Christmas Holiday Death Toll Reaches 243

COLD WEATHER COVERS MOST OF THE STATE

Freezing weather followed a stormy Christmas day as a cold wave swept over North and East Texas.

The weather turned cold last night when southerly winds switched to the north as a high pressure area moved over the state.

The coldest place in Texas today was Amarillo, where the mercury registered 20 degrees. At Dallas the mercury fell to 39 degrees and was dropping. By mid-morning it registered nearly freezing.

The high pressure area is moving across the eastern part of the state and West Texas will escape most of its sting, the weather bureau said.

Colder weather is predicted for the southeast portion of West Texas, but warmer weather will extend over the northwestern and north central parts of the state tomorrow.

That reminds me...

From all sides in every climate business was the best in a good many years. Eastland enjoyed its unanimous share of "sold out doctor." That's great and from here on out things should be better and better every day. Besides that it seems like folks really enjoyed the Christmas day from every standpoint, and did it soberly and contently. Many hearts were made glad with timely and useful gifts as well as the faces of their loved ones around the fireside. At that Christmas is not over yet; there is a whole week of the real Christmas left to take in before the year is ended.

Of course as usual in many sections death and sorrow stalked in the wake of some paths of those who were unfortunate. Accidents also marred the day's events for some, but it seems that those things just must happen in spite of all the precautions that can be taken to avoid them.

There are so many things to do and plan to make the year 1935 even better and there is no time better than starting right now, at least doing a lot of thinking for what is best for Eastland in the future. The Chamber of Commerce is usually the main point of activity for the commercial interests. It should be thoroughly organized in order to take in hand the problems that will confront this entire community. We believe that the Chamber of Commerce has done effective work in the past few months that is worthy of commendation, and it is hoped that its support will be unlimited.

OFFER IS MADE TO UTILITIES BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—President Roosevelt today held out an offer of federal co-operation to private utility companies if they will reduce power rates to what he considers a fair level.

Behind the offer was a strongly implied threat that if they refuse they will have to compete with municipal plants.

The co-operative offer concerned the extension of operations of the electric home and farm authority, and a TVA subsidiary.

The President said today he would give consideration to proposals to expand EHFA operations throughout the country.

The EHFA heretofore has confined its operation to assisting in financing electric operations to farmers and home owners within reach of the Tennessee Valley project. Aid is to be given purchasers of electric equipment in communities served by privately owned utilities if the electricity is sold at a low enough rate.

County Officers Arrest Paul Dean Barker Wednesday

Tipped off that a man wanted in Fort Worth would probably be in this section, county officers Tuesday night arrested Paul Dean Barker while he was repairing his car between Eastland and Olden.

Barker was wanted in Fort Worth in connection with seven hijacking cases and four in Houston, officers at Eastland were informed by Fort Worth men.

Barker, about 20, fired two shots at Virge Foster and Loss Woods in Olden last year, the latter said Wednesday.

Fort Worth officers took Barker to that city after his arrest.

Texas Vegetable Prices On Increase

HARLINGEN, Texas.—Increased prices in Rio Grande vegetables and fruits have resulted from the recent disastrous freeze in Florida.

Immediately after the freeze prices jumped and shipments of fruits and vegetables from the valley increased materially.

Another factor aiding in the price increase is the grapefruit prohibition order which was recently put into effect. Most of the growers are co-operating with the order, it was said.

SEVEN KILLED WHEN A TRAIN HITS AN AUTO

HARVEY, Ill., Dec. 26.—The International Limited, fast passenger train of the Grand Trunk and the Canadian National railroad, crashed into an automobile today, killing its seven occupants.

It was the second accident of the road in 12 hours. Last night the Maple Leaf was wrecked near Toronto, killing 15.

Police said the seven dead, four women and three men, were case workers for the federal emergency relief office at Chicago Heights.

The limited was steaming through Harvey, south suburb of Chicago, en route from Montreal to Chicago, when the crash occurred.

The 12-car train was running more than an hour behind schedule because of heavy traffic.

The victims, all badly mangled, were taken to an undertaking parlor. Three of the women were beheaded. One man lost both legs. The car was demolished and dragged hundreds of feet.

Two Injured In An Automobile Crash Near Strawn Today

Virgil Stewart was painfully but not seriously injured and Miss Dorothy Martin of Strawn had both her legs broken around the ankles in an automobile accident near Strawn early Wednesday morning.

According to the reports of the accident the car in which Stewart was driving struck a machine that was parked on the edge of the highway. Both cars were badly damaged in the accident.

At the City-County hospital in Ranger, where Mr. Stewart was taken, it was said this morning that he had a possible fracture of the skull and numerous cuts and bruises about the mouth, chin, neck and face, as well as some minor cuts on his body, but that unless complications set in it was not thought that his injuries would be dangerous.

Dr. Paul Pedigo of Strawn described Miss Martin's injuries as two broken legs, both broken about the ankles, and a number of small cuts and bruises that were not serious.

Both the accident victims were reported to be resting as well as could be expected this morning.

L. D. Ripley and Family In Wreck

L. D. Ripley of Ranger, his wife and brother, Curtis Ripley, received minor injuries, consisting of bruises and cuts, when the car in which they were riding overturned near Stephenville Christmas Day. The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ripley was not injured.

According to reports the car was completely destroyed, as it turned over and caught fire and was completely burned.

Law and Engineering Students' Feud Is Revived at Texas U.

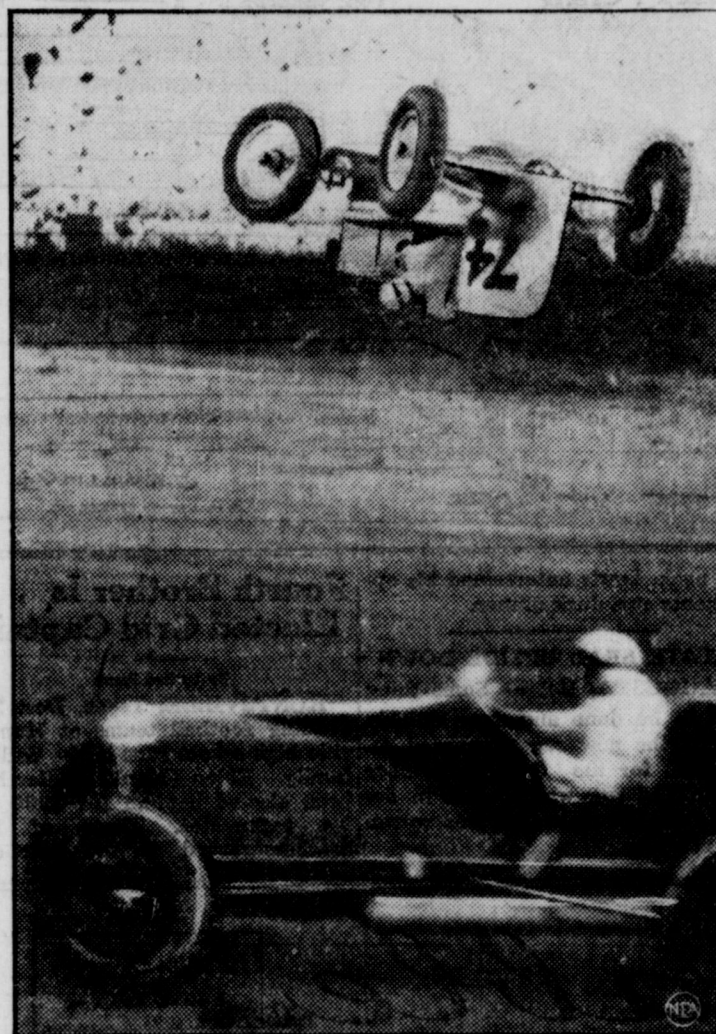

AUSTIN.—Feud between the University of Texas law students and the engineers came to life again this month when an engineering student smashed the statue of Peregrinus, patron saint of the lawyers.

Rivalry between the two schools started in 1902. During succeeding years engineers have stolen Peregrinus several times, and in 1930 lawyers sought to have Austin's 53rd district court return him. The case was dismissed.

Ralph Immel of Austin gained admittance to this year's law banquet by posing as a waiter. He grabbed the statue from its stand near the place former Gov. James E. Ferguson and high legal officials were sitting. Banqueting lawyers prevented Immel's escape, but released him after the statue was broken.

The law students plan to have their plaster-of-paris saint replaced by one of wood.

Racing All It's Cracked Up to Be

The thrills of auto racing are all they're cracked up to be, as Pierre Bertrand just has discovered. When the wheel had quit spinning, his car was upside down, with Pierre hanging from the "saddle," after the racer had skidded on the soft south turn of the Legion Ascot speedway in a Los Angeles speed event. Bertrand suffered only minor bruises. The unaccounted driver breezing by is George Connors.

50,000 CARDS INDEXED THE LINDBERGH CASE WHILE BARE OUTLINE FILLS LARGE BOOK

Editor's Note: The department of justice dossier on the Lindbergh crime contains 50,000 separate cards, each of which contains the findings from a single line of investigation. A book, two inches thick, typewritten on the thinnest of paper, outlines only a bare summary of the exhaustive investigation that covered two continents during the 30 months following the kidnaping. The following dispatch, eighth in the Sidney B. Whipple series, gives an insight into methods used by the detectives, and certain of their important conclusions.

By SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1934 by United Press)

Acting Lieut. James Finn, of the New York police department, told his colleagues that if ever the Lindbergh kidnaper were trapped, it would be through the careless passage of the currency Col. Lindbergh's emissary had turned over to the extortioner in St. Raymond's cemetery.

"I would go further," he said, "and say that he will be trapped definitely through spending some of those bills at a gasoline filling station. He has an automobile. He must buy gas and oil."

In that profound belief, he insisted that filling station attendants the length and breadth of the land should be required to write down, on the very bills they received, the automobile license numbers of customers passing five, ten, or twenty-dollar notes.

Collaborating with Jimmy Finn, and heartily in accord with his notions, were the New Jersey state police and those brilliant, youthful and highly educated criminologists in the department of justice's division of investigation in New York city, under the direction of Francis Fay and Thomas Sisk.

Waiting Game
The chase for the criminals developed into a waiting game, a game requiring patience and one full of constantly recurring disappointments. But within a few weeks after "John, the Scandinavian," had disappeared in the Bronx darkness with Col. Lindbergh's $50,000, the watchers were rewarded. Ransom bills began to appear, now in the till of a small shopkeeper, now through the wicket of a branch bank, occasionally in the box office of a movie house or the cash register of a cafe.

As each note appeared and was checked against the serial numbers of the Lindbergh currency, Jimmy Finn, Tom Sisk, and their group of husky colleagues leaped into action. At times they appeared to have missed their quarry only by a matter of hours. But with each passage of a ransom bill, the picture of the man they were seeking became clearer. By the end of 1933 they had a photographic description of him. They knew his habits, his facial characteristics, his mannerisms, his mode of speech.

At headquarters there was a large map of metropolitan New York. Whenever a bill was reported found, Jimmy Finn stuck a pin in the map at the location. Soon the chart began to look like the drawing of a battle field. Black pins for $5 bills. Red pins for $10 gold certificates.

NEPHEW OF A FEDERAL JUDGE SHOT FATALLY

HOUSTON, Dec. 26.—Newton Kennerly, 44, nephew of Federal Judge T. M. Kennerly, was dead and a charge of murder in connection with the slaying was filed today against Ikey Tate, 30, a waiter.

Deputy sheriffs to whom Tate surrendered, said he told them he shot Kennerly.

Investigators said Tate made a statement saying, "I did what I did in defense of my home."

Tate said he and his wife had been married more than four years, but about two years ago she began staying out late at night. They quarreled and she left him, he said.

He found Mrs. Tate, he said in the statement, living with Kennerly but persuaded her to return to him and obtained a promise from Kennerly "to leave my wife alone."

Mrs. Tate left home again Thursday, the statement said, but yesterday she asked him to visit her "someday."

Tate said he found Kennerly in her room last night.

"Kennerly was in his underwear. My wife tried to keep me out of the room as I entered the house," the statement said.

"As I advanced toward Kennerly he grabbed a clock. I pulled my gun from my pocket and hit Kennerly several times. Then I heard the gun fire one time. Kennerly then quit fighting."

Princess Is Just Miss Sometimes

United States and Japan Mark Time On Naval Plans

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Japan and the United States today appeared to be engaged in a stalling race to see which could avoid longest a step which the other could blame for wrecking the naval conversations.

The Japanese government has delayed until Saturday the delivery of its notes to the United States abrogating the Washington naval treaty. The American government has made known it would consider delivery of this note would bring the London talks to an end.

After talking of delivering the note last Saturday or early this week the Japanese embassy became silent.

Saturday is the day that Ambassador Norman Davis, chief of the American delegation to the conversations, is scheduled to sail for home.

Brother of Sidney Smith Killed In a Hunting Accident

Ray Smith, 23, brother of Sidney Smith of Ranger, was found dead in his automobile on a street at Bonhom Christmas Day, shot through the heart. The body was found about noon.

Smith, according to reports, had borrowed a shotgun to go hunting and was returning it when it was accidentally discharged, the charge going into his chest.

The accident victim had lived in Dallas for the past year and was visiting in Bonhom over the Christmas holidays.

He is survived by five brothers, Sidney Smith of Ranger, Horace, Kenneth, Don and Charlie, and one sister, Miss Lillian Smith.

Sam Gamble Home Destroyed By Fire

The home of Sam Gamble, at Lone Star Plant No. 2, was almost completely destroyed by fire late Christmas Day.

The fire was discovered about 5:45 in the afternoon and was put out about 6:30.

The furnishings of the home were completely destroyed, it was said today, as the fire burned all the interior of the residence.

No estimate of the amount of the loss had been made today.

LEIPZIG FAIR ANNOUNCES DATES

LEIPZIG.—The regular spring fair will be held from March 3 to 10, inclusive, on its time-honored schedule. It is assured that the attendance will exceed 100,000, gathered from 72 countries in all parts of the world.

Hauptmann Trial To Start On Jan. 2

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Dec. 26.—Trial of Bruno Hauptmann, former German machine gunner, accused of murdering Charles Lindbergh, Jr., will begin Jan. 2, regardless of technical jury tampering, state officials indicated today.

Attorney General David Wilentz, it was revealed after a conference of attorneys, is opposed to postponement of the case and does not consider the recent distribution to talsmen of a pamphlet dealing with the kidnaping as sufficient cause to demand a new panel.

While the state officials were discussing the latest sensational developments Sheriff John Curtis drew from a small jar 48 capsules containing the names of Hunterdon county citizens from whom the trial jury of 12 men and women will be selected next Wednesday.

They were farmers, housewives, nurses, clerks and retired business men.

PROGRAM FOR CONGRESS IS TO BE TALKED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—President Roosevelt today arranged a quick succession of discussion with administration and congressional leaders to frame the program for the session beginning Jan. 3.

Returning to his desk after a happy Christmas holiday, Mr. Roosevelt buckled down to the work of preparing his recommendations.

Between now and beginning of the session a week from today, he said he would meet with cabinet members, heads of emergency agencies and Senate and House leaders. He gave no hint of the recommendations he expects to make in his message on the bonus, relief and other problems. Indications are that he plans a middle course between the programs being urged by "right" and "left" wings in congress.

Jeter is under indictment in the county for the alleged automobile theft, officers said.

VIOLENCE OF ALL KINDS IS IN THE REPORT

Texas Leads All States For Fatalities With 39; California Second.

Copyright by United Press
Holiday traffic, hunting accidents, human violence, airplane crashes and fire took a Christmas toll of 243 lives in the United States and Canada, a country-wide survey disclosed today.

Texas lead all states with a Christmas death toll of 39. California reported 32 dead, Missouri 26, Pennsylvania 15, New York 14, Oklahoma 11. Several states reported no casualties. Others ranged from one to 10.

Automobile accidents claimed the greatest number of deaths, 117 men, women and children dying of injuries in collisions and other highway accidents, 55 died by drowning and in fires. A few were victims of poison liquor.

Hunting accidents and homicides caused 37 deaths, of which Texas reported 11, Alabama 7 and Tennessee 3.

Despondency resulting in suicide on Christmas Day took six lives in New York and five each in Pennsylvania and California.

Three persons each in Illinois and Louisiana and two in Georgia and Texas died of self-inflicted wounds.

Complete Close Of Projects On Tomorrow Night

All county work relief projects will shut down tomorrow night, H. E. Driscoll, county administrator, declared today.

The shutdown is attributed to uncertainty of the amount of January money yet to come and funds for the month being at a low ebb.

Funds for this month's work relief project expenditure would have been entirely exhausted by Dec. 31 if the projects continued at the past rate, the administrator said.

"It'll probably mean a shutdown of a week," Driscoll concluded.

Anti-War Profit Legislation Might Ease Bonus Demand

The board of education in a large middle-western industrial city not long ago appointed a committee to make a survey of the citizenship training being given in the city's public schools.

The committee went out, looked around, and came back presently to report that the citizenship training was going over big except for the fact that the children were learning too much about their city outside of school hours.

In class the youngsters heard much fine talk about civic duty, honesty, political theories, and such like. Then they would go home and listen to their parents talk, or they would read the daily papers, and in that way they got the lowdown on the way the city really was being run.

The result, unfortunately, was to persuade them that the citizenship training being given in school was all very pretty, but that it didn't mean very much in everyday life.

The child who lives in a boss-controlled ward, where "the fix" is a common, taken-for-granted feature of community life, is apt to get a different slant on representative government than the text-books will give him.

The child who knows that his school teacher is going unpaid, and at the same time reads in the paper that the political gang which runs the city is loading up the payrolls preparatory to election day, learns something of politics which no school book will tell him.

Home conversation in which corruption in public office, undue influence exerted by big business combinations, and the low caliber of officeholders generally are taken for granted, makes an effective antidote to fine talk by the teacher about the ideals of a democracy.

Now all this boils down to a small but unpalatable little pill, which we might just as well swallow without making any faces.

We can put all the citizenship courses we please in our schools, but as long as our own actions speak louder than the teacher's voice the courses won't mean much.

Children can't be kidded on things like that. If we bring them up in cities run by ward bosses for the benefit of special interests they're going to catch on.

If we want our children to respect the society we are operating, we must begin by reforming it. Until we do, our citizenship courses will only teach them cynicism.

GOLFER BAGGED DUCK

NORTHFIELD, Minn.—Playing over a local golf course, Robert Lewis, of Fargo, N. D., a sophomore at Carleton College, saw a flock of ducks heading low over the No. 1 fairway. He quickly cast aside a driver and took a spoon. With a terrific swing he drove the ball. One of the ducks faltered in the fair and collapsed with a broken neck. Lewis entertained his opponents at a duck dinner.

Need For a New Municipal Budget Law Pointed Out

AUSTIN, Dec. 26.—Need for a new state municipal budget law is pointed out in a manual by Dr. Roscoe C. Martin, director of the University of Texas' Bureau of Municipal Research. "There is a state law which requires every city to have a budget," Dr. Martin said. "This statute, in so far as it applies to cities, has been and is at the present time largely ineffective."

Budgets have been filed with State Comptroller George Sheppard by only 229 of 580 Texas cities as required by the present statute, Martin said. Of those cities, only four have filed budgets during the four-year period; 96 have filed only once, 91 have filed twice, and 38 have filed three times.

"The statute," he said, "commands less respect among cities now than it did two years ago. Budgets on file in the comptroller's office offer testimony of the dismal inadequacy of budgets in use in many Texas cities, and of almost total disregard of the state law."

Scientists tell us there will be seven eclipses in 1935, not counting those of a few political has-beens.

Lovable

By MARY RAYMOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY ANN HOLLISTER, pretty and 20, breaks her engagement to TONY MICKLE, commercial artist, because of his drinking and general irresponsibility. The same day PETER KENDALL, wealthy and prominent, learns how VALERIA BENNETT, his fiancée, has deceived him over her own ends. ANN and Peter, both heart-sick and disillusioned, meet and discuss their mutual unhappiness. When Peter asks Ann to marry him she agrees. They go to Florida and spend several weeks happily. Then Peter is called home because of business. All of the Kendall family except Peter's sister, MILlicENT, snub Ann. Mrs. KENDALL suspects her daughter, CAROL, is in love with LAWRENCE, the chauffeur, and discharges him. Carol leaves, ostensibly to visit friends in Miami. Ann sees her in a car and learns that Carol has married the discharged chauffeur. She promises Carol that she will keep her secret. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX "WE'VE an invitation for Ann this weekend," Peter said to Ann next morning. "Where?" "The Merriweathers. They have a summer place in the Connecticut hills. Boating, swimming, riding. It's always great sport to go there." Ann had a vision of boating, swimming and riding with Peter. "Are we going?" she asked. "I told Merle I'd ask you about it. I'd be thrilled to death." "I thought you would. It's time you were having a little fun." "You are going, too?" "I wouldn't miss." Peter sounded enthusiastic. Ann felt herself blushing. Peter was being sweet. During the last few weeks he had left nothing undone to make her happy. "Millicent and Jerry and some of their bunch are going. There'll be eight or ten couples in all." Ann wondered if Valeria would be in "the bunch." She didn't ask Peter. "When do we start?" "The others will leave tomorrow morning about 10. I'll go down to the office for a while and then come back for you. Evans will get my bags ready." Ann was dressed before 10 next morning. She sat down with a magazine in the living room to wait for Peter. The phone rang. Carol's voice, nervous and troubled, came over the wire. "Ann will you come? Larry's ill. I'm frightened." "Have you had a doctor?" "He's on the way. You'll come?" "Right away." Twenty minutes later Ann was mounting the stairs and hurrying to Carol's rooms. "Ann, you angel!" Carol greeted her. "I've been worried to death. The doctor came right after I called you. He said Larry has had a hard chill and would be all right in a week or so. His fever is going down now." "Keep him in bed and he'll be all right," Ann said. "That's the trouble. He says he can't afford to be sick. He's found a temporary place." "You can't afford to get up," Ann said. "Be sensible, Larry. I am going to do. Somebody has to take care of you children until you stop being foolish and go home." SHE opened her purse. "I have $100 here, Carol. I could leave a check for more." "Ann!" "Please, Carol! I would feel dreadfully if you wouldn't accept it." Carol said, in a low voice. "I feel such a beast after the way—" "No more of that," Ann said. "Well, all right. I'll accept it. Ann, and feel indebted to you forever. Now Larry can be perfectly happy over it." They all laughed together. "I'll be up in a week," Larry declared. "I could have worked off this fever but that stubborn, hard-headed, spoiled, determined—" "Go right ahead and call me names," Carol was sitting on the bed, one hand rumpiling his blond hair. "If you think I'm going to run any risk with my perfectly brand-new and very handsome husband—" Ann told them about the weekend trip. "I hate terribly to go away with Larry!" "He'll be all right now. If he should get really ill, I'll have to call mother, of course. But I hate to while we're in such a jam. Please, Ann, don't tell Peter yet. You won't?" "No." If she rushed back Ann might get home before Peter arrived. She might be lucky. Something could have detained him. But Peter was waiting when she came in—more than an hour late. He looked sober. "The directors have called a meeting for tonight. I talked to Millicent and she waited for you. I'll be out tomorrow or Sunday, anyway." His voice sounded doubtful. "But Peter—" Ann tried to meet his eyes, but failed. "The party will be practically over then." "I'll try to make it Saturday—tomorrow," Peter said. "I'll run along. Hope you'll have a good time Ann." All the joy had gone out of the weekend plans for Ann. ON Sunday Peter arrived at the Merriweathers. He had tried sticking it out in town, but had given it up. It was simply unendurable, going over the same ground, deciding one moment Ann was seeing Tony and deciding the next that she was incapable of deceit. If she wanted to see Tony, she would tell him so. Some women had clandestine affairs. But not Ann. There must be some explanation, a legitimate one, behind her sudden flights from home. Plunged in gloom, raging against the silence that met his questioning, he packed and drove to the Merriweathers' country place. Merle came to meet him. "Peter! you did come. We had about given you up." "What could have lured you from the city?" Millicent mocked, from the depths of a brightly cushioned chair. "Hello, everybody. Where's Ann?" Everyone laughed. Merle said, "Peter, you're certainly the possessive husband. No. I take that back. Husbands don't ask where their wives are these days. They want to know where somebody else's wife is." "You're too young to be so cynical. Besides I happen to know Roger bodes you to death, hanging around. What's sours you?" "Roger. Running after other men's wives, as I hinted. Right now he's with your wife. But then all the men hereabout have a yen for her." Millicent, reading the satisfaction in Peter's eyes, said, "You aren't making him jealous. He's only pleased."

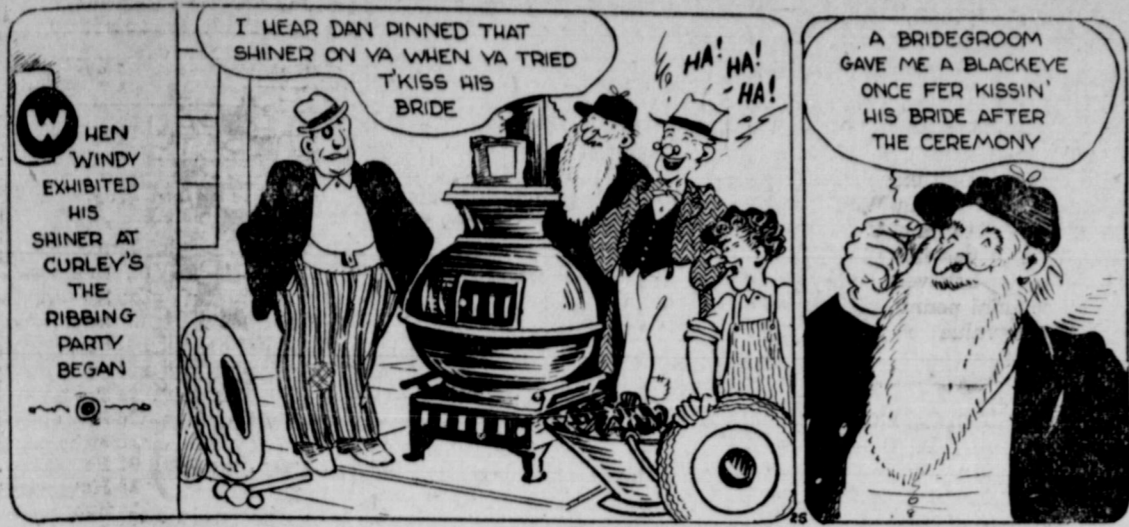

LOVABLE.....By Mary Raymond

ANN HOLLISTER, pretty and 20, breaks her engagement to TONY MICKLE, commercial artist, because of his drinking and general irresponsibility. The same day PETER KENDALL, wealthy and prominent, learns how VALERIA BENNETT, his fiancée, has deceived him over her own ends. ANN and Peter, both heart-sick and disillusioned, meet and discuss their mutual unhappiness. When Peter asks Ann to marry him she agrees. They go to Florida and spend several weeks happily. Then Peter is called home because of business. All of the Kendall family except Peter's sister, MILlicENT, snub Ann. Mrs. KENDALL suspects her daughter, CAROL, is in love with LAWRENCE, the chauffeur, and discharges him. Carol leaves, ostensibly to visit friends in Miami. Ann sees her in a car and learns that Carol has married the discharged chauffeur. She promises Carol that she will keep her secret. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX THE next afternoon Peter took Ann home. Because she was still weak from shock a trained nurse was engaged. Friends called. There were cards and flowers. Valeria sent roses, gorgeous red ones to brighten the sick room. Peter read the written messages to Ann and relayed verbal ones. She was recovering rapidly. She would be quite well by the end of the week. In fact, she was so well on the fifth day after the accident that the nurse arranged to leave after dinner that evening. She had been called to an old patient who was ill. Dressed in a turquoise blue satin negligee, Ann was lying on a chaise longue by the window. She had been permitted to see a number of friends that afternoon. Sarah and Mac, Millicent, Marcia Johnson, Merle, Merriweather. And now Valeria. She had come in as Millicent was leaving. She had said, "I'll only stay a moment. I know long visits are taboo." "The nurse says I'm well. I'm only being lazy now." "That's good. Too bad you chose that brute to ride." Valeria's voice seemed very friendly. Ann thanked her for the flowers and then remembered that Peter had moved them, leaving only the pink roses he had sent. Ann had been glad to see them go. She might not get well so soon, looking at Valeria's roses. Valeria looked cool, sweet and smiling. But inside was turmoil. The story of Peter Kendall's anxiety had been brought to her. Millicent had told Mrs. Kendall because she enjoyed seeing her mother's discomfiture. And Mrs. Kendall had told Valeria that Peter had acted like "a crazy young fool" when Ann had been thrown from the horse. Valeria had decided, "I must do something soon before she falls in love with him." She was leaving now. She told Ann goodbye and closed the door behind her. ANN was relieved. It had been an ordeal. Somehow she was freed from the feeling that there was something venomous and cruel beneath Valeria's surface friendliness. There was a piece of paper on the rug. Ann reached down and

625,000 Pounds of Cotton In Annual White Goods Event

Figures show the Montgomery Ward White Goods Sale, an annual January event, represents one of the largest purchasers in the firm's history—one of considerable significance and benefit to the nation's farmers. Plans for this event required the purchase of pillowcases, sheets, sheeting and cotton yard goods in such quantities that over 625,000 pounds of cotton went into their manufacture.

Authentic farm statistics indicate that this quantity of cotton represents the entire yield of over 6,000 acres of land. The extraordinary quality and value-appeal of the merchandise in this sale is expected to result in tremendous sales in Ward stores all over the country. Executives affirm Wards will continue to play a substantial role in moving one of the principal southern commodities. This outstanding annual event, the first significant act in 1935 by this firm, is confirmation of the organization's continued efforts to aid general business recovery.

Eastland Shows Holiday Spirit

All of Eastland revelled in the holiday spirit this week, and lighted homes, streets filled with cars in various neighborhoods, signified the informal open house that was being kept and the Christmas cheer offered callers.

Many out of town former Eastlanders were quietly entertained in homes of their host and hostesses. The real Christmas spirit will be in evidence at the Book club dance, which opens 10 tonight on the Connelley roof, with dance music by the Horace Puckett dance band of Mineral Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. McCarty Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Milburn McCarty kept open house Christmas evening from 8 to 11 at their hospitable home brilliantly lighted and artistically decorated with Christmas greens and foliage.

The young hostess was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. James McLaughlin of Strawn; her mother, Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin, and Miss Elizabeth Day.

The attractive tea table, beautifully appointed, was centered with a hospitable bowl of eggnog, flanked by trays of fruit cake, and candy.

Music for dancing was furnished by a colored piano player. The Sub-Deb club had a delightful afternoon this week-end at the home of Miss Catherine Garrett, and enjoyed their exchange of Christmas gifts, from a Christmas tree glittering in its silver, red and green dress.

Young People's Epworth League

The Work of Righteousness is Peace, was the subject of the program for the Young People's Epworth league, Sunday evening at the Methodist church.

Miss Kathleen Cottingham, the presiding program chairman, gave an interesting introduction to the subject. That brotherhood is one of the most enjoyable associations in the world, was brought out.

A Scripture reading of the "Birth of Christ," by Clyde Chaney, was followed with a story told of Christ's time by Billy Satterwhite.

Carols were "Joy to the World," "Little Town of Bethlehem," and "There's a Song in the Air," led by Mrs. J. E. Hickman, the league sponsor, and pianist for the services.

Those present, Misses Mary Frances Hunter, Betty Perkins, Jane Ray, Benny Kate Wood, Margaret Fry, Eloise Ligon, Doris Williams, Edith Meek, Joan Johnson, Carolyn Cox, Kathleen Cottingham, Clyde Chaney, Boyd Tanner, Rex Gray, Samuel Butler, Marshall Coleman, Bob McGlamery, Billy Satterwhite, Parker Brown, Harry B. German Carpenter Nevertheless, fitting together the piece saw muzzle, the authorities watched the outlines of a man gradually emerge from the scattered pieces, and as each new piece fell into place, they added color and life to the outline. He was, they decided.

A German carpenter, or at least a man skilled in working with wood, he lived in the Bronx. He was of frugal nature, never spend-with the other churches, had the current topic for the day, "The Life of the Child, Jesus," from Matthew, as the timely subject for their lesson period.

The session was opened by their president, Mrs. C. W. Price, with the hymn, ensemble, "Silent Night," led by Mrs. Edward Everett, with Mrs. T. M. Collier as pianist.

During the business period, a letter of thanks from the class prologue at the Waco Methodist home was read in which the lad thanked them for sending him a box of goodies.

Judge W. P. Leslie taught a very beautiful and profound lesson and brought out the thought that even though paganism had crept in, Christian faith was alive and growing.

His Appearance In appearance, he was heavy-set, about five feet and nine inches in height, and was marked by a narrow, pointed chin and flat cheeks.

The department of justice commanded an artist. The artist listened attentively to the descriptions. Then he sat down and drew a black and white likeness of the wanted man.

Every agent—and there were 58 of them on constant duty at that time—carried in his portfolio, and in his mind, the picture of the man he was seeking.

"I tell you," said Jimmy Finn to his brother detectives, "we'll get this man, some day, at a filling station."
