Cotton Plan May Be Extended To Option on Bales

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The farm administration said today it is giving "serious consideration" to a proposal that the privileges of borrowing 10 cents a pound on cotton be extended to bales held on option by farmers who participated in the acreage reduction campaign. Three southern senators, including Chairman Smith, democrat, South Carolina, of the senate agricultural committee, are advocating this move. The South Carolinian was joined in his request by Senators Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, and Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma. Smith yesterday telegraphed President Roosevelt this would be "simple justice" to farmers who responded to the cotton plowup campaign. He said it would put "between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 in circulation."

Later he attended Trinity University, then located in Tehuacana, graduating from the law department in the class of 1876. ### Canada's Foreign Trade Satisfactory

By United Press
MONTREAL.—Canada's foreign trade, though still showing shrinkage, has developed a satisfactory trend for the months ended August, 1933, disclosing a favorable balance nearly $115,000,000 as compared with a favorable balance the end of August last year only $38,576,890. The favorable balance of this year was made up by a crease of $112,062,385 in imports into Canada and a decline of or $35,950,355 in exports. Canada's trade with the United States continues to show a heavier drop in imports from the country than sales to it. Sales to the United States in the year ended August this year were a little less than $150,000,000, a drop of about $50,000,000, while imports from the United States were about $211,000,000, a decline of $80,000,000.

passed the responsibility for some important things to the city administration. There was nothing offensive, nothing unkind, just plain straight facts that should interest every taxpayer. To speak out at a time when it means something is a great gift. In other words he didn't speak when he should have been listening.
If the city administration will give the public from time to time the entire facts of their activities through the newspapers there would be less annoyance, less criticism and at least an advantage to gain the public confidence and cooperation. City officials can well take in consideration in this day and time that the general public is interested. That makes it doubly important that they should be kept informed on every detail of their activities. And besides it curbs lots of sidewalk whisperings that are sometimes unjust.
The Railroad Commission pulled a bone when they challenged the advertising of the Lone Star Gas Company. The Lone Star Gas Company pulled a bone when they

Depression Brought More Prestige For Small Newspapers

By United Press
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—The depression brought greater prestige and community usefulness to the small town daily newspaper, Thomas F. Barnhart, of the University of Minnesota journalism department, contended recently.
Increased prestige and usefulness has been brought about in five ways, Barnhart said. They are:
1. Newspapers have carried on rescue activities in their communities at times when banks, industries and individuals were faced with ruin.
2. Due to the loss of prestige of veteran leaders, the newspapers have taken their places as community spokesmen.
3. The decline of the service club has given the newspaper an opportunity to meet a community need.
4. The papers have served as a storehouse of information on scores of movements aimed at ameliorating the hard times.
5. Editors have learned that to save their newspapers they must

Now it is up to Lone Star Gas Company to reinstate their advertising program. The people haven't lost anything either way and the excitement was all uncalculated for on both sides. Anybody with common sense knows that the public does not pay for advertising. Advertising makes things cheaper by increased volume. For instance when Coca Cola spent only $5000 a year for advertising it was five cents a glass... today they spend millions a year and its still five cents a glass. So why all the excitement.

I keep coming back to that word "balance" on the back of the Chesterfield pack.
YOU often hear the word balance—top-heavy thing is out of balance—top-heavy on an "even keel."
What you read, "Chesterfield Cigarettes are a balanced blend," means that the amounts of the right kinds of tobaccos, the right kind, the right quantity blended and cross-blended with tobacco from Turkey and Greece.
When these tobaccos are balanced against the other, then you have a cigarette.
When they are in balance, then you have a better-tasting cigarette.
May we ask you to read again the statement on the back of the Chesterfield package?
May we ask you to try Chesterfield?

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

Column, "Behind the Scenes in Washington," is being conducted by Thornton during Rodney's vacation.

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NRA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Don't be surprised if there is a considerable reorganization within the NRA soon.

With preliminary organization pretty well completed, the initial confusion is settling down into the semi-permanent organization that must be effected to carry it through its authorized two years of life.

Present conference in which General Hugh S. Johnson, Commerce Secretary Daniel Roper, Labor Secretary Frances Perkins, Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, and others took part are expected to result in changes of personnel, and in transferring some NRA functions to regular departments.

And don't forget that General Johnson himself, known from the start to be an organizer and promoter rather than an executive, may consider soon that his part in launching the recovery move has been largely mopped up. He never said he'd keep the job forever.

THE speech of former Senator Jim Watson at Chicago the other day, in which he made a frontal attack on administration policies, is important for several reasons.

First, by pointing out the duty of the party out of power to be a real "opposition," Watson gave some indication that the real effort to reform the shattered Republican ranks is in view.

Second, it is among the first stirrings among defeated Old Guardsmen to get back in the limelight. Some observers here felt it was the first gun in a campaign to elect Senator Jim for the Republican nomination in 1936, but this is not likely.

Another letter but is that there is a change soon in the Republican national chairmanship, and that Watson is slated for the job.

Probably don't remember, but the present chairman is a former Senator of Indiana, also, a former congressman who became Coolidge's secretary. It's the fact that you didn't remember that makes the change to the more vocal Watson likely.

THE patenting of the Blue Eagle the other day, and assigning of the copyright to the United States, was to make possible the prosecution for unauthorized printing. Also, it was good publicity.

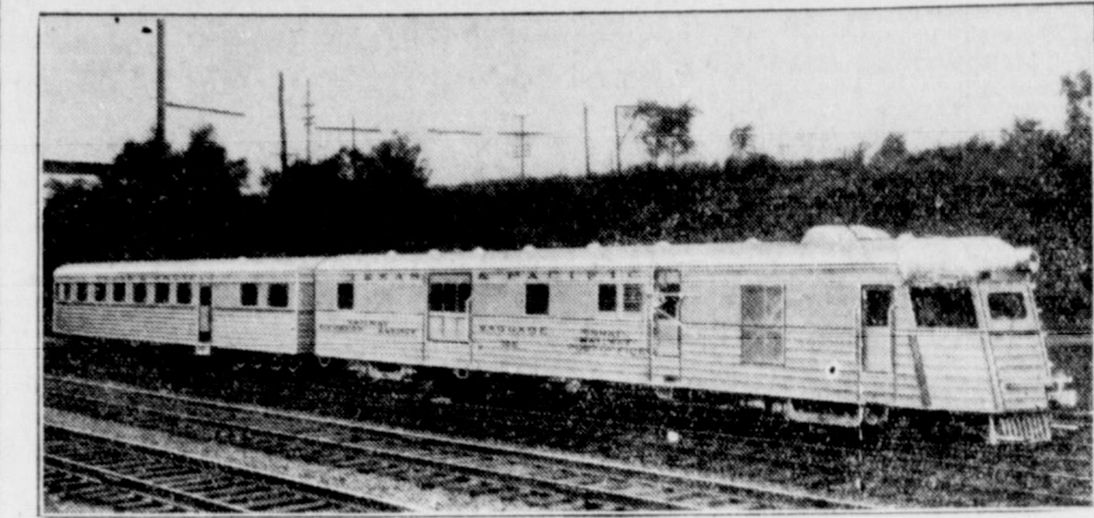

But the real activity at the patent office these days is in applications for trademarks for whisky. There have been more of them than for beer in the whole six months since 3.2 was legalized. Commissioner Coo at the patent office says the rush for whisky trademarks is six times as heavy as in any full year since 1917. Many come from abroad.

IT isn't so easy for the third under-secretary of the Bureau of Circulation to get a government automobile as it used to be. The New Deal stopped most of that, and nobody drives a government car these days except on government business, unless he's a pretty big shot. So a new dodge was figured out.

That third under-secretary got hold of a friend in the narcotic or prohibition bureau, and borrowed one of the many cars that have been seized for liquor or dope violations. It's much better, really than having the government buy him one for $10,000, and pay his chauffeur to boot.

FIRST STAINLESS STEEL PASSENGER TRAIN TO BE PUT IN SERVICE BY TEXAS & PACIFIC

America's first complete stainless steel, high-speed, super-comfort railway train will go into service early in November, it was announced by Frank Jensen, general passenger agent of the Texas and Pacific railway. This gas-electric, rubber tired and air conditioned train was built by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia. It will be placed in experimental service between Fort Worth and Texarkana on the Denton division of the T. & P. following its exhibition in Chicago at the Century of Progress.

The new T. & P. train is made up of two units, the forward combination motor, mail, baggage and express car and passenger car with accommodations for 76 passengers in three separate compartments. The power plant consists of two 240-horsepower gas-line engines with electric drive and auxiliary generators for the air conditioning, refrigerating and heating apparatus all of which is located in the forward car, leaving the passenger trailer free of all moving mechanism to assure utmost riding comfort and safety.

In keeping with the best traditions in the design of railway equipment, the rear car is finished and furnished even more luxuriously than the best appointed steam trains. Individual seats, deep upholstered and covered with blue leather harmonize with the two tones of gray used in decorating the walls and ceiling. Electric lights are of indirect design and completely concealed as are the ducts for the air conditioning system.

Entrance to this car is back from the front end, separating the colored compartment at the front from the white compartment. A smoking and observation compartment is at the rear end.

In appearance the new T. & P. train departs radically from the usual railway train, Mr. Jensen said. Both cars are constructed entirely of "Shotweld" stainless steel and making a striking appearance in their natural bright finish. The rakish nose of the forward car is accentuated by the streamline roof and fluted metal sides of the cars which suggest the high speed of which the train is capable.

The new T. & P. train is said to surpass in riding comfort anything on rails. While the pneumatic tires on the wheels and the automotive type roller bearings in the axles contribute materially to riding comfort, the body and spring construction and heat and sound insulation also are major factors in providing for the complete riding ease of passengers. Safety features of the train include a quick-acting duplex braking system, complete automatic lighting and signal equipment and automatic power and electric shut-off.

Electric lights are of indirect design and completely concealed as are the ducts for the air conditioning system.

Forgotten Sweetheart

BY MARY RAYMOND

JOAN WARD, photo Memphis, and BOB WELLS, son of a New York millionaire, meet in Memphis. Friends of the following of BARBARA COLBY, who is in the system in the Bob away from Joan, they become estranged.

Pat Jones, Joan's younger sister, is in an automobile accident in which JERRY COLBY, her lover, is killed. They had just come from a drink house and Jerry had been drinking.

Two weeks search for a girl who had been seen in New York. Joan follows and begins two weeks search for a girl who had been seen in New York.

Joan is engaged to marry a rich man, BARNEY BLAKE, who proves a steadfast friend.

Pat loses her job as a model in a wholesale house. Barney persuades Joan to move into the apartment where his stepmother lives. A few weeks later Joan finds Pat in a shabby rooming house, very ill. She recovers and during her convalescence Barney and Joan are drawn closer together. Joan reads that Barbara is in New York and will be the next of kin at a party given by Bob's father. Barney asks Joan to marry him, feeling that he is just to her, she accepts Barney.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI

JOAN told Barney, "We can't make any plans now. We must get Pat well and strong first."

"We'll have Pat fit as a fiddle in no time," Barney assured her. "And then you're going to marry me."

As soon as Pat was well enough she was moved to a light, airy hospital room that was always filled with Barney's flowers. Lois and Jane sent flowers too. Joan's roses were there also, but Barney's magnificent big basket was the one Pat's eyes were always seeking. The big basket was followed by others with cards bearing impudent messages in Barney's bold handwriting—"Hurry up and get well, infant. I believe you're faking." or "Great Scott, how long do I have to keep this up?"

Pat sparkled and glowed over each message, putting the cards away carefully in her handbag.

When she was stronger she was moved to a sun porch for a while each day. From her vantage place near the door she would watch eagerly for the tall figure that presently would come striding down the corridor. It came to Pat as a shock one day to realize it was Barney for whom she watched and not Joan.

For a moment she felt a queer sense of disloyalty, but brushed the thought away impatiently. Absurd. Joan was an angel. Pat told herself she couldn't do without Joan's visits. But Barney was fun. Then there were short drives with Joan and Barney. And one day she was moved into the Park avenue apartment with Joan.

Three more weeks passed and then Pat began to fret against the enforced idleness. A faint color was beginning to show in her cheeks. The checks were rounding out, and strength was coming as Pat's appetite improved.

"When I feel a little stronger I'll have to get something to do," Pat said. "I can't bear this sitting around doing nothing all day."

IT WAS Barney who came to the rescue. "So you want to go to work, do you?" he said. "Want to be secretary to a rising young business man? Want to be browbeaten and sworn at if you misspell words and put commas in the wrong places?"

Pat's eyes met his. A flush mantled her face. "Barney, you aren't by any chance offering me a job, are you?"

"Take it or leave it," Barney said roughly. "I'm rude and rough. This job won't be an easy one."

"I'll adore you rude and rough," said Pat. "And I don't care how hard the work is. Oh, what a break!"

"Call it a break if you like," Barney said, smiling at her enthusiasm. "Miss Rodgers liked it so little that she's leaving to be married."

"I'll never do that," Pat said. "You've hired a secretary for life, Barney."

"Three more weeks then," Barney said. "That's when Miss Rodgers is leaving. Be a good girl and get strong and well by that time."

Pat grew strong and well, happiness, good food, rest and fresh air working a complete cure. She was thriving in her new environment. She had gained back the lost pounds. Her eyes were like blue stars again and her voice had a lilt.

"The kid's a glutton for work," Barney told Joan one day. "Eats it up. And she's efficient too."

"I know," smiled Joan. "She was always like that."

"Just a little steam engine," said Barney, smiling indulgently. He liked to see Pat's enthusiasm over things that had become commonplace to him. It was pleasant to watch Pat.

Pat thought the Jigsaw was the most wonderful place in New York and Barney the most important man in the whole metropolis. She radiated pride and satisfaction in her work.

"Little idiot," said Barney one day when he came in with the daily roses which Pat insisted were quite as necessary for the office as the night club. "Who ever heard of a pretty office?"

"Well, I stay in the office," said Pat. "And I like roses."

"If the roses are for you, Pat, that's different," Barney said slowly. After that he would help her arrange them. Sometimes his clumsy brown fingers would touch her slim, white ones.

ONCE when this happened he drew his hand away abruptly, so abruptly that the vase tilted and only Pat's quickness saved it from turning over. She wiped the drops of water from her hand.

"Clumsy!" she said. "Can't you even put roses in a vase? My, you'll make a helpless husband."

Barney did not answer. He stalked back to his desk, took his seat and apparently became absorbed in the business of reading his mail, arranged in the neat stack in front of him.

The glass-topped desk was shining. The brass ash trays were kept free of ashes, rubbed to an extra brightness. Pat's desk was equally neat. The light with the green shade, which she used when she worked late, was at one side. A notebook lay open on the other, an array of sharpened pencils ready.

"So you think I'll make a bum husband," said Barney after a moment.

Pat whirled around in her chair to find Barney staring at her. "Well, for goodness sake!" she exclaimed. "I didn't dream you were so sensitive. Just a great

Scoutmasters' Pow-Wow
Scoutmasters of the Brownwood district had a most successful scoutmasters' pow-wow Monday night, Oct. 16, at the scout cabin on the Lucas pecan farm. The meeting started with a fish fry. Fish being caught by Leroy Coston out of the new Brownwood lake. One of the main features of the program was a talk delivered by Cub Ragsdale, an old-time scout and with possibly the longest scoutmaster's record in the council territory, and is at present a troop committeeman of Troop 1 in Brownwood. Mr. Ragsdale's subject was "What's the Matter, Scoutmaster?" which was in part—no scoutmaster can expect his troop to make advancement and grow in membership and have a continued interest unless he holds regular troop meetings. No scoutmaster can expect the scouts to come time after time to a troop meeting where the scouting program is not being put on and where the scoutmaster may be missing every other meeting. Others who appeared on the program were H. L. Stewart, chairman of the camping committee; O. E. Winebrinner, chairman of the pow-wow, and G. N. Quill, scout executive. A vote of thanks was given to the program committee, Assistant Scoutmasters Cliff Pouncey and Gaitha Browning. The next meeting will be held with scoutmasters and troop committeemen attending the third Monday night in November.

Bones of Mastodon Found In Well

ESCANABA, Wis.—While digging a well here, a Stonington farmer discovered bones imbedded in the rock which he believed to be those of a prehistoric animal. The finds recalls the theory of Prof. R. C. Hussey, University of Michigan, who made a survey of this territory, that prehistoric life was at one time prolific in this area. He claimed there were banks of mastodons and beavers, which had grown to the size of bears, buried in the silt of a prehistoric sea.

We've been bothered by so many sea serpent stories of late, we can hardly wait for repeal.

Boys and Girls World Club

The Boys and Girls World club had a most delightfully instructed session at their meeting Wednesday afternoon, held in the classrooms of the Methodist church, which opened with a review of last week's work, and the description of a Japanese garden by various children, and their leader Mrs. J. U. Johnson, assistant director.

A wonderful story, "Soichi Has An Adventure," was related to the children and the Bible verse, "What time I am afraid, I will put my trust in Thee," was used to illustrate the fear Soichi experienced in his adventure.

The children were then divided into groups, and Mrs. Johnson with the assistance of Mrs. Earl Bender and Mrs. Jack Hall, conducted the Japanese project which consists of landscaping and bridge building, as well as dressing of dolls, the work being done by the children.

Japanese games were played and the session closed with a song service.

Yes, we have many friends who spend the week in the oil fields garnering "Texas Liquid Gold" and spend the week-ends in one of our modern hotels, resting, relaxing and enjoying "Hilton Hospitality" to the fullest extent. We are always mighty glad to see these boys and do everything we can to make their "week-ends" pleasant ones. Next time you are away from home, look for a Hilton... we know you'll enjoy your stay with us.
