Training School Had Interesting Session Sunday

The general assembly of the Baptist Training school, following the individual meeting of the departments, was conducted by Director Terrell Coleman Sunday in the Baptist church...

Affiliation is a great thing so long as it doesn't effect our own status. But dictatorship from one organization that looks at things from a viewpoint entirely different where no voice from the local angle had a chance to express their views in the instance should have no bearing on forming opinions...

Renounced Throne, But He's Not Sorry

Love and domestic happiness still mean more to Lennert Bernadotte than a kingdom. Here you see the grandson of King Gustaf of Sweden with his commoner wife for whom he renounced his royal title and his rights to the Swedish throne in a new picture of the couple just arrived in this country.

PLAN WORK FOR MEN NOT NOW ON RELIEF

AUSTIN, Nov. 21.—Mayors, county judges, relief board members and administrators met here today on plans to put 100,000 men to work.

The new work army is to be made up of unemployed, other than those on relief rolls. A first 100,000 made up of relief rolls men, went to work last Thursday.

Meantime the state relief commission continued its confirmation of local boards in counties where there are disputes.

Declaring it contravened the state relief law, Carl Estes of Tyler, tried unsuccessfully to get the commission to revoke its former notice to counties that relief boards, which started work without awaiting approval, never would be approved.

Atheism, Not Liquor Called Main Peril

POT WORTH, Nov. 21.—Pointing to Harvard University, Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, touring four-square gospel leader, said today it was not liquor but atheism in schools that is worrying her.

"It is dumbfounding the number of atheists you find in our schools," she said. "Recently I had lunch at Harvard. Students were amazed that an intelligent adult could still believe in the bible. Eleven out of twelve at the luncheon admitted they were disbelievers."

Hunting Party Kills Six Bucks On Trip

Lindbergh Lands In Azores Islands

HORTA, Azores Islands, Nov. 21.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh made a spectacular landing in the harbor here today after a thrilling battle against violent squalls and rainstorms in his 1,000-mile flight from Lisbon.

MANY PEOPLE PUT TO WORK IN EASTLAND

Eastland expended on direct relief last week $242.51 and $44.40 for work relief under the Texas relief commission. There was expended on civil works administration projects for the three days, Nov. 16, 17 and 18 in Eastland $1,493.20. For these three days there was expended in the county on 1,155 persons $7,613.18. This was on a basis of 35 cents per hour for a 30-hour week.

Persons wanting to register and those already registered should know that the mere fact of being registered and having passed the doctor's examination does not mean that they are eligible for work on these civil works administration (CWA) projects.

Broadly speaking the relief administration finds that it has to deal with four different classes of clients:

Class 1 is made up of those persons who, because of sickness, bereavement or any other cause or condition cannot present any fit members of the family for gainful employment and who have exhausted their every available means of support and are now destitute. These persons are eligible for direct relief.

Class 2 is made up of those persons or families who do have able-bodied and fit members that could be employed at something, but are unable to get work of any kind, or not enough to support themselves and have exhausted their every means of support or of caring for themselves. This class is eligible for direct relief if work relief cannot be supplied.

Class 3 is made up of those persons physically fit, but out of work and means, but who through relatives or other sources are maintaining themselves and still able to keep going. They are eligible for work under the public works administration (PWA).

Class 4 is composed of those who yet have means and not in anywise dependent upon the public or others but are out of work and want to keep on working because they are accustomed to working. They are eligible for registration under the national re-employment service (NRS) as are any of those occupationally qualified for any of the other classes.

Classes 1 and 2 are taken care of through funds supplied by federal and state governments and from any other source they may come, but they are gifts from the people of the country and if work is given it is merely to permit the recipient a balm for his feelings and the people as a whole who are putting up the money to get what ever return they may on their investment. The CWA does not offer a job in the accepted sense, that is, work at which you can earn money, but it does offer relief for the one who is down and out and that privilege should not be abused by anyone able to get along without it.

QUARTZ YIELDED RICHES

OLINGHOUSE, Nev. — Sixty pounds of quartz, panned out with pan and mortar, have produced $1,800 for Louis Farro and Steve Muffin, leasers of the Dondaro mine here. They have shipped $4,000 worth of amalgam to date.

His Appointment Blow to Tammany

Appointment by President Roosevelt of James J. Hoyer (above) to be Collector of Internal Revenue for the second New York district, was seen as an entering wedge in a Roosevelt-Al Smith alliance to reorganize Tammany Hall and to oust John Curry as its leader. Hoyer, a personal friend of Smith, is a Tammany bolter who defied Curry.

Move Soviet Records at Capital

While President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff were conferring on Russian recognition at the White House, three army trucks were carrying records from the Russian Embassy to a Government building for examination by American and Soviet officials. They were believed to deal with debts of the Kerensky regime. Here one of the Army trucks waits, under guard, to load up with the "mystery cargo."

Mathews said he had discussed a job with Chairman John Wood of the highway commission and that he expects Ferguson to tell him to do the right thing.

Henry Ford May Hold Conference With Roosevelt

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 21. The possibility of a "little white house" conference with Henry Ford arose today as President Roosevelt went forward with the task of directing his gigantic recovery program from his vacation retreat here.

While the temporary executive offices said no formal engagement for Ford had been made he would be received if he came here. At the same time close administration friends made it clear that they would not at all be surprised if the motor manufacturer arrived within the next few days for a visit.

First Woman to Be Married In County Dies at Staff Home

Funeral services are to be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Merriman by Rev. K. C. Edmonds of Ranger, for Mrs. Laney Ann Brashears, better known as "Aunt Laney Britton," of Staff, one of the pioneer settlers of Eastland county, who died at the home of her son by another marriage, Virgil Drake, of Staff.

The decedent was born January 19, 1846, and came to Eastland county in 1860, before the days of barbed wire fences. She is reported to be the first woman to be married in Eastland county after the county was organized.

She is survived by three sons and four daughters. Interment is to be in the Merriman cemetery following the services at the Merriman church.

Strike Ads Again Appear in Papers

HOUSTON, Nov. 21.—An advertisement seeking men willing to work under strike conditions appeared again in newspapers here today as the zero hour for calling a strike of Southern Pacific employees neared.

With railroad brotherhood officials counting their poll among 3,000 employees, indications were, the officials said, that a good majority would be sympathetic. The ballots will be counted and the result announced at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Both the railroad executives and employees stood firmly today giving no indication of a settlement before the strike deadline. Possibility of President Roosevelt intervening was speculated.

The principal points of dispute are the railroad's proposals to extend mileage of train crew service between points in Texas and Louisiana. The brotherhoods also object to the proposed elimination of several junctions.

Motor Drops From Plane In Flight, Hits City Street

COMMERCHE, Tex., Nov. 21.—The heavy motor of an airplane dropped from a ship as it flew over Commerce today, fell 1,500 feet and landed in the middle of a street, directly in front of the post office.

None was injured when the motor crashed to the ground and the two occupants of the ship, both of Dallas, succeeded in making a landing.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED

An automobile stolen some weeks ago from J. E. Smith of Okra has been recovered in Fort Worth and two men, alleged to have stolen it, are being held in jail at Cleburne.

Jersey Swamp Is Scene of The Descent

Major Fordney walked three miles through a swamp today to reach a telephone and spread the news of the safe landing. Settle remained with the balloon to guard the equipment.

"We made what the commander called a normal landing," said Fordney. "We were unhurt and the balloon was not damaged."

The flight to an altitude of more than 58,000 feet, only 4,000 feet under the world record, was a scientific venture to study cosmic rays.

The balloon left Akron, Ohio, yesterday, floated over Pennsylvania and was lost from sight over New Jersey. When it was not reported today scores of airplanes ships and land parties sought for it over a wide area.

The descent was on a mud flat along the Delaware river at 5:50 p. m. yesterday. Almost 16 hours elapsed before word of the safety of the men was spread. They apparently feared to get through the swamp during the night.

Bida Appeals Two Year Verdict In Trial for Arson

Attorneys for Frank Bida, Eastland garage man, convicted in the Stephens county district court on an arson charge and given a two year sentence, filed notice of appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin and Mr. Bida was released on bond.

Bida is alleged to have burned his place of business in Eastland about three years ago. On three former trials in 88th district court at Eastland, the juries were unable to agree on a verdict.

The case was sent to Stephens county on the court's motion.

Lee Tracy Facing Charges In Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21.—Lee Tracy, American moving picture star, faced arraignment today on charges of violating the government morals and insulting the government, the result of a personal appearance, informal and undraped, on a hotel balcony.

Specifically, it was alleged Tracy, clad only in a blanket, appeared on a balcony Sunday during a parade in celebration of the anniversary of the revolution.

Searchers Find Officer's Body

EDINBURG, Tex., Nov. 21.—Revival of political warfare in the Rio Grande valley was feared when the body of E. G. Guzman, former constable, was found five miles from Edinburg today.

He had been killed with a charge of buckshot at close range, the deputy sheriff said. Officers found the body after a county-wide search started when Guzman failed to return home from a hunting trip.

The body was found soon after his abandoned machine had been discovered on a seldom-travelled road. Guzman carried a rifle.

Did you ever notice that business executives get paid for the results they secure while the politician, on the other hand, has little responsibility? In many cases, so long as he is in the limelight and can make his constituents believe they have elected something exceptional as their representative, he is perfectly satisfied.

How to make a living is the problem confronting most of the people today. They are too busy solving the daily bread puzzle to give much thought to anything else.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT advertising is the best selling force in existence. Advertising means the honest telling of goods or service.

Advertising brings a business before the public. Advertising is necessary for the success of any business.

It is necessary for a business concern to have quality in goods or service and to sell at a reasonable price.

Next, it is necessary to tell what they have for sale by truthful advertising and to continue that method so long as that business exists.

Newspaper advertising helps to meet outside competition more effectively and to secure trade that rightfully belongs to the home city.

Progressive business men today know that it pays to maintain quality and that it pays to advertise and tell the public about it.

The success of every business depends upon the reputation it has in the community in which it is located.

The needed reputation can be acquired only by service, quality and advertising.

Recognition of Russia Will Mean Sales of Cotton

By United Press

FORT WORTH.— Recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States and opening channels of trade should mean an annual market for 1,000,000 additional bales of Texas cotton.

This will be one of the two direct effects of Russian recognition, Dr. Elliott told the United Press. The other will be increased importation of sulphur from the United States.

Russia's potential cotton market will be the greatest factor felt by Texas, he continued. The Soviet Republics provide a market for 2,000,000 bales of American cotton annually.

Recognition of Russia with this cotton market should enable the federal government to forego the probability of plowing under or elimination in some manner of 9,000,000 acres of cotton land next year.

The average person, the corner drug store or the village grocery probably will not be able to tell an appreciable immediate effect of Russian recognition, he said.

Heavy industries of the East, steel and machinery, probably will be the first to profit. Workers in steel industries will consume more raw products, cotton, clothing and wheat, which Texas provides.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou BROOKMAN
DIXIE BEA 28-24-33

BEHIND HERE TODAY

On a stormy November evening BANNISTER meets a girl in the cab in which he is to be heading across and as a result inside.

Next morning Bannister reads in the newspaper that a girl has been found dead in a rooming house. He remembers the girl in the taxi cab, and he tells her name to JIMMY FRANK and swears to know nothing of the murder. He begs Bannister to help him.

He goes to his old friend, PATTON, editor of the Evening Post, and announces to work on the King murder case for the Post. Later he returns to the hotel to see Juliet France and learns she has disappeared.

Bannister goes to the room in which King died, and finds an object which he puts in his pocket. He then goes to the apartment below King's, and recently with MELVINA HOLLISTER, spinster, who lives in the apartment below King's. Bannister takes a car downtown, and from his pocket the object he found in King's room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

ONE side of the cardboard was gray and discolored. Bannister turned it over and studied the photograph on the other side. It was a photograph of a man and a woman—the man sitting down, the woman standing, with one hand resting on his shoulder.

It must have been taken 25 or 30 years before. The woman's dress was white, a rather elaborate dress with ruffled skirt reaching to the floor and lace about the modestly cut neck. A style of dress worn by Bannister thought, in the early 1900's. In her arm she held a bouquet of roses. She was a pretty woman, young looking.

The man beside her was older. He appeared rather formidable in his black suit which must have been the utmost in elegance for its day. His dark hair, in Bannister's judgment, was badly in need of thinning. Bannister would have dispensed with the heavy mustache too.

It was, beyond all doubt, a wedding picture. No need to take in such details as the bridal bouquet or the sprig of orange blossoms pinned in the young woman's hair.

Yes, an old-fashioned wedding picture. A curious thing to find with the golf clubs and cocktail shaker and stock of "blues" songs on the bedroom of the dead orchestra leader. Bannister studied the picture in the photograph. Neither so far as he could see, resembled Tracy King.

He did not know why he had put the photograph in his pocket except that he wanted to study it further and Link's coming had prevented that. He looked at the bottom of the card and read "Swann Studio." In flowing gilt script below in smaller letters was the name of a town he had never heard of, located in another state.

For several moments Bannister looked at the two faces. Then he gave it up. There was certainly nothing in that old photograph to give him any information about Tracy King's murder. Nothing whatever. He slipped the picture back into his pocket and thought that, as an amateur detective, he was probably the world's worst.

STILL he had the story of Melvina Hollister's quarrel with King. Apparently the police had not heard of that. Not that Bannister himself considered it important. Probably Mrs. Kennel had exaggerated the whole thing as women are likely to do who have little to occupy their time except gossip.

On the other hand, Bannister reasoned, the story might have its importance. It helped to piece together the background of Tracy King's life during the past few days. Practical detectives, he knew, always tried to do that. They considered every detail, at most as though they were fitting pieces of a jigsaw puzzle, then went to work, fitting the details together. Bannister felt rather proud of himself. He had something which he could go to Captain McNeal now and say, "Here's a tip I picked up that may be worth looking into—"

The photograph in his pocket, on the other hand, wasn't worth mentioning. He'd keep that to himself.

Bannister was thinking of McNeal and the tip he had to offer him when another thought interrupted it. Had been a tip for McNeal that had sent Bannister walking down town that morning, the inquiry question whether or not to tell the detective about the girl in the taxi cab. Bannister smiled wryly. Well, he had been a slick one and he had fallen completely for her gulle! He had fallen so completely that, looking about Tracy King's rooms an hour or so earlier, he had actually searched for the memorandum she had said she lost there.

What nonsense! As though he didn't know every word she had spoken was false!

"And if you found it," Bannister berated himself, "I suppose you'd have kept it for her." Well, there was no note there. There never had been such a note.

AT THE TOP of the column were the words "By J. Randolph Gainey." Bannister read hastily as he walked. There was nothing that was new to him in the story except the facts that Scurlach was a plasterer by trade, that he and Carlotta had been married for two years and that they lived at an address on Waverly Ave.

In another column Bannister read, "Search Continues for Missing Blond." There was nothing new beneath that headline either. A description of the girl wanted in connection with the King murder, so the account read, had been broadcast to city and county authorities throughout nearby states. Her apprehension could be only a matter of hours now. Still there was not the slightest clue of her whereabouts.

"She's a slick one," Bannister reminded himself, and thought that the hollow feeling that came over him must be due to going without his lunch.

He turned into the Evening Post building. The elevator was not in sight so he climbed the stairs. Two flights. His breath was coming in deep puffs when he reached the top. After all, he certainly wasn't as young as he had been.

He pushed through the gate erected to keep bothersome visitors from the editorial department. The place was half in darkness, lighted only by two low hung, green-shaded lamps. For a moment he thought there was no one there. Then he made out two figures—a man bending over the drinking fountain in the corner and, at a desk, crouching awkwardly behind the open pages of a newspaper—Gainey!

Bannister felt a rush of jubilation as he crossed the floor. "Hi there, Gainey!" he called. "How about going out to have something to eat?"

The younger man shifted his legs from the table to the floor, varied the angle of his felt hat. "Suits me," he said without change of expression. "Where'd you want to go?"

In a small restaurant two blocks away they found a table for two. Gainey, who had had little to say during the walk to the restaurant, leaned forward.

"I went out to see that Scurlach dame after you left, he confided. "Did you get a story from her?"

"I'll say I did!" the reporter's face was suddenly animated. "And what a story!"

Plans Made For Spring Racing Season In Texas

FORT WORTH. — Extensive preparations have already started for the spring horse racing season at Arlington Downs, almost before the dust of the first meeting has cleared away.

Enlargement of the W. T. Waggoner course, with erection of larger stands and a longer track, is to begin about the first of December. Work on the track will start soon to have it in condition for the spring races.

The large crowds that swarmed to the recent meet overflowed the present stands. A new grandstand to seat 15,000 persons is to be erected.

Average daily attendance at the meet just finished was about 9,000, with the closing day attracting some 35,000. Altogether, some 200,000 persons witnessed the 21 day meet.

In addition an extension of the lawn in front of the stands and club house will be made to provide more room for spectators and to permit freer movement of bettors.

The pace at which fans played the pari-mutuels, turning over approximately $2,000,000 in the meet, found the present booths inadequate. Additional, conveniently located betting booths are to be constructed.

With the 21-day spring meet, from March 29 to April 21, expected to attract many eastern horses training for the Kentucky Derby, stables for 200 more horses will be built. Stable facilities on the Three D farm could not take care of the more than 1,000 animals entered in the recent meet.

A larger number of horses is expected to be attracted by the $10,000 added purse for the Texas Derby and the raising of the minimum purse from $600 to $700.

"I'll say I did!" the reporter's face was suddenly animated. "And what a story!"

(To Be Continued)

HUTCHINSON, Kan.—Crowning may be a pain in the neck to some people, but a Hutchinson jury evidently liked it when an attorney crooned for them just before they retired to consider a case. Barrister Don Shaffer crooned a parody on "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf," making it "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Jury," singing the entire song. A favorable verdict to his client was returned.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it! And the habitual use of irritating salts, or of powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets may prove injurious.

A week with a properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will tell you a lot. A few weeks' time, and your bowels can be "as regular as clockwork." Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.
