Independent Republicans Predict Third Party

What reminds me...
Small, candidate for governor, should stay with his mettle on the firing line during the campaign. Making premature statements regarding individual acts or criticizing the acts of the present governor, who happened to be the candidate, is a sure way of losing the confidence of J. R. Johnson, to some extent unimportant when one considers the many problems before the people and the conservative government. When Small stated at the time that he had in mind several important changes in the Criminal laws and pardoning power covered the ground. The fact of the business is in making such concrete advance statements as to what he would do or setting aside executive orders is like the ship Captain making up his mind before he lands on the opposite shore. It is determined that he will dive off the boat and swim to shore instead of going down the plank. With that on his mind he will not think of the many things necessary to bring his passengers safely across the sea. No. 2. Small... the thing to do is to stay your platform... on a basis and don't grab at a... because people seem to be... up about this criminal... It is surprising how many people are still sympathetic towards prisoners.

BANK BANDIT IS IDENTIFIED AT ATLANTA

ATLANTA, Texas, June 7.—A photograph of Charlie Chapman, Arkansas bandit and bad man, was identified today as being that of the leader of a bandit pair who late yesterday looted the First National bank of Atlanta of $10,000. The identification was made by V. A. Clements, cashier, and Wilmer Hughes, bookkeeper. Chapman's companion was believed to be Heine Henderson, escaped Louisiana convict. Officers broadcast a description of Chapman and were searching the Sulphur river bottoms of Miller county for the pair. The men kidnaped Clements. He was released unharmed one mile from the city and returned to spread the alarm. Officers today revealed that they had trailed the bandit car to Bloomberg, Ark., and there lost track of it. A checkup revealed that the loot obtained by the bandits was $5,025 in cash, Liberty bonds valued at $1,800, and diamonds amounting to $3,500.

Relief Head

Miss Marie Dresden, state director of relief, who today reviewed her 60 days in office and told of accomplishments.

RELIEF HEAD REVIEWS WORK OF COMMISSION

AUSTIN, Tex., June 7.—As exponent and sponsor of specialized relief programs for the destitute of Texas, Director Marie Dresden of the Texas Relief Commission reviewed today her accomplishments as Administrator during her first sixty days in office. A veteran in relief administration as a result of long experience, Director Dresden literally sold her program to the Federal Emergency Relief Administration at Washington looking to the financing of selected relief projects. Faced with a chronic shortage of state funds, Miss Dresden first prevailed upon the Federal Emergency Relief Administration to grant to Texas $285,000.00 of unmatched funds for continuing the employment of jobless school teachers who had organized and taught classes in adult education throughout the State. This program had been stopped due to shortage of unmatched funds. When Civil Works was demobilized late in February 1934, the County relief offices were not notified to bring their administrative expenses down to legal limit and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration was not asked for supplemental administrative funds for this purpose. In order to carry on the administrative expense of the Relief Commission in compliance with Texas law, such expense not to exceed 5 per cent of the cost of relief, Director Dresden asked for, and received, $250,000.00 for these expenses. These funds, also, were unmatched! During Miss Dresden's first week in office, the administrative payroll for Texas amounted to $50,000.00 monthly. This was cut continuously from the second week in April. To date, the State relief administration expenses are about 8 per cent, of which $100,000.00 has been State funds in accordance with the legal limitation and the remainder a direct, unmatched grant asked for, and granted by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration to the State of Texas for administrative purposes. This cut in administrative cost amounted to $150,000 monthly this sum being saved and still available for use in purchasing food, clothing and other necessities of life for the destitute of Texas. In order to hasten the rural rehabilitation program and make possible the purchase of seeds, materials for the repair of farm houses, tools and gardening, cows and certain technical supervision, Director Dresden has again sold Federal Emergency Relief Administration officials upon the justification for making an additional unmatched grant of Federal funds to Texas in the amount of $200,000.00 for rural recovery activities. In addition to the foregoing, under Miss Dresden's leadership the Federal Administrator has granted Texas the following sums of unmatched funds, for purposes indicated as follows: $195,500.00 for the care of transients; $37,352.00 for the maintenance of National Reemployment Service agencies throughout Texas. In addition to these, she has asked for and expects to receive another half million dollars of unmatched funds with which to finance the end of the rural school extension program throughout Texas. Thus, under the leadership of Miss Dresden, the destitute and unfortunate people of Texas have received approximately one million additional dollars of exclusive unmatched Federal funds with which to carry on relief in this State. In the event the funds relating to rural school extension are received, as expected within the next few days, this will increase the total fund acquired by Miss Dresden for Texas to the total of a million and a half dollars. Such are the accomplishments of sixty days in office!

"BIG BUSINESS ENDORSES NRA WAGE PROVISIONS"

This is an amazing age of economic changes and upheavals. Contrary to the general impression, big business approves the wage and hour provisions of the NRA, "but it would like to scrap the price fixing and production control features." This report was made in the city of New York May 25 by Fortune magazine in announcing in its June issue the results of a canvass of the active heads of large American corporations in the Northeast and Middle-west.

This is the editorial foreword of the magazine: "To begin with, if Fortune's preliminary survey of opinion is even approximately correct, it will be found that the vast majority—in a ratio better than two to one—are against the scrapping of the NRA in June, 1935. This ratio, it must be borne in mind, holds only for the heads of large industries. That small manufacturers may entertain a different opinion is quite probable. The New England council's April survey of industry employing an average of less than 30 workmen showed that 43 per cent of the small manufacturers in that area thought their codes had hurt them against 28 per cent who thought their codes had helped."

This is the prediction made by Fortune: "Mr. Roosevelt may therefore discover in the not distant future that it is the little industrialist rather than big one who is his most determined antagonist." This is another excerpt taken from the canvass of the active heads of large American corporations made by Fortune: "Industrialist have learned two things in the last five years. They have learned that free competition provides no security for labor. On the contrary, free competition in a declining market operates at the expense of labor. In regards the failure of free competition to correct abuses is costly. Yes, this is an amazing age, an age of rapid change in personal viewpoint as well as public opinion. Now where do we go from here?"

SELLERS OF "HOT BEER" GIVEN WARNING

Federal Dist. Atty. Clyde O. Eastus has declared that he is ready to wage a war on sellers of beer with an alcoholic content greater than the 3.2 per cent prescribed by Texas statute. Furthermore, that the government will prosecute firms or persons selling so-called 6 per cent beer.

What will happen to those who sell "near beer"? Its kick is just as powerful as the 3.2 beverage. Indeed, the old soaks say that 3.2 per cent beer is as harmless and as kickless as Crazy Wells mineral water.

Every wide-awake business man in your city has a desire to see your city grow and keep on growing. Help them carry that desire to a successful conclusion.

Tarrant Negroes to Vote On July 28

By United Press

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Negroes may be allowed to vote in a Tarrant county Democratic primary election for the first time on July 28.

County Democratic Chairman Hugh Small is considering the question, after a delegation of negroes called on him. Small will place the matter before the county committee when it holds its next meeting.

"Personally, I do not see how we can exclude negroes any longer, in face of the United States supreme court decision holding that negroes have a right to vote in a primary," Small said.

Small was referring to the Nix case which went to the higher courts from El Paso.

In 1932, the first election year after the decision was handed down, the local committee stepped around the negro voting question by ignoring the petitions of the negroes.

Candidates in the past have opposed the negro vote. Small pointed out, claiming that to campaign among them would complicate matters. Many candidates also fear negroes would vote in blocks instead of expressing individual choices.

Small doubted this. He estimated the negro vote would be negligible, that out of about 1,500 qualified to vote in Tarrant county, only about 500 would do so.

It was indicated the Tarrant county committee would request the state Democratic executive committee to authorize county committees to use their discretion in handling the negro vote question.

Veteran Barber Says Women Like Beards

By United Press

OGDEN, Utah.—Modern women, like their sisters of '48, prefer bewhiskered men, Joseph veteran Orden barber says.

Freshly shaven men possess masculine air of the hard-edged wild western type. Even today, a stocky whiskers denotes real manhood and romance to the "weaker" though they won't admit it.

"Women still feel, down to their hearts, just as the men of '48 did, that a kiss with a beard is nothing, but one with a full beard is heaven."

However, the beard man type which meets the desire of women, Harris said, and it takes too much time to trim them, popular return of the Dyke beard, at least is remote.

House Shortage Is Result of Boom

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev.—Steady improvement in Nevada's silver camps has resulted in a housing shortage. The shortage has become so acute that prospects are favorable for an extensive building development. Travelers, especially salesmen, report they have to "double up" when stopping over at the camps. From Tonopah, Manhattan, Round Mountain and Silver Peak come the reports of a shortage of

Gracey Hadn't Heard Anything of Repeal

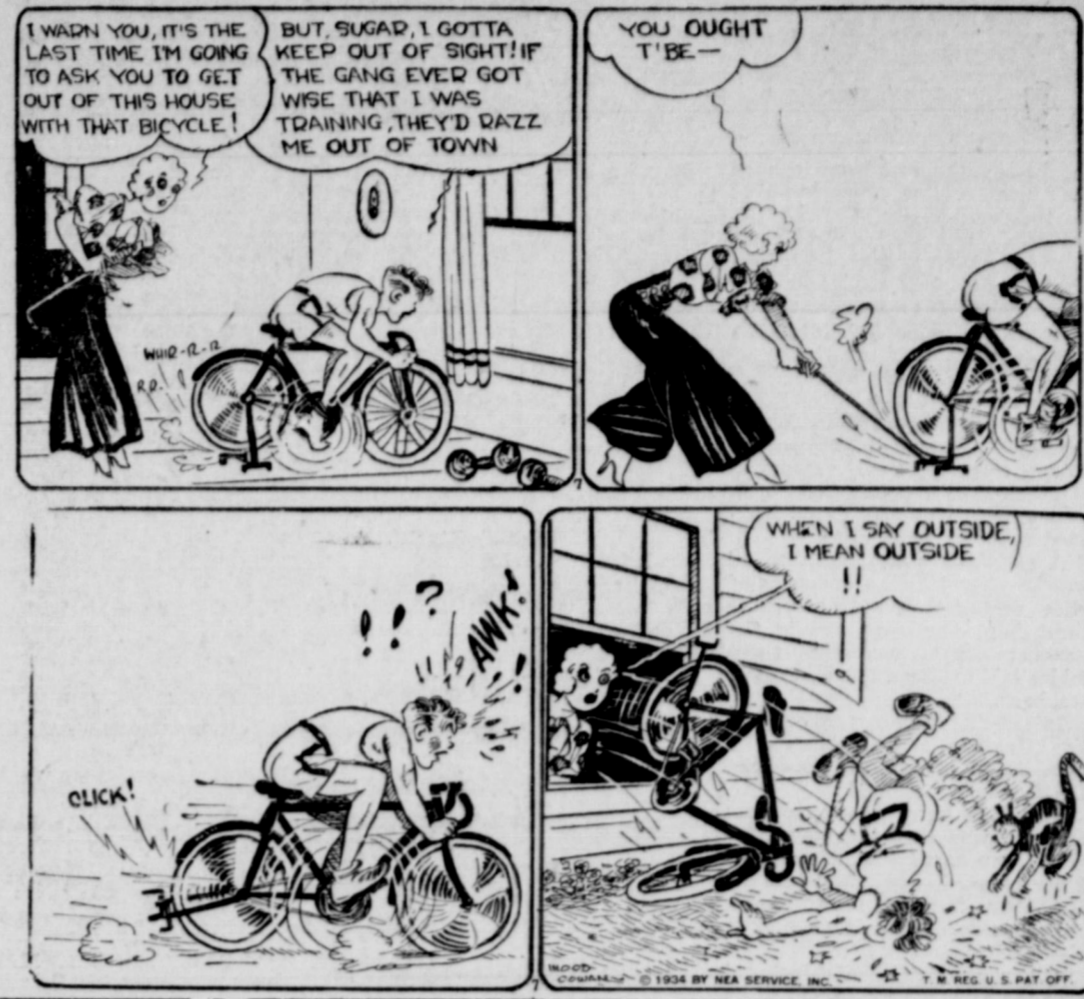

AMARILLO, Tex.—Gracey Underwood had not even heard that the 18th amendment had been repealed, let alone that government stamps were required on hard liquor. Gracey was surprised when Federal Judge James C. Wilson told her that the federal government no longer objects to the sale of liquor. She had pleaded guilty to possession of 36 gallons of whiskey. But Gracey was more surprised when the judge sentenced her to 30 days in jail for selling liquor without a government stamp.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 DONNA GABRIEL, circus performer, falls from the trapeze and is injured. To please her partner, MADLINE SIDDAI, Donna goes to Madeline's home to recuperate. She is ashamed of this deception and leaves the circus. MADLINE SIDDAI, Madeline's cousin, asks her to marry him. ANOS BIDDAL, Madeline's grandfather who owns the farm, is blind. MRS. PLANTER, a nurse, is a foe of Donna and Bill. CON DAVID, circus animal trainer, and takes part in the animal act. Anos Biddal has a stroke. In New Orleans Madeline goes into the cage with the Bengal tiger and is killed. Con is discharged and, unable to get work, decides to go to the SidDAI farm. Donna and Bill agree to meet him the next afternoon. Mrs. Planter learns of this and writes an anonymous letter to Donna. Donna tells Bill she is going to a neighbor's and sets out to keep the appointment with CON. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII
 NOTHING could have fired Con David's desire to see Donna quite so much as her reluctance to meet him. After he had learned from Madeline that Donna had been married to Bill SidDAI at the time of his marriage to Madeline, Con had convinced himself that, in spite of her repulse, Donna had really been in love with him. He assured himself that if he had remained single Donna would have become his wife. He did not occur to him that Donna might fear him. What she had said over the telephone flattered his vanity. If she was afraid to meet him it must be true that her husband was jealous of him. If SidDAI was jealous, he must know something about Con and he could have learned of him by one means or another through Donna. That meant she had not forgotten him. Perhaps Donna was afraid to trust herself with Con because he might arouse an affection she was trying to crush. This thought pleased him greatly. As he shaved and dressed meticulously for the meeting he envisioned Donna in the days when he had first known her. Small, lithe and exquisitely beautiful, he had thought her. The arrogant way in which she carried her head with its aureole of flaming curls, the perfect symmetry of her body, her daring in the ring, and her utter indifference to the admiration of men had all attracted him. Though the two girls, Donna and Madeline, had looked much alike, there had been a distinction about Donna that always made her partner appear drab and colorless when the two were together. From the very beginning Con had doubted the statement that the girls were sisters, though no one else in the troupe had seemed to do so. It did not seem credible to Con, who had spent almost his entire life under the 'big top,' that members of the same family should not only show such different traits of character but that one should be an accomplished aerialist, skilled in every trick of her profession, while the other, though not without ability, was obviously new to the circus. Vividly he recalled the day when the two girls had joined the show Renfro's headquarters were in Virginia and until the season before Con had nursed his animals with Renfro's. The showman had been disappointed by two European performers who had failed to keep an engagement, and had advertised an advertisement in a theatrical publication. Photographs accompanied the letter of application and Renfro had shown them to Con. "They're good-looking, aren't they?" Renfro had said. "The Gabriel sisters. I remember there used to be a Val Gabriel in your line. Con, maybe you know him. I think he was killed by a lion." "Yes, he was a headliner. Wife was a trapeze performer." "Wonder if these girls are his kids. Seems to me I heard he left a family." Con had studied the pictures and had advised Renfro to hire the sisters. Soon after that the girls arrived at headquarters, after cancelling some small-time vaudeville dates. Though Donna had admitted the relationship to Val Gabriel, neither girl offered any other information about themselves. But their act had made good. From the first day of their meeting in the huge enclosed grounds of the headquarters Con had been definitely conscious of Donna. Though everyone was busy—and he most of all, with a couple of new cats to break in—he found moments in which he had endeavored to win her regard. The fact that she had obviously sought to avoid him had piqued his interest, and by the time the circus opened two weeks later he had known that he was in love with her. HE supposed he was still in love with her and would always be. His marriage to Madeline, her death and his nervous reaction were only episodes, interludes between the really important events of his life. He found himself as impatient to see Donna now as he had been impatient for the winter months to pass during the years he had known her, when he had counted the weeks and days until they would meet again. Ambition leaped into flame once more. If Donna did care for him—even if her affection were but lukewarm—he could convince her that she was wasting her beauty and talents in a place like Lebanon. A dead town and a diamond. How had she been able to stand it as long as she had? Divorce was so easy these days. Grandfather SidDAI's money was forgotten for the time. Into Con's imagination floated all the rowdy dreams he had once pictured for Madeline—an engagement with a European circus, visits to all the famous cities in the world, his name—and Donna's—featured above all the others. He would build a new act, more daring and more sensational than any he had ever seen. And, above all, Donna would be with him. Perhaps the discouragement and hardships Con had known in past

Legends Survive In Juarez About Buried Treasure

JUAREZ, Mexico.—Just a short way out on the route of the Chihuahua highway, so goes the story, there is a buried treasure, hidden somewhere around a spot where transits and levels refuse to function normally. The story also has it that a rich gentleman by the name of Jurado buried a fortune in square-cut silver pesos some 70 years ago. The reputed place is now graded to cover up an old arroyo; and blue flames have danced around the spot in every frolic, but although many have dug, none has found the money. Not far from the center of Juarez, heading off on a side road in the general direction of the agricultural college, can be seen a sandy region, marked by many dunes. The ancients of the neighborhood keep alive a legend that the place is the bottom of the world. It is probably one more vagary of the Rio Grande, because the section where the agricultural school stands is known as La Playa (the beach) and although there is plenty of sand, there is no sign of a beach now. A short distance out on the highway is the Rancho de Escandida, Villa's headquarters in June, 1919, when he attacked Ciudad Juarez for the last time.

Texan Makes Violin Only Three Fourths Of An Inch Long

SABINAL, Texas.—A concert for humming birds could be played on a tiny violin made here by E. C. Gibson. It is one and three-fourths inches long and weighs eight grains. Gibson carved the miniature instrument from scraps of hard maple, pecan wood and ebony. The ebony, used in the fingerboard, keys, nut and button, was secured from a violin made in 1633 which Gibson once repaired. Everything about the small instrument is in proportion. The strings were made from a regular violin string which was softened, picked apart and spun into thread-like strands. Gibson also has two other violins which are mere miniatures but look huge behind the "baby." These others are eight inches long. Besides violins the wood carver has several other articles that rank with them for intricacy and delicacy. One is a small wagon truck inside a bottle. Others are an ornamental fan and a wooden chair carved from a single piece of wood.

Old River Bed of Rio Grande Is a Puzzle to Many

EL PASO.—Many persons have asked the question: What will be done with the old river bed after the Rio Grande channel is straightened under the $6,000,000 reclamation program authorized under international treaty between the United States and Mexico? L. M. Lawson, American boundary commissioner, finds many incredulous listeners when he tells them that the old bed will be levelled off instead of filled up. "The river near El Paso really rides on a ridge, enclosed within levees. The bottom of the present river channel, after the new channel is cut, will be found higher than adjacent territory, and therefore there will be no need of filling it up. "On the other hand, the new channel will be dug along a route that is lower than the present river bed. Cutting of the new channel will not be so much a matter of digging as of merely building levees—for the bed of the proposed channel is nearly low enough already." Title to property that will be detached from one country and added to the other by the channel change is to be acquired by Mexico and the United States, and then traded, so that the new river will be the real boundary.

Water Barometer of Business at Juarez

JUAREZ, Mex.—The best barometer for café, bar and cabaret business in Juarez, a major industry here, is a water faucet. There is not any pressure to spare along the bar-walk. If business is bad, bartenders use the taps. A mild rush reduces the supply to a faint trickle; and with good business special water jugs come into use. The Columbus of this discovery is a wide-shouldered man named Fernando Mendoza. The international debts shouldn't be canceled; neither should they be paid. How else are we to be reminded there once was a war?

Interesting Meeting
 The Matrix Circle of the Child Conservation league held one of its interesting sessions Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Claud Crossley, who, with Mrs. Frank Chambers, were hostesses to the circle.

Mrs. W. O. Butler, president, opened the meeting with the routine business and then the program was swung into, "Obedience and Child Habits" with an interesting round-table discussion, developed on child culture, and papers on the subject discussed by Mrs. James Harkrider and Mrs. Claud Crossley.

Mrs. Garner Kinard, program chairman, led the discussion. Mrs. Harkrider will be hostess to the next meeting of the circle. An interesting feature of the program was a description of the life of famous men, as answer to roll call, in which biographies of Lincoln, Longfellow, Dryden and Shakespeare were handled, a follow-up of the former roll call, "Sayings of Great Men."

At close of the afternoon a dainty refreshment plate was served to Meses. Hunt, L. V. Simmonds, James Harkrider, Guy Patterson, Garner Kinard, W. O. Butler, Claud Crossley, and Frank Chambers.

Home Makers Bible Class
Charming Social
 The Home Makers Bible class of the Baptist church Sunday school held a charming social, a one-month affair, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock with Mrs. Claud Maynard as house hostess.

A pink and green color motif was developed in the bouquets of pink verbenas and larkspur throughout the home and in the bouquets that centered three tables laid in green linens, for the tea hour.

Interesting games programmed the afternoon, and contests led by Mrs. Artie Liles, social chairman for the class.

Mrs. Ray Larner, the new class teacher, who is doing wonderful work, announced that a quota of 25 members is expected to attend the class meeting next Sunday morning, 9:45 o'clock, at Baptist church.

Other announcements included that the associate members will be hostesses for the next social meeting, on the first Tuesday in July, hour and home announced later.

The tea plate of pimento cheese sandwiches, iced tea with small cakes, was daintily served at the tables, seating Meses. W. B. Cheatham, W. H. Seale, T. O. Adair, William Shirriffs, H. R. Breazeale, W. T. Morgan, S. D. Phillips, S. W. Taft, L. V. Simmonds, O. W. Norton, Victor Cornelius, Artie Liles, R. A. Larner, Claud Maynard.

Off to Austin
 Mrs. Scott W. Key, the chosen representative for the Eastland county advisory board, Texas Centennial commission, left for Austin Monday to attend the called meeting, held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, in Driskill hotel, of the commission and the various county advisory boards.

It was deemed advisable that she be instructed as to choice of place for location of Centennial, in case this question arose.

Mrs. Key sounded the individual members of the Eastland advisory board, and the unanimous opinion seemed to be in favor of San Antonio, as the logical place for the Texas Centennial, inasmuch as it had the natural background of lakes, bathing pools, hotels, theatres, and scenic drives, together with many prominent places noted in Texas history.

"BOTTOMS UP" IS A ROMANTIC FILM COMEDY

"Bottoms Up," described as a romantic comedy with music, opens at the Lyric Theatre today and remains for an engagement of two days. Buddy DeSylva, the producer who was also responsible for "Sunny Side Up," is credited with another hit. Like his earlier success, "Bottoms Up" is reported to be a delightful romance with songs woven logically into the story.

"Pat" Paterson, lovely English comedienne, makes her American film debut in this picture. The other members of the cast are Spencer Tracy, John Boles, Herbert Mundin, Sid Silvers, Harry Green, Thelma Todd, Robert Emmett O'Conner, Dell Henderson, Suzanne Kaaren and Douglas Wood.

The film satirizes the bluff of Hollywood. It portrays how three merry rouses and a girl with movie ambitions put on a swell front and crash the golden gates of the movie capital. The girl, who has long cherished a love for a famous movie star, soon finds herself skyrocketed to film fame by her three rollicking companions.

Before long she is playing opposite the man she has loved from afar. When the girl and her three companions are found to be bluffs, the situation becomes embarrassing. But the film star, who has fallen in love with the girl, sticks by her and—you'll want to see for yourself how it ends.

The four song numbers which give promise of being hits are "Waiting at the Gate for Katy," "Turn on the Moon," "Little Did I Dream" and "I'm Throwin' My Love Away." The four well-known song writers responsible for these numbers are Harold Adamson, Burton Lane, Richard A. Whiting and Gus Kahn.

David Butler directed from his own story and screen play which he wrote in collaboration with B. G. DeSylva and Sid Silvers.

ing the many issues involving the people of his district and those of the state.

Reports continue to come from the headquarters of the Depositors' Committee of the Texas State bank that depositors are signing up for the organization of a new bank and at the same time to get the affairs of the dividend angles in the hands of the depositors without much further delay. This problem is one for the depositors themselves to take a major interest in because it is to their best interests. Not a single depositor can afford to pass up the opportunity that is now theirs. The entire plan is so fair, clean and honest that regardless of how one looks at it there isn't any disastrous or selfish flaw to be picked out of it. When any depositor joins the movement he or she is putting something in their own pocket that isn't there and God knows how long on the present basis it would be before it was there. The assessment bugaboo on National Bank stock is entirely out of the picture by a law that was passed by Congress in June, 1933. No National Bank stock is accessible. Depositors are assured if they join the movement that they will receive, both stock in the new bank which will become valuable at the outset as well as cash besides. It all depends upon the depositors whether they put it over or not... and this is one time that to fail would show a most unusual indifference to the greatest need for Eastland today.

Just one thought enters the picture possible which could work much ill for the plan as well as for the individual depositor if any depositor had it in mind, and that is "Now if I don't come in, I will get all my money and want to take any stock". We can only say this at the present time there is nothing definite in sight under liquidation. The only way the depositors have of getting anything worth while out of their claim is to join the movement. Those who may feel that they will unload the responsibility on a few and get all... are simply throwing a monkey wrench in the project and knocking all out of anything which includes themselves. This is no project that has a preference... it is entirely unselfish... and what one does for the other helps them all. The fact of the business is... this is one time that there is an opportunity to get the thing in shape so that there will be something and long delays will be out of order. It is absolutely essential that every depositor notify the

"Next to Advertising Matter"

THERE used to be a favorite phrase of advertisers. They asked to have their advertisements placed "next to reading matter" in the belief that such a position would assure more attention.

But today the editor might well ask to have his news items placed "next to advertising matter," for very definitely the advertisements have a tremendous reader following. Today's advertisements win eager attention because they help people buy intelligently, quickly, without waste of time, and get full value for the money spent.

That is the great function of advertising—to guide you swiftly and surely to wise, economical buying. The best advertisement is always the one that gives you the facts you want—simply, honestly, without exaggeration.
