President In Proposal As Board Reports

Gigantic Works Program Would Be Spread Over Many Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt's gigantic plan for America's natural resources as a means for distributing "human welfare" through the land, stirred praise and doubt Monday.

Some described the plan as "progressive and excellent," others expressed doubt about the wisdom of a permanent public works administration.

The president proposed the plan on the basis of a report the national resources board submitted. The report contained an estimate that a hundred and five billion dollars could be spent on the public works in twenty or thirty years.

The board did not recommend that the money should be spent.

WASHINGTON By GEORGE DURNO

1934—There has been much ado in Washington the last few days about legislation to take profit out of war and write a permanent universal draft clause into the statute books.

Since President Roosevelt took hold of the idea with a firm hand, members of the Senate committee investigating the munitions industry have complained the White House was trying to stymie their inquiry and steal their glory.

Both sides could save time and money by going back to a report made by the War Policies Commission in 1931, and an Industrial Mobilization plan based on that report, which was approved in February, 1933.

Former President Hoover appointed this commission. On it were ranking members of his cabinet and the following legislators: Senators Swanson of Va., Vandenberg of Mich., Robinson of Ark. and Reed of Pa.; Reps. McSwain of S. C., Collins of Miss., Hadley of Washington and Holliday of Ill.

Among the most important witnesses appearing before the commission were Bernard M. Baruch and General Hugh Johnson, in their capacities as members of the old War Industries Board. Swanson is now Secretary of the Navy. Vandenberg is a member of the senate Munitions Inquiry. Robinson is majority floor leader of the senate. McSwain is chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee.

Swanson, Baruch and Johnson are members of President Roosevelt's new profit-out-of-war group.

Twelve Men In Caps Conceive Strike, Land In Jail

Twelve men in their caps conceived a strike, landed in jail and ended up with five of their number being dismissed from the employ of the slaughter house unit of the meat cannery here.

The men were working for a private contractor and were out on the relief rolls, hence the Texas relief commission ruling relative to clients charged with drunkenness was not applicable and automatic suspension was not invoked.

Twelve of fourteen employees of the slaughter house unit found their way into jail Saturday night for drunkenness.

In their cups they had planned a "strike" but Monday the walk-out had been averted and the unit was again butchering government cattle. Seven of the twelve were retained.

Sunday morning only ten head of cattle were killed and made ready for the cooling plant. This necessitated a shut down of the cannery.

The cannery will not be reopened until Wednesday when the chilled meat reserve will have been built up to insure uninterrupted production, it was disclosed.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—The House Ways and Means committee Monday reported "favorably" in one hour and fifty minutes the first 35 bills Huey Long introduced in a special session of the legislature.

Christmas Mail Swamps Office

This week marks the beginning of the Christmas rush for the post office here.

Monday a heavy shipment of parcels was received and after the morning delivery had been made, the office was still congested with packages.

Mailing from here was just getting under way with regular Christmas tempo Monday morning.

Postmaster Nat Shick said that unsealed Christmas cards might be mailed to any point in the United States or its possessions for only one and a half cents.

The card may be handwritten or printed and signed by hand so long as it is a Christmas or new year's greeting and there is no personal correspondence connected with it. Flaps of the envelope should be tucked in on cards in this class of mail.

If they are sealed or carry personal correspondence, they require the regular 3 cent rate.

Shick urged that all packages be packed and wrapped securely and that all fragile and perishable packages be plainly marked before they are brought to the office for mailing. He advised that all packages be insured.

Realizing that Christmas gifts delivered on the day after Christmas lose much of their significance, Shick said that Christmas packages received here on Christmas Day would be promptly delivered. The office will not be opened, however.

Because of the rush, Shick said it would be wise for all persons mailing packages to place special delivery stamp on the package to insure prompt delivery.

Since the Christmas rush will be at its peak over the week end, Shick said the office would remain open all day Saturday.

Christmas shopping will become more intensive as the week progresses, and all are urged to do their buying as soon as possible to avoid last minute rushes, usually accompanying the Christmas season. Local merchants reported an excellent business Saturday, and were of the opinion as the week progressed, buying would be even more lively.

Some of the stores have already announced their intention to remain open until 9 o'clock each evening until after

Interest Rate Cut On Time Savings

Federal Officials Announce Reductions To Speed Recovery

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal officials applied a powerful "cheap money" prod Monday to business recovery by reducing the minimum interest payable by 13,800 banks on $11,000,000,000 of time and savings deposits from 3 to 2 1/2 per cent.

The new rate becomes effective Feb. 1. It was fixed jointly by the Federal Reserve Board and Deposit Insurance Corporation with this frank purpose:

"The reduction in the deposit rate is in harmony with the prevailing downward trend in interest rates and is expected to support that trend, particularly in regard to rates on long-time money, which are an important factor in business recovery. x x x Better Market Seen "Decrease in rates on time deposits should have a tendency to bring about a decline in the cost to borrowers and to encourage depositors to seek investment for their idle funds.

"A more favorable capital market may be expected to create a more favorable mortgage market, as well as encourage refunding operations and the undertaking of new capital projects generally, a development essential to recovery."

These words were used by the Board in making the announcement of its own action governing member banks and that of the insurance corporation for insured state banks and trust companies.

Perhaps as significant as the actual interest cut was the Board's statement that its action was designed to supplement administration recovery efforts.

As the first statement issued since Marriner Eccles was named governor, it heralded completion of a new tie between the government and the theoretically independent reserve system.

Five Results Expected Among immediate results expected were:

(1) Improvement of the bond market by encouraging the investment of idle deposits in higher-earning sources. This aid was expected to extend to the government securities market and facilities borrowing of recovery billions.

(2) A general increase in the velocity of capital.

(3) Encouragement of the recent decline in bond and mortgage yields which is considered desirable as a stimulus to building.

(4) A gradual lowering of Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rates, now about 2 1/2 per cent.

(5) Supplementary action by state banking departments to make the new rule uniform.

THE FUTURE PATTERN OF NRA
Now that a new Congress will convene within a month confronted with the problem of revising the National Industrial Recovery Act, interest naturally quickens in the provisions to be embodied in the new law. For many weeks past members of the National Industrial Recovery Board have been studying suggestions made by industry, labor and consumer with a view to formulating recommendations for consideration by the National Legislature.
The latest authoritative voice to be heard on the subject of a new

NRA is that of Donald R. Richberg, active in NRA from its inception as general counsel and at present executive director of the National Emergency Council and head of the NRA policy committee. Still pleading for close cooperation among all forces in American life, Mr. Richberg addressed the National Association of Manufacturers in New York the other day.
Mr. Richberg warned the manufacturers that the permanent law, which the forthcoming Congress will enact, must be written in cooperation with labor and the consumer as well as private business and government so that there should be neither work-consumer regimentation by business nor government "demonstrated all too clearly that private business is not yet adequately organized for collective action and self-discipline and that political controls are a poor substitute for voluntary cooperation."
"The record of the trade association, upon which the Recovery Administration relied so hopefully in its infancy," he conceded, "has been, to put it mildly, disappointing."
The NRA's early hope that its second stage would be a voluntary coordination of trades and industries under some sort of a national industrial council, he continued, has evaporated, as "we know that before we reach that stage of economic progress."
Nevertheless, Mr. Richberg called upon American industry to respond to the fighting spirit typified in Admiral Farragut's order: "Damn the torpedoes, go ahead," and to cooperate in advancing the general recovery.
"Neither business men nor public officials," said Mr. Richberg, "have realized the full advantages of the flexible mechanisms of economic recovery and reconstruction provided the National Industrial Recovery Act. But let each group be fair with the other and recognize that a sincere and earnest effort was made by both to cooperate in advancing the general welfare and in this recognition let us try to write into permanent legislation those fundamental principles and simpler mechanisms of the codes of fair competition that have proved their worth and have provided effective methods of combining self-help and public service."

McCAMEY—Football letters will be awarded to 11 members of this year's McCamey Badgers squad, according to a statement issued by Head Coach Marlin Hayhurst. Tornadoes Close '34 Campaign In Possession Regional Title

LAMESA—Striding through a tough schedule without a lapse or misdeed, the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes closed their 1934 football campaign Friday still in possession of the regional title which they won last year.
The Tornadoes out-classed an earnest aggregation of Shamrock Irishmen, 14 to 0, to reach the pinnacle of Class B achievement and add to a series of consecutive victories that stretches back to the autumn of 1932.
12 Wins, No Setbacks
This year the Lamesa lads have taken a total of 12 games, most of them by lopsided scores. They have run up a total of 413 points.
The Tornadoes scored first Friday toward the last of the second period. For 20 minutes the Irish stoutly resisted every Lamesa effort to penetrate their goal-line then withered to let Roswell pass to Harrell for the first touchdown just a minute before the half gun fired. Cozzins, Lamesa pivotman, kicked goal.
In the final period and exchange of punts played the Tornadoes on Shamrock's 32. Boswell passed to McKinnon for 7 yards, McKinnon carried for another 8 paces. Then on a fake pass play, Boswell delayed until he was nearly thrown, charged through the scattered Irishmen to go into the end zone standing up. Cozzins again converted.
Nifty Forwards
Powerful Guards Addison and Burdine, and Mitchell, wingman, were outstanding in the Tornado forward line. In the backfield McKinnon and Boswell were the stars on attack, but they were aided by the bullet blocking of Field General Berry and Fullback Jordan. McKinnon, Boswell and Jordan will be back for the 1935 vars. Only Co-Captain Berry of first-string secondarymen will be lost. In the line the losses will be more serious. Mitchell and Harrell, ends; Morgan, tackle; Co-Captain Addison, and Burdine, guards, are all senior gridmen.
Coach F. T. McCollum is closing his tenth season as mentor of the Tornadoes.
Remainder of the Lamesa squad follows:
Gilbert, Alexander, Easterwood, Sandel, Hahn, Lambeth, Roberts, Mathews, Key, E. Roberts, Fuson, Sales and Hughes.

Bonus Rally To Be Held This Evening

Members To Meet At Club House For Session
Ray Fuller Post No. 2013, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will sponsor a "bonus" rally this evening at the Federation club house at Fourth and Scurry street, in support of a nationwide campaign in behalf of immediate cash payment of adjusted service certificates.
The bonus rally of Post No. 2013 and its Auxiliary will be open to their friends and members of the public interested in obtaining cash payment of the adjusted service certificates now held by approximately three and one half million World War veterans. Payment of the certificates would distribute approximately $2,200,000,000 in cash to every section of the country, Commander C. W. Deats, Post No. 2013 said today. The issue has been supported by the V. F. W. for the past several years and will be proposed again in the national congress which convenes early in January.
"Editorial opinion in newspapers throughout the country, an increasingly favorable opinion on the part of the public as a whole and the recent decision of the American Legion to join with the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States in support of the bonus measure, encourages us to believe that the time is now ripe for this long-overdue legislation," Commander Deats said today.
"Convinced that opposition to immediate cash payment of adjusted service certificates is based on a lack of correct information, our organization has recently conducted a vigorous and widespread educational campaign designed to put the matter in its true light before the public.

When completed the river between El Paso and Fort Quitman will be 88 miles long instead of 155.

The physician, who had delivered an infant for a young couple, was surprised one morning to find a sack containing 3,000 pennies on his desk.

A note explained that the pennies were in payment for the child. The couple had evidently been saving them for a long time.

When born the baby weighed just seven pounds. The pennies weighed six and a half pounds.

Galveston Named After Spaniards

(By United Press)
Galveston, Texas' island city, is credited in history as receiving its name from a trio of high Spanish officers of colonial Mexican fame.

Three members of the Galvez family, two of them viceroys at Mexico City, were prominent in early Southwest history.

Jose de Galvez was the first to visit America. He was sent as "visitador," special administration investigator of the Spanish king. Matias de Galvez, Jose's brother, became 48th viceroy of the New Spain in 1453. Bernardo de Galvez, son of Matias, was associated most closely with Galveston. He was a dashing soldier in Louisiana, governor-general of Cuba, Florida and Louisiana, and 49th viceroy of New Spain.

Texas' first governor, J. Pinckney Henderson, gave name to the present East Texas oil town.

Henderson was prominent in political circles throughout his life. Under President Sam Houston he was secretary of state. Later he was Texas ambassador to the courts of England and France. Henderson was elected to the United States senate but died before taking office.

Tyler, progressive East Texas oil city, has a namesake a president whose administration was as stormy as any of peacetime history.

John Tyler, president at the death of William Henry Harrison, headed the American government during the turbulent days preceding the admission of the state to the union in 1845.

PAINTER ADMITS SLAYING NEW YORK GIRL, MISSING SIX YEARS

Solution of a six-year-old New York kidnaping came when Albert H. Fish (right), 65-year-old house painter and father of six children, led police to a deserted house near Elmsford, N. Y., where the butchered body of Grace Budd (left), 10-year-old girl who disappeared in 1928, was found. Fish, after mocking the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Budd (center), by mail since the crime was committed, was captured through the letters he sent. "The blood just seized me," said Fish, who was charged with homicide and kidnaping. The girl's body, which had been butchered with a meat cleaver, was found in three parts. Fish had lured the child from her home on the promise of taking her to a birthday party. (Associated Press Photos)

I did not kill Osborne

Chapter 13
BOBBY TRAP

Molly walked slowly to the top of the stairs and then, turning round, glanced back over the banisters. "Good night," she said, "you'll let me get up and cook the breakfast, won't you?"

"I shall insist on it," I answered.

With a little laugh she stepped inside, and the next moment the door closed.

For several seconds I stood where I was, surveying the empty studio. There were three possible means by which an entrance might be effected—the door, the skylight, and the large north window. In each case, however, the feat would involve a considerable amount of noise—certainly enough to wake me up in ample time to welcome the intruder.

With this advantage, and with a loaded revolver in my possession, I was not disposed to be unduly alarmed, but all the same it struck me that by the adoption of two extra little precautions I could in a few minutes still further strengthen my position.

Pushing the sofa along to the far corner, I wheeled it round so that it presented its back to the door. Though probably not bullet-proof, it would, I felt in the regrettable event of there being any midnight burglar, at least provide me with a serviceable screen.

I heaped up the end nearest the window with as many cushions as I could collect, and then, crawling to my desk and pulling open the bottom drawer, I unearthed a ball of stout string.

With the aid of this I proceeded to construct my booby trap. It was a simple affair—just a tightly drawn line, six inches from the ground, stretching right across the whole length of the studio. One end I secured to the foot of the desk, while the other I made fast to the leg of a heavy chair.

Even with the light on, it was practically invisible, and not a little pleased at my own ingenuity, I went down on the foot of the sofa, and litched a final cigaret.

There was no denying that it had been a crowded and successful day.

What was that?

With a sudden start I jumped up into a sitting position, and thrusting my hand under the cushions, grabbed hold of my revolver. Then I blinked round stupidly. It was broad daylight. Somewhere in the neighborhood a church clock was chiming the hour, and through the big window a blue sky peeped in between the opposite chimneys. On the back of the chair beside me hung my coat and waistcoat.

CURBING WAR PROFITS THEIR AIM

I sat up nursing my left elbow. "Nothing important," I replied. "I've only fallen over a bit of string which I put down last night to catch the enemy."

"Oh! I hope you aren't hurt!" She pushed back a rebellious lock which had tumbled forward across her eyes. "I was fast asleep—I thought for a moment..."

Bang—bang—bang—went the knocker—the time more insistently than ever.

"Who's that?" she demanded.

A little painfully I scrambled to my feet. "I'm just going to see. I think it's probably a friend of mine from the local pub who promised to call around this morning and fetch the milk for me. I've a sort of suspicion that we've both overslept ourselves."

There was a faint ripple of laughter.

"It does look rather like that, doesn't it?" She leaned forward over the banisters. "You'll be very careful!"

"Very," I assured her.

I continued my interrupted journey to the hall and standing down, peered through the interlock. A ragged coat sleeve with a bit of flannel shirt bulging out through the elbow rewarded my inspection.

"That you, Bob?" I inquired.

"That's me, gov-nor," came the answer.

I unlocked the door, and with a friendly grin which revealed a solitary and somewhat discolored tooth, Mr. Hicks raised a grimy forefinger to the level of his cap. "Ope I ain't too early. You did say nine o'clock—didn't yer?"

"Quite correct," I assured him. "Sorry to have kept you waiting, but being tried for murder makes one pretty sleep." I dived into my trousers pocket and produced a half-crown. "Here you are, Bob," I added. "I want half a pint of milk, a small loaf, four new-laid eggs and a quarter of a pound of butter. Do you think you can carry all that in your head?"

"I won't make no mistake, gov-nor." He took the coin, repeating the order as he did so. "Funny 'ow tastes differ," he observed reflectively. "Now, wot I fancy for breakfast myself is a nice fresh drawn pint of mild and bitter."

"You're in good company," I said. "If history's right, that's how Queen Elizabeth always started the morning."

"Ha!" said Mr. Hicks. "Well, she was lucky, she was. The pubs was open at a decent hour in 'er time."

He shuffled off on his errand, and refastening the door I turned back into the studio. I had not been absent long, but during the interval Miss Molly O'Brien had found time to slip into her black frock.

NEW YORK By JAMES McTULLIN

Chalk up one more conservative surrender to the New Deal. The Federal Reserve System as a whole has been eating out of the treasury's hand for many months—but the government's efforts to push credit expansion have been hampered a bit by the attitude of certain regional bank executives and directors who have privately but stubbornly insisted on asserting their independence. Now this die-hard faction has hauled down its flag. The surrender won't be announced publicly—but if you watch closely you'll soon see evidence that there's no more gravel in the Federal Reserve gears.

The informal peace treaty involves three major points. 1. The Federal Reserve Advisory Council will henceforth lay off criticism of the administration's monetary and credit policies. Its recent crack about sound money got under the government's skin—but there won't be any more such faux pas.

2. The open market committees of the regional Federal Reserve Banks will in future take their marching orders from Governor Marriner Eccles. This means that policies governing the purchase and sale of commercial paper and other forms of business credit will be unified under Washington direction.

3. Purchase of government securities by the twelve regional institutions will hereafter conform to the treasury's wishes instead of being left to the judgment of the individual banks.

Note that these important but unannounced changes give the government virtually complete control of both private and public credit. Few people realize what an enormous influence the open market committees have exerted on business borrowing. Now they've abdicated their authority to a New Deal agent. And with the treasury dictating what the Reserve Banks shall do with its own securities and other forms of business credit, the whole works is in his hands.

Insiders understand that the quid pro quo for the surrender was positive assurance that there will be no central bank legislation. An observer remarks: "What a concession that is! When you have the meat of a walnut, what earthly point would there be in grabbing the shell too?" The conservatives are glad to save the shell at that. Their ostensible surrender is much less irrevocable than formal legislation.

Also the wholesale shakeup in Federal Reserve personnel predicted when Eccles took over is off. The erstwhile bitter-ender is Richard B. Harrison, 70 year old portrayer of the role of "de Lawd". During the almost five years that he has been on the boards, Harrison has never missed a single performance of his unique role. Others prominent in the huge company include Doc Doe Green, who impersonates "Gabriel"; Daniel L. Haynes, who enacts the dual roles of "Adam" and "Hezred"; George Randol, who portrays the wicked "King Pharaoh"; Susie Sutton as the shrewish "Mrs. Noah"; Thomas Russell as "Cain"; Geraldine Gooding as "Eve"; Mercedes Gilbert as "Zipporah" and Morris McKinney as "Noah". Except for three deaths that have occurred in the organization, the cast that will be seen here is exactly the same as appeared throughout the long New York and Chicago engagements of this far famed play.

At the conclusion late in February of the current tour, "The Green Pastures" will return to Broadway for a second extended run. That engagement, it is thought, will continue through most of 1935, after which a London showing is planned.

Based on Roark Bradford's amusing southern sketches contained in the popular book "O! Man Adam an' His Chillun", the play tells in graphic, humorous yet always reverent manner the simple plantation dorky's ideas of Heaven and of the old Bible stories. Marc Connelly, noted playwright, made the dramatization and the play is presented in 18 scenes. One of the most delightful features of the performance is the rendition of Negro spirituals by the famous Hall Johnson choir of thirty superb voices.

Laverne Harley And H. C. Fridge Married Mr. H. C. Fridge and Miss Laverne Harley were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the First Methodist parsonage. Rev. C. A. Bickley performed the ceremony.

wouldn't be smart. But unless their scouts in contact with Santa have been kidding them they'll have reason to rejoice. Kennedy's avowed object is to stimulate the legitimate security business. He is said to feel—and many New Yorkers agree with him—that rapid development of corporate financing for capital expenditures with ensuing reemployment would put a spoke in the radical wheel before it has a chance to start rolling.

Splits—The New York City sales tax is one huge headache to lunch counters and soft drink fountains. If ice cream is served in a sundae it's food and not taxable. If it's dropped in a soda it becomes a taxable beverage. Milk is a food—but add flavoring and it's subject to the levy. It's a terrible job trying to make the customers understand these fine distinctions.

One lunch room proprietor says he thinks he'll quit and become a riveter to get a little peace and quiet.

One Of Last Of Dillinger Men Captured

Joseph Burns Taken By U. S. Agents In Southside Chicago House

CHICAGO (AP)—Joseph Burns, one of the last of John Dillinger's followers, was captured in his South Side rendezvous Sunday and linked by a telltale slip of paper with the $427,000 armored car robbery at Brooklyn last August, Chicago police announced. Burns was one of the 10 outlaws who blasted their way out of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City in September, 1933, with automatic pistols slipped in to them by Dillinger. He was the eighth to be captured or killed. Sister Also Arrested In his apartment on West 69th Street, where Burns' sister was nabbed with him, postal inspectors and "Dillinger squad" policemen seized two sub-machine guns which were identified as part of the armament stolen from the Warsaw, Ind., police station in a daring raid perpetrated, witnesses asserted, by Dillinger himself and his sharpshooting aid, John Hamilton.

The slip of paper, its exact details withheld by the postal inspectors as they took Burns to a secret place for intensive questioning, was said to have indicated 12 persons participated in the spectacular holdup at Brooklyn Aug. 21 and that the rich plunder had been sliced 12 ways among them.

Chief Postal Inspector John McWhorter of the Chicago Division and Capt. John Stege, head of the Dillinger detail of Chicago police, engineered the raid. Both refused comment on the scribbled bit of paper, but its significance was revealed by another member of the raiding party.

$427,000 Divided Jotted on a scrap of magazine paper, this officer said, were figures showing that $427,000 had been divided by 12 and the quotient then multiplied by 12 as though to check the results. The policemen deduced that other loot had been added to the $427,000 reported taken in the Brooklyn robbery.

Burns surrendered readily when the squad of government and city officers pointed machine guns around his home and called for him to come out.

The fugitive Indiana murderer stepped to the door, unarmed, despite the well-stocked arsenal found in the flat. He was clad in pajamas, barefooted, and held a bottle of beer in one arm.

"Come on in," he said, meekly enough. "I guess the jig's up."

Forsan Band Makes First Appearance

Musical Unit Composed Of 50 Pieces, Two Give Solo Numbers

Making its first public appearance since its organization two months ago, the Forsan school band Monday morning, gave a well balanced and executed program in the school gymnasium before a combined crowd of students and school patrons. Under the direction of M. L. Blackwelder the band played a dozen selections. Each of the numbers were exceptionally well played in view of the limited time which the band has been in operation. There are 50 pieces in the band with the exception of a few teachers, all the players are students in the Forsan schools. Besides the regular concert by the band, Wanda Martin, daughter of Superintendent and Mrs. L. L. Martin, played a saxophone solo. James Underwood played a coronet solo. Blackwelder is a new member of the Forsan faculty and is employed as a full time teacher of music and director of the band.

County Superintendent Pauline C. Brigham, Assistant Superintendent Helen Hayden and Superintendent-elect Anne Martin attended from Big Spring. The concert was given at the regular chapel hour.

Influenza Is On Increase

AUSTIN—Reports from widely separated parts of Texas to the Texas State Department of Health show that influenza is on the increase in the state. It is expected that by the last of this month over seven hundred cases of this disease will be reported in Texas. Colds, gripe, influenza, or whatever we may call them are believed to be spread from person to person through discharge from the nose and throat. To protect yourself and others from such diseases, here are some things to be remembered and some precautions to be observed. 1. Influenza is highly infectious. Practically everybody is susceptible to it. No matter how many times you may have had the disease, you may contract it again. Therefore, keep away from people who are sneezing, coughing, or sniffing, or who are actively ill with cold, influenza or pneumonia. 2. Keep away from crowded places. 3. Have your own towel and drinking cup and always wash your hands before eating. 4. Keep yourself as fit as possible, by drinking plenty of water, by eating simple, nourishing food, by some exercise out of doors every day, by dressing according to the weather, by having plenty of sleep in a well-ventilated room and by keeping the bowels regulated. If you feel an attack of gripe or influenza—or even of what you may think an ordinary cold—coming on, go to bed, send for your physician and follow his directions.
