

EASTLAND GAS RATE IS GREATLY REDUCED

NEW RATES TO BE EFFECTIVE ON JULY BILL

Annual Saving To Citizens Put At Approximately $12,000.

As the result of the continued effort on the part of the Eastland City Commission headed by Mayor Donald L. Kinnaird since April, 1933, the Community Natural Gas company, which serves Eastland with gas, has granted the city a greatly reduced domestic gas rate.

The new rate is to be effective on the next reading, which will be on the July bill. In 1931 the Eastland city commission passed an ordinance reducing the domestic rate for gas in the city from 75 cents to 50 cents. The gas company opposed this rate as confiscatory and by a federal injunction prevented the city from enforcing the ordinance.

The gas company then applied to the Texas Railroad Commission for an increase in rates in Eastland from 75 cents to $1.50, and after a hearing before the commission that body granted the increase and since that time Eastland gas users have paid for their gas at this price basis.

Any rate charged by the gas company has at all times been subject to a 10 per cent discount where the bill was paid by the 15th of the current month.

The new rate schedule as announced is as follows: 50c per 1000 for the first 30,000 cubic feet, 40c per 1000 for any amount in excess of 30,000 feet.

The minimum charge under the new rate is $1 as compared with $1.50 under the old rate.

All rates under the new schedule, except the minimum rate of course, is subject to a 10 per cent discount where the bill is paid on or before the 15th of the current month.

This reduction in gas rates, according to Mayor Kinnaird, will result in an annual saving to Eastland citizens of approximately $12,000 per year.

VIOLENCE IS AGAIN SEEN IN MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 28.—Violence broke out again today in Milwaukee's traction strike with the transportation system already crippled by three riots during the night. A mob stormed the Oakland Avenue car barns, dragging a motorman and conductor from their posts and leaving them badly beaten.

Only one car out of a normal 100 left the barns. Fire, believed to be incendiary, broke out in a car on the south side and 40 passengers fled to the street.

Intervention of the national labor board was demanded after mobs battled police on three fronts last night. Thousands of Milwaukeeans walked to work today. The few cars operating were able to handle only a small portion of the business.

In several states all June records were shattered as the mercury continued its upward climb. The heat wave, following close on the west drought in a generation, was held responsible for 75 drownings and 23 other deaths during the last week, according to a United Press survey.

The weather bureau said that in most sections the hot weather will continue for at least two days and that the only prospect of relief from rain were in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Federal Agents to Probe Kidnaping Of Hosiery Worker

HARRIMAN, Tenn., June 28.—A department of justice agent was on his way to this mill town today to investigate kidnaping of a union official, newest flareup in the controversy between the Harriman hosiery mill and the NRA.

Fred Held, vice president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, was taken off a train by a mob yesterday and released several hours later. He was threatened with death if he returned here.

President Davis said the amount of the loot obtained was "not large." R. C. Smith, cashier, and Mrs. T. D. Willis, bookkeeper, the only occupants of the bank in addition to Davis when the bandit entered, were locked in the vault.

Campaign Expense Accounts Must Be In By This Week

AUSTIN, Tex.—First campaign expense accounts will be required this week from state-wide candidates.

When they total up and find out how much they have spent already, a tightening of the candidates' purse strings may be expected. A limit of $8,000 is set on expenditures for the first primary and $10,000 for both primaries of the candidate gets into the run-off election.

Practically 10 times that amount is spent in the campaigns. The law is so poorly drawn that its enforcement never has been attempted. Individuals may spend what they like in behalf of candidates.

All of Mr. Upshaw's addresses will be made in the interest of the "dry cause."

Mr. Upshaw, known as the "orator on crutches," and often called the "successor to Bryan," kept Washington on its ear during his eight years in congress where he attacked the "naughty drinking high-ups," will speak at the Olden Baptist church at 3:00 p. m. Sunday on "America's Greatest Battle."

At 8:00 p. m. Sunday night he will speak at the First Baptist church in Ranger when his subject will be "The Blue Coat and the Red Flag."

Witt Addresses Eastland Voters Wednesday P. M.

Edgar E. Witt of Waco, present lieutenant governor of Texas and candidate for governor, spoke before a small group of Eastland county voters gathered on the east side of the courthouse lawn Wednesday afternoon, in the interest of his candidacy. He was introduced by Judge Milburn McCarty of Eastland, a boyhood friend.

Mr. Witt briefly outlined his platform, stressing demand for curtailment of the crime wave, and reduction of taxes, including the abolishment of the poll tax and a cut in the automobile license registration fee.

The speaker said he was in hearty accord with President Roosevelt's National Recovery program, including the act's guarantee of right of labor to bargain collectively through organizations of their own choosing.

As one move to help in reducing the crime wave Mr. Witt advocated a most closely unified state constabulary, providing better methods of apprehending criminals. He also advocated quicker trials for criminals, surer convictions for the guilty and greater assurance that the punishment assessed would be meted out to them in its entirety where it was not shown that clemency was merited.

Mr. Witt, a war veteran himself, advocated the removal of all veteran relief agencies from political influence and said that he believed the government should discharge its duties to those veterans of all wars that were entitled to relief.

Adam Johnson Back As Relief Administrator

AUSTIN, June 28.—Adam R. Johnson, storm center of state relief suits that brought his ouster April 9, was back in the saddle today.

He was reelected as state relief director by a 5 to 4 vote and given pay for the time he has been out. Fears that Johnson might make reprisals on recent appointees on the state relief administrative staff were quieted with an announcement he would remove none who cooperate.

TAX BILL OF THE GASOLINE INDUSTRY

Director Baird H. Markham of the American Petroleum Industries committee in his recent report stresses that "gasoline bootlegging and tax evasion constitute a growing menace." He asserted that gasoline taxes alone have made motor vehicle operating costs so expensive in some sections of the United States that "there has been for two years a drastic and discouraging decline in the registration and use of motor vehicles."

They were home rulers, those early pioneers and Texans. They were for local self-government. They believed that the people were the source of all power and not the top lords at the head of the federal government.

As for the Markham report it reveals that the average retail price for gasoline in 1933 was 12.4 cents per gallon; one-half the price of 15 years ago; but a rise of five and one-third cents a gallon in taxes not only has offset much of this reduction but "has prevented the consumer from getting the benefit of the lower cost."

Texans pay $100,000,000 annually to the makers of things—the manufacturers of the industrial states of the North and the East. Now their chief industry, oil, is being taxed more than the traffic will bear.

What will happen to the thousands of farmers who may have oil and gas beneath the surface of their holdings?

What will happen to the army of wildcat drillers—the most daring of all the advance guard of scouts and prospectors and capitalists—who are directly connected with the industry?

Is it to be home rule along constitutional lines in this republic-commonwealth of Stephen F. Austin and Sam Houston or complete control of the greatest of industries lodged in the person of a federal official at the top of the government on the banks of the potomac river?

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Probably one of the best posted men on Eastern affairs is the Editor of the Hankow, Central China Post. From an editorial in a recent issue of his paper, he is also an authority on singing fish. Now I know nothing about singing fish, but this editorial is quite interesting so I am quoting a part of it. He says:

"Of all the phenomena associated with life in the waters, none is more fruitful of speculation than the sounds produced by certain fishes.

"Most remarkable are the vocal efforts of the so-called Mexican singing fish or canary fish, which perform in choirs several hundred strong. The noise which is produced by a contraction of the airbladder is mellowed to a musical note as it filters through the water to the listener in a boat above.

"Even our own waters know many sound-producing fish. The common horse mackerel to Jon Dory, and the sunfish make harsh noises like those that result when a file is drawn across a rough surface. The little bullhead, a common fish in our rock pools, produces a sound like the tuning up of a violin and many fishermen have lurid tales to tell of the conger's 'barking' capacity."

And our editor friend goes on to tell about all fishes we ever heard of in any way we never heard of, but we wish him all good luck in his study of singing fish and hope that we can hear fish sing some day ourselves.

Some men are constantly throwing cold water on projects which would mean better business for the home city.

Home Owners May Get Federal Loans

FORT WORTH. — Two thousand Fort Worth home owners probably will secure loans under terms of the new national Housing Act to repair or rebuild homes, Secretary Luther T. Meacham of the Real Estate Board predicted.

The current real estate survey made by the board shows that 50 per cent of the residence structures in Fort Worth need some type of improvement—either painting, carpenter work, roofing or plumbing.

Meacham anticipated the program would be a great aid to the construction and building industries.

Bug Has Headlight Cleburne Man Says

CLEBURNE.—You have heard of the lightning bug with its "tail" light, but have you ever heard of a bug with a headlight? R. H. Deering brought back one of the latter type from an outing party on the Brazos river. It had two lights on its head, spaced so as to resemble the headlights of an automobile. The insect could make the lights go on and off at will.

The bug died in captivity but has been placed on exhibit.

'Meteor' Leader In Steel Union

In a meteoric rise, Earl J. Forbeck, shown above at the Pittsburgh strike convention, has become an outstanding figure in the ranks of union steel workers. He is district president in McKeesport, Pa., of the Amalgamated local and boasts signing up 50,000 members without receiving a cent for his organizing work.

Race Track Owners Watch Texas Drags

HOUSTON.—Operators of horse and dog racing tracks, liquor and gambling dens are wondering what effect activities of the newly organized Texas Drags will have on their business.

The new body, uniting under one banner the state Anti-Saloon League, the W. C. T. U. and the United Forces for Prohibition, announced a determined drive against such forms of business.

At a recent state-wide meeting here, attended by hundreds of Texas ministers and lay leaders, phases of political and public life regarded as inimical to society were condemned and a campaign against them initiated.

The delegates heard statements from several business leaders to the effect that race track gambling is not only harmful to public morals but also hurts business.

The Texas Drags was organized on the principle that the "whole moral life of the nation is declining in quality and that one need only to look about to be convinced."

The fight against the evils listed will be directed by a special committee appointed from the ranks and officers of the various organizations included. The latter will continue to function in their separate fields.

A medal for every congressman is the suggestion of an American sculptor living in Paris. If he came back here, maybe the congressmen would rather have his vote.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY

"STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY When HOWARD JACKSON, young geology professor, comes to the small middle-western town of Marburg JANE TERRY, the prettiest girl in town, determines to win his heart.

Presently she came to the park. Various other strollers, mostly men, glanced at her with speculative admiration.

MISS ROSA went with Jane to the late afternoon train and waited with her in the big empty station. "I know I ought to go along with you," she said at last, "just for a few days to get you settled."

"If you went with me I'd get off at the next station and go somewhere else. I don't want you or anyone else."

Jane went on with cruel intention. "You'll be glad to get rid of me as I am to go. We've never been very fond of each other, have we, Aunt Rosa? You don't care about anything but playing bridge and having nice fattening meals and making the house look a little better-kept than anybody else's. I suppose you're too old to know how young people feel, really."

"Maybe I am," said Miss Rosa wearily. "Anyway, Jane, I did the best I could with my limitations. I'm very fond of you, even if you don't believe it, and it fairly tears me to see you like this—"

"Your train's coming in!" She hugged Jane's neck, resistant shoulders and kissed her on both cheeks.

But Jane had pulled away from the embrace and was hurrying out to the train. The porter swung up her bag. Her trunk was slammed into the baggage car three coaches ahead. Miss Rosa watched, more unhappy and perturbed than she had ever been in her whole life.

All the way back to the house Miss Rosa was miserable with defeat. "I shouldn't have let her go," she thought.

Jane, by now some 50 miles away, was for the moment unaware of her advantages. The energy that had started her on this determined flight had gone.

NEVER afterward in her life was she able to recall any detail of that journey, how she reached the hotel nor how she spent the first few days of her stay, for she was suspended in pain and unreality.

The truth was that she stayed in her room most of the time, lying in bed or sitting by the window, while the management, only partly reassured by messages from Miss Rosa, kept an uneasy watch on her, sending in maids on unnecessary errands, while the housekeeper lingered nervously in the hall for their reports.

But she did know that after a while she began to come alive and to feel that she must do something.

Accordingly she went out for a walk, looked into shop windows at first blankly, then with a faint interest quickened by the sight of clothes and trinkets superior to anything Marburg could offer.

Presently she came to the park and strolled in a little way to rest in its greenness. The important feeling subsided, leaving a fatness in its place and great loneliness.

Various other strollers, mostly elderly men, glanced at her with speculative admiration, all of them only too ready and willing to start conversation. Jane saw that and it pleased her.

She must vindicate herself. She must do something quickly to show her superiority to Amy and all the menager, stupid life of Marburg, and to make Howard Jackson realize what he had lost. A vague, brilliant vision of herself returning to dazzle and to condescend rose in her mind, but she could not evolve any definite guide toward its realization. There must be something she could study with immediate results and she would find out at once.

BUT the registrar's office of the Columbia summer school was baffled by Jane and bewildered by her.

One of the secretaries, more observant than the others, had seen the tight nerves, the despairing eagerness behind Jane's apparent aimlessness and took her aside. "Look here," she said kindly, "the least you owe me is an explanation if you didn't feel quite up to an apology."

"I want to tell you again that in spite of everything he may say, Howard Jackson literally pursued me with his attentions and made love to me ardently. Also he certainly did ask me to marry him. I cared for him deeply. I believed get into some business—publishing or advertising, maybe? My sister went to one and she's done awfully well, got a position as secretary to the editor of a big magazine and worked herself onto the staff. I'll give you a couple of addresses."

It was the first line of direction Jane had found and she probably would not have followed it but one of the schools was near her hotel. She passed it as she went back there and after a moment's hesitation returned and entered. It was a competent place with more than a suggestion of swagger. At once Jane felt herself at ease. She was understood.

That night she wrote two letters. One was to her aunt, an answer to the letters and telegrams which poor Miss Rosa had been heaping on her ever since her arrival and which Jane, so far, had not noticed.

But over the second letter she hesitated. Ever since that morning in the chapel she had been beset with the wish to revenge her self on Amy, spoil her happiness if she could. The letter, ready at last, after many crossings out and changes, was far from consistent but Jane could do no more with it. She copied it in a spontaneous, dashing hand.

"My dear Amy: I've been surprised not to hear from you since I left. It seemed to me that the least you owed me was an explanation if you didn't feel quite up to an apology."

"I want to tell you again that in spite of everything he may say, Howard Jackson literally pursued me with his attentions and made love to me ardently. Also he certainly did ask me to marry him. I cared for him deeply. I believed in his honor and sincerity and I know him so well that I still believe in them and am still absolutely certain that he cares for me and you have deliberately stepped in to drive us apart. Well, you have succeeded. You have taken away from me the only man I could ever care for—a man who really loved me until you came between us. Fortunately I am strong enough to go on without you, but either of you. But the scar of this wound you have inflicted will always remain."

To Miss Rosa, Jane's letter indicated that Jane was herself again and not utterly broken under the fiasco of her engagement.

For Amy there was no such comfort. When she saw Jane's letter she did not want to open it, and the actual reading overwhelmed her.

"Of course it isn't true that Howard asked her to marry him, Mother," she said, "but Jane by this time believes it's true. You know how she is."

"It's a very cruel letter. It sounds a little like East Lynne. Are you going to write to her?" "I don't know, but I believe I shall. She's so alone."

Amy's letter was much shorter than Jane's. She did not take it to her mother to read.

"Dear Darling Jane," (she wrote) "If there is ever anything in the world I can do to show you that I did not intend to make you unhappy or to make up to you for the way you feel, I will do it. Any thing I am always your friend, no matter what you think. Amy."

And, having written this, she cried almost as frenziedly as Jane had done.

Wet Kansas Propheesied
GOODLAND, Kan.—Dry Kansas will be wet yet, in the opinion of Sen. Charles E. Miller, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. After working in 60 of the state's 105 counties he became convinced the voters would take the prohibition amendment out of the state constitution next November.

Youths Start Newspaper
PARKVILLE, Mo.—Fifteen cents capital, a job press and several fonts of type plus two energetic boys and you have the start of the Summer Spectator, a bi-weekly newspaper. The publication reported a good profit for the first month and the circulation has reached the 200-mark.

Old Ford Gets License
ROBINSON, Kan.—The "Spirit of '76" the seventy-sixth automobile made by Henry Ford, again has been given a new state license. The old auto is a curiosity, but still runs well despite its advanced age. F. B. Parker, who bought the car second hand in 1902 has driven it every year.

Capitol Statues Are Given Baths
AUSTIN, Tex.—Stephen F. Austin and Sam Houston had a bath this week. Not the men themselves, but the marble statues of them by Elizabeth Ney which stand in the south entrance of the state capital. After the capitol walls received their annual coat of fresh white paint, the statues looked smutty by contrast. They were scrubbed with brushes.

Boy's Fishing Was Start of Bogus Stamp Campaign
AUSTIN, Tex.—A boy's fishing had a big part in the drive made by agents of the state comptroller against bogus cigar stamps. Magnitude of counterfeiting operations was not realized by officers until Cohen Richardson, fishing in the Leon river four miles south of Gatesville May 28, hooked what he thought was a monster fish.

Pole Sprouted Leaves

Pontiac President Sees Bright Future For the Southwest

DALLAS, June 28.—Declaring that business has been highly satisfactory so far this year, H. J. Klingler, president and general manager of the Pontiac Motor Company, who is paying his first visit to Dallas as head of this great General Motors division, looks forward to an era during which the motoring public will replace its old, worn out and obsolete cars in ever increasing numbers. "Pontiac sales during the first six months of this year are materially ahead of 1933," said Mr. Klingler. The buying season is being prolonged over a longer period than usual this year and we have every reason to look for its continuation through July. Commenting on the reaction to the recent general price reduction in the industry the Pontiac chief said, "I believe every student of business conditions will admit that the automobile industry always has been in the lead when it comes to showing its way back to prosperity. In its most recent move to reduce price leaders in the motor car business again have shown their willingness to cooperate with the Administration in giving a helping hand to the Recovery Act. That the reduction in prices will be a stimulus to motor car sales with widespread benefits to the whole country is already becoming evident if the reaction we have received at Pontiac is any criterion. Requests have come in from five of our largest zones to double their allotment of cars. One of our important dealers telephoned us to ship him 100 cars at once. Other dealers throughout the country are ordering cars shipped immediately against the orders we have on file. The next ten days or two weeks should show the effects of the price reduction in retail registrations. "I am especially interested in this section of the country," continued Mr. Klingler as the discussion turned to the subject of crops and droughts, harvests, etc. "The Southwest has been one of our bright spots throughout the spring and early summer. Dealers in this region were clamoring for new Pontiacs while there still was snow on the ground up north. One of our largest dealers down here took two solid trailers of Pontiacs in 30 days this spring. "From every bit of information I can obtain it seems to me that the farmers of the southwest will be a greater factor in the automobile market during the late summer and fall than he has been for several years. I am told that there will be big grain crops in Kansas, Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas, and that the farmers will benefit from the Government's crop restriction program as well as from the higher prices that will come as a result of the shortage in other states. "In my opinion, volume automobile buying, as well as large scale purchasing of acres of other commodities has just reached a sound and steady basis and we are settling down to an prolonged period of increasing business."

Texas Corn Crop Is Needing Rain Before July 1st

COLLEGE STATION.—The Texas corn crop is desperately in need of rain by the first of July according to crop specialists at Texas A. & M. College. Unless adequate moisture is forthcoming by that time, they said, the crop will have passed the stage where rain will increase yield of grain. Texas farmers planted about 5,250,000 acres of corn during the spring for feed and forage for livestock, but this huge investment is declining each day that dry weather continues. Suggestions for salvaging the drought-damaged crop and for replacing corn with later feed crops were offered. Where corn has made a good stalk growth but only a small amount of grain, the crop should be cut soon to utilize the full feed value of the whole plant. Where there is enough corn acreage to justify, the greatest value can be obtained from the dried crop by putting it in a silo. If ensilage cutters are not available, the corn may be cut with row binder, sled cutter or by hand and put in a trench silo. Dried up crops put in silos need at least twice as much water applied as normal green crops. There is little danger of getting too much water on a crop put in a trench silo, the specialists said. If the corn acreage and the number of livestock do not warrant expense of making silage, the corn should be cut and shocked without delay to get the full feed value. Grain sorghums, cowpeas and sudan grass were suggested as replacement crops if corn fails, provided rain comes within "a reasonable time." For Central and South Texas hegar, darso, Spurfeterita and Blackch kafir were suggested as the best varieties. Shrook and darso were suggested for eastern and southeastern parts of the state. If these substitute crops are planted between now and Aug. 1, or even by Sept. 1, they may be expected to produce fair crops under favorable conditions. Any crop except corn and grain sorghums may be planted for roughage or silage on acres contracted to the federal government on reduction contracts in the wheat and corn-hog programs. If

Gasoline Tax May Cause Diverting of Highway Funds

AUSTIN, Tex.—Highway officials are wondering what the state method of levying a gasoline tax is going to do to Texas' share in federal road appropriations. Federal requirements prohibit diversion of any state road tax to other purposes. The gasoline tax is levied as an occupation tax, and as such part of it goes to support of schools. The constitution gives schools a share in all occupation taxes. By changing the gasoline tax to an excise tax, the constitutional provision can be dodged.

Five-Acre Gardens May Be Available For City Dwellers

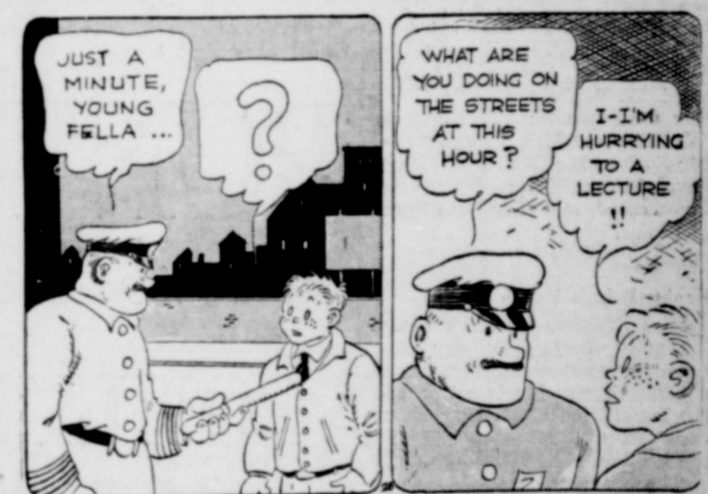

FORT WORTH.—A tidy three-room house, a five-acre garden plot with a cow and chickens—all these are moving closer for destitute families of Dallas and Tarrant counties. Sponsors of Dalworthington Gardens, Inc., have announced they will look over revised plans for the subsistence homestead project, which the federal government plans to locate on a 1,500-acre tract three miles southeast of Arlington. The colony experiment was delayed early in the year when directors found plans for the 500 homes too elaborate. Architects were called upon to revise them within the limit of funds. The federal government has allocated $500,000 for the project. The cost of a five-acre plot equipped with a cow and 100 chickens will be $2,000. Each family will repay the government at a rate of about $12 a month. More than 2,200 applications have been received from prospective colonists. If the experiment is successful other colonies will be established elsewhere in the state.

Talky Mule Saved Breck Man's Life

BRECKENRIDGE.—A mule changed the course of D. W. McCoy's destiny. If it had not been for one of his stubborn, hard-headed animals, McCoy's name probably would have been added to the list of seven men massacred when Henry Warren's wagon train in 1871 was ambushed at Jackshoro. As things turned out McCoy is still alive, going into his 67th year. He likes to recount the time that was his. McCoy came to Texas from Warren, Ark., in 1871. Reaching afterford he found a job with Warren, a banker, who was running a freight wagon train from Breck county to Fort Griffin. Warren hired McCoy as a driver. One day a mule in McCoy's train grew stubborn and the new Nautical employed the whip. McCoy's boss happened along. He reported it to Warren and McCoy was reprimanded. He quit his job. "Mr. Warren tried to persuade me to stay on but I wouldn't," McCoy said. "I'm glad now that I didn't, for if I had I wouldn't be here today." Seven months after he left the wagon train, it was threading its way through Jack county. A band of Indians under Chiefs Satanta, Big Tree and Satank bore down on the train. They looted it and burned it. The seven men on the train were taken captive. After brutal torture, they were slain. "At the time I was working on the ranch in Palo Pinto county," McCoy said. "How I loved that

Open House
The charming home of Mrs. M. J. Pickett was thrown open to her friends, in an informal and hospitable fashion, from 9 to 12 o'clock, Tuesday morning, in honor of Mrs. H. S. Hickey and Mrs. Ben Ballard Jr., of Hillsboro.

Everywhere the artistic taste of the hostess was in evidence, in the fragrant flowers massed in opaque crystal containers; shasta daisies intermingled with white gladioli and ferns, that adorned the living-room, and delightful arrangements in snapdragons, and red spring flowers, developing a red, brown and white color scheme in the breakfast room.

Guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. W. B. Collier and received graciously by Mrs. Pickett and the honorees.

Informal visiting characterized the morning hours, and hospitality was enhanced by the delightful breakfast table arrangements, in lace cover over pale green, with table centered in an alabaster lamp, with base banked in a mound of snapdragon and scarlet flowers. The silver coffee service at either end was presided over by Mrs. A. H. Johnson, and Mrs. Grady Pipkin, and the refreshment plate of white breakfast service bore nut and cheese filled sandwiches, and small Swedish cakes, with cluster of daisies as plate favor.

Assisting in the breakfast-room were Mrs. Allen D. Dabney, Mrs. F. M. Kenny, Mrs. Hubert Jones, Mrs. Charles Fagg, Mrs. James A. Jarboe, and throughout the rooms Mrs. J. O. Brothers, Mrs. Jack Ammer, and Miss Geraldine Dabney. The morning was one of the most delightful social events experienced by the smart set of Eastland.

The guest list included Meses. T. J. Haley, C. L. Garrett, Galand Poe, O. E. Harvey, J. F. Little, M. E. Lawrence, Earl Woody, E. R. Townsend, John Turner, P. L. Parker, Ira L. Hanna, Neil A. who purchase their July 4th needs can take advantage of them.
Carl Johnson, local manager of the Economy store which has several years been a popular trading center for most anything for the family is preparing for the biggest pre-July fourth business that the store has had. He is enthusiastic over the wonderful stock of merchandise that the store is offering and of course unusual and attractive prices will prevail for the few days before independence Day.

G. H. Hipp, manager of the J. C. Penney Company hasn't been asleep by any means and there is plenty of bustle and activity around the corner at this popular store. Lots and lots of unusual bargain values are being displayed throughout the store and a real big several days business is expected due to the Penney Policy of economy savings for the customers. Interesting days are in order for shoppers and there is no telling how big a bargain one can find there unless they actually go and see for themselves.

Julius Kraus, who runs one of the most modern Men's Shops in this section of the state is not sitting idly by and watching the crowds go by—he has something that will bring them in—a wonderful stock for men—and one that any man can be proud to walk into and come out with a handle of high quality merchandise that was bought at a bargain—It is a pleasure to go in a store that caters strictly to man's most needed articles of wearing apparel—and even the women come in for a break because the store features several items for women as well.

Yesterday and Today

WHO would want to go back to the standards of even a generation ago? We have traveled far since then. Inventions and scientific discoveries have furnished the principal vehicles: New conveniences, improved merchandise, better foods, added health-conserving means.

But the thing which has hastened us on to the knowledge and acceptance of their benefits is ADVERTISING. It has brought new things quickly to all of us and sped us toward a different, better mode of living.

Modern advertising sells us, not only things, but IDEAS. The advertising of soaps has sold us the health advantages of more frequent bathing. The advertising of modern bathroom equipment has made bathing a singular pleasure.

The advertising of improved razors and beard softeners has made whisking off whiskers a simple daily ditty instead of a weekly major operation.

Tooth-paste, tooth-brush and mouth-wash manufacturers and retailers are saving us untold aches and years of marred smiles, by advertising the importance of oral hygiene.

As a result of the advertising of food manufacturers and purveyors, we have escaped from the drowsy dulness caused by heavy breakfasts and are full of forenoon vim and clear-headedness.

The clothes we wear, furniture we use, fuel we burn, car we drive, telephone we've installed—all these would not so quickly have come home to us, were it not for the silent but irresistible force of advertising.

Keep pace with the world you live in by reading the advertisements in this newspaper.
