Woman Held in Slaying of University Beauty

SAID SHE TOLD YOUTH HOW TO DOCTOR GIRL

Police Holding Mrs. Hazel Brown As a Material Witness in the Case.

By United Press
NORMAN, Okla., July 11.—The woman in whose little duplex apartment Marian Mills, 20, university of Oklahoma student, was found mysteriously dead, was ordered held today as a material witness in the strange campus tragedy.

Search continued for Neal Myers, 21, student from El Reno, believed to have been the last person to see the girl alive.

County Attorney Paul Updegraff said Mrs. Hazel Brown, cook for the Delta Upsilon fraternity, had told him she had counseled the boy in efforts to prevent maternity for the girl.

The body of Miss Mills, once chosen University queen, was found clothed and without marks of violence in Mrs. Brown's apartment yesterday. Myers had disappeared after calling a doctor.

An autopsy was performed but no findings had been revealed. Investigators found quantities of quinine and castor oil as well as other medicines in the Brown home. Mrs. Brown told the county attorney she knew the campus beauty had been taking the first two preparations, but not the others.

She said Myers had come to her during the spring, asking if she knew any doctors. She said she gave him the name of one in Oklahoma City. The boy and girl were her guests Monday night, according to her story.

Miss Mills was a graduate student seeking a master of arts degree. Her father, Elbert Mills, is a veteran professor of engineering in the university. Neither he nor the girl's mother could throw light on the death.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The drouth has robbed western soil of $216,000,000 bushels of wheat and wheat farmers of $162,000,000 analysis of agriculture department crop reports showed today.

The only income of many farms this year will be AAA benefit money, paid for acreage limitation, which the drouth made insignificant. They will get nothing from the sale of their crops because they have nothing to sell.

A small number of producers will benefit from the drouth and shortage which have caused a price boom.

Word has been received in Eastland of the death Monday night at Mayo Bros' hospital at Rochester, Minn., of Mrs. W. H. Taylor, for 15 years a resident of Eastland.

Mrs. Taylor had gone to Rochester a few weeks ago for an operation, but her condition was such that the operation had not been performed at the time of her death. She had been ill for a long time.

The body will be taken to the Taylor family home at Columbus, Ohio, where funeral services will be held Friday afternoon followed by burial there.

The decedent is survived by her husband and three daughters, Mrs. K. F. McMann of Iowa City, Ind. who accompanied her mother to the sanitarium; Mrs. L. H. McEwen, and Mrs. Dick Phillips of Eastland.

Mr. and Mrs. McEwen left Wednesday morning for Columbus, but Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have a newly arrived infant and due to this fact were not able to make the trip to Columbus.

GRAIN EXPERTS PESSIMISTIC OVER OUTLOOK

CHICAGO, July 11.—Grain experts, after studying the new government crop estimate, were frankly pessimistic today regarding the wheat situation.

Statisticians predicted wheat in America's surplus bins soon would be at a dangerously low level and by July 1, 1935, this country would be forced onto an import basis.

AUSTIN, Tex.—The Texas Supreme Court never has a vacation. It is continually in term. Practically, members of the court get a vacation. They take turns in being absent for a little rest. The Court of Criminal Appeals must take a vacation. The State constitution requires the court to close the last Saturday in July. It reopens in October. Because courts of civil appeals are inferior to the State Supreme Court, many have the impression that the Court of Criminal Appeals, also, is an inferior court. It is not. Its rulings are final in criminal cases, just as those of the supreme court are final in civil litigation. Monthly hearings by the state railroad commission to determine how much oil shall be produced have been advanced a week because Commissioner O. E. Thompson found the East Texas office force working at night. Going to Kilgore at night he telephoned to the residence of an employee he wished to consult. He was told the employee was at the commission's branch office in Kilgore. "What's he doing there at night?" asked Thompson. "All the force is working to get out the new oil production orders," he was informed. The orders were being issued so late that employees worked two nights to notify producers what they could produce at the time the order was to become effective. Earlier hearings are expected to obviate this necessity.

Potentate Found Crowds Cheers Were For His Chauffeur

LEWISTON, Mo.—Applause and cheers that never before had reached his ears greeted Dana S. Williams, imperial potentate of the Shawnee Club American—at least, that's what he thought for a while. Williams was leading a parade in Minneapolis and every time he came in sight a great ovation arose. He couldn't quite understand it. Later, however, he discovered that his chauffeur was

Social Plans One Objective of TVA

By DR. ARTHUR E. MORGAN
Chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority
(Written for the United Press)
KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—In most American cities there are at least four times as many merchants as necessary. One-fourth the merchants in most towns would serve the public well. They all are good citizens, but I would have more variety in good citizenship instead of so much repetition of a single type of service. "I have lived in a town where there are 1,600 people; that town had about 16 merchants. If we had five merchants, and also had a man giving some thought to the boys and girls, somebody looking after health, and someone developing a program of recreation, it would be a better balanced town. There would be a greater variety of good citizens in more fields. It would seem the part of wisdom to train people for many different fields of activity. In the Tennessee valley, as in many other parts of the United States, there is very great overproduction of lawyers, storekeepers, teachers, real estate men, and certain other callings, whereas much other necessary work is left entirely undone. One of the problems of social and economic planning is the better balancing of occupations and the helping of young people to see fields in which they might better work. For instance, the prevention of soil erosion would provide careers for a number of young engineers. Irrigation for special crops would provide careers. The development of local forests for small communities would provide a calling for a considerable number of young men. Community recreation is now on a purely commercial basis. In these and in numerous other instances there is opportunity for the young people of the Tennessee valley to find callings which will make it unnecessary for them to live in idleness. To furnish guidance for young people in this respect is an element of social planning. Because jobs on the Norris dam go to the local unemployed primarily, the authority is working four shifts of 5 1/2 hours each, thus employing twice as many workmen as would otherwise be required. These men, mostly from the neighboring hills where the soil is reluctantly productive, are offered 38 hours work a week, with the opportunity to benefit themselves by the training courses provided for the other three days. They are shown how to carry on useful pursuits back in their home neighborhoods. Such instruction not only results in more efficient work on the dam, but at the end of the construction period will, it is believed, provide skilled workers for sections which heretofore have had none. Thus the Norris dam project promises to be the educational center of the entire area for the type of practical education that President Roosevelt and the Tennessee Valley Authority have in mind. It's the boy who takes the initiative in love affairs, says Prof. Robert Wray of Pennsylvania State College. But let them just start, and the girls will take care of the rest.

Josephus Daniels To Return to His Post In Mexico

McALLEN.—Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, will return to the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas in September to continue a survey upon which a water diversion treaty between the United States and Mexico will be based. Accompanying the ambassador will be Senor J. M. Puig Casauranc, Mexican minister of foreign relations. During a recent tour of the region Daniels told Valley residents that the survey would be "more than a rectification project." He referred to early efforts of the two nations to divide Rio Grande waters through the International Water commission. "The Rio Grande means life to the Rio Grande Valley of Texas and the Rio Grande Valley to Mexico," Daniels said. "It probably means more to Mexico than to Texas, particularly that portion of Mexico north of its capital. It so happens that water in the Colorado river in the western United States originates in our country and flows into Mexico where it is used to enrich the farms of that country. "Water in the Rio Grande originates in Mexico and is used to irrigate the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas. This makes it possible to consider both countries. "Thoughtful men of both nations now see eye to eye in this matter and recognize the benefits

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr
BEGIN HERE TODAY
"I'VE THOUGHT I'd tell you about my life, especially AMY JACKSON, that she can make a success of her life. AMY had been her best friend until HOWARD JACKSON broke the engagement. Jane forced on him and married Amy. I'm unable to bear the sight of my daughter, Jane, who is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She has an affair with JACKSON THORPE, who is married. Later she tires of him and when he offers to bear the expense of their child she dismisses him contemptuously. In her desperate plight Jane turns to Amy for help. Howard is touring Germany. Jane comes to New York. She stays until the baby is born and then, giving her daughter away, agrees to take it with the understanding that Jane never shall reclaim the child. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVII
Now that she had taken the child for her own Amy was in a turmoil of doubt. What would Howard say when he came back and found that she had done this without consulting him? What would her father and mother think? And what an exacting, overwhelming responsibility she had assumed! Taking proper care of an infant is not, she discovered at once, a mere matter of feminine instinct, but an expert and complicated craft, with a considerable dash of science. Miss McNeel instructed, disappearing on bathing, clothing, routine. Doctor Lacey also instructed, without enthusiasm, on formulas of feeding, mixtures and temperatures. Amy tried to learn everything at once; for she wanted to get away, and she was out of sight and sound of Jane, because the revelation that had come to her at Jane's light-hearted riddling herself of the child persisted, increased. She hid it as far as she could, but it was there and affected their relation. They were drawing away from each other. Jane was stronger each day and her only concern was to put this whole sorry business behind her and get back to work. Her satisfaction was almost flippant. She couldn't, she said very often, have had a better break. "That she knew how Amy felt. She knew that Amy could not gloss over or condone what she had done. It amused Jane a little that Amy shouldn't be shocked at her having the child, only at her giving it away. THE honesty that she had used to Amy before the child was born disappeared. Neither could Amy be honest. So they talked together as little as possible. Amy concerned herself with the child and tried to still her great anxiety for Howard's safety, for no word had come from him. The reports of Americans marooned in Europe and their trials and tribulations were now coming through and added to her fears. She planned to go back to Marburg at the first moment. Doctor Lacey said a child so very young might safely travel. The apartment was crowded and uncomfortable and Emma talked about

FORT WORTH.—Rudy York, young rookie, has stolen the show from that adept showman, Arthur (Whattaman) Shires, so far as Fort-Worth baseball fans are concerned.

South Texas Farms Suffer From Worst Drouth in Years

HOUSTON, Tex.—Farmers in 18 southeast Texas counties are facing one of the most serious situations in recent years as a result of a drouth that has lasted more than six weeks.

Unless the drouth, which has extended over the entire Middle West practically all summer, but which began to show its effect here only six weeks ago, is definitely broken within the next ten days, many ranchers in the vicinity of Lafayette county, west of here, will have to sell their cattle...

Cotton Reduction Aids Dove Hunters

By United Press

EL PASO, Tex.—The federal government's cotton acreage reduction program is helping Texas dove hunters as well as farmers, according to reports here.

The reduction plan has increased the number of doves that will be available to hunters next season.

Acres taken out of cotton has been placed in grain or other food crops. This will cause doves attracted by the grain to remain in the valley regions instead of going elsewhere for food.
