Mild Rush In Tax Payments

Agencies Kept Busy On Last Day Of Delinquent Payments Here

County and city tax collection agencies experienced a mild rush Saturday as the last day for paying delinquent taxes at substantial savings passed and the old law requiring 10 per cent penalty, 6 per cent per annum interest, and cost went back into effect.

The county offices collected approximately $3,100 in delinquents over the counter and there was much more in the mails. City tax office also experienced an increased amount of collections and expected much more since money placed in the mails before noon Monday will likely be accepted in payment for the arrears taxes.

City Receives Good Soaking; Mostly Local

Electrical Disturbance Accompanies Rain; Lightning Strikes Lines

As fresh as it was intense, a shower Saturday brought relief to Big Spring from prolonged drought and heat and left surrounding country thirsting with light sprinkles.

First drops of rain fell during the noon hour but the first down-pour peeped down about 3 p. m. Fifteen minutes of hard rain flooded streets before the precipitation ceased.

Soon it began again with renewed vigor and soaked the whole of Big Spring. But it never got much farther than that. The weather bureau reported 29 inches and the U. S. Experiment Farm 97 inches.

In all directions the heavy down-pour here lightened and tapered off to showers and rain threats. Spotted showers visited this area, but none as heavy as the Big Spring one, so far as could be learned Saturday night by the Herald.

Accident Avoided In all directions the heavy down-pour about 4:15 p. m. Saturday, a Texas & Pacific freight truck, which was parked near the Settles hotel got loose while the driver, J. L. Eggleston, was inside of a building. Coming out and noticing the truck running wild down second street, Eggleston ran to the truck and climbed in the cab and brought the vehicle to a stop before it collided with other automobiles. Quick work by Eggleston, who said the brake lever released, causing the truck to start, probably averted a serious accident.

People Gaze At Rain. People who were downtown in the shopping district, and who had not seen any rainfall for many weeks, gazed happily at the down-pour, which continued intermittently from 2:30 until 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Lightning display with thunder accompaniment caused electric power to go off at intervals but only for a very short period. There was some wind with the rain.

No Rain At Forsan. At 4:30 o'clock, it had not rained at Forsan, 16 miles southeast of the city, according to James A. Davis, manager of Empire Southern Gas company, who talked to some of his station men in that community. Only a sprinkle had fallen there, he said.

Wink, San Report. At 4 p. m., no rain had fallen at Wink, Texas, west of here, and at Santo, near Mineral Wells, according to the United States weather bureau officials at the airport, who were in touch with those points by teletype.

Postal Reports. H. H. Hannab, manager of the Postal Telegraph company, reported showers from Midland on the west, and Colorado, Sweetwater and Abilene on the east. Light showers were reported to have fallen at Midland, but were continuing at 4 o'clock, reports said.

Cooden Circuits Blown Out. Two circuits were blown out at Cooden Refinery east of the city at 4 o'clock when a bolt of lightning struck a line direct to switching structures. Power company employees were on the job, and had the damaged circuits repaired in short order. A full Texas Electric Service crew under A. H. Sisson made the repairs. No other damage was done.

Light Showers at Elbow. Light showers were reported in the Elbow community 10 miles southwest of the city, according to Albert M. Fisher, who phoned to the Cable place late Saturday afternoon. Only light showers fell on Mr. Fisher's place, he said.

Ackery received a "very light shower," hardly enough to settle the dust, according to Andy Brown, of that place, who said heavy clouds were visible in the southeast, but did not reach their locality, and hopes for a rain there were slim, he said.

Transformers Struck. Lightning struck transformers in Edwards Heights, rendering that section without lights for a period. The trouble was remedied later, and lights were restored.

Western Union Reports. E. J. (Red) Cook, manager of the Western Union, gave the Herald Western Union reports on rainfall at the following places: Midland, light showers; San Angelo, none; Pecos, none; Lubbock, none; Sweetwater, light showers.

FOES ATTEMPT OVERTHROW OF NAZI REGIME

BERLIN, (AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler Saturday rode roughshod over foes attempting to overthrow his regime.

Premier Hermann Goering of Prussia announced he was carrying out drastic police action on Hitler's orders against Nazi Storm Troop leaders attempting to force a second German revolution. Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, recent critic of certain practices of Nazi government, was taken into "protective custody" together with three members of his staff.

Former Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher, reactionary and monarchist, was killed by police when he resisted arrest as a conspirator.

Capt. Ernest Roehm, national commander of the Nazi Storm Troops and a radical, deposed from power, was ejected from the Nazi party.

Captain Roehm committed suicide while under arrest. The streets of Berlin were patrolled by steel-helmeted policemen armed with rifles.

Goering said: "Some storm troop leaders, overwhelmed and deposed upon realizing what they had done, committed suicide. Some had been shot when they offered resistance."

"The state and party will be urged and cleansed." "Many group leaders (of storm troopers) also have been seized and await the day of judgment."

Orgies of an indescribable nature by Nazi Storm Troop leaders and an alleged plot between Captain Roehm, national commander, and "a foreign power" were announced by the Nazi party as responsible for Roehm's arrest and removal from office.

The national Germany army Saturday was ordered to be ready for emergency duty. After being held a short time, von Papen was released. The Austro-German border was closed to all traffic at noon.

Three hours later the border was reopened at Kufstein. It was reported Count Wolf Heinrich Ehdorf, Nazi police president of Potsdam, was shot and killed.

Ask Allred To Hurry Pink Boll Worm Payments

To Attorney General Allred Saturday went a plea to expedite the handling down of an opinion on pink bollworm payments that farmers may be paid immediately.

State Senator Arthur P. Duggan, author of the bill and who, with Senator Ken Reagan of Pecos and Senator E. Metcalfe of San Angelo championed the bill in the legislature, dispatched a letter to the attorney general urging that "technicalities" be forgotten and "let this money go to these people immediately."

He said he had been prompted to write after completing a tour of the area embraced in the Pink Bollworm quarantine several years ago.

"If you and the comptroller had been with me and could have seen the desolation in these counties caused by the second year's drought," he wrote, "you would immediately forget all technicalities."

Duggan recalled that the drought has become so acute that in "the large majority of places seed have not been planted," and added that "it is about the most pitiful condition that I have ever seen."

He appealed to the attorney general to "hasten your opinion to the comptroller and let these warrants be permitted to go out at once." The senate bill calling for a $500,000 appropriation to reimburse farmers for losses sustained while under pink bollworm quarantine was passed by the last session of the legislature and since that time a claims board has worked steadily, finally having all regulations ready, to go to the comptroller.

Newspaper Cooperative Poll Shows Allred Out In Front In Texas Gubernatorial Race

By RAYMOND BROOKS AUSTIN—As of July 1, a cross-section of Texas political sentiment puts James V. Allred well out in front in the governor's race, with Tom F. Hunter holding a slight lead over Edgar Witt for a place in the run-off and C. C. McDonald near them for fourth place. Clint Small was reflected in fifth place, Harry Hughes in sixth place, and E. K. Russell, prohibition candidate, getting a scattered vote for last place.

This sample of July first preferences reflects the attitude of 2,076 voters, or about one-half of one per cent of the expected first primary votes July 25. It was taken in 20 cities, ranging from Texarkana to San Angelo, from Brownsville to Palestine, from Laredo to Big Spring, and points between.

In each community, voters were polled personally. Care was taken to poll a correct proportion of rural voters in each county. The poll was made possible by the cooperation of this newspaper represented. The cross-section results do not purport to say how the first primary election will go. They do purport to show the relative preference of hundreds of voters in typical communities, checked at random, during the past week.

Here are the figures, based as far as possible, on proportional ratios in each of the 20 areas, the cities ranging from among the larger ones to down as small as 7000 in population. Farm and rural people were checked as they visited the market square, stores and the county agent's headquarters.

Table with 2 columns: Candidate Name and Number of Votes. Includes Allred (695), Hunter (323), Witt (274), McDonald (254), Russell (19), Small (249), Hughes (108), and others.

or that a final choice was yet to be made between two candidates. And nearly all the seven candidates figured in the two between whom various individuals were yet to make their choice.

To avoid any possible underweighting of the results, none of the canvass was made in the home county of the candidates.

The figures relate to July 1 preferences. They should indicate the starting-point at least of the final primary wind-up, though any or all the apparent showings may be greatly changed by election day.

Gable, Powell Cast Together In "Manhattan Melodrama"

Nocturnal Life Of Gotham Is Theme Of Play

Production Marks Return Of Heartbreaker Clark Gable To Screen

New York's smart night world moves before the camera in a glamorous and dramatic parade in "Manhattan Melodrama," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer three-star feature which opens today at the Ritz Theatre.

Clark Gable, William Powell and Myrna Loy share starring honors.

Besides marking Gable's return to the screen after his recent triumphal personal appearance tour in the East, the picture is noteworthy because it is Powell's first appearance as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, and because it marks the elevation to stardom of Miss Loy.

Gable-Powell
It is the first time Gable and Powell have appeared together. The picture brings about the reunion of Gable and Miss Loy, who were hailed as a new romantic team in "Men in White," their recent hit.

"Manhattan Melodrama" presents Gable as a powerful and dramatic figure of the demi-world of New York, a "big shot" gambler who does not hesitate to use violence when he is crossed. He is in love with Miss Loy, who is the wife of William Powell, district attorney and Gable's life-long friend.

The situations that arise out of this unusual combination of characters make a story that moves swiftly and dramatically to an unexpected conclusion.

The supporting cast numbers many notable players, among them Leo Carrillo, Nat Pendleton, George Sidney, Isabel Jewell and Muriel Evans.

Produced by David O. Selznick, "Manhattan Melodrama" was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, noted explorer-director who gave the screen "Eskimo," "Trader Horn," "The Prizefighter and the Lady" and other outstanding hits.

Tall And Handsome

Cary Grant, who will be seen opposite Sylvia Sydney in "Thirty Day Princess" road show feature unit at Ritz theatre Friday and Saturday is most anxious not to be identified as "talk, dark and handsome," a descriptive first applied to him by Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong." Indeed Cary insists that the belle West "goes him wrong" by thus labeling him. As apt appellations are apt to, this one has stuck to him. For the debonair Mr. Grant is indeed all of those three things.

But Cary Grant is more. He is a very fine actor, despite the fact that he enchevs stardom. And he has never been more in character nor has he ever put more spirit and vitality into a role than he does in "Thirty-Day Princess." In which he plays the role of a young publisher of an important metropolitan newspaper which is opposed to foreign loans, who is vamped in the royal manner by the Crown Princess of Taronia (as she supposes) into boosting the country's bonds. The film is said to be good, honest fun and is recommended by Managers Robb as all-family entertainment.

ACCEPTS POSITION

Mrs. Bertha Martin has accepted a position with the La Mode, ladies' ready-to-wear shop, and has assumed her new duties with that firm.

Directed by W. S. Van Dyke, noted explorer-director who gave the screen "Eskimo," "Trader Horn," "The Prizefighter and the Lady" and other outstanding hits.

Bond Swindlers Slay Girl Who Stands In Way

A melodramatic murder mystery thriller comes to the Ritz Theatre on Tuesday, under the title of "Fog Over Frisco," with Bette Davis, Donald Woods, Margaret Lindsay, Hugh Herbert and Lyle Talbot in the featured leads.

This First National picture, based on the story by George Dyer, is an exciting tale of adventure, revealing the operations of a band of international bond swindlers, who do not hesitate at murder in carrying out their gigantic operations. The story centers about San Francisco, in the homes of the fashionable society folk and along the water front on the Embarcadero, which is the scene of a thrilling chase after kidnapers and a lively battle with a band of crooks. Exterior scenes were made by the company on location at the Golden Gate city.

Bette in Lead
Bette Davis, playing a heavy for the first time in her life, is one of the leaders of the swindlers, although she is the daughter of a wealthy bond broker. Other important members of the band include Lyle Talbot, vice president of the bonding house, a weakling to whom Bette is supposedly betrothed and whom she bends to her will; Douglas Dumbrille, the master mind, secretly married to Bette and who later slays her when his fancy turns to another; and Irving Pichel, a go-between, who is also slain by the master mind.

Romantic Pair
Donald Woods and Margaret Lindsay have the romantic leads, furnishing a lively romance in what is otherwise a story of thrills and fast action. Both, however, are part of the action. Miss Lindsay, the sweet young half-sister of the crooked Bette being kidnaped and spirited aboard a yacht, while Woods is the young reporter who smashes the gang and rescues the fair Margaret with whom he is deeply in love.

Hugh Herbert, as a picture snatcher, furnishes no inconsiderable amount of comedy relief while Arthur Byron, Henry O'Neill and Robert Barrat have important roles as the bond broker, his partner and a secret service operative respectively.

Margaret Lindsay, who plays the part of Val in "Fog Over Frisco" coming to the Ritz Tuesday and Wednesday, becomes the object of a search when kidnapers pick her off because she knows too much. But Tony, that dashing reporter, puts his soul into his story.

Racket Barred By Reporter In Queen Show

Story Woven From Findings Of Dallas, Texas News Reporter

In a plot based on actual happenings in a newspaper man's career, Tim McCoy will be seen as a daring reporter in "Hold the Queen" Theater today.

The story is from the pen of Horace McCoy formerly a newspaper man in Dallas, Texas. While employed in that city, Mr. McCoy uncovered a vicious underworld racket that preyed on paroled criminals, keeping them always indebted to the racketeers and crooked politicians who fostered the practice.

McCoy has taken the highlights of the story and woven them into a screen story "Hold the Queen" in which Colonel Tim McCoy is starred as the daring reporter who gets on the trail of the racketeers and exposes them at infinite risk.

The plot furnishes the actor with plenty of fast and exciting adventure before he finally rounds up the crooks. Machine guns chatter and bullets whine and a half-dozen exciting personal encounters keep the excitement at high pitch throughout the story. Romance is provided by pretty Shirley Grey.

A number of the characters in the story are drawn from real-life acquaintances in the newspaper business, according to McCoy, the author.

Others in the cast of this thriller-drama are Wheeler Oakman, Oscar Apfel and Bradley Page.

Bloodchilling Puzzle Solved By Chas. Chan

Famous Chinese Detective Shows Unexcelled Courage In New Case

Charles Chan, portrayed by Warner Oland, solves another blood-chilling mystery in the Fox picture, "Charlie Chan's Courage," coming to the Queen Theater on Wednesday.

Who threw the deadly knife that killed a faithful Chinese servant? Why did a pet parrot scream, "Help! Murder! Who killed the bird, silencing that scream forever? Who had been murdered at a millionaire's lonely desert mansion... and where was the body?"

These are the questions bristling forth from the story by Earl Derr Biggers that have been solved by the enigmatic oriental detective created on the screen by Warner Oland. It is one of his most baffling mysteries.

In current literature Chan has supplanted Sherlock Holmes and even Philo Vance. On the screen Warner Oland has become definitely identified as Charlie Chan.

So much so that letters addressed simply to "Charlie Chan, U. S. A." have been delivered to Oland. The leading feminine role has been given to beautiful Drue Leyton, talented star of the Broadway stage, who makes her debut in a leading motion picture role in "Charlie Chan's Courage." She is one of the Fox debutante stars. Donald Woods has the juvenile lead opposite her.

Maury Hughes To Speak Here Tuesday Night

Candidate For Governor To Speak On Courthouse Lawn

Maury Hughes will speak in behalf of his candidacy for governor of Texas on the courthouse lawn in Big Spring Tuesday night, July 3rd, at 8:15, according to advices received here Friday.

Hughes is 40 years old, and a practicing attorney in Dallas. He enlisted in the army at the outbreak of the war and served in France as a captain. He is past president of the 36th Division association. He is married and has two children. He is a member of the Episcopal church, a Mason and Shriner, and a member of the American Legion.

Hughes is a former district attorney of Dallas county, and was president of the District and county attorneys' association of Texas in 1921 and 1922. He was one of the authors of the Democratic national platform on which President Roosevelt was elected.

The candidate favors adoption of the federal parole and pardon system in Texas. He hopes for judicial reform, favors repeal of the liquor laws but is against the open saloon. He wants lower ad valorem taxes, and if elected will ask the legislature to cut appropriations $10,000,000 more than last year. He is against a state sales tax.

He favors old age pensions for men and women and unemployment insurance, reorganization of the state ranger force, passage of a state securities act with enough teeth in it to stop bond and stock swindlers, and favors reducing automobile registration fees not to exceed $5 a car.

"THE LURE OF THE SOUTH-WEST"
Magnolia Petroleum company, Dallas, Texas, June 27, 1934, Big Spring Herald, Big Spring, Texas, Gentlemen: About two years ago we announced that we were preparing a book concerning the historical and romantic spots in the southwest, and your paper carried an article concerning it.

We are now happy to announce that the book has been published and is in the hands of our various district managers for distribution to those people who are considering a vacation in the southwest.

Sen. John W. Hornsby of Austin has returned home after a tour of the Texas Panhandle and Plains country in his race for lieutenant governor, reporting himself highly pleased with the results of his visit to Amarillo, Lubbock and other cities of the area.

Classic Story Of War Coming This Week-End

"We are forlorn, like children and experienced, like old men, we are crude and sorrowful and superficial... I believe we are lost..."

Those are the words of Erich Maria Remarque, most eloquent spokesman of the generation that went to war—the "lost generation." Remarque felt, as he described so vividly in "All Quiet on the Western Front," that the experience of war had robbed his generation of youth, had destroyed its hope, and prevented it from every becoming adjusted to normal living. "We were killed by the war even though we escaped its bullets."

Today another generation is growing up. And all before the armies of the world are preparing for conflict. Will there be a second "lost generation?"

In answer to that question, Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, has re-issued "All Quiet on the Western Front," which has become the classic war film of all time. Mr. Laemmle believes that should enough of the new generation see this picture, there will be less likelihood of its taking up arms.

Singularly, it was this new generation, the one in danger today, that was responsible for the picture's production of "All Quiet on the Western Front." The youthful producer, Carl Laemmle, Jr., was but 22 years old when the picture was made in 1930. Let's say that he takes the role of Paul, was 20. The six other boys who play "Paul's" comrades, Russell Gleason, William Bakewell, Scott Kirk, Walter Brown Rogers, Ben Alexander and Owens Davis, Jr., ranged in age from 19 to 22. None of them were old enough to go to war. Today they are eligible.

These young men have given the picture its greatest picture in "All Quiet on the Western Front." They have also given the belligerent world a terrific indictment.

This great Universal production is coming to the Queen Theater Friday and Saturday.

TEXAS TOPICS

By Raymond Brooks

How the living ex-governors of Texas will line up this year for election of the man to hold the office they have held would be a diverting morsel of information. But it has not been developed and perhaps with one or two exceptions, will not be. Former Gov. Dan Moody said he has made up his mind, but is not disclosing his choice.

Former Gov. James H. Ferguson—both ex and the present governor—are of course for C. C. McDonald, O. B. Colquitt, W. P. Hobby, Pat M. Neff, Dan Moody and Ross S. Sterling complete the list.

Outside the Ferguson's, none has officially broken into print in support of any candidate personally.

Edgar Witt, lieutenant governor, is completing his long service with-out so far having been afforded the opportunity to sit for a single moment in the chief executive's chair as acting governor.

Lynch Davidson, in a two-year term, had the same experience. There is no visible prospect now that Mr. Witt will get an opportunity to function as governor.

Gov. Sterling had planned to leave the state for 10 days, thus calling Lieut. Gov. Witt to the executive post, but abandoned his plan.

Marie Dresden, when called to serve for a time as state relief director, said "My interest lies in my professional work. If they want me to work here for a time, that is all right; it makes no difference to me how long or short a time." She did the job with the smooth efficiency of great skill and conspicuous ability.

She dropped a $200-per-month job indifferently, when legal procedure left her back in her work as social service consultant. If she wished to abandon such a place, it was within her discretion wholly to do it.

The nation is a field, in widespread relief and rehabilitation activities, for her type of professional training. It is very likely that Miss Dresden will be called to the federal relief service, if she wishes it.

Sen. John W. Hornsby of Austin has returned home after a tour of the Texas Panhandle and Plains country in his race for lieutenant governor, reporting himself highly pleased with the results of his visit to Amarillo, Lubbock and other cities of the area.

Southwest. We enclose a copy which we hope you will find both interesting and entertaining. It is our hope that the reading of this little book will cause its readers to take time off and see the great southwest where so much of the nation's history has been enacted and written.

Yours very truly,

Woman Works Out Domestic Difficulties

Instead Of Suing For Divorce, Wife Works Out Neat Scheme

When a wife is faced with uncertainty about her husband, what should she do? The usual things is to sue for divorce, of course, but Genevieve Tobin finds a new and unusual method of dealing with this situation in "Uncertain Lady," coming to the Ritz theatre on Thursday.

According to Genevieve's plan, when she discovers her husband is philandering with another woman, she makes no scene whatsoever. On the contrary, she very charmingly invites the hubby and the "other woman" to her office, and being a business woman herself, outlines a strictly business proposition to her competitor.

The details of this astounding proposition provide one of the most hilarious situations yet devised in a motion picture. The exciting domestic triangle is soon complicated by the appearance of several ardent admirers of the wife, who in her bewilderment becomes a most uncertain lady.

The picture, directed by Karl Freund from the play by Harry Segall, "The Behaviour of Mrs. Crane," has a cast headed by Genevieve Tobin and Edward Everett Horton, with Renee O'Neil, Paul Cavanagh, Mary Nash, George Meeker, Herbert Corbell and Dorothy Peterson. Karl Freund directed.

Confidence (1)

In Wall Street among many industrial leaders who are close touch with the financial community there is a mental depression which is undoubtedly an important factor in the revival of enterprise. The cold facts, judged by virtually all the accepted standards of measurement, are reassuring. The state of mind of the country as a whole, judged by the ordinary signs by which men of affairs test the temper of the people, is one of subsiding discontent and increasing hopefulness. Yet among men of large affairs, not in all, but in a great number, there is anxiety and doubt as to the future.

Thus, for example, taking the most salient of the indices of economic conditions, the Federal Reserve Board figures for industrial activity, we find that from November to May the index rose from 72 per cent of the 1923-1925 average to 87 per cent. This is at the rate of a little better than 2 points a month and is an amazingly rapid rate of recovery. A continuation of this rate for another six months would restore activity to the statistical normal. At even half this rate activity would be normal within a year. It has been accompanied by a slow but persistent rise in commodity prices, by a sensational improvement in the bond market, by an immense strengthening not only of the Federal government's credit but of the credit of states and municipalities and railroads, by a substantial increase of the earnings of labor and of corporate profits, by a marked diminution of commercial failures. There are to be sure still many millions of unemployed, there are millions on relief, there are agricultural areas and industries which

James McNeese, Rail Commission Candidate, Speaks

JAMES McNEESE

James McNeese, of Dallas, candidate for railroad commissioner at the coming primaries, spent Friday in Big Spring, the guest of his sister, Mrs. Bill Yates and family. Mr. McNeese spoke in the interest of his candidacy Friday evening on the courthouse lawn to a fair-sized crowd.

"That Texans want new men in politics and will vote for any able business or professional man with a clean record" is what Mr. McNeese says he finds wherever he goes on his speaking tour of Texas. "The voters are heartily sick and ashamed of the type of perpetual political aspirants in this race," said McNeese. "My opponent, Lon Smith, present chairman, who has been in office for 34 years and wants another term of six years, naturally is somewhat embarrassed and handicapped in defending his position, who has been indicted by the Gregg county grand jury for reported theft of oil."

"I hope John Fundt will answer the charges printed in the official journal of the Texas house of representatives, that he handled the big roll of money that went to the notorious 'creamery fund.'"

Mr. McNeese said he favored giving full consideration to the oil fields of Texas, particularly West Texas, regarding oil prorations. After spending the night in Big Spring, McNeese left early Saturday morning for Colorado, Sweetwater and Abilene, where he was scheduled to speak. He was accompanied here by his son, James Jr., and A. L. Deguire, of Dallas.

have not revived. But no one can look at the picture as a whole and doubt that there has been immense progress toward recovery.

Nor can there be any doubt that this real improvement in conditions is reflected in the temper of the people. There have, for example, been some labor disputes. But the country has thus far been spared industrial conflicts which are comparable in intensity with those that took place toward the end of the first post-war depression. The biggest threats to industrial peace have until now been composed by negotiation.

The Congress which has just adjourned was, when it was elected, the most highly inflationary and the most angry Congress which has been elected in this generation. With one or two lapses maintained its discipline to the end, followed a leadership which was essential moderate, and having redeemed its pledges to make laws against the abuses of 1929, it manifested an unmistakable intention not to go beyond the regulation of flagrant evils.

The Congress granted vast powers to the President. But in spite of the belief in some quarters that he is surrounded by a coterie bent upon overthrowing private capitalism, the objective record at the most crucial point, which is NRA, is marked by a decisive and steady retreat from the program of "regimentation" and restriction of output. One would suppose that in the presence of these developments there would be in conservative quarters a feeling of confidence that our problems are solvable and that American institutions are working sufficiently well to justify a faith that, having met and surmounted a desperate crisis, we can deal with what the future has in store for us. Amid the wisest this confidence does believe, exist. But it is not prevailing attitude of mind, and it would be interesting to know by it is not.

When those who are filled with anxiety are asked to give their reasons, there are, as might be expected, a variety of responses. One of them is that the recovery so far is dependent upon enormous government expenditures and is therefore artificial, that these expenditures either wear the government's credit and drive it to the printing press or they will require such stupendous taxes as to take all the profit of private enterprise. Now, none can deny that these dangers exist, and that it is important to keep them in mind.

The question "whether it is certain or even probable that these possible dangers will be realized."

My own view is that with ordinary prudence and wisdom they are not probable dangers. For one thing, the realizations expenditures are much less than some of the excited statisticians say they are. Some of the estimates put out by Republican politicians at the close of Congress are downright nonsense. Actually, taking into account the government's good assets and its cash, its net increase of the deficit is certain to be much less than the gross figures indicate.

The money that is being handed out which cannot be recovered is considerable. But it does not run into counties billions. For another thing, due to the strengthening of the whole banking system and of a successful central banking policy, the government's credit is stronger than it has been for years. There are no signs of a breakdown such as would have to precede a resort to the printing press; on the contrary, it signs all points to a steady reduction in the price which the government will have to pay for money. A government which can borrow at long term for 3 per cent or less has never in all history gone bankrupt and been forced to print money.

As for taxes, they are very high in my opinion too high for this stage of recovery. But the very fact that they are high guarantees ample revenues to balance the budget as recovery proceeds to produce profits and bigger incomes. Judged by our experience in the twenties, the present rates will reduce the national debt very fast indeed, so fast that it is a fair guess that by 1936 the politicians in both parties will be promising a reduction of taxes. It probably will not be wise to reduce them, but given recovery and the present rates, the surpluses will be so large as to be very tempting.

This does not mean that the financial and the management of money and fiscal policy of the government credit present no difficulties and no dangers. They do. They require foresight and skill and courage. But it does mean that the elements of the problem are under control and that there is no reason for becoming rattled and frightened. The situation in 1932-1933 was immeasurably more dangerous than the one which we have to deal with in 1934-1935.

Under The Dome At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEPHERD

AUSTIN, (UP)—The cavalry lads have a new one to pull on the doughboys when relative advantage of the service are the topic.

Troopers of the Texas National Guard had been at their two-week encampment near Mineral Wells. The doughboys will have no beer at Palacios next month.

At least they are destined to go dry unless Maj. Gen. John A. Hulien changes his mind and orders. So far he has refused to permit beer at the Palacios encampment.

Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters ruled in favor of beer for the encampment of the cavalry brigade which he commands. It was at the canteen there both on tap and in bottles. Bottled beer was served for 10 cents. Mugs of draught beer were a nickel. Officers were not permitted to drink at the canteen. Beer was served as part of the officers' mess. General Wolters says the serving of beer caused no disorder, was easily handled and seemed to please the personnel. Incidentally, the Palo Pinto county encampment was the first National Guard encampment at which beer has been permitted in many years.

General Hulien's chief objection to permitting beer at Palacios is said to be because many of the Infantrymen are minors.

"Junior commission" is the name that has been tacked on the East Texas committee of three designated by the Texas railroad commission to oversee oil tenders and oil movement. The term is used in communications of the Texas Petroleum Council.

Forged pardons are not new in Texas. One of the most celebrated releases by spurious order occurred during the administration of the late Gov. J. D. Sayers. A 99-year convict obtained liberty that way. Seen back in his home county by the prosecuting attorney, he left Texas before it was discovered how he left prison. He was not recaptured.

"It's a girl" was the news given Secretary of State W. W. Heath this week. The daughter is the first child born to him and Mrs. Heath.

State Railroad Commissioners are planning for the future. One plan is to prevent abandonment of oil pipe lines when they cease to be profitable. In the past year the commission was confronted with many applications for abandonment of rail lines that had become money losers. Foreseeing possible similar occurrences for pipe lines, the situation is to be forestalled if possible.

Pipe line companies were so notified this week by Commissioner E. O. Thompson. He explained that the chief purpose of the commission in calling upon the companies to submit maps, inventories and reproduction costs of their lines is to assure continuance of the lines. Oil men had thought a new slash in rates was imminent. Instead rates may be raised where it becomes apparent that they cannot be operated successfully without increased revenue. "We do not want any line abandoned so long as there is oil left to be moved in the territory it serves," Thompson said.

Members of the committee of the regents of the university of Texas who look after the college of mines expect to make a trip to El Paso soon. The time has not been set.

They plan to look over the school and find out just what its scope is before choosing a new president for it. Some noted mining instructors are said to be available but the El Paso school carries many courses besides its engineering curriculum.

When the State Court of Criminal Appeals closes its term here Saturday in compliance with the state constitution, it will end its sixtieth year. Records show that already 854 appeals have been carried to it from lower courts since the preceding term ended June 21, 1933. That year's term had had 677 appeals.

By that we mean, let a strong bank aid your progress.

Cosdenites Up-Set Dope To Defeat Robinson Team 4-3

Winning Run In 6th Frame Refinery Team Must Defeat Crawford Club To Win Title

By HANK HART
Cosden ball players became heavy favorites to win the first half championship Friday when they defeated the Robinson Grocerymen 4-3, coming from behind after the Robinsonites had broken through with a three run rally in the fourth inning.

Henninger held the Robinsonites hitless until the fourth, but in that inning Coots and H. Hart binged to put men on first and second and Rogers followed with a looping triple in right field. Rogers later came home on an outfield fly.

The Cosden team must defeat the Crawford outfit to win the first half championship. If the Crawford team wins, the first half title will go to the Robinsonites.

The lead appeared safe until the fatal sixth when with one run in and two on base, Forrester made the mistake of attempting to catch the man at second base and threw wide, letting both runners score.

Coots revived the hopes of the Grocerymen in the fifth when he crashed a mighty hit into deep center field, but the ball, spinning as it came down, bounded backward directly into Witt's hands and Coots was forced to stop at first base.

Terraza walked to begin the sixth and Baker and Whittington hit in succession to send the winning run across the plate.

Cosden led in hits, garnering 12 while the Grocerymen managed only 7.

Sinclair Team Defeats Tigers

In a game marked with numerous errors, the Sinclair Oilers defeated the Mexican Tigers 16 to 13 at Coahoma Friday afternoon. Thirty miscues were registered, fifteen for each club.

It was one of the worst performances ever put on by the Tigers. Mendoza, who has been playing very creditable ball at third base, made five errors, while Gamboa and Riggs on the Oiler team made four errors each.

P. Fierro Stars
P. Fierro was the hitting star of the game, collecting five solid hits out of six trips to the plate, including a home run. Fierro made his circuit trip when he stole second while the baseman was elsewhere, ran to third when the third baseman was trying to cover second, and tore home when the catcher tried to plug him at third.

The Sinclair aggregation jumped on Subia, Lopez and Fierro for fourteen hits, while the Tigers nipped Cox for fifteen.

Irregular Line-Up
The Mexicans played without the services of Hernandez, A. Garcia, J. Garcia, A. Cruz and R. Cruz.

By TOM BEASLEY

A check-up Saturday revealed that the dance Friday night netted the Big Spring Soft Ball association approximately $35. That, President Jess Hall informed us, will just about put the association even again—financially. There is a possibility that there will be a few dollars left over to take care of incidental expenses.

Installation of the new flood lights cost about $135. The lights were $115, poles $15, and putting them up cost about $5.

The Crawford Hotel has taken over the sponsorship of the Bible Class soft ball team and promises to make the churchmen one of the strongest last half contenders in the circuit. H. N. Robinson is still manager of the team.

There has been some talk of starting up a new soft ball league here. Several new teams have been organized lately.

This game of soft ball, as she is now being played hereabout, still appears from this angle very much like a fielders' game, but after looking over the box scores of a professional contest played in St. Louis a few nights back we are almost ready to believe that eventually it will be a pitchers' game. It's not easy to believe that the chunkers ever will be able to take charge, for heaving the big ball under-handed appears too great a handicap for the fellows on the firing line.

This St. Louis game, which incidentally drew a crowd of 8,200 fans—enough to rival the big days the Cardinals and Browns have at home—was between the Kentucky Colonels of Newport, Ky., and the National All-Stars of St. Louis. The Kentucky team won, 2 to 1 in ten innings, its pitcher, one Cannonball Bailey, whiffing exactly 20 hitters and allowing only one hit.

Club Team Sewa Game Up In Fourth Inning With Seven Runs

Lions hopped on to two Crawford hotel pitchers Friday evening in one of the most portentous League No. 1 soft ball play, slugging duels yet witnessed in League No. 1 softball play.

When it was all over, the Jungle Kings had amassed a total of 24 runs while holding their opponents to 9 tallies.

Never In Trouble
Clarence Day, Lion twirler, was never in trouble except for a brief interval in the third when Roland Schwarzenbach's drive to center was dropped and Cordill walloped one for four bases through left-center.

His mates came to his rescue in the next frame and sewed the game up with a seven run rally that saw every Lion come to bat. The same thing happened in the fifth when eight runs came across and Day hit twice. The Lions climaxed their scoring with a four run spurge in the last inning.

Four in the Fourth
Crawford scratched four times in its eventful third, once in the fourth, and again in the sixth, and closed out with three runs in the last inning.

While many Lions were safe on errors, they were hitting the ball hard to account for most of their tallies: Harris hit twice for the home run laurels, Corley got one and a triple, and Hall slapped out a four ply blow. Day himself was driving clean hits to right center.

Mason Enters Golf Finals

Beverly Rockhold defeated C. T. Watson 3-2 in a championship flight match of the Municipal golf tournament Friday to enter the semi-finals.

Rockhold will meet the veteran linksmen, Shirley Robbins, in the semi-finals. Vernon Mason defeated Guy Rainey in a top flight match 2 up to enter the finals. He will meet the winner of the Rockhold-Robbins contest. Mason and Rainey played their semi-final match a week ahead of time.

If rain has made the course impossible to play today, matches may be postponed three days, Charles Akey said Saturday.

ONE MILLIONTH Ford

... for the Ford idea of low-cost transportation

ON June 20th the millionth Ford V-8 was produced—finest of a long line of nearly 22,000,000 Ford cars.

26 years ago Henry Ford said, "We will build a motor car for the great multitude".

This basic idea has never changed. The name Ford is synonymous with dependable, sturdy low cost motor cars. The V-8 was the answer to the need of the modern motorist for greater speed and flexibility.

Without sacrificing one whit of traditional Ford owner economy and lasting performance, the V-8 has brought to a million owners the power and comfort previously found only in the most expensive cars.

New low prices for 1934 were put into effect June 15.

THE TAX MASTER
 The National Industrial Conference
 Board has issued an extraordinary interesting comparison of the nation's income and expenditures for the years 1929 and 1932. In the former year our income was $53,000,000,000. Yet the cost of government rose from 7.5 per cent to 17.4 per cent of the total income.

In 1932 we spent three times as much for government as for agricultural products; seven times as much as we spent for light, power and gas; twenty per cent more than we spent for all manufactured products; twelve times as much as we spent for agricultural commodities.

Today it is reliably estimated that the cost of government amounts to more than 20 per cent of the national income. That means that every worker must put in one day out of each five-day week in order to pay his share of the expense.

BARGAIN HOMES
 If present plans to stimulate construction mature, a typical home that would have cost $9,500 in 1929 will cost less than $7,000 in 1934, according to the American Builder.

TWO TRENDS IN LIFE INSURANCE
 There are two significant trends great increase in volume and number of sales, after several years in which the total of insurance in force declined.

 Study of the statistics reveals that a majority of the 756,500 automobile accidents in the United States in 1933 occurred on straight, dry roads in clear weather, and involving cars in good condition driven by persons with a year or more of experience. Over 75

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

On This Page Is Clarence Chamberlin—Can You Pick the Atlantic Flyer?

She was "Princess Alice," in those days, and her exploits alternately startled and delighted her countrymen. But when she went for a ride in the country she had to put up with cumbersome skirts, unpaved roads and much mud-spattering. Just like anybody else. Anyway, here she is—Alice Roosevelt Longworth as she looked upwards of two decades ago.

Dress collars went 'way up, in the old days, and they were a bit tough on the chin—but this dapper lad was up in the money then, and he had to dress the part. If you saw him in his workaday costume you'd be more likely to recognize him—Tod Sloan, the young American Jockey who showed how you could get more speed out of a horse if you sat hunched up just back of its ears. He died, just the other day, in a California hospital.

What Clark Gable or Gary Cooper is to feminine dreams today, William Faversham was a generation ago. Here he is, with Evelyn Wright and Julia Opp, in a scene from one of the great old-time successes, "The Squaw Man."

Like all other heavyweight champions who met defeat, the late James J. Corbett thought he could come back. After losing the title in 1899 to Bob Fitzsimmons, he tried to regain it from James J. Jeffries in 1903 at San Francisco, and the mighty Jeffries knocked him out. Some years after their memorable battle, Corbett and Jeffries re-enacted the affair for the benefit of visitors at a training camp. They are pictured here as they then appeared.

Going for an auto ride was a thrilling business when this picture was taken, in 1902—but this little chap in the back seat was destined to get an infinitely greater thrill a quarter of a century later, for he is Clarence Chamberlin, transatlantic flyer. His sister, Ethyl (now Mrs. Max Moffitt), is beside him, and in front are his parents, Mr and Mrs. E. C. Chamberlin. There's was the first car owned in the town of Denison, Ia.

SEEK TUFVERSON CLUES ON LINER

The hunt for the missing Agnes Tufverson turned to the liner Olympic on the theory that her husband, Ivan Podersjaj, held in Vienna, might have slain her and shoved her body through the porthole on his last voyage to Europe. A New York detective is shown examining the porthole of Podersjaj's cabin and tiny scrapings taken from it were turned over to chemists to determine whether they had been covered with blood. 50,000 EXPECTED TO ATTEND STAMFORD COWBOY REUNION

By CLEBURNE HUSTON STAMFORD—With all preparations completed, Stamford waited calmly today for the opening Monday of the fifth annual Texas Cowboy Reunion which is expected to bring 50,000 visitors to this little city of 5,000 population during the three days, July 2, 3, and 4.

There was a slight bustle about hotels as early arrivals came in. Bronzed cowboys arrived in automobiles, bringing in trailers their favorite cow ponies, the parades and rodeo events. Others will arrive in cars and on horseback Sunday, and by Monday morning the city will be glamorous with the sound of horses hoofs, the rattle of spurs and the clatter of boot heels on pavements.

Coming, too, in quieter fashion are the grizzled veterans of the range—those who saw service in the saddle no less than 25 years ago—who will be guests throughout the reunion. Most of the cowgirl sponsors, representing sixty odd towns will come in Sunday for the judging for sponsor's prizes including the $250 saddle, will take place Monday morning.

The first session of the Texas Cowboy Reunion association, a separate organization of the veteran cowboys, will be held at 10 a. m. Monday, with President John M. Gist presiding. At the close of the meeting, members of the association who have paid their annual dues of $1 will receive badges admitting them to all entertainments and entitling them to a buck wagon dinner at noon each day.

A varied program of activities, running almost continually day and night has been arranged for the three days of the reunion. Three performances of the cowboy rodeo are to be held each day 8 a. m., 11:15 p. m., and 8 p. m. Other features of the program include the parade and judging of the cowgirl sponsors Monday morning, the old fiddlers contest Tuesday morning, the grand parade at 11 a. m. Tuesday and lesser parades on the other two days, dances at the Cowboy pavilion each night and square dances each evening at the pioneer cowboys' new bunkhouse.

Besides the usual cowboy contests in calf-roping, wild cow-milking, steer riding and bronc busting, the Texas Cowboy Reunion rodeo features a cutting-horse contest in which the cowboy has an opportunity to display the ability of his horse. A calf-roping contest for cowboys over 50 years of age and a steer riding contest for boys under 14 also attracts a great deal of interest each year. Educated horses, five galloped horses, trick and fancy roping and clown stunts are included in the arena programs this year.

More than $2,000 in prizes are being offered in various contests during the reunion, nearly twice the amount given in previous years.

Home Demonstration Council in Meeting

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter 46 METHOD OF ESCAPE

Harper went on digging out the contents of the tire. Out came a worn pair of man's suede gloves, a leather wallet with the gold initials "H. D." stamped inside, a key case holding three keys, a pocket handkerchief with the initials "D" in one corner, a thin gold watch with a link chain, a cigarette lighter, and a man's signet ring with the same initials intertwined.

Dusting off his hands, he took stock of the collection. The use of that thin, tough rope with its ringed ends came readily to his mind. He looked through the snow-trimmed panes toward the big house. That baffling escape from the scene of the crime had been a simple affair after all, once one had a glimpse of the modern operation. He put down the rope and went over to the fingerprint man. "How does it stack up?" he asked.

The men looked up. "They're smug," he replied, "and there's not a perfect print on the gun, but there's no doubt about them checking if that's what you mean."

Harper approached the police surgeon. "Find anything, Doc?"

The coroner's man shook his head. "Not a thing. It's a good, clean suicide," he concluded with cautious humor, "everything according to Boyle."

Harper made a cursory examination of the other rooms, then gathered up the articles retrieved from the old tire, wrapped them in a towel, beckoned to O'Connell, and left the garage.

Sending the policeman ahead with the bundle, Harper made a complete circuit of the walls of the main house, with occasional digressions over the snow-covered grounds. When he had finished he understood exactly the use which had been made of that brownish yellow rope with its ringed ends. He was just about to re-enter the house when he saw Lafferty's spare fingers hammering in at the gate. The fall detective was greatly excited over this latest development and plied Harper with questions as they proceeded to the breakfast room, where O'Connell had put the recovered evidence on display.

Lafferty stood on the creak of rope at once. "Hello, what's this?" he queried.

"You are holding in your hands the answer to the great puzzle—how did the murderer get away without leaving any traces in the snow? With five minutes' practice you or I or any one could do it as well."

He pointed through the window. "You know the small porch on this side of the house? Well, there's a sturdy iron hook driven into the wall right by the porch. And do you see that tree, just on the other side of the boundary wall? Another hook was driven into that. "The rings on each end of the rope hooked on to those, leaving the rope seven or eight feet above the ground. This miraculous escape was made by the murderer going along that rope, hand over hand, with the feet drawn up clear of the snow."

The big detective plumped down in a chair. "Well, I'll be damned!" he exclaimed.

"It certainly was a neat stunt," Harper resumed. "Not nearly as hard as it sounds. A man of Donaghy's build and vigor would find it child's play."

"But wait a minute," Lafferty interrupted, "what happened to the rope afterward? It wasn't there when we took charge. When was it put up and who took it down?"

"The hook's nails have been driven in any time, but I think it was all done recently. The rope was strung across late that afternoon, after dusk, before the snow was heavy on the ground. After the murders the killer swung over the porch rail, went hand over hand until he reached the boundary wall, then swung himself clear over the top and dropped in the adjoining grounds."

"But how was the rope removed?" Lafferty persisted.

"Oh, that was easy. The end hooked to the tree was taken down and by sharply twisting the line upward and shaking it at the same time the end at the porch slid off the hook. Then a quick jerk brought it flying back over the wall, much like cracking a long whip."

"However, the left wasn't quite slick enough, and the free end of the rope dropped into the snow momentarily. Do you remember that odd gash we found in the snow when we were checking up the footprints? There was our clue, but we couldn't make anything of it."

Lafferty became pensive. "That's all right as far as it goes, but it doesn't clear up everything. What about Mr. DeFreme—and Mrs. DeFreme—the ambush—the crank letter—the phoney alibi?"

Harper put the articles back in the bundle. "We'll clear all that up later," he said. "There must be a fantastic kind of misunderstanding between some of the persons in this house. Bring Andrews and the Whitmores in here, will you?"

In a few moments they all filed in, and Harper invited them to be seated. They looked at Sergeant DeFreme expectantly.

"You know what has happened," he began, "there's no need to go into that. Now, which one of you saw the hat to see Joseph Donaghy alive?"

There was a rapid interchange of questioning glances, then Andrews spoke up. "I believe that I was."

Harper looked at them. "We'll consider it settled, then, that Andrews was the last to see Joseph Donaghy alive. He left the house about six o'clock. Did any of you see a light in his room during the night?"

There was no answer. Harper leaned back in his chair. "Tell me about the discovery of the body."

Mrs. Whitmore took up the tale. "We are the first up in the morning," she explained, "I came downstairs a few minutes after seven this morning and John soon after that. There are a number of things

It was Mrs. Whitmore's turn to nod confirmation.

"I was there when Whitmore came back, Sergeant," O'Connell broke in. "He looked like he'd just seen a ghost. As soon as I understood what had happened I ran out to the garage. There were only two tracks in the snow, Whitmore's going and coming back. I looked around the room, saw the letter in the typewriter and read it then I came back here and called you up. That's the whole story, Sergeant."

Harper exhibited the skein of brownish rope with the metal rings on the ends. "Can any of you identify this piece of rope? Do you have any rope like this in the house?"

The three servants passed the coil from hand to hand. Mrs. Whitmore spoke for them. "We never had rope like this in the house. We use the ordinary wash-line kind. I never saw rope like that before."

The detective addressed his next question to the Whitmores. "Did you see Donaghy on here the day of the murders? I have reason to believe that he came here then, probably late in the afternoon."

Both John and Martha shook their heads emphatically.

Local observers are not inclined to view conditions as darkly as Wall Street. The fact that an unofficial Cuban commission advised President Mendiesta to repudiate a $60,000,000 loan the Chase National and associates made to the old Machado administration isn't stirring up half the fuss it would have a few years back.

There is more than a suspicion that official Washington saw all this coming when it prevailed on the senate to repeal the Platt amendment in record time shortly before adjournment. Not the main reason but a contributing cause. The Roosevelt administration isn't overly sympathetic with powerful financial institutions that make loans to revolution-ridden countries and then expect the American Navy to collect them.

Cubans here are waiting anxiously to see how the new commercial treaty between the United States and their homeland stacks up. They say this treaty—which is due to come out of the drafting stage shortly—will either help enormously in restoring Cuban tranquility or will work in exactly the opposite direction.

SCOUT NEWS

It's hard to realize that camp is so near, but it is. Before you know it, most of the gang will be on its way to Merton for one or two weeks of good times.

And lots more would be going if their dads and mothers would inquire into the way the camp is conducted. Several boys have told their scoutmasters the past week, "We would sure love to go, but dad and mother are afraid to let us go."

If the boy gets nothing else out of the camp, he will develop a sense of self dependability. He will be where he can't run to dad and mother to settle his little affairs and at the same time he will be in as good or better care than he can get at home.

"My boy can't swim," say some. He'll never learn younger. The council camp has never had a water accident and utmost care is exercised in this respect. And other arguments can be turned aside as emphatically. The food is excellent. Boys are required to attend to their personal health, to keep clean, to rest properly, to play plenty, to have the best time of their lives.

If many fathers and mothers would be willing to sacrifice a little worry, their boys can spend highly profitable hours at camp in a program calculated to develop them spiritually, mentally, physically and socially.
The executive board of the council met here Friday evening in the Settles hotel and heard quarterly committee reports. Special attention was paid to camp prospects.

Troop Meetings
Troop No. 1—Tuesday night, June 26, the meeting was opened with the roll call. The business before the troop was to see how many were going to camp. At least fourteen of the scouts are going for one week and some are going for two weeks. A new game called "Fizz-Buzz" was played and then the meeting was dismissed. Eleven scouts and one official were present—S. J. Atkins, scribe.

Troop No. 5—Twenty-six scouts attended the meeting Thursday evening in the First Baptist church basement and builded on their plans for camp and for an overnight hike.

Patrol meetings were devoted to assigning of special duties to every member of the different patrols for the overnight hike July 6. The troop will hike by patrol, camp as patrol, and eat as patrol. It was brought out. Each patrol will arrange for its separate commissary. A large attendance for the hike is in prospect.

Scouts present were presented with their certificates. Buck Tyree was given his life scout award and three merit badges. Alton Lavelle and Lloyd Stamps were presented with second class badges. The troop participated in a competitive song and a game of "loop relay" before being dismissed. Camp application blanks and bulletins were distributed to 18 scouts. Two officials attended.

June Takes Heavy Toll From Ranks Of Stewardesses

June, the month popularly dedicated to brides, took unusually heavy toll from the ranks of American Airlines stewardesses on the Dallas-Fort Worth-Los Angeles line. Two of the six young women who have been flying in the big Condor sleeper planes on that route were married during the month and gave up their aerial jobs when they joined the ranks of June brides.
Miss Kathryn Head, who flew every other night to El Paso, became the bride of Dr. Henry Wilson, of Dallas. They will make their home in Memphis, Texas where Dr. Wilson has recently opened his office as physician and surgeon.
Miss Evelyn Opal Thompson, whose flying hours were on the line between El Paso and Los Angels, was married to Dr. James Wirth, Los Angeles. The couple will make their home in Pomona, Cal.

Hugh Smith, Fort Worth, general superintendent of Southern division operations for American Airlines, Friday announced the appointment of Miss Edna Woodward, Dallas, to replace Miss Head and Miss Cecelia Gillingham, Los Angeles, to replace Miss Thompson.

Frazier Farm House Burns

John Coleman And Family In Narrow Escape From Burning House

Fire destroyed a two story farm house owned by Bruce Frazier, secretary of the production credit corporation in Midland, eight miles southwest of the Spring at midnight Wednesday.

John C. Coleman and family living at the place barely escaped with their lives. Coleman sustained a fractured foot and one of his sons had his feet scorched by the flames. Frazier said Saturday morning.

The farm house, a landmark in the Elbow community of Howard county, was one of seven improved farms owned by Frazier in that section. It is near the Continental Oil company's Brindley and Harding leases and Coleman acts as lease superintendent for the Continental as well as tenant on the Frazier place.
No insurance was carried, Frazier said.

Building Permits In Steady Increase Over Entire State

AUSTIN—The total volume of building permits in 37 Texas cities rose sharply during May to $2,857,000, an increase of 130 per cent above April and 115 per cent greater than May, 1933, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.
The most substantial increases occurred in Houston and Lubbock which accounted for most of the rise that occurred from April to May. Other cities showing considerable increases were: Beaumont, Dallas, El Paso, Longview and Cleburne.

The increase in Houston was entirely due to a permit issued to one of the big oil companies for an addition to their headquarters in Houston, the amount involved being one million dollars.
