DIRTY NEWSPAPER TACTICS RECEIVE THEIR JUST DUES

Dirty newspaper tactics received their just dues when the Stephens county grand jury submitted its report to Hon. C. O. Hamlin of the 90th district court at Breckenridge on adjournment Friday, April 28.

DIRTY NEWSPAPER TACTICS RECEIVE THEIR JUST DUES

Dirty newspaper tactics received their just dues when the Stephens county grand jury submitted its report to Hon. C. O. Hamlin of the 90th district court at Breckenridge on adjournment Friday, April 28.

In its issues of April 6 and April 14 it smeared its editorial columns with scathing and libelous matter against its competitor, The Breckenridge American, a newspaper that has enjoyed the confidence and esteem of the citizens of Stephens county for many years.

Not satisfied with its attempt to bring the American into false repute, its issue of Friday, April 21, turned its venom upon outstanding and highly respected county officials of Stephens county, making personal attacks on their characters, referring to them in slimy charges of misconduct in and out of office.

No school of journalism, nor those who know the first principle of newspaper ethics, would tolerate such tactics and it is regrettable that such institutions exist in a profession that has maintained its rightful place of service down through the ages.

The Stephens county grand jury is to be commended upon its quick action in the instance, and it is hoped that the lesson will be one that all newspapers who feel that they can prey upon public sentiment through their columns to gain selfish notoriety will profit by this example and that such tactics will be eliminated.

The conduct of any newspaper should always be above selfishness and its purpose at all times should be one of constructiveness and above all should never deal in personalities to tear down, nor allow its columns to be used as such, either in competitive challenge or defense.

The following is the text in part of the Stephens county grand jury report:

"We have made a thorough investigation of the articles and statements published in a recent issue of the Stephens County News, dated April 21, 1933, concerning certain citizens and public officials of Stephens county and find that they are not founded in truth or in fact and are convinced that in many instances, said articles and statements are criminal libelous upon the officials referred to.

"We have refrained from returning any indictments against the author and circulators of the libelous statements at the request of the public officials who have been so libeled for the reason that they state that they do not care to dignify such libelous attacks by giving them recognition in a criminal prosecution of the publicity seeking author, as they feel sure that the public will readily consider the source from which said libelous statements emanated and for the further reason that the matter of prosecution can be handled at any time by any future grand jury.

"We however, as a grand jury, together, with the intelligent law abiding citizens of Stephens county, deplore the fact that a comparative stranger to our county and a citizen of no financial responsibility, whatever, should be given any encouragement in getting out a newspaper, whose principal excuse for existence and circulation seems to be based upon libelous statements against citizens of our county, for we realize that such would not be dared or attempted by one having any financial responsibility wherein they could be required to respond in money damages for such libelous statements so uncalled for, unjustified and maliciously made.

"We recommend that the matters be passed for the consideration of the next grand jury and we further recommend, that if said practice should be continued, strong steps to prosecute criminally the parties or party guilty should be taken, because if the responsible party does not himself realize the value of a good reputation, there is no reason why the good citizens and public officials of Stephens County who do, should be required to sit by and be subjected to such libelous statements."

DARLING FOOL

BEGIN HERE TODAY MONNIE O'DARE, beautiful, pious and 20, is in love with DAN CARDIGAN, heir to one of the local fortunes. Dan professes to love her but is often negligent. When she needs a friend CHARLES EUSTACE comes to her aid. Monnie believes SANDRA LAWRENCE, in Dan's own set, is trying to win him from her. BILL, Monnie's older brother, plans to marry ANGIE GILLEN, who works in a candy shop, as soon as she gets a divorce. KAY O'DARE, 16 and still in high school, is disappointed with Charles' house. Monnie accidentally sees Dan kiss Sandra. BETTY, a housemaid at the Lawrence home, hates Sandra and suspects her of 'swapping' JIMMY, the chauffeur. BILL and Angie quarrel. Angie says she hasn't enough money to put the divorce through quickly.

She told there was a 'pretty good chance.' 'It is good if they find oil,' he said. 'My people need many things. Wagons. We have not enough and those we have are wearing out. It is hard times. I wish they find oil.' C. F. Fain and associates, of Livingston, are drilling the well, which is known as the No. 1 U. S. Alabama Indians. There are 260 men, women and children in Chief Sun-Kee's tribe. About 90 per cent of them are dependent on a group of Alabama hunters who came to Texas from their Alabama homes in 1800. The other five per cent are members of the Couchatchie tribe, who held the East Texas lands that the Alabamas decided to take after they found the deer, beaver and squirrels so plentiful there. Sam Houston was a friend of the Alabamas. When Santa Ana was pressing the Texans so hotly shortly before the battle of San Jacinto, General Houston sent word to their lands and flee to Louisiana for safety. After Texas became a republic, Houston sent for the chief of the Alabamas. 'This land is yours,' he said, designating a strip of East Texas approximately where the reservation is today. 'Take your people and move there. Hold it. Never let a white man live upon it.'

When the federal government said the Indian reservation in Oklahoma the Alabamas refused to move. In time, the State of Texas granted them 1,280 acres and later the federal government gave them an additional 3,071 acres. They still live on the land. 'We could dance, baby. Honest, I'm dying to dance with you. Bet you're a honey at it, aren't you?' 'If it was Monnie, she was lost. She said in a madness of hate, 'I'll meet you at 8:30 at the corner of Main and Arverne—if I can. Goodby.'

Her eyes were wide, frightened. 'I can't, honestly!' Was that Monnie she saw walking along on the other side of the street? 'We could dance, baby. Honest, I'm dying to dance with you. Bet you're a honey at it, aren't you?' 'If it was Monnie, she was lost. She said in a madness of hate, 'I'll meet you at 8:30 at the corner of Main and Arverne—if I can. Goodby.'

The voice purred on, sizzly, insinuatingly. Kay thought of Miss Mahon, who was head of the English department, whose bitter, edged tone had cut into her consciousness that day. 'Miss O'Dare's notebook? But I didn't know Miss O'Dare had a notebook.'

Kay had flushed scarlet, had stammered, hating herself, the teacher, everything! Was it her fault she wasn't brainy? Not everyone could be! Well, she'd show them all some day, all these old cats and foxes all over town. She'd show them what Kay O'Dare could do. They'd see her name up in lights, they would. They'd boast, priming their lips. Oh, yes, I knew her, years ago—

She'd cut them when she passed them in the street. She could see a high-powered car whirling down a glittering avenue—herself, slim, long-legged, wrapped in furs—chinchilla, maybe. A man in livery would slip down from the seat, rush around to hand her out.

She came back to earth, to the shimmer of the June afternoon, to Chester, moist but dapper, beside her. 'I—I've got to be running along. My Mother will be wondering—'

'Aw, sweetness, don't be mean! Come on, we'll have a snack out at that place on the River Road. I've got the bus down at the garage.'

'I-I've got to be running along. My Mother will be wondering—'

'I-I've got to be running along. My Mother will be wondering—'

Texas Indians Hope For Oil on Their Reservation

LIVINGSTON, Texas. — Chief Sun-Kee, tall 72-year-old leader of Polk County's Alabama Indians, lives in hopes that oil development will bring good fortune to his impoverished tribe.

Few Texans know that his little tribe is struggling for existence on a 4,300-acre reservation 17 miles east of here. For nearly 100 years they have been there, wresting a hard living from the soil.

Now, perhaps, their lot is to be made easier. Oil men have come and erected their tall derricks among the pines. Machinery disturbs a silence that one knew only the bark of squirrels and cry of birds.

For a time Chief Sun-Kee and his people knew nothing of the development because it was miles west of them and they seldom travel far from home. Now a derrick has been built on their land.

There are 260 men, women and children in Chief Sun-Kee's tribe. About 90 per cent of them are dependent on a group of Alabama hunters who came to Texas from their Alabama homes in 1800.

The other five per cent are members of the Couchatchie tribe, who held the East Texas lands that the Alabamas decided to take after they found the deer, beaver and squirrels so plentiful there.

THURBER

By URAINE IRVING

THURBER, Texas, May 1—Miss Dorothy White, Mario Kimbro, Joy Oyley, Crystal Harwood, Anita McHarg, Messrs. Dixie Fenner, George Paulowsky, and Coach P. W. Morrison attended the junior-senior dance at Strawn Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schneewerk and Miss Urairie Irving spent Saturday and Sunday visiting Miss Carolyn Slay of Fort Worth.

Friday morning a lovely chapel program was held in the high school auditorium. Rev. Duncan Tidwell gave an interesting talk. Dr. Greebon of Santo, who is leading the song service at the Methodist church, made a very interesting talk to students about preparing yourself for life. The high school students sang two songs, "I Salute the Old Glory," and closed the chapel services by singing "The Eyes of Texas." We extend Rev. Tidwell and Dr. Greebon an invitation to come back again.

Miss Louise Morgan was a Strawn visitor Saturday.

Harold Newth of Mingas was a visitor here Saturday.

The seniors wish to announce that their play, "Fickle Fortune," will be held Wednesday, May 3, at the Presbyterian church at 8 p. m.

Admission, 10 cents for all school children and 15 cents for adults. Entertainment between acts. Everyone is invited.

Miss Oma Mitchell and Drexal Black attended the play at Unity Friday night.

Mrs. J. C. Milburn and Mrs. Self were Ranger visitors Friday afternoon.

Two Forest Camps In Palo Duro Canyon

By United Press

AMARILLO.—Two camps for President Roosevelt's reforestation army are to be located in Palo Duro canyon where the $1-a-day men will be set to work on park improvement projects.

Committees already have been named to recruit the workmen. It is believed about 200 men will be allotted each camp. In West Texas, the "reforestation army" will work on parks and waterway reclamation projects instead of planting trees.

Celebrates Birthday and Wedding Anniversary
Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Kimble of Gorman gathered their family about them for a family dinner at their home Saturday evening at 6 o'clock in celebration of the 73rd birthday of Dr. Kimble and the 43rd wedding anniversary of Dr. Kimble and his wife, who was Mary Shelton, born in Johnson county, Texas.

Dr. Kimble was born in Clarksville, Tenn., and has been a resident of Gorman 39 years, and a practicing physician for more than 40 years.

He has now retired to a life of leisure after a long and well-earned service for his fellowmen.

The happy board was surrounded by the children of this estimable couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Kimble of Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. Bert McGlamery of Eastland, Mrs. McGlamery is their only daughter and John Kimble their only son.

Others of the happy family circle were Mrs. E. W. Kimble's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Shelton of Abilene. Grandchildren present were Mildred and Dorothy McGlamery. The only other grandchild, Robert McGlamery, was unable to attend as he could not leave his college. A generous old-fashioned southern dinner was served in three courses, and the handsomely appointed table was centered with white roses.

Distant Friends
Announce New Son

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Perkins received Saturday the announcement of a son, Philip Norton, born to Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, in Yoakum, Texas, on April 13, 1933.

The mother is the former Eleanor Norton, and has a host of friends in this city who will extend congratulations over this second addition to their household.

Card Tournament
In the Offing

A big game tournament that will include card games of all kinds, anagrams and puzzle tables, will be the offering of the incoming and outgoing members of the executive board of the Thursday Afternoon club as the annual benefit in support of the free reading month of the public library, a custom inaugurated last year.

By means of the free reading month, the library facilities are open to the public during the month of July, and books issued without charge.

It was found to be very popular and a means, not only of acquainting many people not formerly library patrons with the use and reading matter of the library, but as well, as affording many the opportunity to secure good literature and interesting novels, who have not been able under ordinary conditions to patronize the public library.

The entertainment is in charge of Mrs. A. H. Johnson as general chairman, and co-workers, Mrs. B. M. Collie, Mrs. F. M. Kenny, Mrs. Carl Springer, Mrs. W. B. Pickens, Mrs. E. Roy Townsend, Mrs. Grady Pipkin, Mrs. M. C. Hayes, Mrs. W. D. R. Owen, Mrs. W. A. Martin, Mrs. R. E. Sikes, Mrs. James Horton, and Mrs. W. P. Leslie.

The tourney will be held in the community clubhouse at 8 p. m., the last of this week, the definite day announced later. All those interested are invited to attend.

Engaged to Mary Kaiser's Grandson

Announcement of the engagement of Prince Wilhelm of Prussia to Friedlind Dorothea von Salviati (above) aggravated the Prince's grandfather, ex-Kaiser Wilhelm. The betrothal violates the law of the House of Hohenzollern forbidding royalty to marry commoners.

"42nd Street" Blazes Anew At the Lyric

The opening of the much heralded Warner Bros. production "42nd Street" at the Arcadia this afternoon proved to be something more than just an evening to those who witnessed it—it was an event.

That enterprising Warner organization which for months has been setting the pace in the production of pictures with a timely angle, delivers again "42nd Street." The pioneers in talking pictures, first to smash box office with a screen musical comedy, first to set the movie fans' agog with gangster films and first in many other production innovations, now lead the way again in the return of musical pictures, and the way they have done it in "42nd Street" is a marvel.

This critic has witnessed his share of outstanding pictures during the last few years, but seldom has a picture ever captured an audience so completely as "42nd Street" won the theatergoers of Eastland this afternoon. It was a landslide, in its way as sensational as last season's popular vote.

Entertainment seekers will hereafter do their reckoning of entertainment values in terms of "42nd Street," and count time from the night of that picture's debut.

"42nd Street" is the distilled, effervescent essence of Broadway—but is more than that. It's a vivid, gripping, dramatic story of that mysterious world behind the scenes of a theatre—but it doesn't stop there. It beats and pulses to the rhythm of nimble dancers' tireless feet, and the irresistible intoxication of tuneful music dispensed by the flower of metropolitan orchestras. But if you think that "42nd Street" is merely a musical comedy in motion picture form, you have a dozen surprises in store for you.

The drama of men and women loving, hating—born between the insistent demand of ambition and the longing for something finer and more lasting than anything ambition can give—is unraveled before your eyes so cunningly that the spectator becomes as absorbed in it as if it were not the oldest, the truest drama in the world.

There is the romance of young love and youthful enthusiasm running through the varied pattern of the story like a bright golden thread that will take the most hardened theatergoers by the throat before its climax is reached.

Zoo Watchman Has Spookiest Job In Houston

By United Press
HOUSTON.—When people remark to Ed Reagan that he has the spookiest, loneliest job in Houston, he laughs, shuffles his feet, says "aw!" and blushes.

In June he will round out his fourth year as night watchman at the municipal zoo in Hermann Park. From 9 p. m. to 6 a. m. he is the sole human in the big animal enclosure.

Each night he makes nine complete rounds of the cages, punching his watchman's clock at nine stations in the scattered menagerie.

While he is working Reagan resembles an African big game hunter. In addition to wearing a .45-calibre pistol, he carries a .22 rifle and often a shotgun. A flashlight is fitted to his hat.

He wears heavy boots to protect him from snakes and rats.

At night the zoo is a strange place. It is filled with weird sounds of the jungle and with eyes that gleam in the dark.

Shooting rats—a constant menace to the zoo's feed supply—is a regular part of his job, hence the .22 rifle. He is considered a sharpshooter, dropping rats with ordinary .22 "shorts."

Spring nights are the worst in the zoo, he says. The animals are more restless then. The lions roar, the hyenas howl, the owls hoot, and the darkness is filled with all kinds of snorts and rustlings.

Once a fox dug his way out of a cage and met Reagan as he was making his rounds. When his eyes flashed in the light, Reagan drew his pistol. The fox died as he tasted of liberty.

The biggest scare Reagan ever had was the night the zoo elephants, Hans and Nellie, broke loose. The first warning he had was when a raccoon cage turned over and Nellie stepped out of the wreckage.

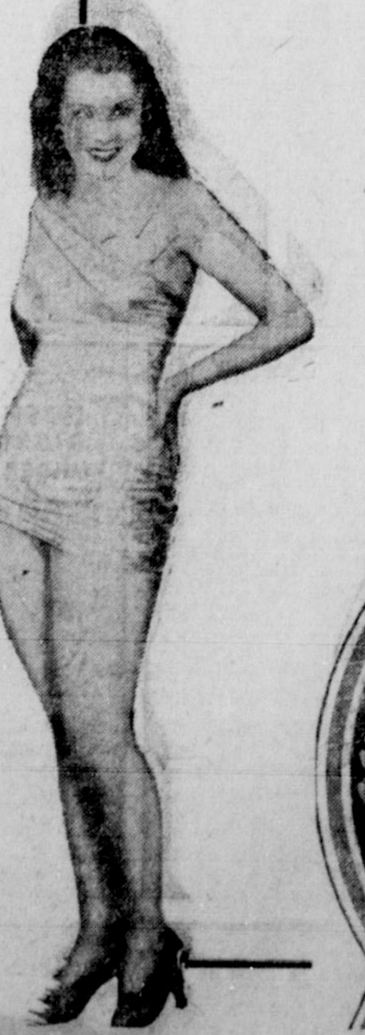

Reagan retreated to a service building and telephoned for Zookeeper Hans Nagel. He pacified the elephants with apples and oranges fed through the window until Nagel arrived and took charge.
