

Scattered Storms Do Damage Over the State

What reminds me...

George S. Merriam, in an address years ago said: "No man is fit to live need fear to die. Fear, timidous, faithless souls that we are. How we shall smile at our own alarms when the worst has happened. To us here, death is the most terrible thing we know. But when we have tasted its reality, it will mean to us, birth, deliverance, a new creation of ourselves. It will be what health is to the sick man. It will be what water is to the sailor. It will be what the loved one given back is to the bereaved. As we draw near to it, a solemn gladness should fill our hearts. It is God's great morning lighting up the sky. Our fears are the terror of children in the night. The night with its terrors, its darkness, its feverish dreams, is passing away; and when we awake, it will be into the sunlight of God."

In the hearts of all Eastland and surrounding community as well as other communities in which he had wandered during life, there is grief and sorrow because a faithful and true friend is dead. Mr. Lyon, who has been casting light in Eastland for the past 16 years left a heritage that is priceless because men, women and children wept at his bier. During life he was a comforter and companion. 31 years remained constantly on his side, encouraging, helping, always finding a way to happen together. Children blessed him to add to the joys of living. Mr. Lyon was a devout Christian. He was considerate always to his neighbor, whether in an executive capacity or just a worker with him. He was patient and kind to dumb animals, surrounding himself with them. He understood them and they understood the fine quality of the man. He loved his home, and was always fixing here and there and doing things to make a home something worth while. He loved flowers, and lived among them, realizing that God was in every color, in every petal, and that there was something sacred to his faith and trust in God in them. Fellow employees of the Consolidated Gasoline corporation of which he was a part paid him the greatest tribute that can be paid to a man, by their presence at the last hour, and by their comment: "He was a good man." It does seem so unreal to take away from us such a man as Mr. Lyon, whose creed was to do unto others as one would have them to do unto you. But God in His Wisdom calls His children at will. Mr. Lyon's work on earth was finished according to God as far as material things and service are concerned. His immortal spirit however will linger down through the years, and its influence will be felt in the hearts and souls of men who knew him. Those most dear to him who remain to carry on can rejoice in the thought that a true and faithful husband, a noble and courageous father, is now sitting at the right hand of God, assisting in dispensing the universe in its course of events. To them all hearts go out in sincere sympathy, to them such cannot be said to comfort them in this their greatest hour of sorrow, but behind an encouraging smile, a warm handclasp, a wounded heart, that can be the consolation to them that there are those who care, and who grieve with them in silence. The only real comfort is God. He gives life and He takes it away. John Brady said while waiting for death on the ship of the ill-fated Lusitania: "I fear death, it is life's great adventure." We here can console on rendering service to man and the call comes from the Great Commander. G. P. Lyon did it, in the glory of God.

Romantic Wartime Figure Injured

Swerving his speeding motorcycle in an heroic effort to avoid striking a boy bicyclist, Col. T. E. Lawrence (above) was himself desperately injured at Wool, England. Famed as the mysterious "Lawrence of Arabia" who led the Arab revolt against Turkey in the World War, he afterward expressed his disappointment at the failure of Arabia to become an independent nation by living as a refugee—then served for 12 years in the Royal Air Force as "Aircraftman T. E. Shaw," refusing all honors.

(Copyright 1935 by United Press) VATICAN CITY, ROMA, May 18.—A plea to England to return to the Roman Catholic church will be contained in the homily, which Pope Pius will read at the canonization of Thomas Moore and John Fisher at St. Peter's on Sunday. The pope's plea, it was understood, will be on the ground that England should return to the Roman church to make one flock under one shepherd.

Crew of Famous Liner On Strike

PARIS, France, May 18.—The crew of the trans-Atlantic liner, Paris, numbering 700, joined the walkout of 2,000 members of the crews of big French line vessels today, coincident with action to charge the strikers with desertion. It was disclosed penalties of desertion were being formulated against the crew of the Champlain. Officials were still hopeful the new Normandie, one of the largest liners ever built, would be able to start her maiden voyage on May 29, as scheduled. Efforts of the merchant marine to end the controversy over wages so far have been futile.

Davis, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said Saturday, who added that he was informed from the relief office that it will be resumed next month. Sheriff Named In A Suit For Death of Man

Sheriff Virge Foster and the American Surety company of Dallas, his bondsmen, were named defendants Friday in a $10,200 suit filed by Mrs. Ethel E. Bachus, whose husband was allegedly accidentally fatally shot during a raid on a still last year. Mrs. Bachus, acting as best friend for six minor children, alleges in the petition that Sheriff Foster acted unlawfully and was negligent in the performance of his duty when he shot at and in the direction of her husband, Stephen W. Bachus, who she claimed offered no resistance and fled. The accident occurred near Nimrod, Dec. 6, 1934. Children for whom Mrs. Bachus filed the suit are Marsh Waston, 13; Warren, 11; Bernice, 10; Ivan, 7, and Eugene, 3. She filed an oath stating that she was unable to give security for costs in the suit. Of the $10,200 asked, $200 is for funeral and burial costs of her husband. Mrs. Bachus alleges in the petition that her husband was a farmer and trader at the time of the accident and was earning $1,500 per year. Also, she recites that formerly he was a mechanic and earned $3,000 a year.

ROOSEVELT TO READ MESSAGE ON BONUS BILL

WASHINGTON, May 18.—President Roosevelt threw all his strength today into a dramatic move to crush the Patman bonus bill. Breaking all precedent, he determined to appear before a joint session of the senate and house next week to plead for defeat of the proposal to bring $2,200,000,000 in new money to pay the veterans. Historians could not recall when a president showed such fighting tactics against legislation he believed harmful. President Roosevelt did not reveal when he would address the joint session. Congressional leaders believed he would be ready on Monday. Senate democratic leaders, cheered by his decision, declared it would have a powerful effect, and predicted their forces would sustain his veto by a comfortable margin. Conditions in the house were different. Speaker Joseph W. Byrnes said he did not believe the personal appearance would have much effect. The lower chamber always has voted overwhelmingly in favor of all bonus legislation. It is not expected to change, although the president announced he would word his veto message as strongly as he could. Patman forces were alarmed.

Recreate Town As a Memorial

ROCKPORT, Ind.—The Lincoln Pioneer Village, a memorial to the martyred President, will be dedicated to the Spencer County Historical Society July 4. The Memorial is surrounded by a high stockade, and its buildings duplicate log cabins, churches, schools and stores that stood in Spencer County between 1816 and 1830, the years Abraham Lincoln lived there. More than 3,000 logs donated by farmers in the county were hauled to the memorial and fashioned into the buildings by FERA workers. The village will consist of buildings when completed, George Honig, sculptor and Lincoln lore authority, has directed the work. Among the more interesting buildings in the memorial are replicas of Judge Pitcher's law office where Lincoln obtained books for study, the home of Daniel Grass, a meeting house for early settlers; the Pigeon Baptist church, where Thomas Lincoln, his wife, and Abraham worshiped, and Tom Tom Lincoln's cabin.

GODERICH, Ont.—A tailless calf, born on the farm of Robert Durn, near here, is thriving well and is apparently normal in every other respect.

Adolf Hitler to Speak On Peace

By United Press BERLIN, Germany May 18.—Adolf Hitler will try further to convince Europe that Germany's conscript army is to be an instrument of peace when he addresses the reichstag Tuesday. His speech is intended to be an answer to the League of Nations council resolution condemning German rearmament as illegal. Actually, it was said, the speech would cover many European problems, including eastern security and the French-Russian military assistance treaty—whose signature angered Germans—well aware as they are against whom it is aimed.

DAMAGE DONE BY HIGH WIND IN THE COUNTY

Rain, accompanied by high wind that did considerable damage, struck swiftly in Eastland county Friday night, doing considerable damage. In Eastland the east fence of the Eastland High school football field was blown down early in the night when one inch of rain fell during the storm. About the same time the storm struck with much more force near Olden, uprooting several trees and doing considerable property damage to the Texas Electric Service company high line and damaging crops considerably. About one-third of a mile of the highline that furnishes power and lights for Ranger was blown down, plunging Ranger in darkness at 8:10 and it was an hour and a half before electric service was resumed. In the meantime a large crowd of movie fans, which had gathered at the Arcadia Theatre, were given their money back and the theatre was closed down for the night. The wind whipped into Ranger with the suddenness of a tornado, doing considerable property damage. Several houses were blown from their foundations, a number of garages were demolished, some being scattered over a large area by the high wind. A number of houses were unroofed or had damage done to the roofs and a number of trees in the residential section, particularly along Young street, were uprooted or stripped of large limbs. A stucco house on East Main street, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Canfield, was unroofed and the water that poured into the house caused ceilings in three of the rooms to cave in and considerable damage was done to the household effects. Several tin roofs in the town were blown off or the eaves were bent back by the force of the wind and communication and light lines were damaged in several places, so that service was temporarily interrupted. D. L. Jameson reported today that the bridge between Gorman and Desdemona had washed out. Several cars in attempting to detour were forced to turn back. It is about three miles out of Gorman on the Desdemona road.

PASTOR SEEKS GAMBLING BAN FOR EL PASO

EL PASO, Texas, May 18.—The governor and the attorney general may be asked to stop gambling in El Paso, it was announced here today by Rev. L. O. Vermillion, Baptist minister. In a statement to newspapers Rev. Vermillion said he had called on county and district attorneys in El Paso to close gambling houses by injunction, but that they both refused. "In view of the attitude of those two officials, there remains the alternative of a private citizen to institute proceedings, or appeal to the attorney general or to the governor to send rangers to clean up the town," Rev. Vermillion said.

TRAN-ATLANTIC FLIER IS KILLED

DETROIT, Mich., May 18.—Stanley Hauser, 24, Polish trans-Atlantic flier, was killed today when his new plane, March 20, crashed through the roof of a home here, exploded and set fire to three buildings.

TWO SCORE ARE INJURED BY HIGH WIND

Floods Accompany Winds in Many Sections of The State.

Destructive winds whirled freakishly across Texas today, injuring more than two score persons and causing damage to property amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars. Rains sent streams flooding across highways and farms. Storm warnings for small craft were run up along the gulf coast and a thunder squall blew gusts at 80 miles an hour. Three persons were injured seriously and several others received minor hurts at Fort Worth when a small tornado ripped through a residential district at daybreak. The storm, accompanied by rain and lightning, zig-zagged a course through several blocks of homes. One negro was hurt seriously and several other persons suffered minor injuries when a tornado struck Henne on the South Texas coastal plain. The storm cut a swath through the residential section. A cloudburst accompanied the blow. Another tornado at Teague in Eastern Central Texas, injured one man, caused minor hurts to numerous others and resulted in damage estimated at $100,000. Winds smashed through Marlin, accompanied by a two-inch down-pour. High water wrecked the Cedar Springs bridge on the Brazos river in Falls county. A tornado circled the east side of Gilmer at the northern edge of the East Texas oil field, demolishing barns and uprooting trees. Large sections of Gainesville, near the Oklahoma border, were under water as the Elm Fork of the Trinity river and Pecan creek, which flows through the center of town, overflowed. At least 50 residences were flooded and from 150 to 200 were homeless. The Rio Grande had swollen 15 feet and was near the flood stage. The highway from Del Rio to Eagle Pass was closed. The dam at Lake Decatur, 50 miles north of Fort Worth, burst under pressure of the great volume of water stored by rains and today the town was without a water supply. The flood loosed by the break washed out many bridges.

Rogers of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, of Washington, suffered a sprained ankle. Prof. Remet of the University of Michigan, received a cut on the leg. Hiram Broiles, Fort Worth, pilot, suffered a lacerated face and R. C. Brown, Wilmington, Del., Hankow representative of the DuPont interests, was uninjured.

Society Found Guilty of Failing Youth

They put society on trial in the high school building at Orange, N. J., the other day, accusing it of failing to give youth a square deal, and after a great deal of talk they found it guilty as charged.

"They" were some 3500 adults, drawn to the building by agencies of the Welfare Federation and civic societies; and this odd trial took place because a number of groups of young people had recently drawn up a series of charges against society.

Society, said the youngsters, fails youth because it makes it hard for youth to get jobs, makes proper marriage difficult, fails to provide institutions for the furthering of friendship, offers, many moral pitfalls in the shape of erotic literature, gambling joints, and gin-mills, and fails to teach youth how to use its leisure time to best advantage.

This was the indictment that drew the grown folks of Orange into their high school auditorium for a general discussion; and it would be a highly useful thing if the same sort of trial could be held in many other cities, because it helps to open our eyes to the responsibility which we owe to the young people who will be the adults of tomorrow.

It isn't so very much that these Jersey youngsters are asking, when you stop to think about it. Just a chance to earn a living, a chance to find a home without too many of those delays and trials that take the heart out of a person, a chance to grow up to decent manhood and womanhood, and a fairly even break in the age-old struggle for ordinary human happiness.

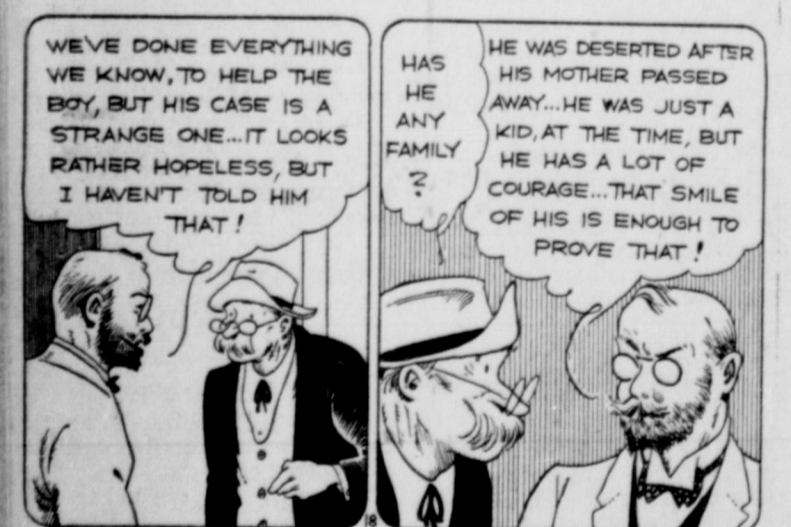

That isn't much—it's about the minimum that could be asked.

And yet youth seems to feel—if this case can be taken as a fair sample—that society is failing to provide even that minimum. And if that is true, then we are failing youth about as miserably as any society could fail.

We are rather fond of talking about the follies and the wildness of our younger generation. Grown people have been doing that since the days of Job, and they'll probably keep it up to endless time.

Until we can meet this criticism, and make our society the kind of place in which youth gets the break it is looking for, we have small reason to talk about youth's own shortcomings.

CHAPTER IX After the fog the morning was crisp and cool and invigorating. There was a blue sky, high ruffled clouds, and a breeze blowing over the harbor. Katharine dressed hurriedly, after her shower, eager to be out and away. Ellen brought her a tray because the others were not yet stirring. There was crisp toast and clear coffee and strips of bacon under a silver bell. "Oh, Ellen, this is a divine breakfast." "You've got your appetite back, Miss. That's what it is." It was the fog, the brooding heavy weather, that had made her feel so heavy and stupid, Katharine told herself. This morning she wanted to sing. "Dr. Kaye packing?" "I think he is, Miss. I heard him moving around in the gunroom." Bertine had put John in the gunroom, half a flight up, because she said it was quieter. Well, Katharine had said goodby to John last night; it would spoil things—be an anti-climax—if she saw him again now. Better slip away without saying a word. The morning was clean washed when she stepped out into it. Every separate blade of grass, every newly opened calyx enchanted her.

British Statesman

People were running toward them; a truckman whose vehicle was halted near the field, people from the white house where the dog belonged, a woman in a striped dress and two little girls. "Oh, is she badly hurt?" The woman, Katharine thought, had a nice sort of face with wise, tired eyes. The little girls stood staring, all flyaway blond hair and bare, sunbrowned legs. "Bring her up to our house," the woman said. To the dog, who had ceased to bark and now cowered naughtily in the hedges, she said scoldingly: "Bad Sandy! Bad boy!" "He'll be punished for this, he knows that," she told them, leading the procession. Katharine closed her eyes again. The truckman had gone to hold Prince Charlie's bridle. Some men down by the River Road had stopped Fury. It was very pleasant to be carried thus. Michael's arms were strong and gentle. Katharine opened her eyes again. They were going up the steps of the white house now. Michael was passing through a doorway. The remodeled farmhouse was comfortable in a homely way. Michael went up a flight of steps and the woman directed him to lay Katharine on a bed. The woman bent toward her anxiously. "I'll call my doctor," she said in a gentle voice. "Are you very much hurt?" Michael, looking extraordinarily big in this low-ceilinged room, towered over her. His face was dark with anxiety. "I—I don't believe so," Katharine said faintly. "Your head's all right?" Michael knelt down by the bed when Mrs. Merser went to telephone. They could hear her calling Dr. Cartwright down in the village. "My boots will soil the spread" Katharine whispered. It was pleasant, having Michael so worried about her. Now he wouldn't be able to ride with Sally Moon. It was such a silly idea that Katharine smiled, and Michael Heathercock watched that smile as a starving man might gaze at a loaf of bread. "Oh, don't worry about that, please," Mrs. Merser cried, coming back. "The spread doesn't matter. Poor child! I do feel so awfully responsible. That bad dog..."

The stout colored maid brought her to undress, and her hostess hurried pajamas and gown of many times washed striped silk. The children toiled up the stairs with offerings of flowers and shells. "They're enchanted," said Violet Merser to Katharine later. "They do so love a guest—and such a charming one." Bertine had come and gone, clucking and murmuring and rather averse to the arrangement until she, too, fell under Violet Merser's quiet charm. "But of course we don't know her," Bertine complained in a half whisper, when she and Katharine were alone. That was Innicoek's eternal complaint about a newcomer. "Does it matter?" Katharine closed her eyes. Here it was so quiet and peaceful. Bertine worried her. But after she had gone away, in the quiet of nightfall, Michael Heathercock came again. (To Be Continued)

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

THE year of 1886 is known as "The Great Rabbit Year," in the northwest. In Manitoba, by conservative estimates, there were 5000 snowshoe rabbits per square mile. But 1887 brought the inevitable plague, and the bodies of dead rabbits were to be seen every few yards throughout the country.

lected Columbia as a suitable place for meeting the first Monday in October, 1836. Columbia had a large hotel, the courts were located there, and the number of residences would make it possible for the officers to be well-established. Best of all, the Telegraph and Ttxas Register was located there. A print shop was absolutely necessary, in order that all the people of the republic might learn of the activities of their representative body of statesmen.

The first congress assembled on Oct. 3, 1836, at Columbia. When President Houston was inaugurated Oct. 22, he sent word through his message to congress that the seat of government was entirely undesirable. It was in a place of embarrassment and inconvenience. There was not a sufficient number of rooms! Nineteen rooms had been promised for congress, but there were hardly nine. Congress must settle the issue at once.

Centennial visitors in 1936 will not find Harrisburgh and Washington the promising cities pioneers thought they would be. But, they will find them existing, and can visualize how the republic must have been, 100 years ago.

Stone Shows the Vikings Landed Here in Year 1362

DETROIT LAKES, Minn. — Belief that a tribe of ancient Norsemen visited this territory in the 14th century was voiced by F. T. Gustavson, Pequot, Minnesota, nationally known anthropologist, after a study of several stones at Cormorant Lake near here known as the "Norse Anchor Stones."

After viewing the stones, Gustavson declared that the runic inscription on the famous Kensington Runestone fits entirely with the Cormorant Lake stones. The inscription on the Kensington stone reads: "Eight Goths and 22 Norwegians on exploration — journey from Vineland Westward. We had camp by two skerries one day—the distance traveled by boat along the coast of Norway, about "The lake with the 'two skerries' is Cormorant Lake," he added "while the sea where the ships were left is probably Hudson Bay. The party must have come down the Nelson River, Lake Winnipeg and the Red River to the mouth of the Buffalo River and by this stream to Cormorant Lake—vestiges of the Norsemen still main."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON.—Strange as it may or may not seem, the big business gentry now so bitterly attacking the New Deal are manfully concealing one of their chief sources of grief.

The tale may remind you of that brave young Spartan boy who let the fox beneath his coat bite him to death rather than admit that he had been stealing.

But the cynical insiders chuckle rudely as they agree that what's really biting the big corporation executives hardest is the spotlight the New Deal has turned on their frequently enormous salaries.

Between questionnaires of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, it's got so a corporation president can't even conceal his salary from the company's own stockholders.

THE most deplorable phase of it all is that some of the stockholders are beginning to squawk. They can usually be beaten down by proxies, but it is annoying for such tycoons as Charlie Schwab and Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel at annual meetings to have to defend their respective salaries of $250,000 and $180,000 against stockholder complaints that such payments are too high in view of the fact that Bethlehem's 1934 profit was only $550,000.

"Dusting the Covers of Texas History"

February, 1836, found the seat of government of Texas located at Washington-on-the-Brazos, a little town where the San Antonio road crossed the river. Although it had been laid out in 1835, it was made a municipality in July of the same year, and by the spring of 1836 it contained 50 houses. There was hardly room for the governmental officers; so President David Burnet suggested that the government be moved to Harrisburg.

"The enemy are at San Antonio de Bexar. He is afraid they will find Washington is quite near," those who wanted the capitol to remain there said.

In another month Santa Anna and his forces were about to take possession of the town. It was deserted within two days. The government party went to Galveston Island, as a last hope of defense. They had hardly left old Harrisburgh before San Anna came through and burned the town to ashes.

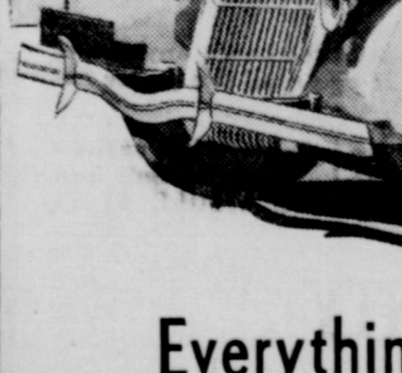

GENERALS and admirals come to secret sessions of the congressional military and naval affairs committees, stride grimly up and down the room before maps and charts, and let the pop-eyed congressmen in on secrets of the "next war."

Some of their tales of menace and hidden preparations are wondrous but fascinating. The price of such a show is likely to be a few more million dollars for the taxpayers.

Lately the gold-braid boys have been whispering to certain congressmen that this country is in imminent danger of a Communist uprising—and that bigger appropriations are necessary to enable troops to shoot down the mobs.

THE kind of thing that goes on before the committees when the doors are locked was shown in the testimony of Brigadier-Generals Andrews and Kilbourne, which was printed in a public document through an error which brought down Roosevelt's wrath on Chairman J. J. McSwain of the House Military Affairs Committee.

Everything you want in a modern motor car

WHEN you talk to the man who owns and drives the car, you're pretty sure to get an opinion you can bank on. We asked a recent purchaser of a Ford V-8 how he liked it.

"It has everything," he said. "Everything I've ever wanted in a motor car."

Nothing spectacular about that—no loud shouting. But it sums up the whole story of the Ford V-8 and the reason it is setting the pace for 1935. That has been the Ford idea always—to give people a well-balanced, all-around car. No one feature is stressed at the expense of others.

Of course the V-8 engine stood out from the beginning. The idea of putting into a low-priced car an engine which had always been associated

S. O. S. Club Meets
 One of the charming evenings of the S. O. S. club was that held recently at the home of Miss Wanza Thomas. House decorations were in pink roses, and tables for bridge centered with these blooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Valson Jones

Charming Recital

The public well remembers the recent one, in which one-half of her pupils took, and a similar treat is promised in this one by the other half.

Junior Thursday Club
Indoor Picnic
 The continuous rain disrupted many social affairs this week, including the 6:30 o'clock picnic at the city park, which turned into an indoor picnic affair in community clubhouse, Thursday. A supper was provided and after the luncheon Miss Maurine Davenport, their president, conducted a brief business session.

The report of Mrs. Harry B. Sone, delegate from the club to the Alpine convention, was heard with eral years. There must be a grand feeling in the hearts of those folks out there and a gracious thanks to God. Drouth takes care of the over supply, now that there is another possibility of an abundance, instead of destroying it for so-called higher prices, it should be preserved for the next drouth which is sure to come. There is no need for any American citizen starving. If they do, its our fault and not God's.

President Roosevelt has given an intimation that he will deliver his veto of the Patman bonus bill to Congress in person. Whatever it may be in the manner of speech should have no bearing on the first intention of the House and the senate. One man cannot solve the problem of millions and always be right. No plans for prosperity nor recovery can be upset by the paying of the bonus. It is due them and should be paid, and the Patman bill had all the facts weighed in the balance before it came to a vote of congress. That should have been sufficient for the president to take it more seriously than that of a determination to veto it. With all honor and faith in the president, and that is worthy to sit as a ruler over this nation, and is sincere in his every act, we still say that the bonus bill should pass, as we do not believe in infallibility. Yet if the president does veto it, then men in all walks of life should continue their battle along the lines of sane efforts, and not attempt a marching element of excited and unruly citizens. Men in all walks of life, in high station of the masses have a God given right to honest opinion.

OAK GROVE
 The week was to be peanut planting week with our farmers and we started into it with a vim but another good rain that fell Tuesday morning and again at night has spoiled the fun and changed the week to a rainy week. Fred Milford had the misfortune to lose his cow and calf a few days ago. The cause of her death was not known.
 J. E. Cannaday had a good mare accidentally killed Tuesday of this week. She left a young colt one week old.

The health of this community is good as far as we can learn, but this wet weather may bring a change in the general health if it should continue being wet. However we do not mean to sound a pessimistic note.
