SPORT SLANTS

While there has been a good deal of national concern over the failure of the stock market to stage a spring rally, besides worry over the mid-western drought, the "stagnation" of private credits and the pitching plight of the world champion New York Giants, the fact is that the boys have overlooked a notable factor in the counter-balancing upswing.

I refer to the dramatic rise of the St. Louis Browns under the leadership of plain-spoken, hard-bitten Rogers Hornsby. It is a pleasure to do so at this time because I left the camp of the Browns at West Palm Beach last winter with the conviction that the latter's mother, Mrs. Roy Welch, young Boston right hander, pitched the Red Sox out of a tie with the Athletics...

THEY'RE COMING THROUGH
The one-time king of all the hat-men has not only succeeded in these two major objectives but, with limited material or cash with which to acquire any more, he has put together a hustling, effective lineup, the sensation so far of the American league race.

Although Hornsby has been obliged to try Frank Bejma at shortstop in place of the highly-touted Alan Strange, he has been more than repaid for his thoroughness in developing Harland Cliff as lead-off man and third baseman, his coaching of Ray Pepper as a clean-up batsman and his faith in Rollie Hemaley, the playboy backstop. Hemaley's rise to the top of the American league batting list is the answer to critics who insisted Hornsby was just taking on a headache when he signed the former Cincinnati and Chicago catcher.

From an over-sized assortment of pitching talent, Hornsby has had the good luck to get a number of consistent workers, with his Buck Newsom among those aiding the veterans Blaholder, Hadley and Coffman.

A DISTURBING FACTOR
To sum up the situation, Hornsby has put together a real ball club within a remarkably short time around a nucleus of stars like Sam West, Bruce Campbell, Irving Berns and Oscar Melillo, the latter one of the best second sackers in either major league. He has only been in the American league since the latter part of the 1923 season. As a matter of fact it was with some misgivings in official league quarters that the former National league slugger as...

Taylor Scores Deciding Run

Teams Battle To 7-7 Tie At End Of Regular Playing Time
The Bankers eked out a 9 to 8 victory over the Post Office team Tuesday in the most hotly contested soft ball game of the season.

It was a League No. 2 game, scheduled for Wednesday but played Tuesday because of Memorial Day.

The contest went nine innings before Elton Taylor, Banker shortstop, scored the deciding run on a Post Office error.

The Bankers were the first to score when Vick and Anderson each counted in the third. They tabbed one more in the fourth, but the Post Office boys came up strong in the fifth to knot the count 5-5.

The Post Office gained a run in the sixth, but the First National outfit had the score tied up at the end of regular playing time. Both teams went three up and three down in the eighth. As the ninth opened, Little, Post Office left-fielder, circled the bases, but the Bankers pushed two runs across in their half of the ninth to win the game.

sumed the leadership of the Browns. These fears have been justified only insofar as Hornsby's club has unexpectedly become a disturbing influence to other pennant rivals.

It is altogether possible, owing to the weird train of events in the American league race, that the Browns not only will finish in the first division but have something to say about the disposition of the 1934 pennant.

FAIRNESS AND FRANKNESS
By now it should be clear, at any rate, that Hornsby possesses real managerial ability, whatever critics may have to say about his habits of being altogether blunt and outspoken.

Thin-skinned or over-sensitive players or persons who come in contact with Hornsby are apt to experience a few jolts in the region of pride or their feelings. The rajah's combination of fairness with frankness, however, seems to me to be the chief factor contributing to his success in handling most ballplayers. They know just what he means and where he stands.

Sexton, U. S. Customs Collector, Killed In Plane Crash In El Paso, To Be Buried In Brownsville, Tex.

EL PASO—The body of Harry L. Sexton, 50 collector of U. S. customs at San Antonio, who was burned to death in the wreckage of a customs service plane, piloted by Lieut. C. F. Edge, when the plane crashed near El Paso, shortly before noon Tuesday within a mile of the army landing field, was sent Tuesday to Brownsville, Texas, former home of the collector, for burial.

A guard of honor, composed of customs officials, joined the body at San Antonio, and accompanied it to Brownsville.

Fred Edwards, chief of the customs patrol in the San Antonio district, who told his superior officer farewell yesterday at the airport a few moments before the fatal crash, left for San Antonio to arrange for the guard of honor.

Engine Heats Up
Sexton and Edge were returning to San Antonio from a conference of border customs officials in El Paso. Lieut. Edge, piloting the plane, noticed the water temperature was unusually high a few minutes after the take-off at 11 a. m.

Unable to account for this, he decided to return to Biggs field, the Fort Bliss landing area. When within a mile of Biggs field, the heavy plane began to lose altitude, and the remaining bank of the motor cut out. The pilot then knew there was nothing left for him to do but attempt a forced landing.

Plane Ignited
Striking one of the hummocks of sand, the big ship nose over and turned partially over on one side. The fuel tank was demobilized, the undercarriage torn away, and gasoline sprayed over the hot motor, igniting.

The gas tank was directly under the forward cockpit, in which Mr. Sexton was riding. Immediately flames enveloped that portion of the plane.

Lieut. Edge, riding in the after cockpit, where the controls were located, was gazed by a blow over the left eye when he was thrown against the instrument panel.

His first thought, however, was for the safety of his passenger and, groping in the burning cockpit, he caught hold of Sexton's body and attempted to drag it out.

Edge finally was forced to abandon the rescue attempt by the heat of the flames, which by that time had enveloped virtually the entire main structure of the plane.

Limp In Cockpit
Sexton either was killed instantly, or rendered unconscious from being hurled violently against the forepart of the plane, according to Lieut. Edge, who said Sexton lay limp in the forward cockpit when he reached for him. The pilot could not tell whether he was dead or alive, or whether Sexton had unfastened his life belt or not.

Sexton was appointed collector of U. S. customs at San Antonio on May 1, a year ago, at the instigation of Vice President John N. Garner, with whom Sexton had been closely associated for several years.

Druggists Score 9 To 8 Victory Over Chevrolet Club

Cunningham & Phillips defeated Carter Chevrolet soft ball team, 9 to 8, in League No. 2 play Tuesday.

Immortal Sarah Bernhardt And a Bicycle Built For, Say, Two and a Half

The Divine Sarah (Rosine Sarah Bernhardt) was generally accorded the name of "the greatest actress of her time." Her marvelous voice and intense dramatic ability made her repeated tours of America a succession of triumphs. The French government sponsored her appearances here during the World War when she was more than 70, triumphant over physical ills and age. She died in 1923 at 78, one of the theater's immortals.

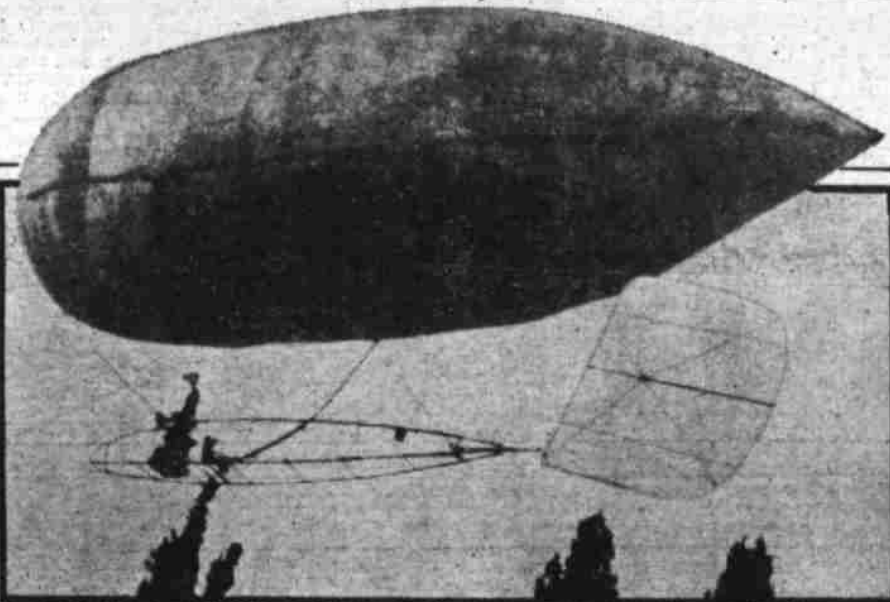

Taxicabs couldn't forget that they used to be hansom cabs when they first appeared in New York. Here is the first pair to brave the cobblestone streets, with the chauffeurs still clinging to the high beaver hat that was the badge of the cabbie. Copyright Vanderweyde, from Acme.

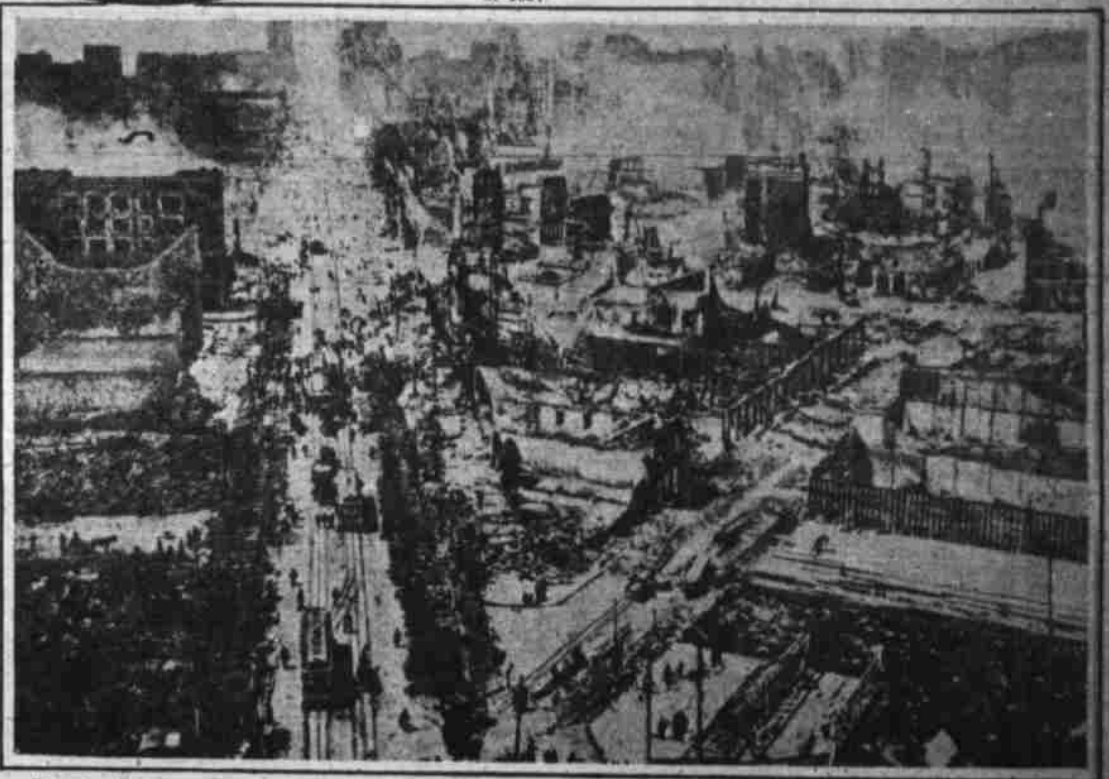

You've heard, no doubt, of the famous "bicycle built for two." But here you see a bicycle built for two and a half, and the baby in the middle, riding between his proud papa and mama, was the sensation of Golden Gate Park in the San Francisco of 1897.

His right hand crippled by the loss of two fingers, this man nevertheless became one of baseball's greatest pitchers. He pitched three shut-outs in world series games, blanking the White Sox in 1906 and the Tigers in 1907 and 1908. The name is Mordecai "Three-Finger" Brown, and he pitched for the Cubs in the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance days.

One of the first women ever to go aloft in a flying machine was Mrs. Aida d'Acosta Breckinridge, who has achieved a long record of welfare and health work. It was in 1903 that she flew Santos Dumont's dirigible airship, and you see her gracefully skimming the treetops in this picture.

Twenty-eight years ago, San Francisco was a smoldering ruin. This startling view was made from the tower of the Ferry Building, and looks directly up Market street. Crews of workmen may be seen in the street laying temporary car tracks so that work of rebuilding the damage caused by earthquake and fire may go forward even before the ruins have cooled.

BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter II
FRANCIS DE LUKE
Sergeant Harper agreed that a black piece of paper, and drew a lanky, but recognizable, plan of the ground floor of the Duffness mansion, with the adjacent grounds. All windows and doors were designated. "Now, before we look at these reports, let's get this matter of the footprints in the snow firmly in our heads. I've made a complete circuit of the house. I'll mark in the tracks as I tell you about them. Then you can go out yourself and check over my work before the sun gets busy and destroys them."

"First, here is the back of the house. There are two doors, both giving onto a porch. There are two sets of heavily-marked tracks, leading from the side door of the passage leading to the back door of the house. "They were made by Mr. and Mrs. Withers, coming over in response to Andrews' call. There are no other footprints at the back of the house and, naturally, there are none in the snow to either the right or the left side of the house. "Usually, there is a confusion of tracks from the pavement to the front door. There is one set, filled in and almost covered by the later snow. Mixed in with these are two sets of fresher tracks, partly filled in. The first set is the original trail left by Hamilton, the second set was made by Connally and Hillary as they followed."

"Then there is a second group, fortunately in one side of the other. They were made by Clinier, Smith, Dodge and myself, the second group to arrive on the scene. After that I had Connally show a path and every one entering, or leaving had to use the path. "Furthermore, it was Connally who actually traced Hamilton's footprints from the call-box and he swears that when he and Hillary arrived here there was one, and only one, set of prints leading up to the door. "This gives us an accounting for every single person who entered this house before the path was cleared, except the unidentified man. He must have come in before the snow started, or before it was deep enough to retain the impression of a footprint."

"We know the snow started falling about half-past three yesterday afternoon, but it didn't really begin snowing heavily until an hour or so later. It is almost certain that this man was in this house before half-past five. Otherwise, it would be impossible, since snow would have been left in the snow. Officer Hamilton must have been killed as soon as he entered this room. Later pass-

"But who could have tampered with it? This room has been under guard every minute since Hamilton first looked in and saw 'a hole.' "Exactly. But what about the interval between the shooting and Hamilton's arrival? The detective asked, dryly. "Simply this—the visible evidence tends to show that these two men were absolutely alone in this house and that they killed each other. But if the evidence leads us to impossibilities, then the evidence must be wrong."

Lafferty gave his superior a knowing look. "Then you have got something up your sleeve," he suggested. "suppose I am mistaken in going to run over things. Now, let's have a look at Jackson's suitcase package. Perhaps we'll get some help from it."

Harper began to open the sealed envelope marked with his name. "While I got these sorted and arranged," he suggested, "suppose cept that there is nothing buried there in the snow. It is about 2 or 10 inches long. I can't see any significance, but you'd better take a long look and see if you can explain it. We may as well be honest."

Lafferty took the sketch drawn by Harper and left, while the latter spread out on the table all the material that had come up from Headquarters. But, before he had a chance to delve into this, there was a discreet tapping at the door and Andrews' grave face appeared in response to the detective's invitation to enter.

"There is a Mr. Howard Doyle to see you, sir," the butler announced, "but the officer won't let him in unless you say so."

"That's all right, Andrews, let him come in."

The butler gave his stiff, jerky nod and withdrew and shortly afterward the Daily Ledger's crime reporter entered. "How are things, Sergeant?" he asked in his usual heavy way. "For 4 minutes I thought I was getting some great news here."

"Full over a chair, Dodge. I've been waiting to have a few words with you and I may as well get them off my chest right now."

The reporter brought a chair over to the table, and sat down, unbuttoning his overcoat. "Listen, Harper, before you start talking, answer me one question. Did you say anything about what I did last night? Just answer me or no and no hard feelings either way."

"I did not."

"How about Captain Macklin?" Harper shook his head. "I'm in full charge of this case. Captain Macklin wouldn't do anything like that without consulting me first. The chances are he doesn't even know about it."

Doyle lit a cigarette and took several puffs in silence, his eyes fixed on a corner of the ceiling. "Got this, Harper. I've been pulled off the case. What does that sound like to you?"

"It sounds to me as if Duffness has had something to say to your front office," Harper replied promptly. "And after that bombshell play of yours I'm not surprised."

"Bombshell play, you call it?" Doyle grinned impishly. "Listen, Harper, you'll be plenty glad I made it before I leave here."

OFFICE OF REFEREE

Ablene, Texas, May 29, 1934. Notice is hereby given that Waite Jewelry Store, et al of the County of Howard, and District of Columbia, on the 22nd day of February, 1934, file in the Clerk's office of said Court, a petition setting up that he has been heretofore duly adjudged a bankrupt under the act of Congress approved July 1, 1908 that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said acts and of the orders of the Court touching his bankruptcy, and praying for a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate in bankruptcy, save such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Took CARDUI During The Change of Life

Cardui is purely vegetable, harmless for women of all ages. Many women who have used it advise their daughters and friends to try it. "I took Cardui for weakness during the change of life," writes Mrs. Clara C. Allen, of Enfield, Ill. "It helped me and built up my strength. I also gave it to my two daughters and they were helped. I think Cardui is a good medicine during the change and for girls. Thousands of women testify Cardui helped them. It does not touch YOU, except a physician.

UNDER THE WIDE AND SPREADING SKY

SUMMER is the season when the possibilities for enjoyment are multiplied about you. Under the wide and spreading sky there is room for much happiness.

You don't need great wealth, and you don't need to fasten all your hopes for happiness on a short vacation. Whether you live in the city, with all its modern means of tempering the climate to your needs, or in the country where the good earth responds so beautifully to your touch—there is much to do, pleasantly and happily.

But there is art in enjoyment. You should dress properly for each occasion. You should have within easy reach the things that make hospitality inviting and gracious. You should have the means of refreshing and beautifying your person and improving your sense of well-being. You should be comfortable.

It is not so hard to do all this. It is not accomplished in one frenzied and expensive effort. Comforts should grow about your home, as flowers and fruits blossom and ripen.

Read the advertisements, and acquire the things you need from what you learn there. Fresh light summer wear. Foods and beverages that keep crisp and cool in modern refrigerators. Gas and electricity that cook and brighten without heating your rooms. Electric fans, perhaps. Soaps, cosmetics, and heaps of fresh towels for frequent showers.

And read in the advertisements where to go and what to do in order to make Summer the golden season of your life.

Other noted rangers, once defied the entire state of Oklahoma, Texas and Oklahoma had a dispute over ownership of a strip of land along the Red River. Oil had been discovered on it and the taxes were worthwhilst. Hornsby was named receiver for the property in a Texas court action. All he had to do was get hold of H. Hamer and Hickman were detailed for the purpose. Twenty Oklahoma guards occupied it. Waiting a favorable time, when some of the Oklahoma guard was relieved, Hamer and Hickman slipped in, seized it and refused to be dislodged. Oklahoma threatened to use troops to evict the rangers, but the matter finally was settled amicably.

Chief L. G. Phares of the state motor patrol says that congratulations over the successful chase for Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker often are followed by an inquiry as to why it took so long to get them. He supplies several reasons. Clyde, Phares said, was one of the shrewdest criminals that officers have tried to trace. He changed plans quickly. His tactics were different from any type. In many instances a man is located by watching a woman acquaintance. Barrow was not to be found that way. The chase was slowed up chiefly, Phares said, because of care used by officers to prevent injuring innocent persons. They had to be sure that the long hunt was not followed by any other persons being hurt, the chief considers a worthwhile achievement.

Many times others were mistaken for the pair. Once a motor patrolman, who happens to resemble Barrow, started for Dallas. He took along a stenographer assigned to the Dallas office to make records in a case. He was red-headed. Enroute they stopped at a cafe. It emptied quickly. When they emerged, officers with drawn rifles awaited them. It was only after the patrolman's credentials were verified by telephone that the officers were convinced they did not have Clyde and red-headed Bonnie.

A feminine bloc is in sight for the next House of the Texas legislature. If all former women members are successful in their plans, a greater number of women will answer roll call in the 44th Texas legislature than ever before.

Mrs. Helen Moore, Texas City, and Mrs. Nellie R. Strong, Slocum, may return. Mrs. Moore has announced and is campaigning. Both were members of the 41st and 42nd legislatures.

Mrs. Edith Whimans, Dallas, first woman member of the house, is contesting for one of the Dallas county places with Mrs. Sarah Hughes, who has been a member of the 42nd and 43rd legislatures.

Mrs. Les J. Rountree, Bryan, member of the 42nd legislature, also may return. Mrs. Laura Neigley, San Antonio, is the other woman member. Miss Margie Neal, Carthage, only woman member of the State Senate, is not seeking re-election.

Former Governor Ross B. Sterling, back in the oil fields, is happening for years, although he is working longer hours. Walter Sterling, here for an oil hearing, said his father is enjoying the return to active oil production and is in excellent health. The former governor's company has 18 derricks crews at work. Their work is proving successful. The company is getting around 3,000 barrels of oil daily.

Three thousand barrels of oil a day, at present prices, may quickly recoup losses Sterling experienced after leaving the oil game. Those who recall how he built a small oil business into the Humble Oil and Refining Company will not be surprised to see him again a major figure in the oil well.

French Fliers Seek To Better World Flight

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press)
NEW YORK—(UP)—An ambition to circle the world in less than a week and wrest the globe-girdling record from the United States and Wiley Post was revealed by Capt. Maurice Rossi, French aviator, in an exclusive interview Tuesday night.

Rossi, who flew to New York from Paris, arriving at Floyd Bennett airport Monday afternoon, said he thought with a lighter plane and a little more luck than attended his flight with Paul Codos Monday, he could better the Oklahoma record of 7 days, 18 hours, 49 1-2 minutes, set last July.

Rossi said they still hoped to fly on to San Francisco, but that this part of their immediate plans awaited confirmation from the air ministry in Paris.

He said mechanics would check over their big silver monoplane, the Joseph Lebriz, before they do any more flying.

Rossi and Codos expressed thanks for the congratulations extended them, but admitted they felt disappointed. They were cheered by a message from their wives, conveyed through the United Press, and sent the following through the service to them in Paris:

Rossi: "Thank you for your cable, dear. Despite my disappointment, I am tenderly thinking of you."
Codos: "Despite our failure, I send you a fond kiss."

ters from time to time during the campaign and to elaborate on the special matters and things herein set out which I shall advocate during the campaign.

I am a friend to education and shall use my best efforts to foster same in every way with the least expense possible, giving and granting to our "bleeminary" institutions as liberal a support as is possible at all times.

After a long night of depression, destitution, and business stagnation, we are now entering the dawn of a new day, which under the inspired leadership of our beloved president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, we firmly believe will lead us back to peace, happiness and prosperity. Being heartily in accord with the principles and policies of our great leader in this crisis, I will, if elected, give my full and whole-hearted support to any and all measures necessary to the full co-operation of our state government in the National Recovery Program.

If you believe with me on the things herein advocated and want to see the expenses of our State and County governments reduced, give me your support, and I promise in return that you shall never have cause to regret your action in my behalf.

Respectfully,
B. A. CARTER,
Candidate for Representative.

AUSTIN (UP)—Frank Hamer, successful trader of Clyde Barrow, plays marble boards for recreation. The rolling spheres seem to have a fascination for him almost equal to solving a crime. He is a frequent patron of the marble machines at a drug store adjoining the state capitol grounds.

His patrons had a double treat Saturday. They saw both Hamer and pretty Celia Villa, daughter of the celebrated Pancho Villa. Both dropped in at the same time.

Adding to the Hamer saga, State Senator John W. Hornsby tells how Hamer and Tom Hickman, an-

B. A. Carter Of San Angelo Announces His Candidacy For Representative 91st District

B. A. CARTER

I am a candidate for the nomination to the office of Representative of the 91st District of Texas, composed of the counties of Glasscock, Howard, Irion, Reagan, Sterling and Tom Green, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary to be held on July 28, 1934.

I am a native Texan, born in Navarro County 53 years ago; was raised on a sheep ranch in West Texas, and am a graduate of the Law Department of the University of Texas, in the class of 1903, and have been engaged in the active practice of my profession for the past 30 years. I am the son of a Confederate soldier, and a believer in the principles of state's rights and local self government. I am a volunteer veteran of the Spanish-American War. I am married, have a wife and three children and affiliate with the Methodist church. I have lived in Tom Green county since 1927, and having been raised in West Texas, I am thoroughly familiar with the political, social and economic problems of this section of our great state.

I made this same race two years ago, and although I was practically a stranger to the voters of the district, I received a very complimentary vote. In every voting box in the district where I had the privilege of meeting the voters and speaking to them, I either carried the box or broke even with my opponent, which leads me to believe that if I had been better acquainted, and had had sufficient time to have properly presented my candidacy, that I would have received the nomination in that election.

The fact that the operating expenses of our government have been reduced approximately 25% during the past year without hurt or detriment to anyone leads me to know and believe that a further substantial reduction can be made by the exercise of strict economy in governmental expenditures, and I hereby pledge myself to a further reduction in expenses, and to vote against any measure that will in any way increase our present tax burden. In other words, I am against any new form of taxation.

In order that every voter may definitely know how I stand on the principal problems now confronting us I here and now state that I favor:

1. The abolishment of the office of county treasurer.

port himself and his family, and I firmly believe in the right of labor to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining, and organized labor will have nothing to fear at my hands, and I will always be glad to give any matter affecting their welfare special study and kindly consideration.

I have never believed that a man or woman should be disfranchised because of the fact that they didn't have money to pay their poll tax on or before the first day of February, and although I believe in collecting a poll tax, I feel there should be some change made in our present law, so that the poor man will have an equal break with the rich man.

There are many other matters that I would like to mention that should have attention at the hands of our legislature, but space does not permit their enumeration here, but I shall expect to inform the people of my views on said mat-

2. The abolishment of the state ad valorem taxes on real and personal property, and to make up the deficit thus created, a higher tax on our natural resources; such as sulphur, natural gas and intangibles, and foreign owned chain stores.
3. The principle of the equity of redemption when applied to real estate contracts.
4. Old age pensions, and unemployment insurance.
5. A shorter week, with less hours per day for labor in all industries, and an adequate wage scale.
6. Compensation insurance for the protection of all laborers on public works, in the employment of the state or any sub-division thereof.
7. The strict regulation of all public utilities and a utility commission of not more than three members, to be elected by the people, with full and ample power to deal with said problem. This will relieve our present Railroad Commission if a large task, which they are now required to handle, and will give them more time to devote to the purposes for which said Commission was originally created.

8. The assumption by the state of all outstanding county and district bonds, heretofore issued for the building of roads as a permanent state policy, said bonds to be redeemed from the proceeds of one cent of the gasoline tax or so much hereof as may be necessary, and to that end I favor the submission of a constitutional amendment to that effect.
9. The abolition of the present automobile license tax, and the substitution thereof of a registration system for identification only, and for a nominal fee, this, however, not to apply to trucks and other commercial vehicles which use the highways for hire or as a place to do business.
10. The submission to a vote of the people of the repeal of our statewide prohibition amendment, and if adopted, legislation necessary to prevent the return of the open saloon with its attendant evils, and the levy by a license system of a substantial tax which will go far towards wiping out the present large deficit in our state treasury.

11. Maintaining our present school apportionment of at least $6 per capita, with provisions for decent salaries to our school teachers, and state aid for our rural schools.
12. Redistricting the State into new senatorial and representative districts. Our constitution provides that this shall be done after each census. This will result in West Texas having a much larger voice in the Legislative branch of our government.

Having been raised on a small stock farm, and having had to perform all kinds of manual labor, I have always been in sympathy with the man who has to labor to sup-
