Herman Hague, Fred Davenport, A. F. Taylor, W. P. Leslie, Ed Graham, T. J. Killough, E. H. Jones, and hostess, Mrs. Walter Gray.

ST. FRANCIS XAVIER CHURCH
Mass at 10 a. m. This is the second Sunday after the Epiphany and the gospel read today is from St. John II.1-11. This gospel relates the first miracle performed by Christ, namely changing water into wine at the marriage feast in Cana of Galilee. It is the first and only account that we have of Christ's presence at a marriage. Up to the time of the establishment of Christianity marriage was only a contract as it is today by many people; but for baptized Christians marriage is considered a sacrament. It is so considered in the Catholic Church based on the teachings of the Bible found in St.

Paul's writings to the Ephes. V. 23-32, St. Mark x.2-9. "What therefore, Good hath joined together, let no man put asunder." The tradition and practice of the church in all ages confirm this view. There is no divorce allowed in the Catholic Church in case of a valid consummated marriage; but for valid reasons a separation may be allowed but no remarriage as long as both parties are living. Sometimes, what looks like a divorce is allowed in the church and this can only happen in the case of a marriage that was invalid from the beginning, as in the Marconi (wireless inventor) and O'Brien his first wife; also the Duke of Marlborough and Vander-belt both of whom were and are non-Catholics and of their own free will took their case to the Papal court. The end of marriage is the procreation of the human race and any attempt to frustrate that end by any pact or agreement renders such a marriage invalid from the beginning or in other words such a marriage is no marriage at all. "What God has joined together, let no man put asunder." —Rev. M. Collins.
