

$2,000,000 Relief Grant Is Made To Texas

that reminds me...

From the October Public Service Magazine, we get this: "Last year an eastern power company paid nearly $18,000,000 in direct taxes. The company got its tax money from its customers. There is no other place to get it. This company paid out millions of dollars for fuel and supplies. Every one of these coal mines and manufacturing companies took the money it got from the power company and other customers and paid its taxes with that money. The power company paid out millions of dollars in wages. Every one of these employees who owned property took part of their wages around the Roosevelt administration is not seeking to curtail profit in industry. The coupled this with a plea that workers use the mediation machinery set up by the federal government and with a promise unemployment insurance and old age pensions would be a part of the social insurance program now being framed in Washington.

Donald R. Rieberg, the President, NRA co-ordinator, says to competition return in the conduct of business. The kind of competition that is to be returned is most important for consideration. The rotten competition is that which throws slime into the eyes of the public against a competitor. That's about the only regulation it needs. The rest will take care of itself. There is a definite way against spreading false rumors against banks. It should be made a crime of a business that believes in himself and the service that he can be rendered doesn't find it necessary to do business at his competitors expense in defamatory and false accusations.

Not that it is the particular fault of the administration because the fast moving ideas have been altogether experimental, but one thing is certain and that is that the cost of recovery is tremendously excessive. There are plenty of statistics and facts before those who are to carry on the new deal to weed out the excess and bring down the expenses of recovery in line with what every business has been doing since the depression started and that has been to make both ends meet. There is no difference how many millions any industry once had, if it is broke it is BROKE and believe us that industry is OUT, and with it went a horde of employees that were applicants for relief rolls.

Governor Ferguson states that he will probably call the next special of the legislature not later than Oct. 13. She also states that the balance of the relief bonds would be passed. She is right, the piecemeal business is not only expensive but doesn't give those who have charge of relief a chance to make a decent budget to take care of relief during the winter months. One day word comes out that so much money will be allotted to the different counties, but before one can bat an eye a follow up telegram comes in "sorry but it can't be done; you'll only get so much because of so and so on." Thus it goes and the thing gets more muddled up.

Just what can be done by the membership of a community to help the unemployed off the relief projects is also one of the things that is muddled up. For instance word comes headquarters to county administrators to urge the community to go after special projects. Inspiration of reaction to the role of an administrator who is doing his duty bounce back an energetic and patriotic membership who go the route as planned and furnish power, and the place and the thing starts moving. But before another roll around orders come headquarters that the money limited that everything must be put down. So those who were off direct relief and put to be out of a job and have to

The known casualties were 25 dead and many more wounded, but the list obviously was incomplete. It was feared the dead and wounded might exceed 100. The fate of Spain's three-year-old republic hinged on the outcome of fighting between left wing rebels and right wing or fascist factions. Martial law was declared in Asturias, where the strike reached proportions of open revolt. The outbreak, backed by socialists, communists and labor syndicalists, was planned with the aid of military experts. It was aimed at the new government of Premier Lerroux. Decision On Insurance Is Now Reversed

By United Press FORT WORTH, Oct. 4.—The Second Court of Civil Appeals today reversed a lower court decision by which the wife of Sidney B. Norwood, missing Cleburne banker, was awarded $111,854 insurance on claims her husband was legally dead. Norwood disappeared in 1924 after the First National bank of Cleburne, which he headed, had been declared insolvent. It was testified in the lower court Norwood had tried to obtain a "corner" on the peanut market. His wife, Mrs. Emma Norwood, was granted judgment in October, 1932, against the Southland Life Insurance company of Dallas, with which Norwood carried a $100,000 policy. The lower court decision was based on the Texas law which provides that should any person absent himself for seven years he shall be presumed to be dead. The reversal of the case was on three points: 1. That an improper question had been asked by Judge Bruce Young, in his charge. 2. That a ruling which barred testimony intended to show that trouble between an insurance company witness and Norwood had been a trifling nature. 3. That the argument of W. B. Harrell, one of Mrs. Norwood's attorneys, appealed to the personal feelings of the jurors. Mrs. Norwood's attorneys will ask a rehearing, they announced.

Sunday will be the Twentieth Sunday after Pentecost. The Epistle read is taken from St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians V. 15-21; the Gospel is from St. John IV. 46-52. In this gospel there is an account of how Christ cured a boy in Capernaum at the request of the boy's father, who evidently believed in Christ as being honest and truthful. The miracles converted the father and the whole household. This miracle is recorded for all who may wish to be converted.

This is expensive not only in the cost of recovery but also of the communities who put their money to help the cause. There is only one thing left now to do and that is for the entire government from the city on up to the National to get busy and work out something based on business principles in order that the thing strikes an even balance. The next legislature can do much to assist the state end of it with sane and unbiased ideas and ballots.

SHOOTING THE ## MAVERICK

Eastland's opponent this night is Olney. It will be the first encounter between the respective teams in many years. Olney is Class B, Eastland is Class A. Stephenville though formerly Class A is now B. Stephenville won from the Mavericks. Eastland will win tonight. Another loss cannot be afforded.

If Eastland were playing Breckenridge this week it would be to the Mavericks' advantage. James Cudd, one of the Buckaroo mainstays, is out and will not possibly be in the play until Oct. 12, the date Eastland plays the Bucks.

Boyce House, formerly of Eastland, is an ardent football booster. Many tales have been told of the writer in regard to his interest in the sport. The latest is that when Eastland played San Angelo he chartered an airplane from Abilene in order to cover the game. Eastland played Sweetwater several years back, boosters of the Mavericks chartering a special train. During the game the band played, also while plays were being called. It irked House because he said the music worried the players, also fans.

the point it looks like the matter can be closed up within a few days. Only a few minor details as far as they know are in order. Eastland will have a bank and soon. Announcement of this affect is expected momentarily awaiting advices from Washington.

BOLD DOINGS IN "TREASURE ISLAND" FIRE IMAGINATION

A blustering pirate with blood in his eyes and friendship in his heart, and a young boy in the midst of the greatest adventure of his life—these are the characters brought vividly to the screen by Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper in "Treasure Island," Robert Louis Stevenson's famous pirate story, which opens Friday at the Lyric Theatre.

The heart appeal of this great screen team that made motion picture history in "The Champ" and recently in "The Bowery" has in this latest vehicle a story that carries them to stirring dramatic heights. Their adventures together on board the good ship Hispaniola, and later on the island in search of treasure where Beery as Long John Silver saves his young friend, Jim Hawkins, from the pirates, will stir the emotions of millions who have read the book and bring new thrills to those not familiar with the story.

Added to this great co-starring team is one of the most notable supporting casts of the year with every player contributing a strong performance. Lionel Barrymore enacts Billy Bones; Otto Kruger is Dr. Livesey; Lewis Stone plays Captain Smollett, captain of the Hispaniola; Nigel Bruce puffs and blusters in old English fashion for the part of Squire Trelawney; Charles "Chic" Sale adds entertaining comedy touches as Ben Gunn, marooned pirate.

Also commendable in their minor roles are Little Cora Sue Collins, William V. Monge, Charles McNaughton and Dorothy Peterson. Victor Fleming, noted for the filming of such adventure pictures as "Rendezvous" and recently "Red Dust," directed the pirate film with rare skill and imagination.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephones the newspaper a report of the death of EDWARD SHILMAN, private detective, believed to have been killed by "CINCINNATI REIP" LA MASON, gangster.

The same night a man giving the name of JOHN SMITH is brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. With him is a girl who says she is MARY BRIGGS, hitchhiker. The man changes his story several times. Finally he identifies as FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy suburbanite and candidate for city council. Both Cathay and the girl are released.

Morden, the only reporter to learn these facts, telephones the story to his newspaper.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

A FRECKLE-FACED lad, with a slight cast in one eye, and who was particularly disliked by Charles Morden, brought him the news.

The boy jerked his finger toward the editorial offices. "Kenney, the city editor, wants to see you," he said.

Morden strode toward the office with an expression of becoming modesty. He had, he knew slipped a fast one over on Whipple. The Blade had been the only newspaper to carry the story of the Riverview scandal—the prominent citizen, candidate on the reform ticket for councilman arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, in company with a young woman whom he claimed he had never seen before.

Morden opened the door of Dick Kenney's office, stiffened slightly as he saw the big man in the well-tailored suit who turned pale gray eyes upon him in hostile appraisal.

Kenney jerked his head toward the man in the gray suit. "Know this man?" he asked.

Morden breathed a sigh of relief. Whatever the squawk, it wasn't something which could be laid to him.

"No," he said blithely. "I never saw him in my life."

"Take a look at this," said Kenney.

The city editor slid a card across the desk. Morden picked the card up and stared at it. It read simply, "Frank B. Cathay—Investments—Suite 908 First National Bank Building, Riverview."

There was a moment of tense silence in the room. Then the city editor looked across at Morden and said, "Well?"

Morden shook his head emphatically.

"No," he said, "this isn't Cathay. They're about the same age and about the same build but Cathay is stooped a little bit and his eyes are a little darker. He's—"

"I am Frank B. Cathay of Riverview," interrupted the man in a tone which quivered with fury.

The man pulled a wallet from his pocket, took out a folded clipping from The Riverview Daily Press. The clipping had headlines which had stretched across the full top of the page, "CATHAY LIBELED BY CITY BLADE."

There were smaller headlines, a column and a half of space, and there was a picture of Frank B. Cathay prominently displayed.

Morden stiffened as the man turned pale gray eyes on him in hostile appraisal.

Kenney stared at the picture, Dick Kenney in suave tones, as though he had already acknowledged defeat. "You sign your name for us, so that we can check it with the police records."

CATHAY hesitated for a moment. "You have libeled me," he said. "You have done irreparable damage to a reputation which I have been building up for more than 15 years. Now you add insult to your previous injury by refusing to accept proper proof of my identity."

Dick Kenney was firm. "I'm very sorry, Mr. Cathay," he said. "I don't know, as yet, what the situation is going to lead to, since you have taken the trouble to come here to establish your identity, it would seem you would hardly hesitate to sign your name."

"Oh, that's right," the man said quickly. "I forgot about the letter from the president of the First National Bank."

He took from his wallet a letter on the stationery of the First National bank of Riverview. The letter stated that the person whose photograph was attached to the letter was Mr. Frank B. Cathay, that Mr. Cathay's signature also appeared below the photograph; that Mr. Cathay maintained a balance in the First National bank of Riverview which ran well into six figures; that he was a respected and esteemed citizen of Riverview and a member of the bank's board of directors.

Kenney read the letter and pointed to the signature. "I take it," he said, "that the signer of this letter expected you would duplicate the signature."

The man pulled the pad of paper which Kenney held out to him, grabbed the pencil with which the city editor scribbled memos, and dashed off a signature which was a perfect duplicate of the signature underneath the photograph.

"That," said the city editor, starting pointedly at Morden, "settles the matter."

"I want a retraction," said Cathay. "and I want damages."

"If you have a retraction," Kenney pointed out, "there won't be any damages."

Cathay's face blazed into fury. "Don't talk to me like that," he said.

KENNEY toyed with the pencil, sliding his fingers up and down the brown wood. Cathay went on. "I have been damaged in an amount that can probably never be compensated, from a financial standpoint. However, I shall expect a very material contribution—not so much because of the moral effect. I intend to deposit your check in the First National bank at Riverview but before I have deposited it I shall see that it is photographed and a facsimile is printed in The Riverview Daily Press."

Kenney's face was savage. "You talk like that," he said, "and it'll be a long time before you get a check! You can get a retraction any time you want. There's been a mistake made. But there are certain peculiar circumstances surrounding the making of that mistake. We telephoned your wife for confirmation. She stated that you were here in the city; that she didn't know what hotel you were stopping at."

"Quite true," said Cathay.

"By the way," Kenney said with elaborate carelessness. "What hotel were you stopping at, Mr. Cathay?"

Cathay snorted. "I didn't come here to be insulted still further," he said. "It's none of your business where I stayed or what I did! I have told you what I expect. First, I shall expect a retraction. After that I shall expect the check."

He turned on his heel and strode toward the door.

"Wait a minute," Kenney said. "Let's get at the bottom of this thing. I want you to meet Mr. Bleeker, the junior partner of the firm which publishes The Blade."

"No, thank you," said Mr. Cathay frostily. "I have given you my message. My suit for libel will be filed within a day or two unless the matter is satisfactorily adjusted in the meantime. I wish you a very good afternoon."

The door banged.

Dick Kenney looked accusingly at Charles Morden.

"It's fishy as hell!" Charles Morden exploded.

Kenney pushed back his chair. "You come with me, young man," he said. "We're going to see the boss!"

'Choose Fashions Most Becoming To You'

Says Orry-Kelly Famous Hollywood Designer in the Sixth of a Series of Personal Interviews

ORRY-KELLY Designer of Fashions for Warner Bros. Pictures

JOAN BLONDELL Star of Warner Bros.—First National Pictures

"In dressing the stars of the screen," says Orry-Kelly, designer for Warner Bros. First National Pictures, "one must carefully consider their various personalities, in order to choose clothes which emphasize them."

burn and the shade of red. In dressing the stars I often discover that seemingly impossible colors are very flattering to them.

Test Colors

"In choosing the colors best suited to you, do as we do in the studio. Test them, against your face and hair. But one word of caution—don't make these tests under soft flattering lights. Do it in the cold light of day. Study yourself at your worst in private if you want to appear your best in public."

"First of all, in selecting the fabric of your costume, remember that dull finishes are most slenderizing. Diagonals and up and down ribs tend to give you height. Cross-wise effects make you look shorter."

Color Important

"Color, too, can either contribute to your beauty or detract from it. I would not attempt to tell you that because yours is such and such a color you can or cannot wear certain specific shades."

"Hours and hours of study go into the dressing of the screen stars. This is one of the reasons they always appear so perfectly turned out. Study yourself in this same impersonal way, discover the fashions which flatter you the most and you'll find they bring out new charms you never knew you possessed."

FELLOWSHIP WITH CHRIST

John 15:

It was in the upper room in Jerusalem in the year A. D. 30 when Christ with his apostles had gathered around the table for their last supper together.

"Abide in me and I in you." He pictured their spiritual growth in Him "as the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; so neither can ye, except ye abide in me."

The sap from the vine must flow into the branches or it withers and dies. The gardener will clip off the dead branches but the green ones will be pruned and kept neatly in symmetry of the growing garden so that much fruit will be borne.

When this picture seemed clear to the men, Jesus gave them the promise of a haven, a place of grace, where they may at all times be gained. The promise of answered prayer gives the Christian his strongest hope of abiding in Christ.

The love of the heavenly father for his son was the example Christ used as his love for his disciples.

"If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love." Christ, of whom Isaiah wrote, "and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called wonderful, counselor, the mighty of God, the everlasting father, the prince of peace," sat humbly in their midst even having washed their feet.

"No longer do I call you servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth; but I have called you friends: for all things that I heard from my father I have made known unto you."

Friends on this earth are our greatest blessings but how much greater is the friendship of Christ who holds all power in heaven and earth. We did not choose Christ but he chose us that we might grow and bear fruit to glorify his father.

It has been explained that abiding in Christ is not basking in Christ. It requires growth that is pruned to bear the richest fruit. Often the Christian's life leans on weeds and other objects but always the gardener will pull up the offensive weed, perhaps breaking and clipping tender tendrils to make it grow again on the true trellis.

"And that your joy may be made full." The radiant Christian life should radiate joy to the world. It should not be silly and smirking but deep and understanding that brings responsive impulses for good from the world.

This can be gained only through prayer life, asked in the name of Jesus. If the light of his word and spirit shine upon our prayers, silly, vain and useless things will be rooted out.

The victorious life is sought by all Christians and may be had for the asking aught. If the Christian would deepen their spiritual life by abiding in Christ, personality and strong character would be developed. A character with backbone in it that does not quail at life's severest tasks would be theirs.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

JOHN GARLAND POLLARD, says:

"Equality of all religions before the law is firmly established throughout the Nation, but it is not completely enthroned in the hearts of all the people. There was a religious tyranny in law now happily passed away, but there still remains in all of its cruelty a tyranny which ostracizes, condemns and denounces men on account of their religious affiliations. I need hardly remind you that in many American communities membership in some religious sects still constitutes a social, political and business handicap. Conversely, membership in other sects is considered an asset. Wherever public sentiment allows such a condition to prevail, the spirit of religious liberty is dead.

"I can exercise my rights of property and my rights of person without the slightest criticism anywhere in this country, but there are many places where I cannot exercise my freedom of conscience without being made to suffer. I plead for a broader and more tolerant spirit towards the adherents of other faiths, to the end that we may bring to its complete fruition the work which our forefathers so nobly began when they embodied religious liberty in the law of the land.

"Rights of person, rights of property, rights of conscience, these three, but the greatest of these are the rights of conscience."

Inflation and deflation are both bad. What is needed is stability, which has been lost in a world suffering from violent world deflations, and must be corrected in a way which will enable debtors to pay their obligations and potential buyers to resume full activity without fear that when trade revives there will not be enough money available to carry it on.

Pleasure cruising in luxuriously appointed ocean going liners is quite an industry. It has grown with a rapidity that is nothing short of amazing. Through the newspapers they advertise short seven day cruises or four week cruises around the world. Newspaper advertising has brought them the business.

The success of a business is judged not by the sales, but by the receipts in comparison with the investment and expense of operation.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Celebrated

Many Eastland relatives attended the golden wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reeves, of 1611 Avenue D, Cisco, held recently, and spent a wonderful day.

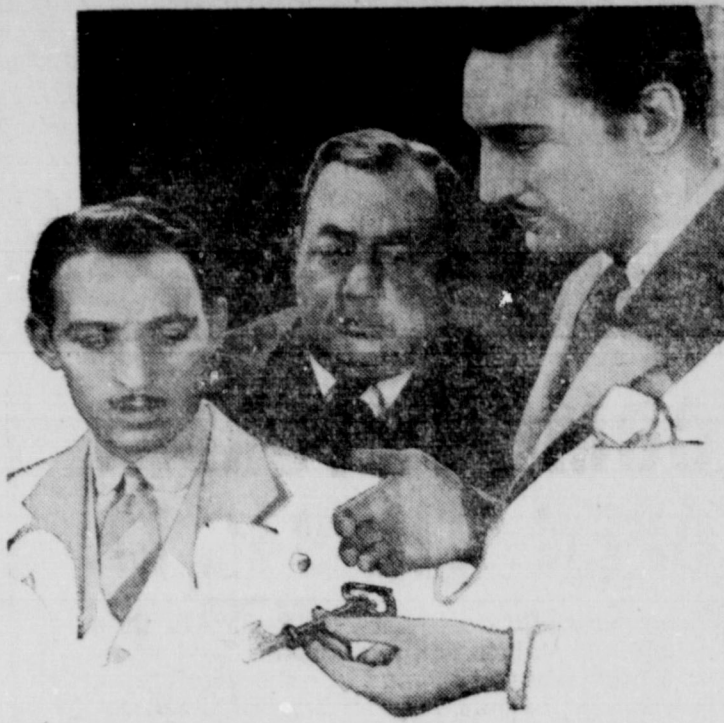

The couple was married in Modesto county, Arkansas, and have resided in Eastland county, near Cisco, 44 years.

A surprise dinner was planned for them by their daughters, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Kinard and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ramsey, that was beautiful and beautifully appointed with golden candles, in crystal sticks, and a mound of yellow flowers centering the table.

Fifteen grandchildren and four great-grandchildren were present.

One brother and wife of Cisco, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reeves, and sisters, Mmes. J. W. Robinson, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Parsons. One grandson and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Garner Kinard and daughter, Mary

The Key to the Crime

Warren William, as Philo Vance, confronts a suspect with an important clue. The slightly perturbed gentleman with the mustache is George Stone, while Eugene Pallette is the fellow looking on. They all appear in S. S. Van Dine's "The Dragon Murder Case," First National film at the Lyric Sunday.

Amnell of Eastland, were not present on account of illness.

ONLY DIFFERENCE WAS IN MEAT

By United Press

OMAHA. — Last year, W. H. Wallweber, duck fancier, entered his waddlers in the Douglas county fair as Chinese ducks. He won first prize. This year the committee decided not to have a Chinese duck competition so Wallweber entered the same herd as Muscovies—and won again. They look alike "on the outside," but Muscovy meat is dark and Chinese white.

JOAN CRAWFORD, CLARK GABLE GIVE AUDIENCE SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT

With "Chained" the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture playing at the Lyric Theatre Monday, Joan Crawford and Clark Gable win new laurels for their already listening crowds.

For "Chained" is an excellent picture, expertly mounted, directed and acted.

Clarence Brown, who gave us "Sadie McKee," Joan's last, is also responsible for the splendid direction and pace of the new picture.

As Dine, modern Manhattan miss, Joan Crawford brings a new and vivid characterization to the screen. Clark Gable holds up his end with more than sufficient skill and charm as Mike, likable young rancher in South America. The supporting cast is equally fine, with Otto Kruger as Mr. Field, the "other man" in the case; Stuart Erwin in the role of Johnnie, wise cracking friend; Una O'Connor as the sympathetic companion, and Marjorie Gatenon in the role of Mrs. Field.

LYRIC MONDAY AND TUESDAY

But excellent as all other phases of the production are, chief honors go to the co-stars who, brilliantly cast, turn in performances that compare well with the finest screen characterizations of the year.

George Folsey outdoes himself with the photography, and the same thing can well be said of the striking Adrian gowns, which are much in prominence.

The story was written especially for the screen by Edgar Selwyn and was adapted by John Lee Mahin.

THRILLING MYSTERY DRAMA IS COMING TO LYRIC THEATRE SUNDAY

"The Dragon Murder Case," the latest of the murder mystery dramas from the pen of the peerless author, S. S. Van Dine, to be dramatized for the screen opens at the Lyric theatre Sunday.

The picture is said to be the most bizarre as well as the most baffling of all the novels of the famous author, involving as it does a series of mysterious crimes apparently committed by some prehistoric monster.

It is not until Philo Vance, in the person of Warren William, comes to the scene that the strange murders are finally solved and the slayer brought to justice. William is a new Philo Vance, though the parts of Sergt. Heath and District Attorney Markham are again carried by Eugene Pallette and Robert McWade, respectively. Etienne Girardot also will be seen again in the person of the quain and querulous Dr. Doremus.

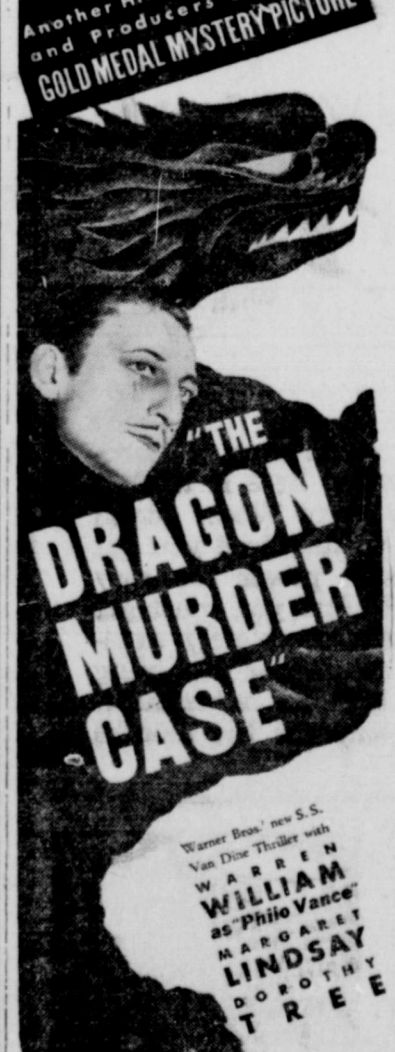

Margaret Lindsay has the leading feminine role, the fiancée of the first man murdered, and suspected of the crime because she is in love with another of her guests, a part played by Lyle Talbot, who also comes under the scrutiny of the police.

Six other persons are also suspected, including Robert Barrat, owner of the estate, his mother who advances the dragon theory, a part played by Helen Lowell, Dorothy Tree, George E. Stone, William Davidson, guests and Arthur Aylesworth who plays the role of the butler.

Princess Voting to Start This Evening

Keen interest is manifested in the coming campaign of the Women's Federated Clubs of Eastland for the lucky young woman who will be elected by popular vote at the Lyric theatre, the princess of Eastland, and the next lucky one who will be her maid-in-waiting.

Each Lyric theatre ticket from this evening on to the closing of the campaign, Friday night, Oct. 12, will have an attached blank ballot on which the name of the choice for Eastland's princess is to be written by the holder of the ticket, and this ballot deposited in the ballot box Friday night, Oct. 12, and not before.

The young woman chosen by the women's clubs will be formally presented from the Lyric stage to the audience, Friday night, Oct. 12, by Mrs. J. M. Perkins.

DROUTH DIDN'T HALT ENROLLMENT

By United Press

CALDWELL, Idaho.—Although this has been a dry year for Idaho farmers, and their pocketbooks are somewhat depleted, this was not evident in the fall registration at the College of Idaho here. Enrollment was almost equal to the record high of a year ago, when 364 students registered for college work.
