NAVAL TALKS ADJOURNED AT LONDON TODAY

By United Press
LONDON, Dec. 19.—The 1934 naval conference planned to check the rising tides of increased armaments, came to a fruitless end today, when British, Japanese and American delegates voted adjournment of the negotiations sine die. Earlier Japan had formally denounced the Washington Naval limitations treaty. It was significant that adjournment was delayed until Japan had acted. The final session was held at the house of commons under the chairmanship of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald. In the eyes of many experts the failure of the talks of the Japan treaty action threaten a world navy building race. In the proceedings today there is one glimmer of hope. The Japanese chief delegate placed on record Japan's desire to set a date for resumption of the negotiations asking that the conference name a day at once. Japan deferred to the wish of the British and Americans however, that the sine die adjournment be taken, and that the initiative for resumption should be left to the discretion of the British government.

TENDER BOARD WILL EXPIRE DECEMBER 31

By United Press
AUSTIN, Dec. 19.—An oil tender board, one of the devices set up for control of East Texas oil movements, probably will be a thing of the past after Dec. 31. Railroad Commissioner Lon Smith said the plan of having a business men's board was set up to deal with a situation that now seems to have passed. He saw little likelihood of the board's being continued. "The board is only until Jan. 1," Smith said.

THE WEATHER

WEST TEXAS—Partly cloudy tonight, slightly warmer in Panhandle and extreme west portions. Thursday unsettled, probably light rain in Panhandle.

Chicago's Next Grain Pit Chief

Next president of the Chicago Board of Trade will be Robert P. Boylan, 42, shown here in a new picture. Boylan, now first vice president of the nation's largest grain exchange, has been selected by the nominating committee, which is equivalent to election. Boylan has been a broker in his own name since 1918.

that reminds me...

One never gets dizzy and confused shopping around in Eastland, for instance, dropping in to the Connellee Coffee shop for another coffee of cuppee, we note a couple of alert and pleasing young ladies who are right on the dot to serve you with the best, food and everything. This happening to be day time, "Colonel" Oakley, who presides at the desk in the main office of the hotel greets you with a smile and begins to tell about the extra fine qualities of the Connellee Hotel, the best in this section. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lafon Jr. sprinkle the entire setting with the inspiration of their pleasing personality and make you feel at ease and at home. It's hard to get away from this kind of contact, but drifting across the street we greet our premier lumber man of this section, "SI" Perkins, who efficiently and gracefully manages the Higginbotham Lumber company. Of course he wants to sell enough lumber to everybody that goes in there to build a house but that's his business. He can tell in a moment just how much paint it will take to paint either a mouse trap of a palatial home or business. He's got a good bunch working with him too.

Then there's our good friend, W. Crouch (for goodness sake don't get the name mixed with Grouch; it won't work). He smiles and smiles and of course every time he sees a big blue black cloud in the north and the weather man says "Heavy freeze coming," he begins to gather up his money wrenches, etc., because he knows that some folks are careless and don't have things tended to by him in time to avoid trouble on the plumbing end. Crouch knows his stuff. Stepping over on the other side, there we find one of the "biggest" hearted men in the country, and a live wire. He's got a monopoly on this smile business and when he smiles the whole world looks brighter. He always has a line of interesting things to talk about and the main thing is that right now he has 18,000 square feet of floor space full of merchandise that is itching for customers to come in and save money on during his fiftieth anniversary sale now going on. The December issue of the Southwest Hardware Journal paid Mr. and Mrs. Mickle a special tribute in their columns with photos of both as well as a well written story of the Mickle's business experience during the past 50 years. Omar Mickle who spreads out from one end of the big store to the other, makes the customers glad that they came there and the general force of salesfolks both men and women are all the height of courtesy in serving the patrons of the store.

DELINQUENT STATE TAXES ARE MOUNTING

By United Press
AUSTIN, Dec. 19.—The old saying that "there is nothing sure but death and taxes," was exploded today before the state senate tax research committee so far as it applies to taxes. L. P. Gabbard, chief of the farm and ranch economics division of A. & M. college, said a report before the committee showing a total delinquent tax bill of $141,000,000 in Texas and little chance of collecting much of it. Gabbard, who made it plain to the committee that he is not a "doctor" or a preacher, said that fully one-fourth of delinquency is insolvent so far as tax collection is concerned. Since the state last cleared off old delinquencies, Gabbard reported that $90,000,000 new tax delinquency has accumulated, 32 percent of which has been paid. His report was based on a survey of 120 counties scattered to reveal varying conditions. In those taxes have become delinquent on 364,000 farms since 1927 and only 932 collections have been by tax sales.

Hi-Y Group Work On Friday Play

Members of the Hi-Y club declare that their play, "Cyclone Evening," to be presented Friday evening at 8:30, bids to be one of the most successful presented in Eastland this year. ### Committees Winding Up Tree Event Work

All plans are rounding up and details being completed for the Community Christmas tree celebration of the Civic League Friday evening, with opening of program 6:30 p. m. on south side of courthouse square. As one of the final tasks a committee from the Ladies Auxiliary of Firemen's association, under direction of Mrs. J. M. Perkins, chairman for tree; Mrs. D. J. Jobe, chairman for the candy; Mrs. Richard Jones, chairman for fruits, worked Tuesday and again today sacking the fruits, nuts and candies, putting up nearly 675, tied with red cord. Those who aided included Mmes. Lilly Watson, Curt Williams, E. P. Kilborn, Jr., Aubrey Yeager and M. B. Griffin, assisted by Mrs. Frank Roberson. Other women who worked on the sacking project Wednesday were Mmes. Richard Jones, J. C. Whately, John Williams, W. A. Martin.

Harrioch spent 17 years in the Arctic as a missionary and wrote four books on the Far North and Indian life.

WHITE HOUSE ROMANCE?

Romance again hovers over the White House, if there is any basis in fact for insistent Washington reports that Anna Dall, left, will become the bride of John Boettiger, right, recent Chicago Tribune correspondent, now with the Will Hays firm organization. Boettiger has refused to comment and the Roosevelts' daughter, divorced last summer from Curtis Dall, New York broker, was "out" to questioners.

Liaison Man For Administration and Bankers is Dead

By United Press
ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 19.—Eugene Black, liaison man between the Roosevelt administration and the nation's bankers, died of a heart attack at his home today. He was 61. ### SIXTEEN ARE RESCUED BY LINERS CREW

By United Press
ABOARD S. S. NEW YORK, AT SEA, Dec. 19.—A lifeboat manned by volunteers from this Hamburg-American liner, snatched 16 members of the crew of the sinking freighter, Sisto from death early today in a dramatic breath taking exhibition of courage and seamanship. While a gale piled up mountainous seas, the little craft, propelled by 10 oarsmen, fought four hours to get to the Sisto, listing heavily and in sinking condition. "Time after time it seemed about to crash against the steel sides of the freighter. Twenty times or more the lifeboat was within 10 feet of the Sisto. Sixteen times a man had jumped from the ship to the open sea and was carried within reach of the boat's crew and hauled to safety. Despite reavy seas and gale and rain that changed to snow, not a man was lost or injured. The 16 from the Sisto were semi-hysterical when the lifeboat was hoisted onto this liner. Their ship had been in a sinking condition for 36 hours and each minute they expected to be hurled into the sea. Standing by and forming a lee for the lifeboat was the giant North German Lloyd liner, Europa. Her powerful searchlights lighted the sea. Other ships standing by were the Cunard liner Aurania, the Gerolstein and the Mobiloil.

English Woman Is Hanged for Murder

By United Press
HULL, England, Dec. 19.—Mrs. Ethel Major, a slight, dark-haired woman of 42, was hanged today for poisoning her husband, while men and women knelt on the sidewalk outside Hull prison, praying that King George would intervene to save her. She was the first woman executed in England in eight years. Ten words led to her condemnation. A policeman investigating the suspicious circumstances of the death of her husband, a truck driver, was questioning her. "I did not know my husband died of strychnine poisoning," she said. "Nobody has said he did," the policeman replied quietly.

Snow Falls Over Portion of Country

By United Press
KANSAS CITY, Dec. 19.—Snow, ranging in depth up to five inches, blanketed much of the southwest today, but the storm on which it rode was not of such severity as to cause undue damage or discomfort. The snow depth diminished west from St. Louis, where seven inches fell. At Kansas City it was an inch and a half. In northwestern Oklahoma snow followed rain. Temperatures were generally above freezing. Amarillo had a minimum last night of 22 degrees with freezing extending to Dallas. Most of the state was clear today. The mercury dropped to 10 degrees in Nebraska, with light snows.

By United Press
One more member of the Dillinger gang fell into the law's net when Joseph Burns, 53, above, escaped Indiana state prison fire, was captured without a shot being fired in a police and federal raid on a Chicago South Side flat. Pencil notes hinted at Burns' link with the $427,950 Brooklyn armored car robbery in August.

Movement Is Being Probed By Committee

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Charges "some big people" are backing on American fascist movement, were made today by vice chairman Samuel Dickstein of the house Nazi committee investigating an alleged plot for a "dictators' march on Washington. Dickstein charged that "dangerous groups hiding behind the cloak of combating communism" actually were seeking a fascist state. Among the backers, he said "are some people who purport to have Mayflower ancestors." The committee investigating un-American activities, turned to the alleged "fascist march" plot after civic and labor officials testified to the extent of communism in the United States. Albert Christmas, attorney for Robert Clark, broker who figured in testimony concerning an alleged offer to General Smedley Butler to head a march of 500,000 "fascists" on Washington, was called for questioning tomorrow. Today's session was cancelled.

Salt Water Causes Death to Many Fish

By United Press
ROBSTOWN.—The extreme salinity of the water in Laguna Madre causes the death of hundreds of thousands of edible fish annually, W. A. Scrivner, Robstown, declared in a report to the State Fishing commission. "One can sometimes literally walk almost to Port Isabel, more than 100 miles from Corpus Christi, on the carcasses of edible fish," Scrivner said. To prevent this loss, Scrivner advocated dredging cuts across Padre Island to let gulf water through to freshen the water in the lagoon.

Influenza Is On Increase In State

AUSTIN.—Reports from widely separated parts of Texas to the State Department of Health show that influenza is on the increase in the state. It is expected that by the last of this month over 700 cases of this disease will be reported in Texas. Colds, gripe, influenza, or whatever we may call them are believed to be spread from person to person through discharges from the nose and throat. To protect yourself and others from such diseases, here are some things to be remembered and some precautions to be observed. 1. Influenza is highly infectious. Practically everybody is susceptible to it. No matter how many times you may have had the disease, you may contract it again. Therefore, keep away from people who are sneezing, coughing, or sniffing, or who are actively ill with colds, influenza, or pneumonia. 2. Keep away from crowded places. 3. Have your own towel and drinking cup and always wash your hands before eating. 4. Keep yourself as fit as possible, by drinking plenty of water, by eating simple, nourishing food, by some exercise out of doors every day, by dressing according to the weather, by having plenty of sleep in a well-ventilated room, and by keeping the bowels regulated. If you feel an attack of gripe or influenza—or even of what you may think an ordinary cold—coming on, go to bed, send for your physician, and follow his directions.

JAPAN TO TRAIN MAIDS

Life's Grim Humor Revealed In Variety of World Events

In Archie Binns' novel, "Lightship," there is a character who spends his spare time collecting newspaper clippings to prove that the human race is, after all, pretty courageous and upright.

It would be infinitely less edifying, but much easier and funnier, to collect clippings showing that life is full of a rather grim and illogical humor, with human contradictions and perversities enough to make one wonder if the world be not mildly insane at times.

A rather casual glance at recent newspapers, for instance, shows a jumble of items like the following:

Huey Long denies that he tried to censor a student paper at Louisiana State University, and four more students are expelled for saying he did. A Seattle man confesses to a murder he committed 21 years ago, on the ground that he would like to become an American citizen and wants to get the crime off his conscience.

Lily Pons returns to New York to find that her pet jaguar has completely forgotten her. Brooklyn digs up a 7-year-old boy who is smarter than Einstein and the federal government starts bombing ducks in Skagit county, Washington, protect the cabbage crop.

A jobless New York theater usher admits setting 10 fires in the last two months just for the fun of watching the fire trucks go by, and a strapping Amazonian lady furnishes Boston with food for conversation by roaming darkened streets, seizing lone men, kissing them and running away.

The Soviet government puts on a nation-wide campaign to get factory workers to wash their hands and clean their fingernails; meanwhile, Uncle Sam hires 50 relief workers in Washington to keep the starlings awake, the idea being that birds will eventually grow tired of it all and fly away.

A resident of Evansville, Ind., is assessed an amusement tax of one dollar and costs, the grounds being that he got drunk and amused himself by coating his wife with tar and tossing lighted matches at her. The Poly County 'Possum Club of Arkansas turns down a motion to invite Huey Long to its annual dinner, on the ground that the noble 'possum might be contaminated.

One could go on and on like this, for columns. Does it all prove anything? Nothing at all—except that life is packed with an infinite variety, and that it takes all sorts to make a world.

All business men should practice what they preach and buy at home.

They Can't Talk Yet—But if They Only Could!

Ten bright eyes, half-revealing the thought behind the wise-looking baby heads of the six-month-old Dionne quintuplets, make one wish they could talk. Let's guess what's going on behind those bright eyes. Marie: "Aw, nurse, can't we go to sleep now? I've had enough of this!" Yvonne: "Not such a good manure to put before a camera! Fingers are funny things, anyway, aren't they?" Annette: "You can't take this one at all unless it's going to be good!" Cecile: "I don't want to pose. Let me crawl under the warm covers!" Emelle: "Well, go ahead and shoot if you must! I'm getting used to this!" And the patient Nurse De Kirlene, Stockholm Nurses' College graduate, who has been with the famous quintuplets almost since their birth, just smiles and says nothing at all.

FAMOUS CURTIS HOAX RUN TO EARTH AS INVESTIGATORS FOLLOWED EVERY NEW LEAD

Editor's Note: In bitter disappointment at the failure of his negotiations with the supposed kidnapers of his child, through the offices of "Jafsie," Col. Charles A. Lindbergh turned to a Norfolk builder, who had insisted that he was in touch with the criminals. The following dispatch, fifth in the Sidney B. Whipple series on the Lindbergh crime, is the second hoax in the series.

By SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE
Special Press Staff Correspondent
Copyright 1934 by United Press
Throughout Dr. John F. Conroy's negotiations with the supposed kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., the Lindbergh family and the police authorities refused to do more than listen, with steadily skeptical minds, to colorful wild tales that were being spread into their ears by John Curtis, of Norfolk, Va.

er whose business had fallen upon evil days during the depression, had gone to Hopewell in good company. Associated with him as sponsors were the Very Rev. Dean Harold Dobson-Peacock, rector of Christ Episcopal church, and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, U. S. N. (retired), both highly respected citizens of the Virginia seaport.

Curtis was something of a social leader himself. As president of the exclusive Norfolk German club, he led the annual cotillions, was a busy and popular figure in the Norfolk Golf club, and was a prime mover in a newly formed yacht club.

Curtis told Colonel Lindbergh that he had been approached by a man known to him as Sam Torredale, alias Murray Torredale, alias Sam Murray, alias Murray Truesdale, who claimed to have established contact with the kidnapers. The imaginative melodrama developed rapidly. In a bungalow near Freeport, Va., Curtis said he actually met the gang—and a piratical crew it was. The leader was one known only as "Dynamite," or "Dym" for short. His henchmen were "John" and "Eric." His shore managers were his wife, "Hilda," and his sister-in-law, "Inez."

The child, Curtis "learned," was on board a two-masted Gloucester fisherman, powered by Fairbanks-Morse motors, and capable of doing 14 knots. The ship's hull was dark green, "so dark it looked black," and it carried sails and a bowsprit rigging.

Communication between the crew of the phantom ship and those on shore was carried on through "Inez," who had a portable radio set, carried from point to point along the Virginia shores in a small automobile.

Glibly, the boat builder outlined the story of the kidnaping as related to him by the "pirates." The crime had been carried out, he said, with the assistance of "a girl inside the Lindbergh home"—and he himself had seen the actual cradle in which the child was kept before being transferred to the schooner.

He gave an excellent description of "Hilda"—a "buxom, large-bosomed young woman"—and of "Inez," who talked with a Scandinavian accent.

Since Colonel Lindbergh was firmly convinced, during the relation of these stories, that he was on the trail of the genuine kidnapers through "Jafsie," it was not until his bitter disappointment in the fruitless chase of the nonexistent boat Nellie, in Vineyard Haven, that he reluctantly turned to Curtis and agreed to pursue the chase through him.

Curtis became the busiest man in the United States. He left Norfolk on a series of mysterious journeys carrying him to New York, Philadelphia and other northern cities. Dobson-Peacock, the enthusiastic clergyman, went with him upon occasion, and became Curtis' contact man with the press. Col. Charles H. Consovo, Baltimore hotel owner, offered the use of his yacht, the Maroon, to carry the negotiators to sea in an attempt to meet the kidnapers.

In the closing week of March and all through April, the Maroon steamed off the Virginia capes with a picked crew. Aboard were Colonel Lindbergh, Curtis, and E. B. Bruce, an Elmire manufacturer who had faith, as a lifelong friend, in the Norfolk boat builder.

Each of these trips was futile. But each night, after the tired investigators had landed, Curtis went away to one of his mysterious rendezvous, to return with encouragement.

"Hilda says he has contacted dynamite, and he heard our engines today, but didn't dare to make the transfer because of the coast guard," he would explain. And he added another dramatic touch to his story.

"The gang is the same gang that took the ransom money from Jafsie," he declared. "I, myself, have actually handled some of the ransom bills."

Thinking the yacht Maroon perhaps might be too well known, Colonel Lindbergh transferred his activities to another ship, the Cachelot. The fruitless chase proceeded.

On the afternoon of May 12, the colonel and his group were off the capes again, still hunting the elusive Gloucester fisherman. Back in Hopewell, Williams Allen and Orville Williams, motor truck drivers, were driving along a dirt road four miles from the Lindbergh home. Allen entered the underbrush on a matter of highly personal business. He returned to his truck trembling.

"There's a child's body in there," he told Williams.

The two men hurried to Hopewell, informed the police of the discovery, and guided them to a shallow grave. The body of Charles A. Lindbergh, with a tiny hole in the skull, was taken from beneath a covering of earth, leaves and branches. The child had been dead for more than two months.

Word was telegraphed to the coast. Bruce, the Elmire manufacturer, received the news on board the Cachelot and informed Colonel Lindbergh that all hope of recovering his infant son was now gone.

The colonel, motionless, stared out to sea where he had strained anxious eyes looking for a ship that had no existence except in the fantastic imagination of John Hughes Curtis.

On shore, he met the Norfolk boat builder.

"Curtis," he said calmly, "I want you to come to Hopewell with me."

Don't Let a Fire Blight Christmas

Christmas is undoubtedly celebrated more universally than any other occasion—celebrated with great joy and happiness. Yet its observance is fraught with danger to life and property because of many special hazards that come into use at that time. A careless act, or the use of an unsafe article, may blight the day, replacing joy with grief.

Most of the trouble can be traced to lack of information about these special hazards. If correctly informed people can easily avoid the dangers. In view of this, the National Board of Fire Underwriters has issued the following bulletin:

Electrical Hazards

One of the leading causes of fires develops through the use of sub-standard electrical appliances and equipment, or the misuse of that which is standard. The purchaser can be certain that the product he buys is "standard"—that is, complies with certain safety regulations—if it bears the label of Underwriters' Laboratories. Even the cord—that "means to an end" for the current—must be standard and in good condition to be entirely safe. This has been recognized by the National Electrical Manufacturers association "Identified Cord" movement has resulted in 80 per cent of the cord now sold bearing Underwriters' Laboratories' bracelet, whereas but three years ago only 20 per cent was so identified.

Fuses, plugs, sockets also should be standard. For safety's sake, when you buy strings of lights for Christmas trees, or any electrical gifts, accept only those that carry the label of Underwriters' Laboratories. Also exercise common sense in using electrical toys or appliances. Detach when not in use, and don't hang wires over uninculcated nails. When giving the children electrical toys instruct them carefully regarding their use and then supervise them closely until they know how to operate the toys properly.

We have lots of harmony thus far in the tour of Eastland stores. We know the folks from everywhere get the same thrill. There will be another round tomorrow, but if we are too slow in the trip, just keep going and one will find no end of good things and good stores. George always has a pleasant greeting for everybody, and he knows how to please his customers by selling the best. General Electric refrigerators and Majestic radios are his hobby. None better made. He also features a strictly home product in the manner of Arab gasoline and it is as good as the best. Right next door we bump into G. W. Hipp, manager of the J. C. Allan Sneed, one of the handsomest clerks in Eastland vibrates with personality and the rest of the crew catch it. The women who serve the counters are pretty and accommodating.

'Dusting the Covers of Texas History'

The Texas Centennial Celebrations of 1936

A worried scowl was on the face of Don Diego Ortiz de Parrilla. He had just had another quarrel with Father Francisco de los Dolores, in charge of Mission San Antonio de Valero. He had failed again in his attempt to convince Father Dolores that his judgment could be trusted to prove the best for everyone concerned.

Don Diego Ortiz de Parrilla was a well-trained soldier, familiar with his surroundings, and able to lead any group he was with. He was commander of the San Xavier mission when it was moved to the San Marcos River. When the mission to be built near the San Saba river was considered, he was appointed to make a thorough investigation of the territory. In 1756 he had come from Mexico with four priests, and nine families from Saltillo, then had moved the San Marcos church to San Antonio. It was in San Antonio that Father Dolores and Don Diego continually crossed in their desires and opinions.

Messengers were sent out to the Apaches, asking them to come meet their future friends at the mission. Ten days later some Indians came. Captain Parrilla smoked the peace pipe with them, then gave two chiefs elaborate wooden canes as insignia of the office of alcalde, thus creating a strong bond of good will.

Feeling that he knew the country better, and knowing that he had excellent knowledge of the habits of the Indians, Father Dolores was keenly distressed when Captain Parrilla disregarded his every suggestion. Parrilla refused Dolores not once, but many times, to let the Indians of old San Xavier form the nucleus of another group on the Guadalupe. That was not a Comanche, not a Tejas; neither friend nor foe had appeared. The fathers had protested at Parrilla's idea of going elsewhere, and after threatening to wash their hands of the whole affair, Captain Parrilla ceased his arguments and followed their advice. So it was that crops were being planted, plots of land were being measured, and the mission and presidio were being built, three miles apart.

Day after day as the walls of the mission took shape, and the presidio stronghold neared completion, scouts were kept on the lookout for Indians. Still none came. Even after the Spaniards had been settled in their new homes, no Indians appeared. A council of the priests and Captain Parrilla ended by having some messengers sent to the Apaches asking them to come greet their friends. The messengers had results in the number of Indians, but not in attitude. By the middle of June, 3,000 Indians had come, with many horses strangely familiar to former residents of Coahuila and the Rio Grande. The fathers found the Apaches rather trying. To their surprise, the Apaches were indifferent and haughty. The chief padre informed the chief padre that his tribe would take great delight in being Christians, but they could not accept faith at the present time, for they were going buffalo hunting. It was necessary to get enough hide to cover the floor, and enough meat for a season or two before they took up their abode at presidio. They promised to return however.

With a disheartened slump his shoulders, Parrilla turned to the fathers who had paused in their duties to catch a last glimpse of the Indians disappearing over the hill. Now, if ever, the priests would consent to move Mission San Luis to the Llano river. Stubbhorn courageous and hopeful the priests refused. San Luis de las Amarillas remained on the San Saba river only to be wiped out a year later in a terrible massacre.

Colony school will close for the Christmas holidays Friday, Dec. 21 and take up Dec. 31. We will have our school Christmas tree and program Dec. 21, beginning at 1 o'clock p. m. We urge the parents to be present.

Miss Lillian Aylor, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Aylor has returned to her home in Honey Grove, Texas.

Oakley school will present a Christmas program Friday night, Dec. 21. No admission charge will be made.

Just a bit of paint, a few window panes and the window screens repaired surely makes a wonderful change. Our school building is under repair in every way and is rapidly showing improvement.

Miss Dorothy Davis spent the week-end with Miss Joyce Alderson.

The sophomore class has assumed the responsibility of decorating the English room. They say: "Just wait until you see it."

People all over the world go by queer names during this day and time. The nick-names for the members of the sophomore class are quite interesting. They are: Horace Aylor, "Horse Collar;" Oneda Bowen, "Dude;" Dora Mae Cooper, "Door Knob;" Dorothy Davis, "Dot;" Lois Hammond, "Strawberry;" Clifton King, "Kicky;" Geraldine Means, "Gerry;" Warford Mosley, "Conceded;" G. D. Smith, "Cabb;" Jack Stuard, "Blackie;" Etherage Williamson, "Eddie."

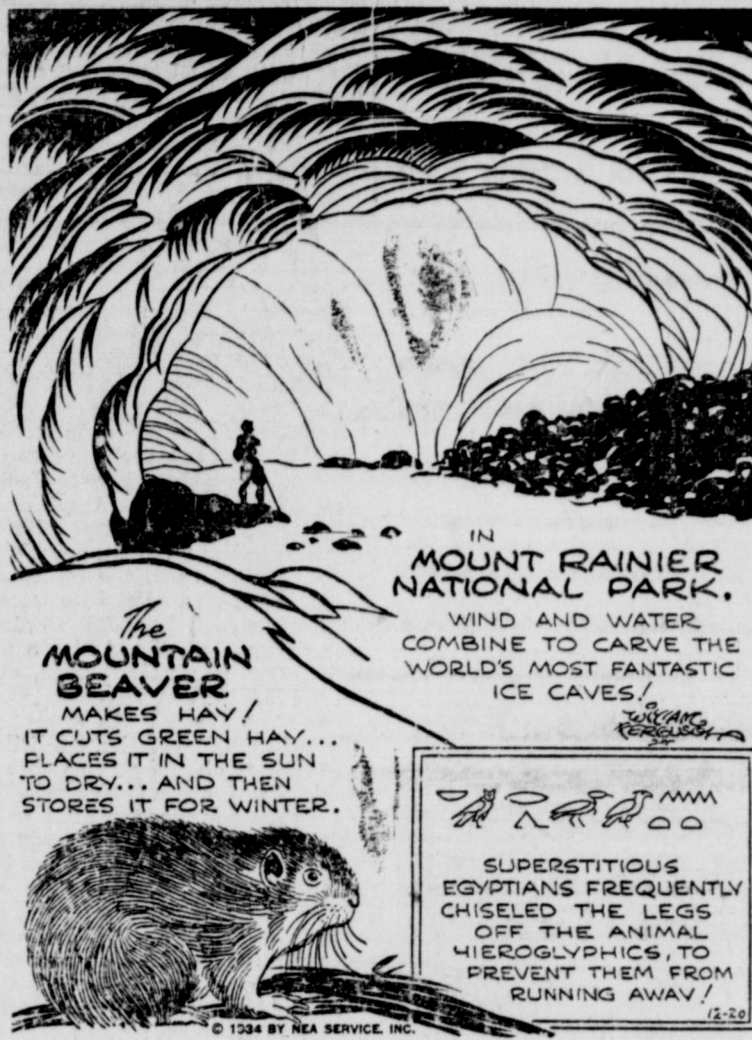

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Smith entertained the juniors and seniors Monday night with a Christmas party. Games were played and refreshments served to the following guests: Misses Frankie Thompson, Aline Lane, Madeline Miller, Margaret Briden, Mary Bell Anderson, Viva Briscoe, Nelle Waters, Gertrude Griffith, Audrey Carey, and Messrs. Otis Anderson, Wesley Poyner, Adron Baxter, Nugent Davis, Harold Smith and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Miss Nelle Waters and Miss Gertrude Griffith entertained the seventh and eighth grades with a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Mills last Thursday evening. Refreshments were served and Santa came to see those who attended. They all reported a very enjoyable evening.

Miss Audrey Carey spent the week-end with her father, W. L. Carey, of Caddo.

The basketball boys and girls played ball at Beattie last Saturday but were defeated. We get lots of fun from playing even though we are defeated at times. Someone always has to win if a game is interesting. Our boys played Alameda teams on our home courts one day last week and won both games.

Mrs. Clifton Horn led the song service and Mrs. Percy Harris and Mrs. Dan Childress the opening and closing prayer.

The program opened with the carol, "Silent Night," and devotional from the second chapter of Matthew, "The Birth of Christ," conducted by Mrs. J. R. Gilbreath. Minutes of the secretary, Mrs. Harry King, showed several visits made to the sick of the church by members.

The next meeting was announced for Dec. 31, at the church. A delightful social hour was enjoyed and the exchange of gifts gave much pleasure.

The theme of the study, "Back to Bethlehem," was most interestingly developed by their leader, Mrs. Ray Larner.

Prayer was offered by Mrs. W. J. Herrington, and the devotional by the leader prefaced a report of the missionary work in Palestine, given by Mrs. E. E. Layton.

Mrs. H. A. McCanlies added to the subject, "Back to Bethlehem," and Mrs. W. P. Palm sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

An interesting talk, "God's Calendar," was given by Mrs. L. G. Rogers, and "Putting Christ Into Christmas," by Mrs. Clyde L. Garrett.

FIEND'S PREY

VICTIM—Bones found in a Westchester county, N. Y., wood are believed to solve the six-year-old mystery of the fate of Grace Budd, 10, New York City girl, shown above in an artist's sketch. Lured from her home on pretext of a party, the child vanished. A nation-wide hunt since 1928 was futile until a madman confessed the gruesome slaying of the girl.

SLAYER?—Confession that he drove with Grace Budd to a deserted house near New York, choked the child to death, dismembered her body, and buried it was readily made by Albert A. Fish, 65, above, after police captured him. "Torture letters" written to the parents led to his capture.

success and heard by an audience that comfortably filled the high school auditorium Monday night.

The stage was dressed in Christmas greens and mistletoe, spotted with red candles in tall candelabra. Printed programs were given out by Eleanor Harper, Josephine Murphy and Joyce Newman, who also ushered.

The boys' glee club of South Ward school made its initial appearance on this program making a clever impression in their white trousers and blue coats.

They sang "Silent Night" and "Rose of Picardy," with Miss Pannill at the piano.

An outstanding number, instrumental, was the double piano, Joyce Newman and Josephine Murphy, playing Schubert's "Marche Militaire."

The girls' glee club of 29 members was well received in the three numbers presented and each piano solo was smoothly and well given.
