LINDBERGH SOLUTION A MORAL VICTORY

Most Americans undoubtedly feel that the best news of the fall is the news that a break has finally come in the Lindbergh kidnaping. This is the one crime above all others which the American people want to see avenged.

Yet the emotional satisfaction we get out of the solution is, after all, the least important part of it. Far more weighty is the fact that it restores to us a measure of our national self-respect.

Here was a young man of tremendous personal popularity; a man whom everyone in the country knew and killed, and wished well, a man of wealth and position, who had founded a family and taken a home in the country to get a little of that privacy and happiness that every man wants.

The crime was committed and it went unpunished. The best-loved man in the nation had found that this was not a safe country in which to rear a child.

Now, at last, comes retribution, and the fact is of tremendous importance, aside from the way it satisfies our desire to see a foul wrong avenged.

In other words, we are not quite as disorganized as we were a few years ago. The Lindbergh case was our national low-water mark.

Fifteen years ago employers, as well as the government, were promising Heaven and earth to the men who followed the flag in the World War.

Young Men's Who's Who Is Now Out

LOS ANGELES.—In the belief that more should be known about the young men of America, in whose hands it so often has been said that the country's future rests, two enterprising Los Angeles publishers have printed a "Who's Who Under 40." The book is officially entitled "America's Young Men." It is the work of one of them, Durward Howes, Los Angeles jeweler and former president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. The book's 678 pages contain biographies of 4,281 American men under 40 from virtually every sizeable city and town in the country. Several enlightening facts developed in the book's preparation. For instance, the conviction of a few years ago that all the bright young men turned to bond-selling (prior to 1929) seems to be untrue. The largest single listing is for attorneys, 525. There are 954 educators, but that classification is broken into a number of sub-groupings. There are 29 under-40 college presidents; 249 presidents or chief executives of business institutions; 108 editors; 81 newspapermen; three attorneys general; 10 mayors, and 49 judges.

Citrus Fiesta to Be Held at Mission

By United Press
MISSION, Tex. —The second annual Texas Citrus Fiesta, a non-commercial celebration which has as its sole purpose the "glorification of Valley citrus," will be held December 6 and 7, Paul Ord, chairman of the general Fiesta committee, has announced.

The Fiesta is divided into three phases—the Parade of Oranges, which opens the celebration; the coronation of King Grapefruit and Queen Citreanna with colorful ceremonies; and the Pageant of Citrus, to be superseded this year by the "Glorious Years of Texas," a pageant inspired by the Centennial plan.

First presentation was in 1932 when Mission citizens raised more than $2,500 to completely finance the celebration before actual arrangements started. The September 1933 hurricane prevented presentation last year.

Arthur Hayes, Mission High School dramatics instructor again will prepare and direct the pageant. "The Glorious Years of Texas" will trace Texas history from the occupation of the state by Indians to the present time, and will close with a spectacular scene to be called "The Spirit of Texas Today." This pageant is expected to be the first Centennial celebration in Texas.

Several hundred persons will participate. Principal characters will be Stephen F. Austin, General Sam Houston, David Crockett, Col. James W. Fannin, and "Three Fingered Willie."

The two-day Fiesta marks the opening of a 90-day citrus display during which Valley cities will be decorated with growing citrus trees lining the sidewalks, show windows in store buildings displaying fancy citrus, and the streets themselves festooned with thousands of individual fruit.

Houston Channel Will Be Widened

HOUSTON, Tex.—Bids for dredging and widening the Houston Ship Channel from Baytown to the Turning Basin are to be received October 16 by Col. E. H. Marks district army engineer.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOOTS RAEBURN, 18, slopes with RUSS LUND, swimming instructor. When he got to Florida, promising to send for her later, she goes to work in a department store.

Russ does not write. Months pass and then comes word that he has been killed in a motorboat accident.

Boots meets DENIS FENWAY, young author, and EDWARD VAN SEIVER, wealthy and socially prominent. She is in love with Denis and jealous of beautiful KAY CHILLINGFORD.

Boots gets a job in a book store and goes home to live in order to help her parents financially. On Christmas Eve Denis calls, but Boots tells herself she must forget him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII

BOOTS awakened in the gray Christmas dawn, having slept badly, in snatches and tormented by dreams. Presently a half-hearted sun came through the clouds and she walked to church beside Miss Florida, along the frost-rimmed pavements. The well-worn family sedan had collapsed in line of duty some months before. The Raeburns walked now, whatever their destination.

It was really the first time since Boots' return that she had ventured out into the village community life. Several people nodded to her cordially. After the service Isabel whispered sweetly, "You're coming to my tea this afternoon, without fail?"

"I don't know. I'm expecting a call from town."

Isabel dimpled significantly. "Bring him along. I'm dying to meet him." She squeezed her friend's arm with the old warm pressure. "I've heard about your young man," she said with archness.

Boots said perhaps she would come. She didn't know, really, what Edward's plans would be. He was dining with the family and would drive out later. Edward was a solid, satisfying fact to have in one's life. He was all reliability and honest worth.

When he did arrive, smiling and big and hearty, with his resounding kiss and his own particular scent of Russian leather and weather-soaked tweeds, Boots mentioned Isabel's party. Edward was interested. Yes, he'd like to go, he said. Not for long, though, because he wanted to have his girl to himself. He had a lot of things to talk to her about.

"These are too lovely," she told him, touching the pearls with a caressing finger. She had already thanked him for them. Edward's laugh boomed out reassuringly. She should have finer things than those and very soon, too, he assured her.

"Seen Denis?" he asked after a moment. She steeled herself to reply.

"Yes. He dropped in last night. 'How's the old boy?'"

"Oh, all right, I guess." Why must he remind her of Denis at this moment? But he was finished with that topic, for the time, at least. It was of their plans he wished to speak. Could she be ready by January 1st? There was a ship sailing then—just the trip he had planned for her.

Boots faced her slim fingers, unlocked them. When she looked up, she was smiling. This was the best way out of her difficulties, surely. And the sooner it was done the better!

"All right now?"

Boots' head ached but she could move her arms, her legs. She tried to struggle to her feet.

"Better take it easy. You're all right but you've had a nasty shock."

She said faintly "Edward?"

"The young man's a bit knocked up, the doctor told her cheerfully. 'We've taken him down to the hospital for X-rays. I'm Dr. La Farge and you're in my office in the Plantain Apartments. I'll have you taken home after a while when you're sure you've lost that fuzzy feeling.'

She closed her eyes. For the moment she was too shaken to question him further. Just what "knocked up" might mean, uttered in that cheerful tone she did not dare to ask. Doctors were notably optimistic when discussing such matters with another patient.

She lay back, spent. Edward was hurt and she herself badly shaken, although the doctor assured her there were no bones broken. Mr. Van Seiver, he had added, shading his nose to the proper note of respect for that golden name, had thrown himself in front of Boots. His hip appeared to have sustained a slight fracture, although the car had not passed over him.

Boots shuddered. "My mother—no one has telephoned her. I hope?" she begged.

Mr. Van Seiver had been conscious, she was told. He had insisted that Dr. La Farge take charge. Mr. Van Seiver had said that Mrs. Raeburn was not to be alarmed and had instructed them to telephone a friend of his—a Mr. Fenway said the doctor, glancing at a penciled memorandum in his hand. Mr. Fenway would be here directly.

DENIS came in a moment later. The color came up in Boots' face.

"Where's Edward?"

"At the New Martin Hospital," she told him simply. "He—he was very brave, Denis. He saved my life."

He was watching her intently.

"He—Edward and I are going to be married soon after the first of the year," she went on rapidly. "I—I thought I ought to tell you. There was a brief silence.

"Thanks. I'm glad to know it. It—it simplifies things somehow."

She did not glance his way nor ask him what he meant.

"So will you after you take me home, go down to the hospital and see exactly how things are? See what he needs and then let his people know? His mother—his mother will be simply furious. Boots finished, tears standing at last in her eyes. "She's not—particularly wild about me anyhow although she's been decent enough. But she will be bound to think it's all my fault."

"Of course I'll go," Denis said, answering the first part of her sentence and politely ignoring the second. "Think you can stand?"

She tried it, giddily. Dr. La Farge's mirror showed a blue bruise on her forehead. "I'm—a pretty sight for Christmas."

Much later, in her own room with the lamps lit and Miss Florida fussing over her gently with hot water bottles and mistletoe. Boots recalled the look Denis had given her at that moment. He called it and put it quickly away. It was Edward she must think of now. A hip fracture, the X-rays showed. Edward was resting comfortably but it would be a full six weeks before he would walk again.

GLASSES -

OR GOOD LIGHTING

Students have enough problems to overcome during their school careers without the added handicap of eye-strain resulting from inadequate artificial lighting. Modern school buildings usually are well equipped with proper lighting, but what of the home? Most studying is done after dark, and unless there is a good light the result is tired eyes, ruined dispositions and poor grades.

And the remedy is so simple and inexpensive. Here are a few rules for proper lighting: Each member of the family who reads or studies should have a separate reading lamp, properly shaded, so that there will be no glare. The single-socket lamps should contain a 100-watt globe, the two-socket lamps should have two 60-watt globes, and the three-socket lamps should be filled with three 40-watt globes, or better, three 60-watt globes.

The cost of adequate lighting is insignificant when it prevents eye-strain, headaches, and possibly permanent damage to young eyes.

Sixteen places were laid for the charming affair. Mrs. Perkins has transferred her membership to the Texas chapter.

Three Hostesses Entertain Circles Mrs. P. L. Parker was hostess to Circle 1 of W. M. S. of Baptist church at her residence Monday afternoon, and as chairman opened the session with a hymn, and prayer by Mrs. Jess Seibert.

Plans were made for the circle to visit the county home on Friday, take a fruit shower and give a program. The week of prayer this afternoon in Baptist church was announced.

The devotional on the theme, "Loyalty," conducted by Mrs. L. J. Lambert, was used as a tribute to Mrs. Parker, who is retiring as chairman, after a long term of devoted service.

Mrs. Paul McFarland completed the circle's study, "Missions in Europe." Mmes. Parker, Earl Dick and John Mays were then co-hostesses for the social hour, when Circle 1 was joined by Circles 3 and 4, their guests.

A delightful program of entertainment was arranged and conducted.

Tourist Call In Canada Succeeds

OTTAWA, Ont.—Efforts of Canada's newly-formed Canadian travel bureau to stimulate an increase in the tourist traffic to the dominion this fall met with an unqualified success, according to Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals.

"Our advertising campaign in the United States has been productive of a considerable potential tourist travel to Canada this fall," he said "In fact the response to appeal which Canada made for autumn tours and big game hunters far exceeded our expectations, judging from the number of inquiries that have come to the Canadian travel bureau within the last few days. The inquiries point to a greatly increased tourist travel to Canada during the months of September and October.

The Canadian travel bureau's campaign for tourists was carried on in newspapers published in 25 different cities in the United States, and it is estimated that the Canadian tourist appeal reached some 30,000,000 readers in these cities.

BIG LETTUCE CROP PLANNED YUMA, Ariz.—The nation is not going to suffer from a lack of vitamins this winter, if the Yuma farmers can help it. Discovering that the low stages of the Colorado river might keep thousands of acres in the Imperial Valley out of lettuce cultivation, they have enlarged their plans for planting, and are prepared to reap a bumper harvest.

By HARRY GRAYSON

CHICAGO—So the University of Illinois is to have a day for Red Harold Grange. It's about time. If any institution ever owed an athlete a day, Grange has one coming from the Illinois. Illinois or any other school hasn't had a running back like the Wheaton ice-man in the nine years since he last streaked across chalk marks for the Orange and Blue. Certainly, none has come close to equaling the amazing record of the Galloping Ghost. None is likely to, for years to come.

It is fitting that Illinois is to remind Grange that his football deeds have not been forgotten in Memorial Stadium, which he so frequently packed with $200,000 gates. Illinois is wise in keeping alive the Grange tradition. Acting upon the suggestion of Eddie Jacquin, sports editor of the Champaign-Urbana News-Gazette, the athletic association of the university invited Grange to be the honor guest at Homecoming Oct. 13 when the Illinois battles Ohio State.

It is doubtful if any one player ever dominated a situation single-handedly as did the roaring Redhead in crushing a mighty Michigan array with four tremendous runs to touchdowns in the first 12 minutes. Grange scored five in all, and threw the forward pass to Kassel which accounted for a sixth.

Zuppke Cools Off COME contend that Grange shone even brighter against Chicago on Stage Field two weeks later, or against Pennsylvania in the snow and mud of Franklin Field in his senior year. Zup plainly was peeved when his foremost pupil quit school to earn a fortune as a professional at the conclusion of the intercollegiate campaign of 1925.

Audience Reaction Watched by Clowns Says Head Funster

"This business of clowning," says Jack Knapp, producing clown with Tom Mix Will West and Sam B. Dill's Circus, "is really a serious business after all. New stunts to create laughter must constantly be originated and their reaction on the public watched very closely, elaborating on those that 'go over' and utting the ones that don't click properly."

The above picture shows Jack, the former movie comedian, with part of his clown band rehearsing a few choice numbers before the performance, and in spite of the various "comphs," honks and tweets that blare forth from their instruments, they promise that all their notes will not be sour ones. Jack and his veritable army of funsters will be very much in evidence in the rings and on the hippodrome track throughout each performance for the big show when it comes here Saturday, Sept. 29, at the Connellee race track.

SHOOTING THE MAVERICK

Looking in on the Buckaroos at practice Monday: Coach Shotwell working on the Buckaroo attack, a major ailment at Mineral Wells in the team's first Class A tilt. Defense on running plays, too, it is said, is one of the things Shotwell is ironing into the boys this week. Blocking knowledge is being included in the mentor's extra pacing this week. Last week Shotwell prepared the boys for attacks for the air and did not order much scrimmage for group. They are being run through this week primarily for their engagement with Stripling next Saturday. James Cudd, Buckaroo, because of a strained leg is taking it easy and is thought will remain inactive until the Breck-Eastland game.

Poultry and Egg Shipments Down

AUSTIN.—Interstate rail shipments of poultry and eggs from Texas usually reach their lowest point of the year during August, it was pointed out in the monthly report on this produce by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Shipments in August this year totaled 57 cars, against 63 cars in August, 1933. The decline occurred in shipments of poultry of which there were 28 cars, compared with 36 cars last year. Egg shipments to out-of-state points against 27 cars during August of last year. Of the egg shipments last month, sixteen cars went to Louisiana, four to Georgia, three to Alabama and two to South Carolina. Receipts of eggs from out-of-state points totaled fourteen cars, of which ten cars came from Kansas, two from Illinois, and one each from Missouri and Oklahoma. Last year in August only ten cars were brought in; six cars from

A Pledge For Patriotic Texans

A hundred years of freedom and progress is to be celebrated in 1936. Our progress as a State has been phenomenal. It is a source of pride to the Nation. Texans, true and unafraid, pledge themselves to the unparalleled success of their State's hundredth anniversary. "Men of thought, be up and stirring." Put this purpose before you. Every Texan burn the Centennial pledge into his heart:

I will think—talk—write... Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be...
