FOOTBALL is replete with Notre Dame classic feats. Marchy Schwartz's touchdown jaunt against Army in Chicago, 1930, was one.

The game was nip and tack for three quarters. In the fourth period, just before, Schwartz cut off on his run, Notre Dame called in Johnny O'Brien, pass catching expert, at left end. The play following wasa pass, but the Irishman was held illegally in the line

Carideo again called a formation similar to the O'Brien pass play. Johnny cut through the Army secondary, but instead of passing to O'Brien, Schwartz followed him through Army's left tackle and dashed 54 yards for a counter. Carideo kicked the point that won the game, 7-6.
