Howls and Boos At Hearing On Primary Election

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 15. Amid tumultuous howls and boos, a senate committee resumed its investigation today of Louisiana's senatorial primary of 1932.

The boos and howls came despite an announcement by Senator Tom Connally of Texas that the investigating committee will not be intimidated by any "group, faction or individual."

Senator Connally took charge of the hearing. Hearings yesterday and the day before when Senator M. M. Logan presided, were marked by boos and cheers from the spectators, denunciation of committee members by anti-Long rival political factions and heated disagreement between Logan and Charles Holland, the committee's chief investigator.

Procedure of State At Repeal Convention Is Still In Doubt

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—Procedure for Texas to register its vote for repeal of national prohibition is in doubt, other than that the ratification convention delegates will meet in Austin Nov. 24.

The statute providing for the submission of the question and election of convention delegates sets out no procedure, though it was the general understanding that a course similar to that followed in casting the state's electoral vote would be followed.

The place for gathering is not designated further than that it shall be in Austin. Following the electoral custom, the session probably will be held in the state senate chamber. The secretary of state calls the presidential electors to order, but the ratification act does not give him that power for the ratification convention.

In the absence of a provision, it is expected the delegates will elect their own chairman and secretary. The convention must certify its action to the secretary of state. He will then certify it to Washington.

Lacking any directing hand, fears have been expressed that enough delegates will not attend to make the ratification legal. Sixteen must attend. Secretary of State Heath has suggested each delegate get in touch with his alternate and notify the alternate if unable to attend. Alternates are also requested to communicate with their principals, so one or the other may be present.

Certificates of election are being sent out by the governor to each of the 29 delegates and to the 30 alternates. Two delegates and one alternate have died since their election on Aug. 26.

Following is a list of the delegates and alternates. The number preceding the names indicates the district represented:

WORK PROJECTS ARE DISCUSSED AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The administration today inaugurated its project to put 4,000,000 unemployed back to work in a month.

The first move was an explanation by President Roosevelt and his work administrators of a work program to make available $400,000,000 by Dec. 15 for the salaries of workers, many of whom have been long unemployed.

Twenty governors, 150 mayors, 250 state and city engineers and 80 state and city relief administrators came to Washington to obtain details of the program.

The mayors, among them Walter Nelson of Wichita Falls, Texas, were enthusiastic. They said the program was the greatest from the standpoint of the city dweller yet undertaken.

It was estimated that if 4,000,000 men go back to work by Dec. 15 that means that about 18,000,000 persons will go off the relief rolls in that time. This is based on the figure of 4.4 persons in every family.

Cisco West Side Petitions Court For Beer Election

A petition to the Eastland county commissioners' court asking that the commissioners call an election on 3.2 beer in the west side voting district of Cisco, was presented the court this week. The petition carried the required number of names and was taken up for consideration by the court.

Action on the petition, however, was deferred until some legal points could be ruled upon. The court was of the opinion that the law did not permit an election in a voting district since a voting district is not a political sub-division of the county. Also there was some question as to whether an election could be called under six months from the date of the recent county-wide election of beer.

The court has asked Criminal District Attorney Grady Owen to give them a ruling on the legal points in question and action on the petition will be had as soon as possible.

Ghost Still Walks At Water Hole Is Belief of Many

STEPHENVILLE.—The ghost of the McDow still walks—and the watering hole by that name in Green's Creek near here is shunned by men as a thing accursed.

A pall of gloom seems to hang over the spot, kept alive by the three-fold tales of the ranch and farm folk who live near about.

The story goes back 70 years. Ranchers coming to the waterhole one day found a woman and her baby murdered on the banks of the McDow. They were buried on the creek bank, near the waterhole.

The tragedy, in time, was almost forgotten—until one evening a man named Petty and his wife stopped at the McDow to get a barrel of water. They saw a woman with a baby in arms walking to the water hole. She stopped at the water's edge, gazed across at the Petty's, then walked back to the grave and disappeared.

Mrs. Boone, distracted by anonymous telephone calls which told of the purported courting of her husband, with a friend drove to Mrs. Hall's rooms and on a ruse got her to drive back to the Boone apartment.

Mrs. Boone and her friend, in a statement to police, said Mrs. Hall admitted during the ride to the apartment that she had been going with Boone six months.

The fatal shot, fired from a .45 calibre revolver, entered the right breast and came out the left breast. Mrs. Hall died five minutes after an ambulance arrived.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Most people will agree that the future of any nation depends largely upon the education of the rising generation.

The wisdom shown by statesmen and ruling bodies in prescribing the type of study that shall be given to the young has its reward in the stabilizing of the national outlook and contributes more than anything else to that cohesion against which radical ideas and bolshevism find themselves powerless.

The national situation is yet grave. In order to advance the prosperity of the country, it is particularly important that those connected with educational and cultural work should themselves set a fine example for others to follow; to give their students wise guidance; to encourage the people; to help invigorate national courage.

They should strive to arouse in all around them a fine spirit of cooperation in the work of tiding the country over the present crisis.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS

CLEAN FOOTBALL

The UNKNOWN BLOND By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

On a stormy November evening DAVID BANNISTER meets a pretty blond girl and offers her a lift in the cab in which he is riding. Her handbag opens and he sees a revolver inside.

Next morning Bannister reads that TRACY KING, orchestra leader in a movie theater, has been found dead in his apartment. Police are searching for an "unknown blond" who visited King the night before.

He goes to see his old friend, JIM PAXTON, editor of the Tremont Post.

JIM PAXTON'S face lighted as he saw the figure in the doorway. "Hello there!" he exclaimed. "Glad you came around."

"What's new on the murder?" Bannister asked.

"Nothing—apparently. I guess they're still looking for the mysterious blond. More promises that they'll have her at headquarters within 24 hours."

"What's new on the murder?" Bannister asked.

"Nothing—apparently. I guess they're still looking for the mysterious blond. More promises that they'll have her at headquarters within 24 hours."

"What's new on the murder?" Bannister asked.

"What's new on the murder?" Bannister asked.

"Nothing—apparently. I guess they're still looking for the mysterious blond. More promises that they'll have her at headquarters within 24 hours."

"What's new on the murder?" Bannister asked.

With a quick half-turn Austin exclaimed, "They've just brought that girl in!"

reporters, do you? Well, I'll take the job.

"You'll take it?" Bannister nodded. "I'd like to take a fling at it," he said.

"Why not?" Bannister was talking eagerly now. "I'd like to find out who killed Tracy King—and why. Oh, I don't suppose I'll be much help to you! Probably I'm stale; help out of harness too long. But I can do leg work. I'd like to be on the inside of a murder story once more. I used to have a pretty good standing with McNeal and I'll bet I still know half the force—"

"Go to it!" Paxton told him curtly. "There was never a better police reporter in Tremont than you were, Dave. Maybe you'll get some ideas you can use in a novel."

"Yes, and maybe I'll get my neck broken." Suddenly Dave Bannister grinned. "This is going to be fun! Going to be—"

"There's one thing," he said, "I don't want to cut in on any of your boys. I mean whoever is handling the story. Your man can write all the by-line stories. All I want to do is work with him. Whatever I get I'll turn over for him to write—"

TEN minutes later Paxton and Bannister were in the city room—the same large, square city room, scarcely changed, where Bannister had worked years before.

The city desk was set at a different angle. Bannister recognized most of the men gathered around it. Desks and cabinets covered most of the floor space. They had been rearranged, too, but the room had the same old atmosphere.

disorder and preoccupation that he remembered. From beyond came the muffled roaring and whining and grinding of machines. Oh, it was all quite familiar.

But the faces of the men and women about the room were different. Paxton strode a few steps forward, then called, "Oh—Ganey! Got a moment?"

Down came the outspread pages of a newspaper. Down came the tipped-back chair. A young man with a brown felt hat tipped back at a rakish angle upon a head of very red hair emerged from behind the newspaper. He crushed out his cigarette and got to his feet.

"Yes, Mr. Paxton," said J. Randolph Ganey. "Sure! Is there anything—?"

He did not finish the sentence. A pair of eyes of unusual blueness searched Paxton's. J. Randolph Ganey was slender and slightly below average height. His cheeks and the ridge of his nose were amply sprinkled with the freckles that so often accompany red hair and a fair skin. J. Randolph Ganey was 22 years old but he had packed into those 22 years a list of activities that was amazing. Confidence and energy he never lacked. One subject, and only one, was there on which J. Randolph Ganey was susceptible to the world's darts and that, at least in the office of the newspaper, was unguessed. No one on the Post knew that the "J" in the wirey little reporter's name stood for Jeremiah. No one would ever know it if it were possible for J. Randolph Ganey to prevent it.

"Ganey," Jim Paxton was saying, "this is Mr. Bannister—David Bannister. Used to work here. Since then he's been to New York and written some novels and made a name for himself. Been to Mexico, too, and Hollywood and I don't know where all."

A CHEERFUL grin overspread the reporter's face. "Sure," he said, "I've seen the picture they made from 'Cheerful Liar.' Called it 'Slave of Desire,' didn't they? It was a good picture, too. I heard that you were in Tremont—"

"Wait a minute," Paxton said. "I'd better get Austin." Austin was the assistant city editor, carrying on in place of his chief.

In another moment the four men stood together while Paxton explained Bannister's status as a sort of ex-officio member of the staff. Austin was nodding understandingly and Ganey looked perplexed. Some of this perplexity faded as Paxton repeated, "It's still your story, Ganey. Bannister's not to write any of the copy. He's to work with you, take part of the burden. Who's down at headquarters now, by the way?"

"Cunningham," Austin informed him.

"I came in to write the lead," Ganey explained. He glanced at the clock on the opposite wall—a quick, nervous glance. "Guess I'd better be getting back," he went on.

"Bannister will go with you," Paxton spoke tersely. "And see if you can't get something this time! Make Henley talk. He must have something he's holding back! Try to get the description of that girl they're looking for. How do they expect to find her if they don't let us know what she looks like? For God's sake, give us something new for the final—"

A telephone shrilled, interrupting. A loud voice called, "Austin! It's Cunningham on the wire. From headquarters!"

The assistant city editor ran to the desk and picked up the instrument. "Hello, hello!" he said nervously. "Yes—this is Austin."

The others drifted nearer, as though drawn by an irresistible force. Now Austin was pulling copy paper toward him, one hand holding the receiver to his ear.

"Yes," he said excitedly. "I got it. Go on!" With a quick half turn toward Paxton he exclaimed, "They've just brought that girl in—the one they've been looking for!"

U. Freshmen Developing Many Outstanding Men

The present varsity squad. The team finished its freshman year without defeat and repeatedly ran rough shod in practice over this year's varsity.

All-state high school players, expert runners, good blockers, plenty of weight and a phenomenal passer in Sammy Baugh of Sweetwater make up the glittering ensemble.

Baugh, an all-state high school player, contributed enormously to the freshman team's success. He is an excellent field manager and a dangerous triple threat star.

In Scott McCall, 190-pounder from Masonic Home, Schmidt undoubtedly will have one of the best ball carriers in the southwest conference. Freshman Coach Meyer terms him a "master at backing the line."

Other backfield talent is abundant. Wilbur (Cotton) Harrison, fullback from Temple, weighs 177 pounds, and packs a battering-ram punch. He rarely misses the so-hard-to-get one or two yards for a first or for a touchdown. In the line, Sandy Higler from Cleburne promises to be good varsity material for center.

Fox "Berkeley Square" Opens

pendent effort by Jesse L. Lasky, has been produced on an elaborate scale, somewhat similar to "Cavalcade." The picture was directed by Frank Lloyd, maker of "Cavalcade," and boasts a notable cast headed by Leslie Howard and Heather Angel.
"Berkeley Square," which played twice in London and for eight months on Broadway as a play, is unusual in theme. The story concerns itself with a man of the present who believes the past still exists. His desire to take himself back 150 years becomes so great that he forgets the present and finds himself living in the eighteenth century. As a man of the present living in the past, Leslie Howard finds he has many difficult problems to solve, the most important of which is his love for Heather Angel. The mutual attraction of these two people, each from a different era, gives "Berkeley Square" the unusual touch that has made it, the talk of the country.
Leslie Howard who has a difficult role to portray, is said to give an inspired performance that outdoes any of his former roles. Heather Angel who is seen opposite Howard plays her most important role to date. The remaining members of the cast include Valerie Taylor, Irene Browne, Olaf Hytten, Beryl Mercer, Colin Keith-Johnson, Alan Mowbray, Juliette Compton, Betty Lawford, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Samuel Hindin and David Torrence.

16 Million Will Eat at Government Table This Winter
By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON. — More than 16,000,000 hungry will eat at the government's table this winter.
The homeless will be given shelter. The ragged will be given clothes. At a cost of perhaps $1,000,000,000 will be carried out the edict of President Roosevelt that there will be no suffering of Americans, simply because of the depression.
His many-faceted relief plan is enormous in scope; unique in character. Never before in history has the government attempted to find work for its citizens—and to feed and clothe them until jobs are forthcoming.
Two million men already have been given steady wages through federal construction projects. Mr. Roosevelt has promised to find jobs for 4,000,000 more before the snows of winter get deep. To do this the president has established the Civil Works Administration, which will spend $400,000,000.
While the jobless wait for the factory whistles to blow, the steam shovels to puff and the concrete mixers to rattle, the federal emergency relief administration, under direction of Harry B. Hopkins, will be caring for them and their families.

About 3,370,000 families, with an average of 4.4 persons in each, now are on the relief rolls. Hopkins has spent almost half of a $500,000 allotment to feed them so far. If his money runs out he hopes to get more.
He is distributing 100,000,000 pounds of canned beef. He is buying 2,000,000 pounds of butter a week. He has bought 11,579,000 bushels of wheat, intends to buy more, and will grind it all into flour. He has purchased $175,000 worth of apples.
He plans to buy coal before the weather gets cold; blankets, shoes and clothing. He hopes to purchase dried beans, eggs and milk. He even may pay the rent for some of the needy.
His purchases and cash grants, meantime, are being matched by states and other governments at the ratio of one government dollar to every three local dollars, thus quadrupling the federal efforts to make this the first happy winter since the depression began for millions of citizens.
Hopkins has not forgotten the transient jobless. His program includes provisions for them.

Borrowed this: A naturalist once divided an aquarium with a bass in one section and minnows in the other. At first the bass would strike every time a minnow passed the glass partition. After several days of fruitless lunging which netted him only bruises, he ceased his efforts and subsisted on the food that was dropped in. Then the naturalist removed the glass partition. The minnows swam all around the bass, but he did not strike at a single one. He was thoroughly sold on the idea that business was bad. Moral—Take another shot at the glass partition. Maybe it isn't there any more. Borrowed this too: A man who had run out of gas on the outskirts of a country town saw a boy coming down the road carrying a big tin can. "Say boy," he yelled. "I hope that's gasoline you have in that can." "Well, I hope it ain't," returned the boy. "It would taste like the dickens on Ma's pancakes." And so it would.
