Texas Liquor Bill Offered In Legislature Saturday

WOULD PERMIT LOCAL OPTION SALE OF BEER

Political Subdivisions To Be Allowed To Vote On Its Sale.

CALLS ELECTION

Would Prohibit Drinking On Premises Where Sold To Customers.

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Jan. 14.—A joint resolution for submission of a state constitutional amendment to permit liquor sales in a way that will not violate the federal constitution was offered in the Texas house of representatives today by Weaver Moore of Houston.

The proposal is to amend the present state constitutional prohibition against beverages of more than 1 per cent alcoholic content to allow alcoholic content of an amount permitted by the federal constitution as it now is, or as it may be changed.

The proposed places regulation of the liquor traffic in the hands of the state legislature.

A second clause prohibits sale for consumption on the premises where sold, but permits the legislature to authorize sales in restaurants and dining cars.

A third clause provides for local option in any political subdivision within that city, county, precinct or district. A majority vote is to decide such a election.

It is proposed the election on the amendment shall be held July 29, 1933.

Without discussion the resolution was referred to the committee on constitutional amendments, yet to be appointed.

New Oil Field Offers Men Work

By United Press.

CUT BANK, Mont.—More than 1,000 men and $2,000,000 will be thrust into the Cut Bank oil field during 1933, when it is expected that at least 100 new wells will be drilled and completed in the area, according to A. J. Hazlett, dean of Rocky Mountain oil news editors.

This employment and investment will be connected entirely with drilling operations. Hazlett said, with an estimated $1,000,000 to be spent in addition on other connected operations.

Discovery of high grade oil in buying quantities was made late this fall in the Cut Bank area, 34 years after a government geologist had declared there were large quantities of oil and gas in the region. The first well in the district was drilled in 1904, encountering a depth of 1,500 feet, but the property was not exploited because of the smallness of the oil deposit found.

Blackfeet Indians of the area, whose reservation adjoins the proven Cut Bank area, anticipate great financial returns from oil drilling on their land, and already have received some $40,000 in oil lease and rental payments.

Players Carry On During Earthquake

By United Press.

FRESNO, Cal.—It is traditional that "the show must go on," regardless.

Duck Flies Through Motorist's Windshield

By United Press.

SAN JOSE, Calif.—A. B. Coleman is no duck hunter but he brought home a six-pound bird.

Coleman was out riding with his family when a large duck suddenly flew in front of the car, crashed through the windshield, broke Coleman's father-in-law's glasses and landed in the rear seat.

It was a nice duck, said Coleman, but he doesn't want another of the cost of this one.

Heiress to Wed

Hail of Lead Threatened U. S. Buffalo Herds

By United Press.

BILLINGS, Mont.—A quarter of a million dollars, paid during five months of the winter of 1881-1882, bought near extinction of the great buffalo herds of Montana, according to newspaper articles of the time.

The winter was an especially severe one, with deep snows coming early in November and sub-zero temperatures prevailing most of the time. The buffalo consequently turned southward in their wanderings, only to be met by an army of hunters.

Attention had been called to the profit that might be made from sale of the buffalo hides for robes and leather during the occupancy of eastern Montana and northern Wyoming by General Custer's troops and those of other generals in the Little Big Horn campaign.

Hundreds of the animals were killed to furnish temporary subsistence to the troops.

Eastern markets paid from $3 to $7 for the hides, depending on their value for leather or in robbing-making.

Hunters established a chain of camps from Sweet Grass to Powder River along the Yellowstone river, a distance of 200 miles, and from the mouth of the Marias river to the Musselshell, almost the same distance.

The buffalo, traveling in great herds, were met by bands of white, half breed and Indian hunters, running a leaden gauntlet which drove the animals to kill so many hundreds of buffalo at stipulated prices—one such contractor killed 1,800.

In 1887 it was estimated there were but 300 buffalo in the region, including 100 in Yellowstone park. This number has been tremendously increased during the last decade through protective measures.

Boys Play Football With Dynamite

By United Press.

HAVRE, Mont.—For an entire morning a group of H-vre school boys played catch, football, and toss with a slim brown stick they had discovered. One of the boys tried vainly to hit the stick with a sling shot.

"Say, chief, what's a bomb?" they asked. A Havre home had been mysteriously bombed a few days previously. "Does it look anything like this?"

The chief examined the stick—wrapped in brown paper, with cap and fuse attached, ready for detonation. Explosion of the dynamite would have been sufficiently strong to have done great damage, Chief Peplin said.

Family Cat Proves Famed Mendel Law

By United Press.

LURAY, Va.—A family cat demonstrated the celebrated Mendel law here better than any scientist could have done in his million dollar laboratory.

Mendel's law says that any animal offspring has characteristics in direct proportion to those of their parents. The mother cat had a bob tail. Her "husband" had a long one.

The bob-tailed cat became the mother of an even dozen kittens. Half of them had short tails; half long—which the professors said was exactly right.

TO INTRODUCE HORSE RACING BILL MONDAY

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Jan. 14.—Rep. J. C. Duvall of Fort Worth will introduce a bill for legalized horse-racing in Texas in the house of representatives Monday, it was announced here today.

Possible delay may be caused if the house is forced to forego a Monday session in order to permit building a temporary platform to be used in the inauguration of Miriam A. Ferguson.

The bill, details of which have not been announced, will be a measure to produce revenue and encourage the breeding of fine stock.

Ranger Jr. College Registrations To Continue Monday

By United Press.

H. S. Von Roeder, dean of the Ranger Junior College, announced Saturday that registration would continue for the college on Monday and that any students who wish to register should do so on that day.

With the increase in registrations that have already been counted, it is expected that the enrollment for the second semester this year will double that of last year as it likes but a few of reaching that number now.

New courses are being offered in the college in second year chemistry, American government, trigonometry, American literature and salesmanship.

Courses offered by the college include biology, first and second year chemistry, European history, American history, American government, economics, trigonometry, analytical geometry, first and second year French and Spanish, English composition and rhetoric, English and American literature, elementary education, methods in intermediate and high school grades, typing, stenography, accounting and salesmanship.

The changes in schedules will also mean that an engine watchman will be put on the job in Ranger, which will add one man to the present force.

Passenger Train Schedule Change To Effect Ranger

By United Press.

Announcement was made in Ranger Saturday by B. A. Tunnell, Ranger agent for the Texas & Pacific railway, that two important changes had been made in the train schedules through Ranger.

One train, which has been running between Baird and Fort Worth will now leave Baird, arrive in Ranger, where it will remain during the lunch hour and then return to Baird the same day.

Another train will leave Fort Worth, arriving in Ranger, where it will remain overnight, returning to Fort Worth the following day.

By this change in schedule it will mean that one train and its crew will remain overnight in Ranger three nights a week.

The changes in schedules will also mean that an engine watchman will be put on the job in Ranger, which will add one man to the present force.

Indians Collecting Millions From Oil

By United Press.

PAWBUKKA, Okla.—More than $2,000,000 has been collected for Osage Indians from oil on their allotments, recent compilations revealed.

The 2,227 headrights of the tribe have drawn about $110,000 each, and the lands are far from depleted, said George Beaulieu, head of the oil and gas department of the Osage agency.

The area, already having 9,480 oil wells and 431 gas wells, was described by Beaulieu as "the coming oil field of northern Oklahoma." The original allotment was 1,147,608 acres. Some of it was reserved for townsites and railroads. All of the rest has been leased for gas purposes and 317,762 acres for oil, he said.

He predicted that the old naval reserve area would develop into one of the best fields of the Osage, which already made this Indian tribe the richest per capita nation in the world.

Farmer Holds a Dummy At Bay With a Shotgun

By United Press.

ABILENE, Texas.—Officers found only a stolid-faced dummy standing harmlessly inert when they answered a frantic night call of a farmer's wife to rout an intruder who stared while her husband held him at bay with a gun. Lights of the officers' car flashed on the immobile figure as they turned up the driveway toward the farmer's home.

"Well, I'll be darned," said the farmer, laying down his gun on the front porch, "probably the ones who put it there have robbed the smokehouse."

High Heels Get Cowboys In Trouble

By United Press.

PUEBLO, Colo.—The fact that a cowboy can't run worth a whoop, is almost axiomatic.

The reason is because of the high heeled boots which are a cowboy's pride and joy in life.

The waddie—tall, slender, and sun browned, wearing a 10-gallon hat and an old pair of boots, and overalls, walked into a local department store and asked to see some cowboy boots.

He tried on a pair that fit perfectly. Then he got up and while astonished clerks watched did a Narmi out of the store.

Reversing the former plan of having West Texas dominate the livestock sanitary board, two from East Texas were named because cattle tick eradication work now centers there. The board will be composed of Leo Callan of Bexar county, Dr. E. Jarrell of Smith county, and W. M. Glenn of Angelina county.

FINANCIAL AID FOR TEXANS

A New Year's day review of the Fort Worth branch of the regional credit corporation shows that 73 loans totaling $582,797.76 have been made to the cattlemen of Northwest Texas since September. There are two branches of the credit corporation in Texas. Fort Worth has one and San Angelo another. The San Angelo branch, at the close of business Dec. 31, had approved 368 loans for a total of $3,842,340.05 and paid out $1,136,677.63 to borrowers.

PRUNING KNIVES ARE NEEDED

Lawmakers in nation and state should sharpen their pruning knives. They should make sweeping reductions in the cost of government. They should cut salaries "to a living figure." They should cut out all waste and they should lop off all unnecessary commissions and boards as well as the tossing overboard of the iniquitous fee system and official salaries which are out of keeping with the slump in values of taxable property and the low price levels of the products of the ranch and the farm and the orchard and garden.

CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS RESUME ACTIVITIES

Now the house agricultural committee, headed by Marvin Jones of Texas, has declared for the establishment of a minimum price on four great agricultural commodities. Their bill is based on the domestic allotment principle and would include wheat, cotton, tobacco and hogs.

Now is the time when those engaged in foreign relations are obliged to walk more warily than usual and put in their statements a definiteness which is usually conspicuous by its absence.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

"Will the radio eventually supplant the newspaper as a news disseminator and advertising medium?" is a question that we frequently hear nowadays, says H. Galt Braxton, editor of the Kinston (N. C.) Daily Free Press.

"I think it is quite safe to answer in the negative. The radio certainly has a fixed place, and in many respects has revolutionized the easy and immediate facilities for communicating information.

"The radio, however, can never perform the service or supplant the local newspaper. The radio is purely a commercial institution. Take for instance in the recent national political campaign. Not one speech was made by a presidential candidate or other political campaigner for which the time was not paid for.

"The newspapers of the country, while resenting to a certain extent discrimination shown by political campaign managers in paying for radio broadcasts and expecting the papers to carry the propaganda as news, without cost, yet they unquestionably carried the vital messages of the campaign and contacted more individuals by far than the paid service of the radio.

"I believe the policy of the great newsgathering agencies in making releases to the broadcasting chains or hookups, either for the publicity obtained therefrom or for a monetary consideration, is wrong and I believe the publishers of the country are going to insist upon the practice being stopped.

"I am glad to say that publishers have, to a large extent, realized that the carrying of daily radio programs as news matter is nothing more for less than cutting their own throats, so to speak. There is no obligation on the part of the press of this country to foster, nurture or develop a competing agency."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, SEA Service Writer. WASHINGTON. — Calvin Coolidge's death accentuated the vacuum which confronts Republicans as they look for a man to run for president in 1936.

MEANWHILE, look at the field. There's Mr. Hoover, who has led his party through the worst defeat any party has had. The only president ever re-elected following a defeat was Cleveland, who had a popular plurality even when he lost. Mr. Hoover's chance for renomination seems to rest on the possibility that economic conditions will become so bad under Roosevelt as to cause millions of

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

We went peacefully along for awhile, happily content with high heels and expensive hose. And suddenly from out of somewhere sprang the boot fad; and now everybody goes clumping along, looking as awkward and bulky as possible. It isn't a local rage. It reaches Alabama, I know, and heaven only knows how far. I don't know who started the idea, but it's taken its real hold since the day of Santa Claus. We may as well blame the old fellow. . . he won't be running for office again for 11 months, so a slam now won't hurt him.

Bulgaria threw her hat in the air Friday and shouted and demanded Papa Boris III to appear and smile at her. Whereupon, the king hung over his balcony and thanked his people for their enthusiasm and affection. All of which became a tiny infant wailed in utter nonchalance that she is Bulgaria's new princess. And there you have the general condition of the world: those who really stand high in prestige go quietly about their lives, while the underling makes the uproar.

He wanted to buy old gold. Anything gold, said he, from watches to teeth. Under his left arm was a little box, and that was where he kept his purchases, I suppose. He looked like an intelligent person and I admired his choice of merchandise. The one who came last week wanted anything, and I didn't care to buy it. I said I was sorry I didn't have anything that glittered to sell him, and he went away. . . with my respect, which might have meant something had I been in an influential position. He may be listed with the famous, for he makes his public like him.

There are all sorts of ways of getting publicity from shooting the president to adopting a wife, but you have to hand it to Chicago's Anti-Superstition society for picking the crink of the season. The public falls for that sort of thing because it strikes at the very heart of ill concealed fear. Of course you don't admit you're afraid of a black cat, but you are pretty sure to burn a little extra gasoline going around the corner if the animal's trail has crossed yours. Maybe there's an unlucky soul guiding the destiny of the country, hence the depression. The democrats will feed Hoover to the whales in March. . . the question is, will Roosevelt quiet the storm?

With the house and senate struggling along with a host of impossible bills, somehow I am reminded of a steak fry. The fact that they have smok in their eyes and cinders in their hair makes the game even more fun, and if the meat is burned and sprinkled with dirt. . . that's all right, because it's only a lark, anyhow. And that's what the reading public thinks, while politicians toil and groan over the problems of the states. All of which shows a combination of ignorance and inappreciation for those who have gone before and fought the smoky air in the house and senate.

By United Press. HARDIN, Mont.—When Gets the Knife, 100-year-old Crow Indian woman died, a life that spanned the entire conquest of the west by the "pale-face" ended. Chief Max-Big-Man of the Crow tribe, a friend of the Knife for many years, wrote a tribute to the aged woman summarizing her experiences.

"She witnessed this part of the country when it was in the making," said the chief. "Money was of no use to the Indians. They claimed the land and the different animals of the plains. Gets the Knife loved all these things. Gets the Knife loved to travel, rain or shine. . . She loved the sound of the ponies' hoofs, and the tepee poles as they dragged along the ground. "When the pale faces, who are moved by money, came in their covered wagons to this country. . . the sound of their guns echoed from hill to hill, and was heard by the game of the plains. Year by year more pale faces occupied her playground. She smiled to her pale face friend in spite of her loss of what they had taken from her. "Soon the buffalo were killed off. She had to learn to eat the meat of the buffalo horse of the pale face," said the chief, apparently referring to range cowboys. "Her playground which the pale face was kind enough to set aside for her and her husband, Old Tobacco, was very small. They knew the tepee was of no use any more, and they built a pale face tepee made of timber. Survey being made of water supply in Brooks county.—Falfurrias Facts.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

In a recent article carried by a news review of Oregon, there was a story concerning the literary outlook and present bookish status of America.

In this we were told that London was once thought the literary center of the universe. Great publishing houses were there and the finest crown of an American writer was praise from English critics.

The result was that American literature lost its home brew taste and our would be fashionable magazine writers gave such an English background and "accent" to American plots, that their hybrid style of writing almost brought a blight on our literature.

But thank heaven all that has been changed. Though England is still great in her literature, it is towards America and American publishing houses, that the eyes of the literary world are now turning.

The American book publisher by actual statistics leads the world in sales promotions, and in bringing to the public, new ideas, talent and vital experiments. The American publisher is the envy of foreign publishers.

America is now putting out the greatest biographies, and most important fiction of this day, and has produced a literature all her own in which the authors' names are as familiar in the capitals of France, Austria, Russia and Bulgaria, as they are in New York, San Francisco or the southernmost point of Florida.

We may now proudly boast the life of the westerner; of the doers in the Tennessee mountains; of the adventures and exploits of the mounted police in Canada; of the involvements, intrigues, and background of the office wife, the other women, the real wife and the mother-in-law.

In the school of adventure-literature for boys and girls, we have many fine and spirited examples, with fictitious names so familiar to the reading public, both here and abroad, that merely to mention the name of a so-called detective brings a smile of recognition.

Texas has put out any number of books, biographies and histories by local writers that have won world wide acclaim. The cowboy songs of this country are now as familiar in London as in Fort Worth.

Yes, we have reached our literary mountain, and are sitting pretty on the top.

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sheila Shayne, whose parents were well known vaudeville entertainers, is in New York looking for a job. Sheila is a dancer. After much discouragement she is hired to substitute for Daisy Gleason, another dancer, who has sprained an ankle. While rehearsing at Joe Paris' song shop Sheila meets Joe Lane and Dick Stanley, rich and socially prominent. Dick urges Lane to include Sheila in the program of entertainment at a party he is giving. Sheila declines but Dick comes to the theater later and persuades her to come.

At the party she meets several celebrities, including Gordon Mandrake, well known producer. She sees Dick frequently during the next few days and he tells her Mandrake is interested in her and is going to offer her a part in a play. However, Mandrake does not do so.

Finally Daisy Gleason is able to dance again and Sheila finds herself out of a job once more.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Sheila reached home one afternoon after a fruitless round of agents offices weary, hot, yet with that unmistakable feeling that sooner or later something pleasant was going to happen. Could it be that Dick was back and had telephoned? Dick had been out of town for some time, writing Sheila a careless line now and then.

She descended into the odorous, tidy kitchen which was Ma's lair, only to find it empty. The kettle on the cold stove was dead. Curtains blew on the mild breeze full of dead heat at the window. Carefully washed milk bottles stood in an orderly row. The clock ticked importantly.

Sheila sank into a chair and fanned herself with her hat. Ma Lowell was "down the block" probably, seated in a rocker in someone's back yard, idly and innocently gossiping. Times were slack in summer among theatrical rooming house keepers.

But Ma always left a pitcher of iced tea in the refrigerator and, pouring herself a glass, Sheila lingered gratefully.

Then suddenly she spied it. A scrap of paper propped against the sugar bowl on the red checkered table. A telephone message, a nickel carefully placed in a prominent spot. Sheila might not have the change. Dear Ma! She knew that lack of a nickel could spell downright disaster!

The note said: "Sheila call Mr. Mandrake at Bryant 0025. It may be a job.—Ma."

Ma had taken messages before. Scrawled in the corner, as an after thought, Sheila found, "Must of phoned around 2:30."

It was hardly 3:30 now. If Mandrake wanted to see her that afternoon she had time to reach his office even allowing a half hour in which to freshen up. She was trembling as the nickel chimed in the pay telephone in the street floor hall. Sheila gave the Bryant number without looking at the paper in her hand. Early in the season she had memorized it.

"Mr. Mandrake's office? This is Miss Shayne calling. I have a message asking me to phone."

The telephone operator's voice sounded aloof, noncommittal. "Paine? What do you want to talk to Mr. Mandrake about?"

Sheila frowned. "This seemed a bad omen. The entire office should, she felt, have been electrified to receive her call.

"Shayne?" she repeated patiently. "Sheila Shayne. Mr. Mandrake called me an hour ago." At the moment she was aware of heart beats and telephone clicks another more decisive click sounded in the receiver. A voice.

But it was not Mandrake. It was a woman's voice, clipped and haughty. This time, asking what Sheila wanted.

"Mr. Mandrake called me at about 2:30 and asked me to call. This is Sheila Shayne speaking."

There was a silence.

"Mr. Mandrake was in conference from two until three," the voice announced as if the matter, Ruses to reach great producers are not uncommon and it is a secretary's business to keep such calls away from her employer.

"Sheila—the time may be wrong," she stammered. "But that was the message I received."

"Sorry!" This time the voice dismissed her. "Mr. Mandrake has gone for the day." The connection severed sharply. In a daze Sheila hung up the receiver.

What was the chance that had dangled before her for brief instant, she had lost it. Lost it by a few hours, while making useless rounds among useless agents!

"Well," Sheila thought, trying to laugh. "I wanted a shampoo and I can wash my hair now."

But it wasn't funny—losing the chance of a job with Mandrake. No matter how she tried, Sheila couldn't persuade herself that it was.

Fitting downstairs, she lighted the gas under the water tank, waited 15 minutes, turned it off and flitted upstairs again with an armful of towels. The next hour she devoted to splashing, rubbing and rinsing her dark hair diligently.

Outside the bathroom on the second floor was a roof. Ma allowed an occasional roomer to sit there on a chair taken from the bathroom and view the beauties of a dozen backyards while recently shampooed hair dried in the wind or hosiery fluttered from the line. Sheila belonged to the chest and she lumbered through the window. Her hair, already half-dried, curled in tight ringlets about her forehead.

The telephone rang, sharply, insistently.

There was no one else in the house—unless that young man who had just taken the parlor floor had come in. Another sharp peal sounded.

"Gee, I hate to go down there just to tell someone that Miss Bell isn't here any more!" Sheila grumbled. Miss Bell was a popular young woman who had recently departed and for whom the telephone rang constantly.

Of course it couldn't be a message for Sheila herself. Dick never called in mid-afternoon. Phil Short was away. An agent wouldn't call at such an hour.

But there was no help for it. Sheila would have to answer.

"Hello," she said indifferently. Then her face changed, brightened.

It was Mandrake himself whose voice she heard. "Miss Shayne?" the voice said. "This is Mandrake speaking. I called you this afternoon from the club. You weren't in."

"I saw you at Lane's the other night," the man went on. (He had seen her fully three months ago but that didn't matter.) "I liked those songs you sang. Clever. I wonder if we couldn't get together on a part for my new show?"

There was a pause. Mandrake seemed to be waiting for her to speak.

"I—that would be fine, Mr. Mandrake."

"You aren't signed, I take it? If you aren't I'd like to talk to you this evening. Let me see"—there was a pause—"it's five now. We both have to eat. Why not have dinner together? Suppose I send my car for you at seven?"

"I'll bring a contract along and we'll talk it over. If we can come to terms I'd like you to go into rehearsal tomorrow."

Sheila hung up the telephone in a daze. Mandrake—a job—and rehearsal tomorrow! Oh, could it all be true?

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

COFFEE cakes have a strong appeal for most people and can easily be made in the home kitchen.

If the dough is started early in the morning, the cakes will be ready for baking by lunch time or early afternoon.

If you have a rule for yeast bread using the sponge method, which uses less yeast and lets the sponge rise over night, add the sugar, baking powder and eggs after the sponge has risen until light.

Coffee Cake. Two cups compressed yeast, 1 1/2 cups milk, 3 eggs, 1 tablespoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup shortening, 4 1/2 cups bread flour.

Scald milk in double boiler and cool to lukewarm temperature. Sift yeast cakes in 1/4 cup milk which has cooled and then add to rest of milk.

Add eggs, sugar and salt and beat with a Dover beater until smooth. Add butter which has been softened but not melted. Add flour and mix until smooth.

Turn onto a floured rolling board and knead 10 or 15 minutes, adding flour to knead. Put into an oiled mixing bowl and brush with melted butter.

Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. The temperature should be kept about 80 degrees F. It will take about two hours for the dough to rise.

Knead "down" and let rise again for one hour. Now the dough is ready to shape in any of the rings or cakes wanted.

PAR'S STYLES. By MARY KNIGHT, United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS.—Madame Adolphe Eiffel de Erazuriz has a Schiaparelli evening gown that is the envy of all eyes. It is hyacinth blue Jerselsa. To go with it she has a short broder jacket of bright red crepon, trimmed with a wide band of shirred ribbon that follows the rounded cut and finishes in two flat scroll-like designs on either side.

The Countess de Beauchamps has had two cardigans made at this house, one of dark blue and the other in a bright clear green with matching sleeves. The single fastening at the waist of the cardigan is metal disc, of burnished copper to be exact, and pockets of the patch variety are placed on either side.

One of the loveliest models of this particular collection is made of velvet Jersey in an indefinite tone of beige. Tucks under the arms give it an empire line, an effect heightened by the little coat that goes with it, made of deep mahogany colored shirred velvet ribbon. Teh sleeves are formed by three rows of ribbon, and it is very short and rounded in front.

The artist presented the copy to St. John's Lodge of Masons, and dust and time obscured its value until it was examined recently. A similar portrait of Washington by King was sent to France.
