Barrow Strikes Again; One Dead, One Missing

That reminds me...

Are we going backward...? There is no question about it when the highest dignitary body in America takes an atmosphere of insignificant word brawls such as was done at Washington on the floor of the Senate Chamber while in session involving Senators Huey P. Long of Louisiana, Harrison of Mississippi and Clark of Missouri. It is inconceivable to determine in ones mind that we have representations consisting of brains and common sense with such a demonstration of outbursts which are so foreign to the thing needed to bring about recovery to this distressed nation. Environment has a tremendous influence among men if such things continue, how long will it be before the entire senate membership will be involved in such contemptible debates and finally end up in common street brawls. No wonder that the general public is assuming an attitude of disgust with the ins. They brought it upon themselves.

Next to the largest poll tax payments on record seem to be in evidence for the year 1934. As far as voting is concerned it is possible to exceed the largest vote in history in Texas which was polled for the governor race with nine candidates in the field and 973,641 for Lieutenant Governor with no opponent in the field which honor was established on Edgar A. Witt for having received the highest vote in history of any man running without opposition. It is possible that over a million votes will be cast in the coming primary election with 1,250,000 poll tax receipts issued and counting approximate amount were in 1924 with 370,402 counting exemptions and next in 1928 with 1,189,604 counting exemptions. 725,123 votes were cast in 1924 and 750,380 in 1928.

There is one thing that all must concede without a question of a doubt. Whenever James E. Ferguson gets up in an election and his name is mentioned whether running for office or not he simply brings them in from the creek and from the city street corners and they pile in their votes. Witness this fact. In 1924 there were 725,123 votes cast. In 1926 there were 821,234 votes cast. In 1928 there were 750,380 votes cast. In 1930 there were 750,380 votes cast. In 1932 there were 750,380 votes cast. In 1934 there were 750,380 votes cast. So that year he sat down and let the devil take the hindmost—so at least 400,000 votes stayed at home with like difference.

Even though the Ferguson are not running for anything this year they are vitally interested in the person of C. C. McDonald from Wichita. Ferguson never issues a political statement that he doesn't mention McDonald not only as his specific choice but as the candidate that will be the next governor. It must also be remembered that Ferguson was injected into the office of National Committeeman for Texas which places him very much in the supreme limelight politically. That means that a record vote is possible to be established in the year. If Ferguson would be dormant this year as he was in 1928 it is doubtful if the vote would even come up to 1928 in spite of all the other candidates in the field might try to do to excite the people to go out and vote. There is only one Jim Ferguson and he stands alone in his influence to get the voters out and join in the ballot box parade. That has been true whether he was elected or not.

Now lets see what happened in 1926. James V. Alfred received 144,820 votes in the first primary for Attorney General. Claude Pollard received 149,204. A fellow by the name of Chas. Brachfield received 130,142. They were the runners up. Pollard beat Alfred in the runoff 4,946 votes. Alfred came back in 1930. He received 286,966. Bobbit received 237,821. Storey 125,239. Alfred beat Bobbit 128,795 votes in the run-off. In 1932 Alfred received 606,768 votes and Calhoun received 270,564. That settled the issue without a runoff necessary. Now what did Clint Small do? In 1930 his first shot at the Governors chair he received 138,934 votes. Ferguson 242,959. Sterling 170,754. That put Small out. Small stayed out in 1932. Look what Tom Hunter did... in his first

Final Decision In Insull Case Is Expected April 7

By United Press
ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 6.—Judicial authorities were expected to give final decision tomorrow on the appeal of Samuel Insull against a government order for his surrender to the United States government.

New Accounting System to Handle Future CWA Work

The complete termination of CWA activities on April 1st, will place the burden of supplying relief to indigent families of Texas on the shoulders of the following programs to be conducted by the Texas Relief, the Subsistence Homesteads and the Rural Rehabilitation Projects.

The successful carrying out of these programs in Eastland county has entailed the creation and installation, by the auditing department of the Texas Relief Commission, of a materially changed accounting system. The new system, known as the Donnell Installed System of Relief Accounting, was made under the supervision of George R. Donnell, Auditor of the Commission.

Of particular interest in the new set-up is the new "Work Relief" card which will enable the Administration to properly supervise the "Work Division" activities. Those unemployed who are actually destitute and are physically able to work, after a thorough investigation has been made definitely establishing their relief needs, will be given the opportunity to work and earn to their estimated relief need requirements. This work card is so designed as to limit the payroll to the actual relief requirements for each particular individual employed. Pay to persons not eligible for relief, or to relief clients in excess of the requirements of the individual family will not be approved in Austin.

The new Relief Set-up to be used in this County has the specific approval of Washington officials, and it is believed that Kansas and Oklahoma, who recently sent officials to Austin to confer with State Relief Officers and to study the Texas Relief Accounting Set-up, may install this system in the Relief Work in their own respective states.

Chief Auditor, Donnell, emphasizes that this is a relief program, not a project program. Under the CWA, group employment was provided which approximated current business wages, whereas the present relief program can only supply relief to the destitute. When the building of roads, school house construction or other projects takes the place of the first objective, that of giving relief, the relief program has gone astray, and such expenditures constitute an erroneous expenditure of funds according to the terms of the Relief Acts under which relief funds are made available.

CWA FIGURES
Total expenditures by CWA in Eastland county this week were approximately $1,700 as compared to $12,166.54 last week, it was announced by the county CWA officials in Eastland today.
Of the total amount spent last week, $6,077.39 was for direct relief and $6,089.15 for work relief.

Cabinet Closeups

GEORGE H. DERN
Secretary of War

GEORGE H. DERN
By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—This smiling two-term governor of Utah has a great deal to do besides direct the army and plan against future wars, though his first job beyond the actual cabinet post is that of chairman of the Council of National Defense.

Secretary Dern rose through the mining and smelting business to the U. S. Senate and the governorship of his state. He is co-inventor of an ore-smelting device, and prepped unconsciously for his present job by membership in his state's council of defense during the World War.

But Dern's job involves a great deal of "big business" administration as well as tending a war machine. He supervises the Inland Waterways Corporation, which coordinates and operates or leases 30,000 miles of inland water transport.

Dern is president of the National Forest Reservation Commission, which buys and manages cut-over or denuded lands, to regulate stream flow or promote timber growth. He is responsible not only for the defense, but for the operation of the Panama canal.

He directs the corps of engineers in the improvement of waterways and making of power and construction surveys in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, and also has certain power over the civil affairs of the Philippines and Puerto Rico.

Much of the job of reorganizing the airmail recently fell to him as responsible head of the army air corps.

When the enormous relief works, organization of the Civilian Conservation Corps and the Civil Works Administration came along, all details of recruiting, feeding, housing and organizing these millions of men fell on Dern's department.

Between these essentially civilian activities and the actual army, Dern has supervision over the buying of a vast bulk of supplies for all these agencies, and the surveying and organization of industry for possible war.

HOUSEWIVES BUYING MORE SURVEY SHOWS

(Copyright 1934 by United Press)
NEW YORK, April 6.—The American housewife who spent sparingly during the depression, apparently is loosening her purse-strings more than at any time since the depression set in.

A survey in a number of the nation's largest cities revealed not only a pronounced jump in sales in recent months, but a spirit of optimism among business men, generally.

The increase in retail sales, which began to be noticeable around the Christmas holidays, became more marked coincident with the recent general increases in manufacturing payrolls and factory employment, as revealed by the department of commerce.

"Housewives are not only spending more from the husband's weekly earnings, but are dipping into the savings they put aside to weather the depression, one department store executive said.

New York department store business increased 25 per cent in March, 1934, over the same month last year. Chicago and Detroit stores reported about 8 per cent increase in sales, while those in Cleveland were 40 per cent higher than in March, 1933.

Fort Worth department stores reported a 20 per cent increase over last year, while Dallas sales ranged from 25 to 93 per cent higher and Houston from 50 to 100 per cent higher.

Elect Two School Board Members Here Saturday
Election of two Eastland school board members to succeed Guy Parker and George Brogdon, recently resigned, will take place Saturday at the city hall.

Incumbents on the school board are: K. B. Tanner, John Mouser, Grady Pipkin, Milburn McCarty, and Frank Crowell.

In't He Cute?

Yes, she's a he, and first-string quarterback of this season's grid squad at the University of Wisconsin. "She" is Leo Forett, who is playing the part of a wily vamp in this year's presentation by Haresfoot, famous Badger all-male dramatic troupe.

POSSE SEEKS BANK BANDITS IN SAND DUNES

CORPUS CHRISTI, April 6.—Sheriff Paul Cox of Nueces county led a posse of 100 heavily armed deputies and citizens into the desolate sand dune country south of here in search of three bandits who were routed yesterday at the First State bank of Bishop.

The bandit car was traced into the area yesterday, and armed guards patrolled all roads during the night, Cox said.

"We know they are in there and we are going to get them," he said. One of the two men who entered the bank undoubtedly was wounded, Cox said, by the surprise fusillade laid down by the cashier and his assistant.

FIND HUGE SPEARHEAD
STEPHENVILLE, Texas.—Civilian conservation corps workmen uncovered a spearhead measuring 16 inches in length and 12 inches in width while excavating materials at the state park site near here. The large flint was several feet under the ground.

Oklahoma River Is Rising Again; Dead Number 12

HAMMON, Ok., April 6.—The Washita River was rising again here today as search continue for bodies of five persons still missing from Tuesday night's $1,000,000 flood.

The known dead numbered 12. The river rose nine feet overnight as a new crest came down from the Texas Panhandle. Relief work was proceeding in good order.

Food supplies had been replenished for immediate needs, but there was still a danger of exhaustion.

Indian flood survivors were reported eating beef from cows drowned in the flood.

Attaches were said to be enroute to aid in preventing such acts and other conducive to disease.

Million and Quarter Texans Can Cast Ballots This Year
AUSTIN, April 6.—More than a million and a quarter Texans have the right to vote in 1934 state elections, poll tax figures compiled by state comptroller George Sheppard showed today.

Reports from county tax collectors indicated that 1,115,408 paid the poll tax in time to get receipts entitling them to vote. Another 27,762 took out exemption certificates.

Billy Sunday's Kin Will Wed

The matrimonial trail beckons to George M. Sunday, Jr., grandson of Billy Sunday, noted evangelist of the sawdust trail. Young Sunday is shown here with his fiancée, Miss Dorothy Evelyn Barrick of San Francisco, as they talked over their plans in Los Angeles.

YOUTH TELLS OF ROBBING BANK OF $2000

AUSTIN, April 6.—Sheriff H. A. Barnett of Burnet county today returned to Burnet to file charges in the $2,000 robbery of the Home State Bank of Marble Falls after obtaining a statement here.

The statement was secured from a 24-year-old man who gave his name as Raymond McCarty of Marble Falls. He was taken into custody at Marble Falls last night.

Officers said the man told them he entered the bank by an unlocked front door at noon yesterday when the cashier was at lunch. He said he had visited the bank frequently to familiarize himself with the "layout."

Two Jurors Are Selected For the Hilton Bybee Trial

THROCKMORTON, Texas, April 6.—Questioning of veniremen for jury service in the trial of Hilton Bybee, Texas desperado charged with robbery with firearms, continued here today.

When the court recessed last night only two of the 45 special veniremen examined were selected for the jury. They were J. L. Stroud and A. E. Hughes, Throckmorton county farmers.

The trial was delayed this morning and was resumed at 1 p. m. Before selection of the jury started the court overruled a motion for a change of venue. Bybee is charged in a filling station robbery near Woodson.

Defense Attorney John Smith said he would base his case on a plea of insanity.

TWO OKLAHOMA OFFICERS SHOT BY DESPERADO

Raymond Hamilton and Bonnie Parker Reported With the Gunman.

MIAMI, Okla., April 6.—Clyde Barrow and Raymond Hamilton, southwestern desperados, were sought near here today as killers of one Oklahoma officer and probable killers of another.

With the fugitives, travelling in a circle that appeared to be taking them toward Catochop, Kas., was a woman listed as Bonnie Parker, Barrow's sweetheart. Campbell, 60 year old Commerce constable, was dead of machine gun wounds. Percy Boyd, chief of police at Commerce, was wounded, missing, and thought probably dead in a roadside ditch somewhere along the fugitive's route.

Accounts of how the officers were shot varied. One was that they were shot down when they approached the desperados' automobile, where it was stuck in mud on a road near Commerce, five miles north of Miami.

Another was that the officers had received a tip the fugitives wanted most recently in the slaying of two Texas highway patrolmen, were in hiding at a house near the little town, and that they were shot down as they entered the yard.

"Campbell is dead and can't speak. Percy is gone and we don't know much about it," officer said.

Sheriff Dee Watters and a posse were riding over all roads. Officers in Kansas and Missouri had been notified.

Charles Dodson, Commerce truck driver, furnished the description on which officers decided the trio of gunmen must be Barrow, Hamilton and the red haired, cigar-smoking Parker woman. He was forced to push the gunmen's sedan from the mud after the shooting.

The machine was a V-8 Ford sedan with yellow wire wheels the same kind that Barrow drives. Campbell was struck only once it was said, so the killers emptied a machine gun at him and Boyd. It was not known how seriously Boyd was wounded.

A farmer whose car blocked the bandit's path eight miles west of Commerce was threatened and warned: "We have killed two officer and will kill you if you don't get over."

The farmer saw nothing of Boyd.

Officers said the fugitives seem to be doubling back on their trail. They drove west from Commerce went south on Highway 66. Late there were reported travelling north.

Former Governor Siding Against Sen. Huey Long

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The political enemy of long standing former Governor John Parker of Louisiana, entered the lists against Senator Huey P. Long today in renewal of the wrangling in which Long has been involved this week.

Parker, charging that Long has spirited witnesses out of Louisiana in proceedings against the senator there, attacked Long in various fashions, despite his 7 years.

Parker was a character witness for Daniel Moore at the senate finance committee hearing of Moore's nomination as collector of internal revenue for Louisiana.

Both Long and Chairman F. Harrison of the committee, who fought for six hours yesterday of off the senate floor with bitter verbal exchanges, appeared to let the matter rest there for while.

That Reminds Me

political offering he polled 220, 391 votes, Ferguson 402,238 and Sterling 296,383. Hunter was out but far from being disqualified. How about this fellow Edgar A. Witt? He broke into State elective politics in 1930. He got 173, 574 votes. Strong got 177,777, Farnell 121,865, for Lieutenant Governor. Witt beat Strong in the run-off by 67,592 votes. In 1932 without an opponent he polled the biggest individual vote on record—973,041. Maury Hughes has been dabbling in state politics through state democratic committees and has never offered for a general state place before. C. C. McDonald has always been a political advisor with Jim Ferguson. This is his first offering to serve the people politically.

These little thoughts are given in order that those who are inclined to make political deductions and predictions can have a little something to do their figuring with. Things are going to get interesting before long and state politics will be in the limelight. Figures don't lie but predictions light profusely from here on out, and opinions can go haywire nevertheless we're going to take a shot at it from time to time just for the fun of it. So you may not agree on our summaries however it's all a matter of opinion and won't hurt nobody. In our next column we're going to tell you: race NOW we might change our opinions later.

Which hasn't a darn thing to do with a bank in Eastland? what we think of the governor's which is not a realization as yet. Interest and determination is still in the making and nothing is going to be left undone no matter what the route until it becomes a thing of fact and existence. We say again and again that Eastland is the best bet of any town in Texas for a bank. We must have one.

Some, like Admiral Byrd, may confine themselves in solitary for seven months, while others go out and eat worms.

since spread to landscapes and miniatures of all descriptions.

A young British painter, Stanley A. Burchett, who was formerly in the Grenadier Guards, started the new fingernail fashion by accident. While painting a garden scene recently, he stopped his work to satisfy a little girl who wanted "a teeny picture for herself."

Burchett quickly painted it on her fingernail. The child's mother was so attracted by the result that she commissioned the painter to decorate her nails. Since then the innovation has spread among stage and society leaders.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

BEAU HERE TODAY PABLOTO, a handsome youth, became a fugitive when he fled from Key West to Havana with BEAT and LOTTIE, two thieves. Pabloto was not the murderer but he had committed the crime in love with ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, but feels he has exiled himself from her forever.

In Havana he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a museum. SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Estelle's father, is searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective. Three years ago, and Sir Pabloto and Estelle meet again. Pabloto was not the murderer but remained silent, fearing scandal. BILLINGS, in Havana, suspects Pabloto may be Sir Aubrey's son. He goes to Morro Castle and sees Pabloto and Estelle together.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXII BILLINGS' quest was rewarded. In that slender, high tower of winding stairway where the shrill voices and breathless gasps of tourists echo he lay behind near the daughter of Jim Field, ostensibly to buy post cards. The smartly attired older woman whom the girl addressed as "Marcia" seemed to consider it amusing that her companion wished to buy post cards. Billings had noticed that the older one's eyes always seemed above the heads of the other tourists and that she spoke as though she and the girl were quite alone.

"You go ahead," the girl had suggested, "and I'll catch up with you. I want to get some cards." "Dear child, not really!" "I always send them to Nannette. She used to be my nurse."

"Oh, I suppose such people would adore them. Well, I'll wait—" "No, don't, Marcia. Please! I'll catch up with you in just a moment. I'd really rather not delay you, please. It's so wonderful on top I want you to have all the time you can there—"

Billings was unfolding a panoramic view of Morro Castle and the harbor. "How much are the colored ones?" he asked. He was thinking that the girl was "not so slow" although she had let her nervousness reveal itself by intensity.

A moment later Juanito appeared. The girl spoke in a whisper but Billings overheard. "You mustn't let her see you! A friend of hers—I can't explain now—but she mentioned your name in a letter and—" She grew silent then, looking at Billings, and shook her head.

"These brown ones—how much are they?" Billings questioned loudly. Without turning his head he saw Juanito kiss the girl's hands, first one and then the other. He saw him hold them for an instant against his heart as he looked adoringly down at her, kiss them once again and then drop them. Almost immediately she was gone. The young man sighed a little and, turning, recognized Billings as the man who had been eager to know how many "exactly how many." Cubans had been killed by the Spaniards in Morro Castle.

He nodded, favoring Billings with one of those smiles that were famous in Havana and that had aroused in many a feminine heart a leaning toward an indiscretion that had not flowered. Then Juanito was gone.

BILLINGS paid for his cards and went up the stairs. He stood close to the two women, overhearing their conversation, but he got nothing from it except Estelle's discomfort over Marcia's light attitude toward the history of Morro. The older woman seemed much amused by the guide's vivid description.

"It is very real to all Cubans," Estelle protested. "You see, a war is real when your uncle or your father was killed in it. And the Spaniards were brutal to Cuban boys as well as to men. It was really Marcia—quite horrible."

"Darling, you take all this so seriously," Marcia complained. Estelle said nothing. She hated slippancy of this sort and the men and women who were her father's friends seemed always to be slipshod about everything that was real. She had seen one Cuban woman who evidently understood English since at Marcia's words and she realized that if Marcia had known she had caused this hurt she would not care. They were a selfish, cruel set whose only real emotions were anger over a maid's stupidity or clumsiness, dissatisfaction with a dress that was "a mess" or a meal that did not happen to please them.

She was tired of it all, Estelle realized—tired to the point of nausea. "But I'm going to get away from it!" she thought confidently.

If Juanito was Sir Aubrey's son, Billings was considering shrewdly, there would be trouble ahead. Already he had connected Juanito with the boy who had escaped from Jim Field's camp after murdering Ted Jeffries and stealing the famous Jeffries pearls.

Threads have a way of tangling but of leading, at length, to one ball.

WHEN Pabloto accused Beau of having killed Jeffries the older man was calm. "Who's going to prove it?" he demanded.

"I might." "And how, sweetheart? I ask you how!" The two had not exchanged any but the most meager words since that day. "Aw, this is hell!" Lottie had burst out at more than one silent meal as she moved impatiently, slamming down a heavy glass or pushing her chair away from the table.

"Let him treat me decently and I'll return the favor," Beau murmured once, to which Pabloto did no more than to ask the slatternly girl who waited upon them for more butter. The situation, as Lottie said, was "pretty bad."

"I'll end up in a smash for all of us if you don't bring him around, Beau," she stridently and unhappily prophesied.

"Look here, sister, you tend to your knitting and I'll tend to mine." Beau answered "See? I'll manage everything. What could he do, anyhow?" If he wants to pull out, let him! I can get along without him but he can't do nothing. Nothing! See? What's he got on me? Not a thing in the world. Nobody knows I was there but they do know he was. And they know it was his knife that done it, too!" Lottie saw but she was not satisfied. Under the few hours that were happy for her there was at all ways an undercurrent of uneasiness.

FOR a long while Pabloto had been anxious to know something about his father. The thought was coupled in his mind with the name of Concepcion Villaverde y Blanco—a name Angela had repeated when he was a tortured child and which he had never forgotten. He wanted to know about his father because of Estelle. She had said she didn't care about his parentage. "I know my father," she had said clearly one night when they had met at the edge of Jim Field's grounds, "and I know he is not a good man. Your father could not have been worse. And anyway, what difference does it make? What difference could anything make to us when we care so?" Then she had cried a little against Pabloto's coat pocket and he had murmured those extravagant things which lovers say. But still the wish to know about his father persisted. He wanted to see the woman who had cast him into a childhood hell, a woman whose married name he had learned with a bit of questioning. He started out early one afternoon before the hour for calling. He did not wish to encounter visitors. The house was in the Vibora on la Calle San Anastasia. A servant there might have made his reaching La Senora more difficult. Concepcion Villaverde y Blanco had not, he decided from her address, married too great a fortune. He made his way quickly through the twisting, narrow streets that always amaze tourists. Then at length he paused before the door. But he did not step out of his car. The man who had talked with him at Morro Castle was standing near the house. A servant had told him that La Senora was out and had not invited him inside to wait. Her own sweetheart happened to be boldly occupying the big salon at the moment, thus making an unusual discourtesy. Billings saw Pabloto stop and then start his car again and drive on. "That settles it," he thought. Halting a fotongo, he directed the driver to take him to a telephone office. He would cable Sir Aubrey and wait for his arrival. Then together they would talk the situation over and decide what to do. (To Be Continued)

Rapid Expansion Of Oil Markets Traced In Survey

AUSTIN.—It is in the perspective of the major trends and movements in the oil industry as a whole that certain recent developments in the oil industry of the United States, which are of major interest and concern to Texas, can best be understood, according to Elmer H. Johnson, regional economist in the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. With this premise in mind, Mr. Johnson has in his monthly analysis of the petroleum industry for the Texas Business Review, traced the rapid market expansion, the rapid growth of supply, the beginnings of restriction of output, and other principal trends.

"Prior to 1900 the petroleum industry was dominantly a kerosene industry with lubricants as important associated products," he explained. "At the close of the World war the petroleum industry had become a gasoline industry, but with kerosene and lubricants as very important associated products. Since 1920 the gasoline industry has grown greatly and the fuel oil market has developed to one of importance. The advances made by oil products and natural gas are reflected, of course, in the reactions of the coal industry to these newcomers in the power and fuel industry.

"While these developments have been occurring, rather sharp shifts have been taking place in the larger outlines of the production of crude oil. Up until around 1925 production of crude oil, in the main, was only keeping up with the rapidly increasing markets for oil derivatives. In the meantime, however, wider geographical exploration was being carried on, and particularly there came to the forefront in oil exploration the successful use of refined technical and scientific applications. In conjunction with these movements there came in rather quick succession the discovery of a number of major oil fields. And in regard to the share contributed by major fields, it is worthwhile to emphasize that in 1933 15 major fields produced at least 54 per cent of the total oil for the United States. At the same time, epoch-making improvements were being made in refining technique whereby a barrel of crude was made to yield a larger quantity of gasoline.

"Thus were dispelled the fears of rapid exhaustion of the oil resources of the United States. At the same time there began to arise the actualities of large production from the new countries, and of a return to large production in Russia.

"Almost overnight the oil industry was changed from one of scarcity of crude oil to one of abundance—and then came a whole series of attempts to limit and to restrict production. Since the war oil has become a commodity of vital economic and political importance. World conferences have attempted to deal particularly with the problem of its over-production. Conservation policies at last began to get a hearing. Then more recently the possibilities of synthetic products—by hydrogenation, low-temperature carbonization, etc.—have appeared on the scene. Coal, with the aid of these new processes, can be used as a raw material for the manufacture of petroleum products, and thus our supply of these essential commodities is extended far into the future.

"Since the discovery of the gigantic East Texas fields in 1930 attention very generally has been

RECIPROCAL TARIFF PLAN ON THE WAY

House democrats deserted the President when it came to standing up and taking the count on the veto message which added almost a third of a billion dollars to the taxes of the people. Then they rallied to the presidential standard and pushed the administration tariff bill over stubborn as well as the very aggressive opposition of the minority—meaning the republican members. A roll call vote on passage was demanded by the republicans and granted—resulting in approval by 273 to 111. It was strictly along party lines. Three farm-labor members from the Northwest voted with the democrats. Only two republicans broke away from the wigwag of the elephant and voted for the F. D. tariff plan. Now quick action in the senate by both democratic and republican leaders is predicted.

Sen. Charles McNary of Oregon, minority leader, frankly conceded the measure would pass the senate virtually as approved by the house. As drafted and enacted by the house it is one of the important legislative acts of the New Deal administration. It would empower the President to negotiate without congressional approval trade agreements with foreign nations for the export of American surpluses. It carries authority for the executive to lower or raise existing tariff rates 50 per cent in making the pacts. It limits to three years the authority for negotiating trade agreements. Another important provision is that "nothing in this act shall be construed to give any authority to cancel or reduce, in any manner, any of the indebtedness of any foreign country to the United States.

Government crop control of American staples must come about or else foreign markets must be found for the surpluses. "An America Self-Contained" would result in crop control some day with tariff walls as high as the sky for the protection of the farmers of America and its manufacturers and wage workers.

There are prosperity signs in the heavens. There is an adjustment period on. This is a history-making age and all Americans should face the future gladly and resolutely for sane programs of leadership and legislation that will restore peace and happiness and a fair share of prosperity to all concerned.

The progressive business men of your city can't meet everybody face to face, but they do meet you half way through the advertising columns of this newspaper. Read the ads and meet them half way!

10. Pit Privies, County-Wide—$11,811.25. This work consisted of the building of sanitary standard pit type privies, county-wide, where sewer connections were not available and where individuals were unable to purchase the materials necessary for the construction of septic tanks. Five hundred fifty-one pit privies were constructed in the county, and at this time, approximately 29 are left in the process of construction. At this time, this office has on hand a record of some 631 additional individuals who have a desire to have these buildings constructed on their premises.

11. Septic Tanks, County-Wide—$2,342.60. Where the individuals were in a position to purchase plumbing fixtures and other materials necessary to operate a septic tank, installation was made. Twenty-four of these were completed and five were left in the process of construction. The relative high cost of labor for these installations resulted from encountering a great deal of solid rock.

12. General Clean-Up—$2,496.10. This work consisted of cleaning dump grounds, removing miscellaneous health hazards, etc. It was county-wide.
