Moore About -
property being denied by the City Commission.
As far as we were concerned, we were not taking sides with the news story, we were merely telling what happened at the city commission meeting.
Frankly, we think that the city needs to hold on to the airport property, but we also feel that the Sheriff's posse should be allowed to build a rodeo arena on part of the property with the assurance from the City that they will not have to tear it down at a later date. This could be done without building the arena so close to the landing strips that the airport would be condemned by the CAA. This is an air age. Gradually we will see air travel become more and more commonplace.
But the Sheriff's posse is getting the county and Eastland a lot of publicity and the Livestock Association is doing a wonderful job with the annual stock show. We would fight any move that we felt would hurt the success of the Livestock Show. But we feel that there is plenty of room for an airport, a rodeo arena and the site for the annual County Stock Show at the airport property.

That's it for now. See you Thursday.

Veterans Administration Names
Three Outstanding Graduates

The Veterans Administration, looking over the nation's 56 crop of veteran college graduates, today named a handless architect from Gulfport, Mississippi, and a polio-stricken director of religious education from Waco, Texas, as two of the three outstanding veteran graduates.

The architect is 36-year-old Cronan P. Leblanc, who received his AB Degree from Tulane University in New Orleans. Leblanc lost both hands and an eye in a dynamite explosion in World War II, and learned the skills of his profession by using books in place of hands.

Graduation at Baylor University in Waco was a great day in the life of the teacher of religion, William C. Monroe, 24, Korean Veteran with polio.

He received his diploma, Magna Cum Laude; He received a cup as highest ranking Baylor graduate, and he walked up to the stage to get his honors—first time he had been out of his wheelchair in four years. Physical Therapy, begun a year ago, had helped him regain use of his legs.

The other outstanding graduate named by VA's staff in Washington, D.C., was Edward Leslie of Lynn, Massachusetts, 25-year-old Korea Veteran who lost his sight in a bomb explosion in Korea, Graduating Cum Laude from Boston College. Leslie studied economics by listening to recordings made by classmates of lecture notes.

VA named the three outstanding graduates in a press release given to the nation's newspapermen and radio and television representatives at the National Press Club in Washington.

Leblanc is now taking a vacation at his home in Gulfport but intends to follow his new profession of architect. Monroe plans to stay on at Baylor for his master's degree, and then teach religion in college.

Monroe flew more than 80 missions as a radio operator with the air force in Korea before being stricken with polio. Before entering the air force he attended Crozier Tech in Dallas. The explosion which crippled Leblanc occurred at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, while he was serving as a staff sergeant with an infantry regiment.

VA pointed out that all three veterans waited until they had adjusted to their handicaps before enrolling in school under Public Law 16, the Vocational Rehabilitation Act for Disabled Veterans. The two southwestern veterans were given counseling and other assistance by VA Regional Offices at Jackson, Mississippi, New Orleans, Dallas and Waco.

Highways Take Bigger Total
Than Korean War

More Americans died on the highway in 1955 alone than on the battlefield during the entire Korean War.

The National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts," just off the press, shows there were 38,300 traffic deaths in the United States in 1955. Official Defense Department records list the battle deaths in the Korean War at 33,629.

"We don't for a moment want to imply that the highway is as hazardous as the battlefield," said Ned H. Dearborn, president of the Council. "But the fact is that the loss to the nation from the 1955 traffic toll is greater in terms of human life than the loss sustained in the Korean War. Therefore, it's certainly worth getting excited about."

Approximately 1,350,000 Americans were injured in motor vehicle accidents during the year, the Council said.

VISITED IN HEREFORD

Don Massingill has recently returned from Hereford where he spent two weeks with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Allison.

WEEK-END GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hale had as their week end guests, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Cullen of Forth Worth and Hale's brother, Barney Hale of Oakwood.

Humble To Put Golden Esso On Sale Locally

The new, extra-high performance gasoline developed recently by Humble Oil & Refining Company will be available in Eastland soon. H. D. Reese, local sales manager for Humble, announced today.

Humble's Golden Esso Extra gasoline, designed to satisfy the requirements of new high compression engines, will be available at three Humble service stations here beginning August 1.

"The need for this new gasoline became urgent earlier than was anticipated," Reese stated. "Our No. 1 gasoline, Humble Esso Extra, gives performance in the vast majority of the high-compression engines now on the road; however, there are already some automobiles that require a super-premium fuel. Golden Esso Extra is the answer to that need."
Reese pointed out that this innovation enables the motorist to select the fuel that meets the power requirements of his car at the lowest cost. "This is the economical way to provide for the ever-widening range in power requirements," he said. "Every step upward in the performance rating of a gasoline is a costly one; Golden Esso Extra will carry a three-cent higher tankwagon price than Esso Extra which is premium priced over Humble Motor Fuel. Thus the customer has the economic advantage of being able to choose the fuel that will operate his car at maximum efficiency."
Humble sales and service station personnel in this area attended a training meeting July 26 at Cisco where they were given details of the new gasoline and the overall marketing plan.
