EASTLAND FIRE LOSSES LOWEST SINCE IN 1928

If Eastland fire losses continue this year at no higher rate than evidenced thus far, 1934 will be one way below the usual figure, according to statements drawn from Fire Chief Hennessee Wednesday. Losses this year are the lowest since 1928.

Losses to date total $6,000, the sum being made up by losses sustained by property owners from eight residences and one business house.

Fire Chief Hennessee stated that Eastland's annual fire losses run the yard-stick from $12,000 to $17,000.

Though Eastland is drawing a penalty currently, it will receive a credit in the next few years if losses continue to hold to a low figure, the chief stated.

Though Eastland hasn't the largest fire equipment available, what it possesses is the best money can buy, Hennessee spoke in strains of pride. The equipment consists of the usual hose and three trucks, one of which can pump over 800 gallons of water per minute and another between 750-800 gallons, Hennessee said. The investment represents $45,000.

RALLY HELD AT RANGER IS BIG SUCCESS

More than 300 Methodists from over the Cisco district gathered in the basement of the First Methodist church of Ranger Tuesday night for the most successful district rally ever held in the district.

Representatives from churches from over the entire district were present at the rally which started with a fine plate lunch, served by the ladies of the Ranger church, followed by a short speaking program. The speakers were Rev. P. W. Walker, Dublin; Rev. F. L. Turner, Cisco and Rev. H. S. Goodenough, Breckenridge.

Quartets from Cisco, Eastland, Dublin and Ranger competed for honors as the best quartet in the district, with Cisco winning the decision of the judges. After the other quartets competed an impromptu number, sung by Rev. F. L. Turner of Cisco, Rev. E. R. Stanford of Eastland, Rev. C. C. Henson of De Leon and Rev. J. M. Bond of Ranger was presented, but the judges refused to count them as competitors in the contest, though their rendition was praised highly.

Reports from over the district showed that the membership had increased 423 by profession of faith and 404 by letter, making an increase of 827 over the district.

Other reports showed that salaries to date averaged 80 per cent with benevolences averaging 45 per cent and it was said that the outlook for the district was that it would show an improved record over that of last year.

Board of Control Relief Program to Be "Wide Open"

AUSTIN.—Backstage scenery in Texas' relief administration is to be brought up to the front during the relief regime of the state board of control.

"We're going to work in the wide open, where the people may see everything that is going on in relief work," said Claude Teer, chairman of the state board of control which is now administering relief to Texas' unemployed.

KING OF YUGO-SLAVIA, FRENCH STATESMAN ARE SLAIN BY ASSASSIN

Shot down by an assassin just after he had been welcomed to Marseilles, France, King Alexander I of Yugo-Slavia, above, died a few minutes later. He had ruled since 1921 and had led his nation in three wars. Five attempts at assassination had preceded the successful attack.

Mortally wounded by an assassin in Marseilles, France, while trying to shield King Alexander I of Yugo-Slavia from bullets, Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France, above, left, died in a hospital a few hours later. Barthou long had been a leader in French diplomacy.

MAN HELD FOR MASSACRE AT KANSAS CITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The arrest of Richard T. Galatas, hunted for more than a year for complicity in the Kansas City union station massacre, was announced today.

Galatas was seized by federal agents in New Orleans Sept. 22, the department of justice said. He was taken to Kansas City and will be arraigned today on a charge of conspiracy to deliver a federal prisoner.

The attempt to deliver the prisoner, Frank Nash, resulted in the assassination of four officers on June 17, 1933.

BROKEN LIMB IS A CLUE TO MAN'S MURDER

HILLSBORO, Texas, Oct. 10.—The broken limb of a tree was sought as a missing link in a chain of evidence Hill county officers believed would solve the slaying of Walter L. Jones, Cleburne bondsman and money lender.

Officers found part of the broken limb wedged between the dust pan and engine in an automobile seized in Fort Worth. The other half of the limb is being sought, Sheriff Freeland said.

Freeland believed the automobile was the one in which Jones rode to his death.

Two Fort Worth cafe operators, one of whom owned the car, were taken into custody, but officers said they "had nothing to do with the actual killing."

School Fund Gets Record Payment From Gasoline Tax

AUSTIN.—The state common school fund received the record total of $8,496,212 as its one-fourth "cut" of Texas' gasoline tax income for the fiscal year which ended Aug. 31, or nearly $1,000,000 more than in every previous year, Comptroller George H. Sheppard announced today.

Schools receive one cent of the four-cent state gas tax.

Proportionate boosts went to the board of county and district road bond indebtedness, which also receives one cent of the tax, and the highway fund, which gets the remaining two cents.

Working his first full fiscal year with an adequate field force under the states' strong new "anti-bootleg" law, the comptroller boosted gas tax income $4,036,845 above last year to an all-time high total of $33,984,848, his annual report showed.

He attributed almost the entire gain to record enforcement activity and the educational campaign of the Texas Good Roads association. In his state-wide drive against the tax-stealing "racket," his 50 field men filed 99 felony and 71 misdemeanor charges during the year, he reported.

The $33,984,848 income is broken up into three parts. In addition to the $8,496,212 for schools, another $8,496,212 goes to county tax relief in the refunding of the county road bonds. Whereas the fund last year was able to pay all interest on such bonds but only 30 per cent of the principal, the increase will permit paying this year of all interest and at least half the principal maturities, if not more, Mr. Sheppard estimated.

The remainder of the gas tax, or $16,992,424, is still devoted to the original purpose for which the tax was invented—construction and maintenance of state highways.

Roosevelt Feels Price Level Must Be Raised Again

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—President Roosevelt feels the general price level must be increased further to put the nation in sound economic condition, he said today.

The president said he believes substantial progress has been made in improving the price level but was unable to say how much more increase is necessary.

He still retains his goal of attempting to stabilize prices and prevent large fluctuations. Gold may be a factor in bringing about price stabilization when it is attempted.

WTCU URGES PROTECTION OF WATER RIGHTS

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 10.—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce today was on record as approving the Buchanan dam project only "if the water rights of West Texas and the rights of the general public are protected."

SON WILL BE NEW KING OF YUGO-SLAVIA

Croatian Leaders Demand That Croats Be Given Share in Government.

MAREILLE, France, Oct. 10.—The body of King Alexander of Yugo-Slavia, whose assassination precipitated a tense European situation, was started home today.

Muffled drums sounded as two battalions of the French infantry paraded in review before the body of the monarch who was struck down with Foreign Minister Louis Barthou yesterday on a diplomatic mission.

The widowed Queen Marie, pale but calm, was escorted to an automobile. She said farewell to the body here and will go to Paris to meet her 11-year-old son, now King Peter II, and accompany him to Belgrade for the funeral. He was proclaimed king at Belgrade today.

In chancelleries over Europe statesmen, who for months had been negotiating and entreating to perfect alliances in a general shift of diplomatic alignments, wondered what would happen.

Seven bullets from the pistol of Petrus Keleman, 40-year-old Croatian, has marked a historic date in post-war European history. Throughout Europe troops were alerted. Many rumors of mobilization were denied authoritatively. There appeared to be minor shifting of troops around the border of Yugo-Slavia. Yugo-Slavia was quiet.

ZAGREB, Yugo-Slavia, Oct. 10.—Croatian leaders demanded today that the Croats be given a share in the Yugo-Slavian government. The appointment of two Croats to the regency of three was expected here to have a pacifying effect, however.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Europe today awaited the subsidence of the shock over the Marseilles assassination to start its race to consolidate alliances for armed peace or bitter war.

For months an all-around shift in diplomatic alignments had been pending. Statesmen were going to and fro from capital to capital, sometimes secretly, to negotiate. Alexander went to France on one of the most important diplomatic missions in months.

GENEVA, Oct. 10.—League of Nations circles today feared disastrous effects in the Balkans from King Alexander's death. They pointed out a strain in Balkan policies with France, Italy and Germany may result.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 10.—Hungarian newspapers were forbidden today to comment on the assassination of King Alexander.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 10.—Two additional youths were charged today with conspiracy in two of the alleged escape attempts of O. D. Stevens, now serving a federal sentence in the $72,000 postal robbery here in 1933.

The youths were Joseph Wells, 20, and Joseph Wright, 19, both of Fort Worth.

Spain Is Seeking Leaders of Revolt

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 10.—The Spanish government, given a free hand in dealing with the broken socialist-communist revolt, sought today to capture rebel leaders who have promised to "die with the cause" rather than flee Spain.

VETERANS MAY SERVE TO END WAR PROFITS

War veterans organizations, say a dispatch from Washington, are preparing to take a terrific crack at war profits during the coming year.

Revelations made before the Senate munitions committee in recent weeks have hit the veterans where they live. Through such organizations as the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the ex-soldiers are resolved that these revelations be kept fresh in the country's memory—and that the next war we get into will provide far slimmer pickings for the merchants of death.

The entire question opens to the veterans a field of very great usefulness. The things we have found out about the profits of the munitions business are enough to shock citizen; to no one can they be quite as shocking as to the men who actually did the fighting.

Properly directed, the indignation thus aroused can be an exceedingly good thing for the country.

It will be a great many years, probably, before the human race discovers the secret of foregoing war. The imperfections of human society and of human nature keep us from realizing the beautiful dream of universal peace.

To pay men $30 a month for offering up their lives and to make billionaires out of the men who supply them with their weapons is to make a mockery out of every principle of democracy.

Probably it is a dim recognition of this fact that has made the bonus sentiment so strong among the veterans' organizations since the war.

The demand for the bonus may be quite as unjustified and selfish as its opponents maintain; nevertheless, it arises against this background of war profits, and it is rather hard to persuade the veteran that it is wrong for him to ask for a few hundred dollars when he knows that the makers of shells and guns were enriched by the hundred million.

Get this feeling of injustice directed into the right channel, and the veterans' organizations can do a work of unparalleled usefulness.

If we must go to war, in the future, then we must go; but we are justified in insisting that it be for a principle, and not for enrichment of the munitions makers.

Let the veterans hammer away on this point, in season and out of season, and we shall have a new reason for feeling indebted to them.

P. Cuts Rates To Dallas Fair

The Texas & Pacific Railway is bringing a special week-end fare one-cent a mile each way for the State Fair at Dallas, which, according to Frank Jensen, general passenger agent, "is one of the lowest State Fair rates we have ever put on."

"This very low rate," Mr. Jensen said, "should be particularly attractive this year because of the meet being held along with the fair. This is the first time that a meet has been held at the State Fair in more than 20 years."

Such a low fare should also appeal to people who can attend the meet only on the week-end or who spare only a day or so at the State Fair. Week-end fair tickets are available in chair cars and coaches on trains arriving in Dallas Saturday or up to 3:30 p. m. Sunday during the fair. Return limit leave Dallas before midnight Sunday. Tickets are on sale at all Texas & Pacific stations in Texas. The Texas & Pacific is also offering extremely low rates to the fair every day.

Morton Valley PTA Met October 5th

Mrs. J. B. Rayfield resigned as vice president. Mrs. S. A. Jones was elected to replace her. The songs, readings and playing were given by the pupils of Mrs. J. B. Pickett and Miss Cunningham were very much appreciated and enjoyed.

Mrs. Bolwin gave some interesting facts on the proper kinds of food for children under different conditions.

The I. T. A. will meet again Friday, Oct. 19, at 4 p. m. Personnel: Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. and Mrs. S. A. Jones, Joe Moore, Mrs. T. L. Butler, Florence Davis, Mrs. J. B. Rayfield, Mrs. J. L. W. M. S. Methodist Church Japanese Tea

The preliminary session was opened by the president of the W. M. S., Mrs. Wayne Jones, in a song service led by Mrs. J. E. Hickman, with Mrs. T. J. Haley at piano.

The entertainment features brought stunts by the senior circle, the Sue Stanford, putting on a patent medicine sale skit, cleverly done with Mrs. McGlamery at the patent medicine doctor, and circle members as victims of those benefited.

The Ura Leverage circle, embraced this opportunity to register a 100 per cent circle attendance in each presenting a guest.

Mrs. Frank Crowell gave an interesting outline of "Suzuki Looks at Japan," a mission study.

Each was presented a fan shaped booklet in colorful covers, that contained the program for the coming six weeks study for W. M. S., presenting the heroine, the leader of program, and other features.

The devotional was brought by Mrs. W. P. Leslie and a story of the life of La Motte, author of book, was given by Mrs. W. W. Kelly.

AYRES-FAYE IN "SHE LEARNED ABOUT SAILORS"
Lew Ayres has the enviable task of making love to Alice Faye in "She Learned About Sailors," the Fox comedy-romance coming to the Lyric Theatre Thursday. Lew is the champion heart-breaker of the U. S. Navy and Alice is a night club entertainer in the picture. This gives Alice a splendid opportunity to sing "Here's the Key to My Heart" in a manner that is reminiscent of her "Nasty Man" number in George White's "Scandals."

Aiding and abetting these two with the comedy are those knock-out slapstick artists, Mitchell and Durant, who are Lew's shipmates in the picture, and Harry Green, a South American impresario. The story takes them from an Asiatic port, through the vicissitudes of life on shipboard to a cafe in San Pedro, California.

Lew Ayres is persuaded by his two shipmates, Mitchell and Durant, to accompany them ashore at an Asiatic seaport. At a cafe Ayres meets Alice Faye, and before the fleet leaves port they fall in love. When Mitchell and Durant are convinced that Alice Faye is sincere in her love for Ayres, they do everything in their power to convince Ayres that he is wrong when he decides he cannot marry her because of his financial condition.

Mitchell and Durant set the stage for an accidental meeting of the lovers in Los Angeles, and when something goes wrong, they force both lovers into a trumped up marriage. There then follows a series of hilarious events that brings the film to a lively conclusion.

Alice Faye made her film debut in George White's "Scandals" and was later seen in "Now I'll Tell," by Mrs. Arnold Rothstein. Lew Ayres shares the star honors with Miss Faye.

Under the supervision of John Stone, producer for Fox, George Marshall directed from the screen play by William Conselman and Henry Johnson. Richard Whiting and Sidney Clare are responsible for the song numbers.

Rice Develops An Outstanding Star In Tennis Ranks

AUSTIN. — Dr. D. A. Penick, University of Texas tennis coach, believes Wilbur Hess of Rice Institute will win the Southwest conference tennis title unless Texas can develop an outstanding singles player.

In the initial round-up of players for the 1934-35 season the noted Texas coach found exceptional strength in tennis material, but no prospect to match the brilliance of the Rice player. Marthin Buxby, Longhorn captain year, defeated Bert Weltens of his own team in the conference finals after the latter had disposed of Hess in an earlier round.
Weltens, captain this year, will be one-half of a doubles team that Penick predicts will win the championship.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephones his newspaper an exclusive story about FRANK B. CATHAY of Riverview, wealthy and prominent, brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and accompanied by a pretty young woman who called herself MARY BRIGGS, hitchhiker.
Next day it is learned that the man was an impostor. The real Cathay demands damages and a retrial. DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, concludes that "something is fishy," sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.
MRS. CATHAY calls on Bleeker, and asks him to come to the Palace hotel for a conference with her husband's lawyer, CHARLES FISHER. Bleeker goes.

CHAPTER VI
THE door of the hotel room was opened by a tall individual whose gray eyes peered in eager expectation at Dan Bleeker. "You brought him," the man said, and there was unmistakable relief in his voice.

Bleeker nodded, followed Mrs. Cathay into the room, turned to face the big man who was closing and locking the door. "Well?" he asked.
"It was very nice of you to come," said the man in a booming voice, which had apparently been carefully cultivated to convey an atmosphere of impressive dignity.
He was a ponderous figure, somewhere in the forties. He was heavily fleshed and his shoulders sagged forward, as though most of his work had been done over a desk.

"I," he said, "am Charles Fisher, senior partner of the firm of Fisher, Barr and McReady, with offices in the First National bank at Riverview. We handle all of Mr. Cathay's legal work. Won't you please be seated, Mr. Bleeker?"
Mrs. Cathay walked to the full-length mirror, surveyed herself quietly, turned and without a glance at Bleeker, walked through a passageway into an adjoining room. Her manner was that of one whose work has been done.
"Just what do you want?" Bleeker asked.
"Mr. Cathay," said Fisher gravely, "is a very important individual in Riverview. Perhaps he sometimes overestimates his importance. That is, however, neither here nor there, nor should I care to be quoted. He has quite a bit of pride, and when he has once reached a decision he is very much inclined to stay . . ."
"I've heard all that before," Bleeker said.

FISHER frowned. A swift flush of rage appeared on his countenance, and then he smiled slowly and gravely.
"I am prepared to advise my client," he said, "to withdraw any libel suits and give you a complete release in return for your assurance that a retraction will be published by the newspaper."
Bleeker's voice was crisp, his manner truculent. "We'll publish this sort of a retraction," he said, "and no other. We'll publish a statement to the effect that The Blade has discovered the man who gave the name of Cathay at police headquarters was an impostor. A pickpocket who had stolen Cathay's wallet, and chose to masquerade under Cathay's name. We will publish it prominently, not as a retraction, but as an additional development that has been uncovered through the diligence of our newspaper reporters. That's our final answer. You can take it or leave it."
"I'll take it," Fisher said.
Dan Bleeker pushed past him toward the door.
"Wait a minute," Fisher told him. "You'll want some sort of a receipt. Some kind of a release in full of all claims for damage."
Dan Bleeker, with his hand on the door knob, stared at Charles Fisher and shook his head slowly from side to side.
"We don't want anything from Frank B. Cathay," he said. "We're going ahead and publish that I outlined to you. Any time Cathay thinks he can make money out of suing our newspaper, we'll show him where he can't. That goes for him and for his lawyers. Do you get that?"

IT was the following afternoon Dan Bleeker, at his desk frowned irritably at Ethel West. "What was your last report from Charles Morden?" he asked.
Ethel West picked up a short-hand notebook from before her. "You talked with him personally day before yesterday, didn't you?"
"Yes. What did you hear from him yesterday?"

Fisher frowned. A swift flush of rage appeared on his countenance.

"He telephoned about one o'clock. It was right after lunch. He said that he had a live lead, but in order to get it he had to cultivate a girl. He said that he thought it wasn't wise to mention names over the telephone, but that he'd come in to the office some time this morning or late yesterday afternoon."
"Yesterday afternoon," said Bleeker meditatively, "what was I doing . . . oh, yes, that conference with Mrs. Cathay, and Cathay's lawyer."
"You disposed of the case?" she asked.
"Frightened to death," he told her. "The woman was speechless with fright. She rushed to the lawyer and got him to call the whole thing off. They tried to save their faces by making a bluff about it."
"Do you suppose that was because of something Morden uncovered?"
"You can't tell. It wasn't something that affected Cathay so much as it was something that affected his wife."

Dan Bleeker frowned meditatively at the carpet. "Ring Dick Kenney," he said. "Tell him that I want him to come in here for a conference."
"Anything else?"
"Not unless Morden telephones. I want to talk with him if he reports. Tell him to come in to see me if he can leave the case long enough."

Ethel West strode from Bleeker's private office. A few minutes later Dick Kennedy entered.
"That Cathay business," said Bleeker. "I want some action on it."
"But I understood the whole matter had been dropped," Kennedy said, his forehead puckered with a puzzled frown.
"Cathay's dropped it," Bleeker snapped. "We haven't."
"What do you want done?"
"I want that lead followed up. The angle of finding out who it was that picked Cathay's pocket and posed as Cathay and why he did it."
"But I thought that was just the angle we played to cover our retraction."
"It was, and we're going ahead with it."

DICK KENNEY nodded.
"I want to find out more about Cathay," said Bleeker. "He was registered here in the city somewhere. Have the men cover all the hotels. Find out where Cathay was registered. See if you can find out something about his business. Find out if he was here alone or if anyone was with him. And in particular try and find out more about this pickpocket business. There was a girl, a hitchhiker, I believe she said, Mary Briggs. I think her name was. You should be able to locate her. Run down that angle of it."
"Mary Briggs probably cleared out of town just as soon as she got out of the police station," Kenney said.

"Then go out of town to look for her!" Bleeker snapped explosively.
The telephone rang. Dan Bleeker swooped down upon the receiver, held it to his ear, said, "Bleeker speaking," and then listened while the receiver made rapid, squawking noises. "Where are you now?" he asked. "Very well, I'll let you talk with him now."
Bleeker held the receiver over toward Dick Kenney.
"Fred Nixon, who's covering headquarters," he said. "Listen to what he has to say."
Kenney took the telephone, said in a low, conversational voice, "All right, Nixon. What is it?"

Once more the receiver made a succession of squawking, metallic noises. Kenney stiffened to rigid attention. The skin about his knuckles grew white as he gripped the receiver.
"Good God!" he said slowly. "Are they certain?"
There was another interval of noise from the transmitter. Then Kenney said, "We're sending some men to help you. Wait there until they come. Then start covering everything. The paper will see this thing through to a finish. You get hold of the homicide squad and let them understand we're out for blood. Do you get me? All right, just a moment then . . . hold the telephone."
Kenney looked over at Dan Bleeker. "Are there any instructions?" he asked. "Morden's murdered."

In the next installment Dan Bleeker learns more about the murder of the police reporter.

Weltens will handle one singles assignment, with Smalley probably heading the list of other letterman singlists. From a horde of sophomores and eligible freshman Penick said that he hoped to see his singles No. 1 man.
