Robinsonites Defeat Southern Ice Team, Seventeen To Ten

GETTLE KIDNAP SUSPECTS

Police and other law enforcement officers, raiding a house in the foothills of La Crescenta, north of Los Angeles, found William F. Gettle, Beverly Hills millionaire financier and oil man, who was kidnaped from his arancia country estate shortly before midnight Wednesday, May 8. Gettle was unharmed, but weary. Five persons, including two women, were rounded up in police raids and charged with suspicion of the kidnaping. The male members of the asserted kidnap gang are shown above. ## Winners Tab Nineteen Hits

Coots, Grovella, Malone and Hammond Team Up With Forrester

By HANK HART

The Robinson soft ball team was too powerful for the Southern Ice outfit Tuesday, and defeated the Ice Men, 17 to 10, when J. W. Coots, Grovella Malone and J. E. Hammond teamed up with twirler Forrester to drive needed runs across the plate with their circuit smashes.

The Grocery men pounded out a total of nineteen hits, many of them for extra bases, while the Ice Men had to be contented with eleven hits.

Kinman got the first hit in the initial inning, but died on third base when Edwards popped out to Rogers.

J. W. Hits Homer

The Robinsonites wasted little time in scoring when Rogers, who had singled, led Coots around the bases after J. W. had blasted out a home run. Digby and Robinson crossed the plate on successive smashes by Hammond and Hart to terminate the first inning scoring.

The Ice boys came back in the second to score twice, once when T. Kinman counted on Rudd's triple, and again when Rudd came in on an error by one of the Robinson fielders.

The Robinsonites, not contented with a two run lead, returned in their part of the second to push six runs across the plate and lead the Frigid men, 10 to 2.

Kinman and Halley lessened the difference in the third frame when both scored without the aid of a base hit. The Robinsonites experienced a bit of sluggishness and as a result the Ice Men out the lead to 10 to 4.

The Southern Ice men continued their scoring spurge through the fourth when Wilkerson, Glover, Davis and Kinman crossed the plate.

Score 3 In Fifth

The Grocery men opened up again in the fifth to score three runs. Malone doubled in leading off and counted on Forrester's bingle. J. W. and W. Coots tallied on Digby's base blow.

The Ice men scored their ninth and tenth runs when Davis and Kinman made good on Halley's base hit in the sixth.

The Greg street boys led the game in the sixth by chasing a trio of runs across the plate. Successive hits by Hammond, Hart and Malone, the latter a four base blow, netted the final runs.

Southern Ice clouters succeeded in putting two aboard in their final posture, but snappy fielding by the opposition kept runs from the plate.

Southern Ice protested the game because Robinson was using five high school players.

made five of the Cards' hits, including a homer.

Manager Robinson smashed a finger in fielding a line drive and was forced to leave the game.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter Five
REAR-UP HONEY

Several hours of intimate contact with Dufrene had failed to dispel the haze of uncertainty that clouded Harper's mind. Dufrene's actions and moods had been so variable, so erratic, ordinarily affable and courteous, a perfect host, the slightest crossing of his will unloosed a blazing temper and a vituperative tongue.

Harper began to grow restive under the virtual stalemate that had sprung up and when Dufrene approached the cellarette to replenish the glass the detective felt constrained to voice a protest. "I'd go

Dufrene sat down heavily. His face drooped into sullen lines. "I know what you're thinking, Harper. You're saying to yourself, 'Here is a man who has been shot at. He's scared stiff, he's gone all to pieces, he's yellow. He's got to keep drinking to hold his nerves together.' But you're wrong, Harper. It isn't that at all. I won't deny that I felt shaky after those shots, but there's something else. Did you ever have a premonition, a hunch?"

"Nonsense," the detective broke in. "You must not give way to such ideas. We'll clear up this case in time. These cases are always troublesome while they last, but an unbalanced brain is seldom contentedly cunning. Once they come out from behind the anonymous threat and go into action, they've lost their trump card, and their rope is shortened.

"We've got to put down some bait to tempt this fellow. I think the shortest way would be to give out the announcement that you are going to open up your house. With the proper amount of publicity, that should draw the crank into the open to try again and this time we'll be ready for him. You will be adequately protected while all this is going on."

Dufrene picked up his goblet and downed the contents in two gulps. The amber had gone from his voice and something stark and naked peered from his brooding eyes.

"Now, Detective-Sergeant Harper, I'm going to show you the kind of rat that is gnawing at me. If I were found murdered tomorrow morning, what would you, as a policeman, think about it? You would know that I had received threatening letters over a period of several months. You would say to yourself, 'Well, that crank shot him at last.'"

"On the other hand, let us forget those letters. Say they do not exist. Suppose, then, that I was found

GRADUATION EDITION OF "THE WHEEL" TO APPEAR NEXT SUNDAY, MAY 20th

The annual Graduation Edition of "The Wheel," official high school publication, will be published next Sunday, May 20, in a separate section to their regular edition of The Sunday Herald.

Members of The Wheel staff are assisting The Herald in preparing this section, and will be one of the largest editions of The Wheel yet published. Pictures of each graduate and the class favorites will be carried in this edition. Names of all graduates, and a full history of each will be given.

The Herald is going to print a large number of extra copies, and students and others desiring an extra copy are requested to make application at The Daily Herald office as soon as possible.

murdered. What would you do? You would go to my family, my wife, my servants, my friends, asking questions, looking into their actions, demanding alibis. You would expect to find the murderer somewhere among those who knew me, who had personal contact with me. That would not be unreasonable, would it? Nor without precedent?" he queried, slyly.

Sergeant Harper was electrified by these words of poison falling drop by drop. "Mr. Dufrene!" he cooed, sitting bolt upright. "Do you believe these letters to be a screen, hiding the real motive for an attempt upon your life? Are you withholding information from me? That would be extremely foolish. We are here for just one purpose—to protect you to help you."

Dufrene staggered to his feet. "No, no—I am mad—mad," he stammered, "but that little rat keeps gnawing away. Somehow, I can't feel safe, not even in this room, guarded as it is. That's a horrible feeling, Harper."

He shivered as he sank down in a chair facing the bright fire, his fingers still caressing the empty goblet. His glittering eyes seemed to be watching things that were hidden from the detective. Truly, he had said either too much or too little.

Dufrene lifted his head. "There it's out now," he said, ruefully. "I want you to remember what I have told you here tonight. Take nothing for granted, accept nothing at its face value. Remove no one from your list of suspects except by actual elimination. No one!

"And now, if you'll excuse me, I think I'll turn in and get some sleep." He lifted the brandy bottle and shook it speculatively. "This should be enough to turn the trick," he added, pressing the button to summon Andrews who was sent for Harper's hat and overcoat.

Dufrene, got to his feet a trifle unsteadily. "Good night, Harper, and tell Connors that I am pleased with his selection. I'm sure everything will be all right until morning, anyway. I'll expect you about ten o'clock, and then we can decide on our best course. On your way out will you please tell Markison that I do not wish to be disturbed tonight on any account? You hear that, Andrews? I've had more than enough for one day."

The gray-haired servant bowed, tall, thin, taciturn.

Dufrene moved forward, staggered, caught himself up, and went on, cautious but steady. "Did I show you Mrs. Dufrene's picture, Harper?" he asked. "A very clever woman—Mrs. Dufrene!"

For a few seconds they stood thus, Harper trying to fathom the glittering black eyes peering into his from the shadows above the lamp. Was the man too far gone to remember, or was there a sinister emphasis behind the duplicated remark?

Then from the corner of his eye Harper saw that Andrews was watching him with a thoroughly unpleasant expression on his face, and the old butler's hands were tightly clenched.

Members are counting on Woodring to give the Air Corps a good shake-up that will send a number of officers away from Washington desks to long overdue field duty.

President Roosevelt has a five billion dollar public works program well set in his mind.

The only hitch that may annoy the Progressives who advocate heavy federal spending is that the program spreads out over a 10-year period—or at the modest rate of $500,000,000 a year. Public Works Administrator Stokes and Emergency Relief Administrator Hopkins have been working on a long-range public works program soon to break.

It is the White House idea that a joint committee be appointed, embracing representation from both houses of Congress and the affected administrative agencies, to supervise the work on a far-reaching basis that would eliminate the pork barrel.

Men in federal key positions say the efficient but retiring Madams Secretary of Labor Perkins has performed one job for which she

KIDNAPED MILLIONAIRE FREED

Los Angeles police, deputy sheriffs and other law enforcement officers raided a La Crescenta house, in the foothills several miles north of Los Angeles, Monday night and found William F. Gettle, kidnaped Beverly Hills millionaire oil man, trussed up on a bed. Several of the kidnap gang, including two women, were rounded up. No ransom was paid for Gettle's release, authorities said. Clearing House had no enforceable authority to commit its members although the latter were accustomed to accepting Clearing House orders.

Forecast—The world is due to get a big shock soon in the turn relations between Japan and China which take China is likely to admit that Japan has got away with it.

Chase—The final divorce between the Chase Bank and Chase Corporation (formerly Chase Securities Corp.) creates a knotty problem in values.

Flies—Men with money to spare are showing a taste for flies in new ventures. Wall Streeters can cite a number of patent developments that are being privately financed without difficulty.

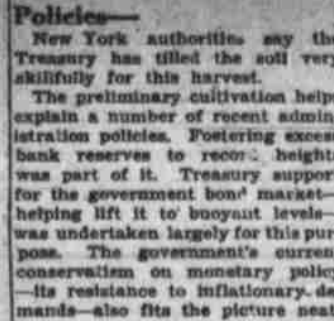

Sideline—Sherry has been the big surprise of repeal. Foreign shippers are working overtime to fill record orders for this wine—which leads the parade.

Financing—Watch for a huge Treasury offering of long-term bonds in June. Insiders predict it will amount to at least three billion dollars and may run as high as five.

Underwriters—Interested New Yorkers are trying to induce congress to adopt another amendment to the Securities Act which would entirely exempt pure underwriters—as distinct from dealers who sell to the public—from the liability provisions of the act.

Harriman—Here's the inside of the New York Clearing House-Harriman bank case in a nutshell. Lawyers representing the member banks agree they have an airtight defense on strictly legal grounds. They are confident they can prove the Policy—New York authorities say the Treasury has tilted the scale very skillfully for this harvest. The preliminary cultivation helps explain a number of recent administrative policies. Fostering excess bank reserves to record heights was part of it. Treasury support for the government bond market—helping lift it to buoyant levels—was undertaken largely for this purpose. The government's current conservatism on monetary policy—its resistance to inflationary demands—also fits the picture neatly.

Left—This last has significant implications. Suppose the government wishes to turn left this fall—to try further devaluation or other inflationary measures in case recovery isn't moving fast enough. Pre-election strategy might demand sudden but forceful action along those lines. The maneuver would be infinitely simpler if there were no financing to be done—because conservative financial susceptibilities wouldn't have to be considered. The decks would be cleared for action in advance.

Securities—You will hear public walls from amendments to the Securities Act Wall Street that the projected amendments to the Securities Act—outlined by Senator Fletcher—don't go far enough. Hints will be dropped that the capital market must remain frozen if that's the best the government can do. Don't take them too seriously.

Devaluation—The committee for the Nation continues to battle valiantly for more drastic devaluation despite the administration's chilly attitude. Its flag is nailed to the mast—its witness its vigorous new drive for 100,000 "key leaders" to bring pressure on Washington. Its directors are not impressed by portents that their cause is officially lost.

Personnel—New York experts privately agree that the effects of the Exchange regulation bill will depend almost entirely on the personnel of the commission chosen to administer it.

Technique—Lobbying technique isn't what it used to be. Wall Street has discovered that Congressmen pay more attention to their constituents these days than they do to the direct contact shock troops.

Sideline—Sherry has been the big surprise of repeal. Foreign shippers are working overtime to fill record orders for this wine—which leads the parade.

Fine Cast For Senior Play

Courtney Barret, Jr. and Constance Morgan in costume for the senior play "Hold Everything" which will be presented in the city auditorium Friday night, will be Courtney Barret, Jr. and Constance Morgan.

Both characters are daring young debutantes from New York. Courtney Barret, Jr., a very sophisticated young man who does very much as he pleases, and to the surprise of all gets away with it. He is brilliantly portrayed by Jimmie Wilson. His actions in the play are very vivid.

Christopher Morgan, Connie's father, and Courtney's father plan for their children to marry each other, but they find opposition. Both Connie and Courtney run away from home to avoid meeting one another; however, they do meet in a tourist home under assumed names. This unusual plot gives to the play a striking and comical climax.

A group of the country's most prominent track and field coaches was sitting around the table, sipping beer and trying to figure out just how to explain the epidemic of shotputting records within the past year or two.

Mention was made of the exceptional success Dink Tompkins has had with his heavyweights at Stanford, from Hartrant and Krens to Rothert and Lyman, latest of the Indian weight-tossing champions.

"It's all in the forearm and wrist," volunteered one of the coaches. "Why, I remember the days of Ralph Rose, whose record of 51 feet stood for so many years as the shotput limit. Big Ralph just up and heaved the ball; no tricks or finesse. It was the same with old Pat McDonald. Then these young fellows out west started making it fancy. They walked around all day with some hand-strengthening gadget. They began to get more flexibility, more altitude in the toss, and consequently, more distance."

"That's all right," remarked another coach, "but size and strength still have a lot to do with it, too. Look at this big Jack Torrance, of Louisiana State. They tell me he weighs more than Carnera and can hit harder. He must have that wrist flick, also."

"Torrance is good, all right," said another, "but I notice this Lyman put the ball out beyond 54 feet the other day. Boy, I never thought I would live to see the day that would be done with a 16-pound weight. Say, do you suppose they are using a lively shot out west? Like this new needed golf ball or the lively baseball?"

Just then a courier brought word that Torrance had heaved the shot 55 feet 1-3 inches at the Drake Relays. The meeting adjourned until further notices in some confusion.

Clever Gay Ninety Party Given By Miss Alice Leeper For Members Of O.C.D. Club

Miss Alice Leeper entertained members of the O. C. D. Bridge Club with a unique Gay Ninety party Tuesday evening.

Gay Ninety decorations prevailed on the tables and score pads and furnished table decorations. At the close of the bridge there were two clever contests. One was finishing Longfellow's poem with suggestions of the Gay Nineties. The prize was three linen handkerchiefs and went to Miss Wells. The other contest, a gossip contest, was won by Miss Coulter, who received a fancy clothes brush.

Miss Knous won high for members in bridge and was presented with a leather traveling kit. Mrs.

Boyle won high for guests and received a Dresden whatnot ornament.

Guests were Mmes. H. G. Whitney, Frank Boyle and M. K. House. A refreshment plate containing salad, gingerbread and apple elder was passed to guests and following members: Misses Fern Wells, Mabel Robinson, Mary Fawn Coulter, Irene Knous, Nell Davis, Agnes Currie; Mmes. Pete Sellers, Jack Bishop and Stanley J. Davis.

Mrs. Bishop resigned from the club, she is moving to Mason to make her home as soon as school is out.

Miss Robinson will be the next hostess.

ABOUT JOHN KUCK

It was only five years ago, during the 1923 Olympics, that the big farmer boy from Kansas, John Kuck, recorded the first 52-foot shotput, won the world championship and shortly retired from competition.

Kuck was a character. Training did not appeal to him but he had real competitive spirit and a rare good nature. It was the day after his triumph at Amsterdam that he sat musing over his beer at a sidewalk table and remarked:

"Boys, I would certainly like to see my old man's face when he picks up the papers and sees that his boy, John, won the Olympic shotput. I can hear him saying: 'Well, the big bum finally did something.'"

RECORDS TO FALL

Fifty-two-foot heaves with the iron ball soon became common here it was not until after the 1923 Olympics that Leo Saxton, the American winner of the Olympic title, got off the first tons in excess of 53 feet.

In the big games at Los Angeles, so had easily out-distanced all the Europeans who were so highly touted beforehand, including Hirschfeld of Germany, Doula of Czechoslovakia, Daranyi of Hungary and Hellasz of Poland. Doula and Hellasz were credited with world record throws, each at 52 feet 7-8 inches.

Now Lyman and Torrance have so far exceeded all previous records this spring as to make these former giants of the weight-heaving brigade look like weaklings.

Cactus Club Enjoys Party At Mrs. Hahn's

Mrs. C. E. Hahn entertained the Cactus Club with a jolly dog party Tuesday afternoon, using roses and honeysuckle for her decorations.

Dogs ornamented the tables, scorepads and table covers.

Mrs. Browning was presented with a set of striped lead tea glasses for club high and Mrs. Kuykendall a set of striped water glasses for guest high.

A salad course with angelfood and iced tea was served two guests, Mmes. L. R. Kuykendall and Emory Duff, and the following members: Clarence Wear, M. E. Tatum, Harold Parks, R. E. Lee, Morris Burns, Ned Beaudreau, C. L. Browning, H. G. Whitney and Clyde Angel.

Mrs. Lee will be the next hostess.

World's Fair Machine At Burr's
Sewing Machine That Goes Into Reverse Now On Demonstration At Store

By O. R. F.
The Singer Co. made a special machine for the World's Fair that captured the heart of every woman who saw it demonstrated. They had so many demands for one like it—it sews both backwards and forward—that they now have the model on the market. So, in a way you can see as much at Burr's this week as you could at the Century of Progress in Chicago last summer, so far as the Singer Sewing Machine Co. is concerned.

If you buy your dress goods at Burr's store this week the Singer, ed. of. For one thing it makes tying the threads unnecessary; it sews over pins; it darns in a fine even stitch that enables you to save many a fine piece of material, including flannel.

The Singer people have made a little attachment for their electric machines that is going to put hand-done embroidery entirely out

MELLOWED BY AGE Enriched by Tradition

Fine beer can't be made over night. Behind fine beer must be age—and tradition. BUDWEISER is richly endowed with both. Anheuser-Busch began brewing in 1859. BUDWEISER was created in 1876. Its unforgettable quality was so outstanding that in the International Exposition in Paris in '78 it won first honors from all the brews of the world. It was awarded the gold medal at the World's Fair in Philadelphia in 1876, at Amsterdam in 1883, at New Orleans in 1885 and Chicago in 1893. BUDWEISER's greatest distinction never has been matched by any other brew anywhere—the biggest selling bottled beer in history.

of fashion so far as any practical uses go. The attachment can apply anything to anything—what a boon in quilt-making—and can get those marvelous Chinese embroidered figure effects that are so stunning when used in the right places.

The most interesting thing the new Singer has, in way of attachments, is its zig-zagger. This zig-zagger appliques lace onto under-wear. In the most approved manufacturer fashion, strengthens seams, can be used for cord coverings and for decorative stitching.

When you go to Burr's, ask the demonstrator to show you "the spark" stitch. This enables you to embroider a flower—a big splashy flower or a small, dainty one—with a piece of buttonhole twist and any color of thread. You can use gold and black, red and black, blue and silver—or, whatever you want.

There is also a small hemstitcher attachment, the first advance in hemstitching since the invention of the big old hemstitching machine many years ago.

But the most remarkable thing about the new Singer is the possibilities offered by a machine that will go into reverse as easily as forward. If you will buy "some goods at Burr's, you can prove it for yourself with competent instruction.
