

Right Of Cisco To Armistice Game Protested

that reminds me...

Once again we will take the opportunity to bring every taxpayer Eastland the importance of paying your school taxes. In the first place as we have said before, the fact that you neglect payment when you lose the benefit of being salary money in circulation. In the second place, our school teachers can only depend on their salaries to pay the rent, their board, and their wants with the business interests here in Eastland. So, when you hold back paying your school taxes you gum up the whole works. And there is no use trying to get yourself... they've got to be paid some time, so why not? Nobody is asking the people something to get by on or for... it's an obligation that every American citizen owes to his community, whether you have children in school or not. So pay your taxes and get it over with. Just because the school tax collector sends you that your taxes are due is no use to get all swelled about it. When he says they are due he is doing you a favor, it should be appreciated. The owners of Eastland put the tax collector on the job. How in the world can he do his job efficiently if the people themselves don't co-operate with him by paying? Some of us ask him if he can't collect and some of us cuss him if he tries to collect. With a kind of wishy-washy sentiment he hasn't already gone crazy, he won't. So let's get down to common sense and figure the thing out by making every effort to pay now. It isn't our fight alone, it's yours as well.

There is a petition at the Community Gas Company... more by elsewhere, we don't know, the Mayor hailed this column Saturday and asked us to look up this petition and sign it if we were inclined to do so. When we read it we only wished that we had signed it twice. It had to do with the postoffice for Eastland. Every citizen can well proceed in line and sign it. It is addressed to our distinguished Congressman, Thomas L. Blanton, and the cards right on the table. It is up to him to trump it.

Whether the idea originated in the mind of the mayor or not, it's immaterial. If it did, he is the job as usual... but anyway a darn good one and should give results. If we are entitled to a postoffice, which it seems that we are, then Mr. Blanton or any other should put anything in the way to keep us from having one, and we still have faith in Mr. Blanton to feel that he will be behind the movement with all the power he has. And that seems to be plenty. Thanks to Mayor Bland... and we hope every citizen in Eastland will sign this petition.

Dr. Wynekoop, woman physician residing at the home of her father, has confessed to the murder of her 23-year-old daughter-in-law. This confession seems to have come after a grueling test of endurance subjected by officials of the law. Whether she did or not is still a problem. About the most useless and persecuting tactics of the law that we know of is the so-called third degree methods, which are used over any one individual. Who wouldn't confess to anything in the way to get out from under the torture of constant relays of questioners who have no regard for feelings nor what the consequences may be whether the one that is innocent or not. If they are innocent they have no recourse, and if guilty, then there is a lot of chest thumping. The thing is still in the balance.

Perhaps Dr. Wynekoop is guilty, but that remains to be proven after a confession which any one, whether criminal or not can repudiate. It was a terrible murder... that is sufficient. Somebody did it, that is evident. But these third degree methods do not always get the right party and they should be positively abolished. We're still in the barbarian age, and it is funny how people that profess religion in many instances, can crucify and torture, and particularly those who are supposed to uphold the law can commit crimes more atrocious than the crime investigated.

We who go about our business saying out of trouble... for which we are fortunate... just (Continued on page 4)

Victim's Mate

Earl Wynekoop, 27, above, faced grilling by Chicago police in the hunt for the slayer of his wife, Rheta, victim in one of the most eerie murder mysteries in the city's history. His detention was ordered while he was on his way west, after he was traced to Kansas City, Mo.

DR. WYNEKOOP TURNED OVER TO THE SHERIFF

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Dr. Alice Wynekoop was turned over to the sheriff today for incarceration in the county jail on a charge of murdering her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop. Judge Joseph Rheta granted a continuance in the case of her son, Earle, until Monday upon the promise of prosecuting attorneys that they would place a formal charge against him before the end of the day.

Both Rheta's husband and the mother-in-law fought to shield each other. As their attorneys went into court seeking whittles in their behalf, the mother-in-law reiterated her "confession" and the husband declared it was "a pack of lies."

"The only true statement in mother's confession was the part about Rheta was in a habit of weighing herself," said Earle's statement.

Telephone Message Says Brook Hart Is Still Living

SAN JOSE, Calif., Nov. 25.—A new series of telephone calls and notes have been received by Alex Hart, father of Brook Hart, missing 22-year-old youth, it was learned here today.

Sheriff Emig of Santa Clara county refused to directly confirm the fact the messages offered to return Hart alive for the original $40,000 ransom, which was demanded.

Foreign Trade Shows Increase

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—United States foreign trade continued to expand in October with exports reaching the highest levels in two years, the department of commerce reported today.

Exports were valued in October at $134,000,000, against $160,000,000 in September and were the highest since October 1931, when they were $204,905,000.

Victim of Weird Chicago Slaying

Death struck golden-haired Rheta Wynekoop, 23, above, in the gloomy basement of the weather-beaten Chicago mansion of her mother-in-law, Dr. Alice L. Wynekoop, sending police along a twisting trail crisscrossed by a maze of conflicting clues. The victim was found with a bullet through her back, on a basement operatin table, the one nearby. A $5,000 insurance policy had been taken out on her life only a few days before, police learned. Dr. Alice Wynekoop has confessed to killing her.

TEST OF FIRST 3.2 BEER CASE BEFORE COURT

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—First test of the 3.2 beer law reached the court of criminal appeals here today on appeal of Harold Letcher from a $25 county court fine in Mitchell county.

A date for argument of the case has not been set. Mitchell county still is dry territory under the local option regulation provided for in the act legalizing beer.

Several distinct points are raised in the appeal. One is there is now no law in the state prohibiting sale of 3.2 beer in dry territory. Another contention is Mitchell county has remained dry and the beer act has not taken effect in it and the case should have been tried under the Dean law.

Texas "Talkathon" Is Predicted As Candidates Make Announcements

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas appears doomed to endure a political "talkathon."

For many years, April 21, San Jacinto Day, was considered the earliest proper date for announcement of State candidacies.

Modern politicians have broken the precedent. Pat Neff had his first race for Governor virtually won by San Jacinto Day.

Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, started the 1934 campaign with his announcement for Attorney General. Joseph Weldon Bailey of Dallas, congressman at-large, declared himself in the race for United States Senator. Attorney General James V. Allred is expected to make his intentions on the race for Governor clear on Dec. 15.

At Austin there is practically no doubt that Allred's answer to Del Rio friends asking him to run will be a vociferous "Yes."

Allred's announcement likely will be the signal for statements from Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt of Waco; State Senator Clint Small of Amarillo and others.

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson will not be heard until later. Political custom permits an office holder to be considered a candidate for a second term until contrary declaration.

Like the Walkathons, the "talkathon" will start off with an easy schedule. Many of the starting contestants will drop out early. There will be a big wedding on June 4. Before that day is over a candidate must have given official notice of intention to run. Some will drop out when the campaign assessment must be paid. County candidates can remain in their local race unofficially until June 16.

A first primary to be held on July 28, will narrow the contest down to two in each race. The run-off will be on Aug. 25.

Mrs. Alex Adams of San Antonio still aspires to be Texas' first Congresswoman. This time she will run in the new 20th Texas district which comprises Bexar county alone. Mrs. Adams left the recent convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, here, planning to announce her candidacy. Her prominence in club affairs cannot be used in her campaign, under a rule of the State Federation.

CONTENTION IS LEAGUE RULES WERE VIOLATED

Formal Letter of Protest Sent To District Committee By Holloway.

R. F. Holloway, superintendent of the Ranger public schools, Saturday sent a letter to L. E. Dudley, chairman of the Oil Belt district committee, protesting the right to accept the Armistice Day game, which Ranger won from Cisco by a score of 7 to 6, and which Cisco protested on the grounds that Horace Hill was ineligible.

The right of Cisco to accept the game is based on an interscholastic rule which says that when evidence of ineligibility of a player is found by another school the information shall immediately be forwarded to the school on whose team the ineligible player is playing.

According to Mr. Holloway and other school officials, Roy Henderson, chairman of the interscholastic league, has stated that in such instances the school filing the protest should not be eligible to accept the forfeited game. Information has been obtained to prove that the officials of the Cisco High school inspected the birth records in Eastland several days before the Cisco-Ranger game and discussed the fact that they had evidence to prove Hill was ineligible. On the basis of this evidence the Ranger school superintendent is asking that, since Ranger has lost the game by forfeit, a defeat should be charged against Cisco on the grounds that they knew of the ineligibility and did not abide by interscholastic league rules in reporting it immediately, but waited until after the Lohoes had been defeated on the gridiron before any protest was filed.

The letter, which was sent Saturday morning to L. E. Dudley at Abilene by special delivery this morning, reads as follows:

"To the Executive Football Committee, District No. 2,

"Mr. L. E. Dudley, chairman.

"Now comes R. F. Holloway representing the Ranger High school in the matter of the eligibility of Horace Hill and would represent to this body that on Wednesday of this week he mailed to the chairman, L. E. Dudley, a statement announcing that Ranger conceded the ineligibility of Horace Hill who played in the football contests against Eastland, Abilene and Cisco and further stating that Ranger was forfeiting these three games. Contemporaneous with this statement of forfeiture was the statement to the chairman over the phone that Ranger was not conceding the right of Cisco to profit by the forfeiture but that on the other hand that Ranger would reserve the right to contest the claims of Cisco to any benefit as to standing in the district because of such forfeiture. This is to assert that right and for this purpose we are asking an early meeting of your committee to decide this issue.

"Bearing on the question we would show that Ranger played Horace Hill in absolute good faith, having no intimation that he was not eligible from the standpoint of (Continued on page 4)

RAIL STRIKE IS DELAYED AT HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Nov. 25.—All was quiet on two labor fronts here today.

Walkout of 3,000 Southern Pacific railroad employes at noon today was averted by intervention of President Roosevelt, and a longshoremen's riot was held under control by heavily armed officers.

Appointment of a board of mediation by President Roosevelt at Warm Springs brought statements from brotherhood officials and the Southern Pacific management that the threatened strike of employes in Texas and Louisiana had been halted.

Fred Lewis, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and spokesman for the four groups sponsoring the strike, said when told of the president's action, "that means the strike order has been postponed."

Stevadores, non-members of the International Longshoremen's association, slept aboard a freighter in the Houston ship channel last night under protection of the police following a riot.

MANY FAMILIES TAKEN FROM RELIEF ROLLS

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—Approximately 9,500 families have been removed from Texas relief rolls together with about 10,000 single persons by civil works projects, records of the Texas relief commission showed today.

Approved civil works projects now total nearly 2,000, according to state relief director Westbrook. Relief staff members, however, estimated there will be about 125,000 families on direct relief rolls by Dec. 31. Prior to the CWA program, the average monthly relief load in Texas for the winter had been estimated at 225,000 cases.

With the CWA program in full swing, directors will turn, next week, to consider the problems of unemployed women. Proposed work projects for them include teaching, clerical, nursing, sewing rooms and library duties.

Two Dallas attorneys announced today they would file the suit in behalf of the Arnold girl. The suit, to be filed in federal court, is the aftermath of a meeting of the donors of the reward in Oklahoma City at which it was decided the young girl's information was not pertinent of the arrest of the Kellys.

SHARPSHOOTING WRITERS ADVANCE TO CENTER OF THE STAGE

There are many able and adroit sharpshooters making very vigorous as well as aggressive use of their typewriters. David Lawrence is one of their leaders. For the newspapers he serves he is puncturing the financial policies of the New Deal administration. David Lawrence is one of the cleverest news writing propagandists of the American world. He knows when and where to plant his poison. Mark Sullivan is shelling the NRA woods.

There are others equally as brilliant, veterans of many campaigns and many administrations. There are two distinguished American colonels who are publishers of newspapers. First, Col. William Randolph Hearst of a vast chain of daily newspapers and magazines. His distinguished running mate, Col. R. R. McCormick, directs the destinies of The Chicago Tribune and a New York City daily having a tremendous circulation. These warlike colonels appear to have come to th parting of the ways with the New Deal program. They are fearful that "the freedom of the press is to be assassinated." Very adroit and very skillful as directors of their "campaign of education" are these guardians of Thomas Jefferson's bill of rights in the American constitution—"from top to bottom." Lest we forget, they assisted in destroying "the noble experiment" and restoring police power to the sovereign state. "Today," published by Vincent Astor and edited by Raymond Moley, in its third number, compliments the two colonels for "their splendid criticism" and invites a continuance of the bombardment. "Today" is said to speak for the administration. If so, the administration chief and all his aides not only invite criticism but enjoy it to the limit. This a grand old world to a Rip Van Winkle who has a perch in the treetops and enjoys watching the many quickstep movements of the passing show.

TEXAS CLUB WOMEN AND THEIR 'NEW HOME'

Texas club women are in their new home—a magnificent building modern in all its appointments with the capital of the commonwealth founded by Stephen F. Austin as its setting. Hundreds of delegates and visitors are here for the 36th annual convention of an organization which has made history in Texas. Many of the pioneers of the movement are delegates. They have witnessed the transformation of Texas in the more than a third of a century that is numbered with the dead years of an empire state. Many of the veterans battled for the ballot for women. All the veterans battled for the education of both sexes at the university and minor colleges of the Lone Star commonwealth. They pioneered. They battled for their convictions. They witnessed a transition. They celebrated the coming of the 19th amendment and then they saw woman with a ballot in her hand a power in the politics of state and nation.

It is said that the Texas State Federation of Women's clubs has the only state headquarters building self-owned to be found under American skies. They have ben history makers, they have been builders as well as homemakers, they have been on the firing line of education and moral progress and their achievements have been written into the achieves of the commonwealth. This is thir capital and the people of Austin rejoice in the opportunity to make their sessions fruitful and their stay enjoyable in this seat of government of an empire which is destined at some future time to lead all sister commonwealths in population and wealth and patriotism and progressive plans for the uplift and advancement of all its peoples.

Since the dawn of history it has been human nature to regard with complacency those things with which a city is built and intimately surrounded and to regard with base indifference all except hat which effects our own personal comfort and convenience and give little thought to those factors which make them possible. I wonder what some of our citizens would do if the farmers were not on the job and if our business men all took a long vacation?

A good beginning is half the battle won. Put your shoulder to the wheel and help build better business for your city.

"Did you ever stop to think that when you set out to cure an economic ill, as well as a physical ill you should begin at the beginning?"

In this day and time people turn instinctively to the advertisements in the newspapers to find what they want and where to buy it.

Capital is the main spring from which the wheels of industry obtain movement, and the weakening of this retards their revolution. Think it over!

Cooperation means working together in order to accomplish some definite aim. Some cities don't seem to understand the meaning of that word.

So far as they go, the arrangements for traffic control in the average city are good, but even their greatest admirer would say they are far from perfect.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader found dead in his apartment?
DAVID BANNISTER, a former newspaper reporter, undertakes to find out.
Police are searching for an "unknown blond" who visited the murder scene before his death. Bannister has seen this girl, but she has disappeared since.
HERMAN CURLEACH, who wrote King a threatening letter in his jail. He declares his innocence. Bannister works on the case with A. RANDOLPH GAINES, star reporter of the Post. In the dead man's apartment Bannister picks up an old-fashioned wristwatch which he keeps. He and GAINES talk to AL DRUGAN, friend of King, who tells them the orchestra leader had been having trouble with JOE PARKER, his former vaudeville partner. Drugan accuses Parker of the murder.
GAINES and Bannister go to DENISE LANG, King's fiancée. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV

THE two men followed the maid across a hall into the huge living room. And then they saw Denise Lang.
She was sitting on a small sofa at one side of the fireplace. A fire glowed on the hearth, crackling and snapping cheerfully.
The girl saw them, rose and came forward. Bannister would have recognized her from her photographs but he was not prepared to find her so very attractive. She was more than that. Denise Lang was beautiful. She was taller than he had expected slender and she moved gracefully. Her frock was of black velvet, a dress of complete simplicity except for a bit of white at the throat. Her hair lay in gleaming ringlets—an elaborate coiffure that must have been arranged by a skillful hairdresser. The ringlets caught the light as she moved, turning to shimmering gold.
"How do you do," Denise Lang said. "You wanted to see me?"
Her voice was low-pitched, with a quality of vibrance. Bannister saw that she was quite pale and that the rouged lips formed the words rather slowly.
It had been GAINES who had taken command in talking with DRUGAN but now it was Bannister who stepped forward.
"Yes, Miss Lang," he said. "My name is Bannister and this is Mr. GAINES. We're with the Evening Post. The Post is co-operating in every way possible with the police, trying to learn more about the horrible crime that took place last night."
The girl's lips tightened. "Have they—?" she began hesitantly. "Do they know—?"
They're working on several lines of investigation," Bannister told her. "Some of them are quite promising. There's nothing yet, though, that's definite enough to pin the guilt on anyone. I suppose you've talked with the detectives?"
"There were two men here this morning," Denise Lang said. The light of interest had gone from her eyes. "Won't you sit down?"
The men found chairs. Denise returned to her sofa and sat, facing them.
"We came to see you," Bannister went on. "Thinking you might be able to tell us something that would be of help. As Mr. King's fiancée—" been telling myself over and over that it's true but I can't seem to believe it. I don't—oh, how could they, how could they?"

The words ended in a stifled cry. Denise Lang turned her head quickly, raising her handkerchief to her eyes. Bannister and GAINES looked at each other, acutely uncomfortable as men are before a woman's tears.
There was no sound at all in the room for a moment. Then the girl raised her head. Her face was expressionless once more. "I suppose you want to ask questions," she said. "They did that this morning. What is it you want me to tell you?"
GAINES edged forward on his chair. "I'd like to ask," he said, "when you saw Mr. King last?"
"Night before last," she told him. "We had dinner together—at the Fremont. I didn't see him at all yesterday. We were going to play golf in the morning but I remembered I'd promised to go shopping so I telephoned and told him not to come. We postponed the golf until this morning—"

Again the words died away in a whisper. In spite of this Bannister felt that the girl was exhibiting marked control over her feelings.
He said—and cursed himself for his brutality as he did it—"Miss Lang, I suppose you know there's been talk about a girl—the one the police are looking for—who went to King's room last night? I suppose you know—?"
The girl broke in defiantly. "I mean if she went there it was someone he didn't know. Someone he didn't care anything about! He didn't care anything about her! He wouldn't even look at anyone else. Our engagement isn't true!"
"Very good," Bannister put in quietly. "I know, Miss Lang. All I was trying to get at is whether or not he had ever spoken of any other girl, ever even dropped a hint—?"
"Never!" she insisted. "If a girl went to see him last night I don't know anything about her. I don't even want to know—!"

THE shrill peal of the doorbell interrupted. They saw the maid hurrying to answer the bell and all three sat in silence. They heard the outer door opening and closing and a moment later a man appeared.
"Denise!"
He was a young man. He stood in the doorway, the single word dying on his lips as he saw GAINES and Bannister.
"Come in, Park," Denise Lang said. "These men are from The Post." She said, turning to the others, "This is Parker Coleman."
Bannister and GAINES introduced themselves. Parker Coleman was, of course, one of the Colemans whose name figured prominently in Tremont society columns. Bannister remembered seeing him years before, only a boy then. He had grown into a tall, broad shouldered young man with friendly brown eyes and a well cut chin.
Coleman greeted the other men easily. He crossed the room to the fireplace and held out his hands to the blaze. "Getting cold out," he announced. "There's a bad wind from the west." He said it as though he knew perfectly well that none of them were interested but he was trying to ease an uncomfortable situation.

Bannister nodded. "Yes," he agreed, then plunged directly into the subject at issue. "We've been asking Miss Lang a few questions," Coleman dropped to the sofa beside the girl.
"About—what happened last night?" The question was addressed to Bannister but Coleman's eyes were on Denise Lang's face.
"Do you think," he went on speaking to the girl and without waiting for an answer, "that you feel well enough for all this? Don't you think it would be better to wait—?"
She brushed aside his scruples. "I'm all right," Denise said. "I want to know what the police are doing. I want to know what they've found out."

HER eyes appealed to Bannister. He hesitated, then said, "Well, as I told you, the detectives are working on several lines. There's a new one that came up this afternoon." He told them then about Joe Farrort—not the whole story as Al Drugan had related it, but the essential facts.
As he talked it occurred to Bannister as curious indeed that a girl like Denise Lang could be associated with anyone who was a friend of Al Drugan. Drugan had called Tracy King "the best pal a fellow ever had" and indicated that their friendship was of long standing. But Drugan and this girl with the golden curls did not speak the same language. They lived in different worlds. How had Tracy King climbed from the life Drugan had described to Denise Lang's exclusive circle?

For at least the dozenth time Bannister thought, "If only I'd seen King just once while he was alive!"
He hadn't seen him and there was nothing to be done about it. Coleman and GAINES were talking now. Coleman asking questions. Bannister noticed that Denise Lang did not ask questions, though she listened intently.
"Without knowing quite why he did it, Bannister leaned forward again. "Miss Lang," he asked, "when did you first hear about—er, your fiancé's death?"
"My father told me," she said. "Someone telephoned. It was about midnight, I suppose. Father came to my room and told me—"

The words broke off, but Bannister went on relentlessly. "Had you been at home all evening?"
"Yes," the others had stopped talking, were listening. "I seldom saw Tracy in the evening. He had to be at the theater. Mr. Coleman was here for a little while. We're—very old friends and he'd been out of town. He left early, though I don't know just what time it was."

"Almost 9:30," Coleman interrupted. "I glanced at my watch when I got into my car. I drove to the club and sat around there for an hour or so. Then I went home. I didn't know what had happened until I saw the morning paper—"

There had been no sound, but involuntarily all four of them looked up. Standing in the open doorway at the side of the room was a slender man with gray hair. His eyes, dark like Denise Lang's, glowed with anger.
"Who," the man demanded as he stepped forward, "is the meaning of this?"

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Nov. 26.
The golden text is: "I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible" (Jeremiah 15:12).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Ye shall walk after the Lord your God . . . and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and cleave unto him" (Deuteronomy 10:20).
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science goes to the bottom of mental action, and reveals the theodicy which indicates the rightness of all divine action, as the emanation of divine Mind, and the consequent wrongness of the opposite so-called action—evil, occultism, necromancy, mesmerism, animal magnetism, hypnotism" (page 104).

One of the stratosphere balloons reported he saw no sign of curvature of the earth. Wilbur Glenn Voliva could have told him that down here.

Railroads Announce General Reduction in Fares December 1

With a complete new scale of fares—the lowest since the war—railroads in the western part of the United States are making a strong bid for the patronage of the traveling public. The new fares will reduce travel costs from 16.67 to 44.45 per cent and are especially important because they represent a general reduction applicable at all times between all points on all railroads.
Since the war, American railroads have been operating upon a basic fare of 3.6 cents per mile. Under the new plan, the mileage rate will be scaled down to two cents per mile for travel in day coaches, and three cents per mile in sleeping and parlor cars. Short limit round trip tickets, good in all classes of equipment, will be two cents per mile, with a two and one-half cent rate for long limit round trip tickets. Passengers in sleeping and parlor cars will also benefit by a reduction of one-third in the cost of the space occupied through the elimination of the surcharge formerly in effect. Sale of scrip tickets will be continued at the present rate of 2.7 cents per mile.
Railroad officials estimate that the reduced fares will save the traveling public many millions of dollars a year. Furthermore, it will not be necessary to plan trips at special times in order to take advantage of the low rates. The business men, the vacationist and the casual tourist will benefit equally as the new fares apply at all times over all railroads serving the territory west and north of Chicago, St. Louis and the Mississippi river, through to the Pacific coast, including also all points on certain railroads in Illinois, Mississippi and the western parts of Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama and Florida.
Heavy rail travel to the World's fair indicated the immense popularity of this safe, convenient form of transportation when attractive fares are in effect. Accordingly, railroad men determined upon a double policy of reducing fares to the lowest possible levels while at the same time making every effort to speed up schedules and increase passenger comfort.

age, but believed that he was in all respects eligible; that the records as shown by the earliest scholastic census in 1922 showed Hill to have been born in April 1914 and that the census records during his attendance in ward school kept him well within the age limit. Over-confidence as to his age as indicated above admittedly prevented further and more extended search of the records as should have been made.

"We would further show as touching the right of Cisco to profit by our forfeiture of said games as follows: On two separate days prior to the date of the game with Cisco in which Hill, an ineligible man, was played which resulted in the forfeiture of the game, that Superintendent Cluck and, or Principal Brandon, did visit the office of the county clerk in Eastland and called for the record of births of this county and were shown the record of Horace Hill which disclosed the fact that Horace Hill was born April 7, 1913 and not at a later date as was indicated by records quoted above. In connection therewith it is our contention that upon discovery of said evidence Ranger should have immediately been notified first as a matter of good sportsmanship which, at least theoretically, we are attempting to instill in the boys we teach through the instrumentality of football; and second as a compliance with the spirit of the rule as laid down in the constitution and rules of the Inter-scholastic League known as Article 13, for settling disputes where eligibility is the question, which says that such evidence must be filed immediately after the discovery of the facts upon which the protest is based. Although the game had not been played and no protest could have been filed on Thursday or Friday prior to the game, the spirit rule would demand that upon discovery of such disqualifying evidence the same should be furnished the opposing team immediately, both in the interest of good sportsmanship and in compliance with the spirit of the rule. Otherwise any such evidence would be withheld for the purpose of administering a defeat to a team in the committee room, which could not be administered on the gridiron.

"Promises considered, we request the committee to declare the game between the Ranger and Cisco teams on Nov. 11 be forfeited by both teams.

don't have any idea of what happens under the guise of the protection of the law. All it takes to get an eyeful of it is for someone to get it in for you, and then the thing will come home to any one, regardless of whether they intended to offend or not. Thanks to our investigation there is no such tactics used in Eastland county, and for which our officers are to be highly commended.

Mr. Hugh S. Johnson is now completely satisfied with the Ford controversy. Mr. Ford has won out again without doing what was commanded of him, as he has done for many years. Now then, there is no use for the rest of the manufacturers or any one else to do anything but tell Mr. Johnson that "we are complying..." what's the use of going to the trouble to sign anything." This is not said to bring NRA in disrepute, but it only goes to show why several have taken issue with the new deal. We still are for it, and we still believe that Mr. Ford should have been insisted on to do what was expected of every other American citizen. Some day Mr. Ford will meet his Waterloo, and it won't be his money and power that will keep him out of it. And then Mr. Ford will realize that he is an American citizen and expected to do just exactly what Americans are supposed to do... cooperate.

But that's not getting down to the facts that Eastland is our problem, and we can at least take off of national issues long enough to get behind our town, with all we've got... and put it over. Every business interest in Eastland deserves the undivided support of everybody in Eastland and surrounding community. Let's don't forget that, no matter what happens, business can be good because we can make it good... Thanks.
