Maury Hughes Speaks To Big Spring Voters

Fair-Sized Crowd Hears Candidate For Governor; Taylor Introduces Citing his nine-point program for repeal, social reform, education and taxation, former State Chairman Maury Hughes of Dallas through his candidacy for governor to Big Spring Tuesday night.

It is important, he said, because revenues from legal liquor in Texas would amount to between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 per year, and remove the threat of a new general tax.

It is necessary in order to properly pay teachers and lengthen the school terms in rural schools, he said he would favor transferring another one-eighth of the gasoline tax from the highway department to the available school fund.

Pensions for the aged, he said, a part of the national program for social reform, also should be made a part of the state's program for economic recovery and the care of its unfortunate citizens.

"No institution in any community is so shameful and so tragic as the poorhouse," he said. "Nothing strikes so mercilessly at the heart of an aged man or woman as to have depend on their children, their friends or relatives, or upon charitable institutions for food and clothing."

"Taking care of them costs money now. There is no reason why that care should not be dispensed so that the man live without alms, and without asking for help. If that help must be provided, and it will always be necessary, there is no reason why the burden should not be properly distributed and the program made a permanent, governmental function."

Mr. Hughes struck again at his dry opponents, declaring they will be willing to thwart the will of the majority, expressed in a popular vote last August, if they succeed in electing a governor.

Heads Rotary

JAMES A. DAVIS James A. Davis, manager of Empire Southern Gas company of Big Spring, assumed the presidency of Rotary at its regular weekly meeting at the Settles Hotel Tuesday noon by presiding at a meeting of the Big Spring Rotary club.

At least two tax collecting agencies and perhaps a third had cause to be encouraged over delinquent tax collections for the first half of the year.

Big Spring Independent School district had cause to be almost jubilant. Rex Ragan, special tax agent, said Tuesday that the office had received more than $15,000 in back taxes, a large per cent of the payers making only a down payment on a cooperative plan for retiring the obligation in installments.

Since the first of the month many of them have paid the second installment on the arrears taxes, he said.

The city collected approximately $10,000 in delinquent taxes in the month of June, Herbert Whitney, city comptroller, said. Some of these were small sums of six and eight years standing which in private business would have probably been charged off books.

Most remarkable in the city tax collections was the payment on the half and half payment plan, Whitney said that out of outstanding amount, approximately $9,000, the city had failed in collecting only $121.10.

The county and state tax collection had not been tabulated Tuesday evening but delinquent payments were lagging at that office prior to Saturday, the last day on which back taxes could be paid at substantial savings. However, half and half payments were holding up remarkably well and the mail Monday brought in a quantity of delinquent taxes.

No Celebration Here, Residents Go Elsewhere

There being no city-wide celebration of July 4 in Big Spring and with business houses, post office and banks closed to celebrate Independence Day, many residents planned to spend the day in other parts, some going to Stamford, Pecos, Colorado and Brady. Those that remain at home will enjoy the day in peace, probably take on a game of golf, tennis, etc.

Local Business In Gain For First Half Of 1934

Business, injected with confidence, showed gains in almost every line during the first half of 1934.

Big Spring Rotary club entered its new year Tuesday with new officers and committeemen.

At the regular weekly meeting Tuesday noon at the Settles, a program in charge of the club service committee, with E. V. Spence as chairman, was held, during which each chairman of the various committees spoke shortly as to the coming year's activity. The following chairmen spoke in turn:

- Jesse F. Hall—Chairman of the vocational committee. Harold Homan—Chairman of the membership committee. Shine Phillips—Chairman of the fellowship committee. Marvin K. House—Chairman of the attendance committee. Joe G. Brath—Chairman of public information committee. Ben R. Carter—Chairman of program committee. Theo Francis—Chairman of international relations committee. Earl Phillips—Chairman of the rural urban acquaintance committee.

W. W. Inkman—Chairman of the student loan committee. President James A. Davis explained to the members the set-up of the club, and how each committee was linked with each other. He explained that the program committees had decided to follow the regular club form of staging programs for the next six months at least, and a different group would be in charge each month under the general program chairman. He announced a meeting of the directors and committee chairmen in club assembly for next Friday night at the Settles mezzanine. He urged all to be present, so the different phases of Rotary activities could be taken up more fully. He urged also that all committees that have not yet met, to do so before Friday night.

Next week's program will be in charge of the vocational committee, with Jesse Hall and V. H. Fiewellen in charge.

Visiting Rotarians for the day were C. W. Evans, Harriman, Tennessee; Rev. W. R. Mann, Presbyterian missionary, Midland; W. D. Berry of Sweetwater was a visitor.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE BY WALTER C. BROWN

"So this man hounded you?" asked Harper. "Followed you back to the city and forced you to continue the affair? He made you meet him in this empty house... In this room? Then he is the one who put the notes in that sand urn on the hearth?"

"I had not thought of that," Alene Croymen nodded. "He was waiting in this room. We quarreled again. I think he enjoyed those scenes. It was then that I pounded angrily on the table, standing opposite him down the length of it. He went on calling me ugly names, so I raised my gun and shot him. I was amazed at how easy it had been."

disguise misled him into thinking that I was meeting Mr. Dufrane. "You had to buy his silence then?" "Yesterday he came to me and demanded money. I gave him all I had in my purse. He was insolent and demanded that I get more and bring it to him last night. In desperation I promised—and I kept my promise!" she concluded grimly.

posed of light pursuit and heavy bombing planes, numbers almost 3,000 units—scattered over eight huge stations, each equipped with modern anti-aircraft material, large repair plants and underground bomb-proof hangars and fuel deposit of German design.

Insiders are commenting on the new "Fatherland" and Patriotism propaganda which has been launched recently. These conceptions were strictly banned, formerly, as capitalistic and bourgeois fobbing but now even "Pravda", the Communist paper, is taking up the cry and excuses the Desertion Law by trumpeting "the defense of the Fatherland" as the "highest law of life, calling for the destruction of traitors." Moscow seems moved by the miracles which Japanese nationalism has accomplished and has concluded that "hearth and home" is the best ginger for an army, after all.

In preparation for the coming Comintern world congress Moscow revolutionists and their foreign agents are making an analysis of European discontent. Hitler is slated for a crash and his end is to be hastened by an extension of Red propaganda. France and particularly Czechoslovakia are also seen as the Polish Ukraine, however, long ripe for trouble, have been sobered by the famine and misery across the Russian border and have lost enthusiasm. This will be stimulated again by proclamations and cash. The Vienna February Revolt fugitives, now in Moscow, are scheming hellfire for Dollfuss.

Poland—

Goebbels' visit to Warsaw was as much of a diplomatic catastrophe for Germany as Goering's ill-fated tour of the Balkans. It was supposed to be a demonstration, parallel to the Hitler-Mussolini meeting, to show the world that Germany could break the French ring. Intense anti-Nazi feeling showed itself in a series of spontaneous demonstrations that far overshadowed the polite official welcome.

Reports of Berlin Polish agents on the part played by Nazi Chief-Journalist Rosenberg and his party Foreign Office friends in the recent unsuccessful attempt of Premier Woldemar to seize the dictators of Lithuania also made trouble. Berlin supplied inspiration and cash; Woldemar, in return was to break both the Berlin supplied inspiration and cash; Woldemar, in return, was to break both the Russian and Polish hold on the country and make Lithuania the outpost of Germany's long dream of expansion into the Baltics. The coup was a messy fizzle, Woldemar got twelve years in jail and Rosenberg will become the savior of Germany—which isn't the only country with Baltic aspirations.

Great Britain—

The speed with which Tokyo reacted to the recent disappearance of the Japanese vice-consul Kuramoto in Nanking, the violence of the ultimatum threatening immediate intervention, and the number of ships and men made ready for action left a bad taste in the official mouth of London. The Foreign Office believes that Hirota was ready to declare the Chinese government incapable of maintaining order and to land Japanese troops at once. Kuramoto was found and the storm blew over—but London thinks the slim excuse was grabbed at a bit too eagerly to bode well for the future independence of China.

A sigh of relief was breathed by British statesmen when Mustafa Kemal decided not to ask for re-militarization of the Straits. That, an international hornet's nest, involving the interests of a dozen greater and smaller countries, and one of England's pet nightmares. Mustafa has shown himself a good fellow and in exchange will be allowed to play with Persia without undue interference. The Shah has come on a visit to Ankara and Constantinople, the former Turkish Sultan's gold table service has been brought out to decorate the occasion, roads and railways are to be built and Turkish influence and culture extended.

France—

The general alarm against the Teutonic Danger has had such an offset an assurance from the government that the planned extension of the period of compulsory military service be carried out only if absolutely necessary, a storm of protest broke out. It was seen as a purely political move, a stall to show the Socialist power—and the Efforts of the original George B. Terrell to prevent adoption of his name by ex-Mr. Baker of Dallas, candidate for state treasurer, raise a question of what would happen to Baker Terrell's candidacy if the court revoked his name change.

Mr. Terrell, nee baker, has paid his $100 and legally had his legal name put on the ballot. If the right to use the name were revoked, there would be no "George B. Terrell of Dallas county" to request withdrawal. The committee can not now take the name off because the name has been certified to all counties, and the county ballots have been formed, including it.

If "George B. Terrell of Dallas county" should happen to go into the run-off his name automatically would go on the ballot for the August primary. It might be that his opponent could by court action show there existed no such person and have it removed in which case there would be no run-off, as no other candidate could claim the place so vacated.

By the assumption that this non-existent legal fiction of an individual were nominated, it appears that on a showing by interested persons there was nobody of the name any longer, the state executive committee might have the right then to confer the vacant nomination upon some person of its choosing.

Altogether, there are interesting possibilities in the legal proceeding.

In the fading of a special session of the legislature in June or July, petitions of Southwest Texas farmers for relief against delinquent tax penalties on July 1 went into the discard, along with the oil commission agitation.

Subsequent legislation can waive the penalties perhaps—at least penalties that have not accrued prior to enactment.

The penalties arriving July 1 are those already set off by relief legislation of 1933.

Two matters recently have concerned parochial schools: One has been disposed of satisfactorily; the other represents a worry over a non-existent threat to these institutions.

The parochial schools were affected by the original order of the state committee on classification and affiliation of schools that schools employing other than degree-holding teachers would be barred from affiliation with the higher educational institutions. Denominational colleges are represented on this state committee.

The committee has modified its order, accepting experience of teachers in the matter here, until I consider the primary consideration of education.

He was talking at the time about modification of rules that send the experience non-degree teachers back to college.

Outside the larger cities, each Texas school teacher has an average of 17 pupils, according to survey so far made by the state department of education in the public school system.

This is but little over half the typical pupil load per teacher for the larger schools.

The government's drought relief program, when at last started, was to reach substantial proportions in July, when $90,000,000 federal funds had been budgeted to its use. Drought relief is one of the varied relief and rehabilitation undertakings on which over $3,600,000 is scheduled to be spent in the month of July.

Meantime, retention of state relief headquarters in Austin was definitely assured, in the execution of new contracts for space in the Littlefield building which the relief administration moved from the capitol six months ago.
