Six Southwest Bandits Captured by Agents

That finds me...

Celebrations like everything else come and go. The opening of Highway 89 celebration is now a part of the history. Speakers for the day had the attention of the audience. The high school band gave a wonderful and entertaining program. The Hardin-Simmons Cowboy band a remarkable program of prize drawing music on the city park grounds; the North Texas State Teachers college orchestra of Denton entertained the guests at the banquet on the roof of the Connellee, in featured numbers and the good old nationally known Tickville band of Ranger swelled the hearts of listeners with mirth and appreciation as usual at the grounds. The ringing voices of forceful speakers such as Ray Nichols, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; W. R. Ely, former member of the State Highway Commission; Ben Keeling of Springfield; Senator Grady Woodruff of Decatur; Hamilton McRae, president of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce; Judge Sam Russell of Stephenville, and J. C. Moreno, of Eastland in a black face monologue, interested all with their constructive and enthusiastic remarks for the best interest of the state and community. Since Highway 89 was the Hon. Milburn McCarty's "baby" to speak, his wonderful personality was active and busy bobbing around here and there whenever necessary to see that everything was taken care of and presided over the different functions of the day—and he did a wonderful job of it.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of the day was the remarkable manner in which the peace officers of Eastland city force, the county police department and the highway patrol handled the crowds. Not an accident, nobody hurt, not even a car got a scratch, and keeping traffic with a precision that only such trained men of their ability can accomplish. They are due a unanimous vote of thanks and appreciation from everybody and we can be proud that we have such men to look after the details of traffic and upholding the general laws of the state, county and city. Everyone of them are men who know how to handle people, crowds and bring order out of confusion, and they know how to curb the temper of a crowd, and to have and that's the kind we have. Our hats are off to the members of the state patrol, the sheriff's department and the city police.

We cannot help but comment on the nice decorations placed on the business streets by the members of the fire department—and incidentally the fire boys were alert to any emergency as usual. They are on their toes, and worthy of the good will and appreciation from the citizenship.

On June 22nd there is going to be held in Eastland the annual picnic of the employees of the Eastland Gas Company. Those who keep the cash register ringing in this community every day the year around, selected Eastland as the place to the extent to see that the picnic was left undone to see that the picnic here will be one long and happy picnic. It is estimated that thousands to twelve hundred employees and officials at the annual picnics of the company. This year many employees are expected that have attended previous ones. They had a healthy and fine specimens of the company—and they in every way make good citizens, pay through and take an active part in the civic, church and social life of the community in general. Eastland has a fine association with them which we can be gratefully represent the largest picnic in this section. Come on for you on June 22.

Mickle, Sr., prides himself on the fact that he has been in the business for fifty years, dealing with farmers, stockmen and growers. To have the ability to be in business for fifty years is a worthy of consistent pride; and with men who furnish necessities of life is something to be proud of. He is a white man while his fellow man is a colored man. (Continued on page 6)

Speaking of Federal Aid for Texas Centennial

The house foreign affairs committee of congress had given tentative oral approval of a joint resolution authorizing federal participation in the Texas Centennial exposition and then recessed without taking decisive action. Rep. Hamilton Fish, republican of New York, a member of the committee, said: "Texas is a big state and this thing ought to be put over in a big way." Then he added that he would like to study a table of how much the government has appropriated for similar celebrations." Instead of a $3,000,000 appropriation by the federal lawmakers, there are members from outside states who insist that the amount should be reduced.

Rep. Hamilton Fish of the celebrated Fish family is to be congratulated. He has made the very interesting discovery that Texas is a big state "and the thing should be put over in a big way." Congratulations to the republican representative from the city of New York. Texas is a big state—the biggest of all the states of the sisterhood. In the year 1950 Texas may have a population far greater than the entire state of New York including the Greater City and its metropolitan trade district.

Things are moving under Southwest skies and the signs of the times are very promising to say the least. There was a drouth last year. There is moisture in the soil this year. And wise men say that the drouth was more damaging or destructive to certain sections of Texas last year than the depression, regardless of all the bunk of the loss of foreign markets, including cotton, and the dire prediction of hostile critics that the republic is headed headlong for the bottomless pit with the donkey heading the procession.

Trying to be what we are not always spells trouble.

acknowledges an unwilling attraction toward him. She is worried over the progress of an affair between Zoe Parker, her best friend, and Gibbs Larkin, of whom Zoe's parents disapprove.

Katharine and Dr. John Kaye, friend of the Strykhurst family, take Zoe to a night club where she sees Gibbs with a notorious woman, Zoe threatens to kill herself. That same night Michael is inveigled into taking Sally Moon, local coquette, to the same place. Sally, arriving home late, informs her father that she and Michael are engaged.

Zoe takes poison. Dr. Kaye works all night to save her life and succeeds. Katharine hears that Michael is going to marry Sally Moon.

Now Go On With the Story CHAPTER XX

Katharine said, persistently, "I want to get away, Daddy." Victor Strykhurst frowned. "I don't know what gets into you girls nowadays," he complained. "Zoe Parker has to be dragged all over Europe and even when she gets home she's not satisfied; why, you've got everything in the world you want—"

Katharine listened patiently. Stubbornly she went back to her argument.

"There's nothing for me to do here. Frankly, I'm bored. I'd like a job."

The snowy eyebrows shot up. "What could you do? No, its nonsense; I won't have it. People'd say Bertine hadn't been good to you. And she has been good, hasn't she?"

It was almost pathetic, his desire for approval of Bertine, Katharine thought. Dryly, she said, "Of course. But, Daddy, couldn't I have some of my own money now—the money Mother left in trust for me? It will be mine anyhow next year."

The merest shadow crossed his face. "Oh? No, I think that would be irregular. The bank probably wouldn't hear of it."

"I thought you had it in charge." His high color deepened. "Little girls shouldn't bother their heads about business. Your money will be paid over in due time."

He rose, terminating the interview. "Buy yourself a new hat and forget about it, my dear."

That, Katharine told herself wandering out into the morning, was that. She had been a fool to think she could do anything with her father.

But how could she bear Innicoek now?

Bertine's words of the day before rang in her mind. Was it true? Could it be true that Michael Heatheroe was going to marry Sally Moon?

Incredible! Katharine's mind—her heart—rejected it.

Bertine had said coolly, "Of course the Moons are up in arms. But what can they do? The girl's always been a wild one. And undoubtedly the man's a fortune hunter. Sally Moon will have a very tidy little fortune of her own some day."

She had dismissed the whole matter. Somehow Katharine had got out of the room. No one, she was sure, had noticed. Not even John Kaye, who saw everything, usually.

She made the day pass somehow. Strange how empty hours could be when you hadn't anything to look forward to. Swimming, tennis, French lessons—sitting at the wheel of some boat with an attentive, bronzed young man beside you. It was all a dream in which you moved and spoke automatically.

So Michael Heatheroe was a fortune hunter! Could she believe that? Michael, with his lean, tanned face and those eyes that were so shrewd and kindly—could a man like that be really mean and base?

Or had he fallen desperately in love with the bundle of feminine flutter and curls that was Sally Moon?

The town buzzed with the sensation for several days. Have you heard? That crazy Sally Moon's gone and got herself engaged to the man who runs the riding club. Of course he's a nobody, my dear, but quite good manners, and so good-looking. Oh, well, the Moons are really outsiders, anyhow. Her mother was a girl in a shop, some place. . . . And so on and so on. Small town gossip. Picked up avidly by the lurching, bridge-playing women at the country club, tossed from mouth to mouth.

Katharine thought it would drive her frantic, at first. But she steel-ed herself to it. After a week—two weeks—she found she could bear the thought without flinching. She had not been back to ride since the formal announcement in the papers. Therefore she had not met the slightly puzzled, unhappy look in the eyes of Michael Heatheroe. She had not been compelled to see Sally's triumphant smile or air of possessiveness.

"Well, I know one thing, my dear," she heard Bertine say impressively to Mrs. Romantle. "I know if she brings him to the club I shall complain. I shall certainly expect all the members who know the man to cut him. It's not decent."

Rage had choked Katharine. She had flung herself out of the house, unable to trust herself further.

Zoe was completely recovered now. Lisa Parker took her out to Colorado in late August. Dr. Kaye came out less often these days. His practice was growing. Bertine had told everyone proudly that he was Park Avenue's most popular specialist.

So Katharine was left more and more to herself. She began to refuse invitations to dinners and dances, including the younger set of Innicoek. Such parties bored her. She got into the habit, without Bertine's knowledge, of putting her sketching things into the car and driving up to Violet Mercer's. Even if Violet were not at home, Katharine could set her easel up in the garden back of the little white house and work away busily and happily for hours.

The Mercer garden was a pleasant jungle of old-fashioned flowers. Zinnias, nasturtiums, ageratum, snapdragons made a perfect riot of color here. Hollyhocks, gone to seed, leaned idly against the clapboard walls and within a picket fence enclosure of the drying yard. A rocky path wandered up the hills behind the house. Katharine tore her stockings and scratched her hands on tangled berry bushes. Mint grew in a fragrant carpet behind the asters. It was all old-fashioned and comfortable and satisfying. Sometimes one of the small girls, sunbaked and hatless, with tawny hair flying in the breeze, would run out to glance over her shoulder.

"Oh, that's lovely! Come, Mummy, see—she's done the bird bath and the roses."

Katharine loved it here. It meant release and escape. Her soul, feeling its inevitable growing pains, expanded in this simple, unceremonial atmosphere.

Stanley Mercer came back from his western trip and joined the family group without destroying the charm. He was a stooped, silent, gentle man in his late thirties. An artist, Stan Mercer, and a good one. The little girls adored him. His wife was devoted to him, anxious for his comfort and happiness.

It was a good marriage—a solid, permanent, companionable marriage. Katharine observing of it, felt that Violet Mercer was a fortunate woman. Still Violet had told her one day that Stan hadn't been her first love. No, their coming together had been the culmination of a more mature attachment. Yet Violet was happy. . . .

Maybe all the fevers and fury of first love were wasted.

And yet—and yet—Katharine couldn't bear to see Michael Heatheroe just now. Later, perhaps, when she had got over the shock of knowing he was going to marry someone else. When she'd managed to forget those scraps of words she had treasured so foolishly.

"My darling," he had called her, holding her in his arms, that day. Fury had flung her. . . .

Or had she dreamed it? Voices intruded into her day dream. "Katharine, we're going to have tea under the big maple. Want to take time out?"

She put down her pencil. "Oh, tea would be grand?"

Lavinia brought the big silver tray with the quimper cups on it and the thinly-sliced bread and the silver pot.

"Anybody want it iced? Stan, you? Or Evelyn?"

Evelyn Vincent was an Englishwoman, a friend of Violet's. She came now, balancing her cup, to glance at Katharine's sketch.

"Oh, that's very nice, my dear. Look, Stan, don't you think so?"

"Mind if we look, Katharine?" The girl shook her head, smiling. Funny, she didn't mind in the least if these people looked at her work. With Bertine, she would have fairly squirmed.

Stanley Mercer, tall and loose-jointed in his white cotton slacks and blue shirt, came over to squint down at the easel.

"Why, this is awfully good. Evelyn, you ought to be able to do something with it."

Katharine, her heart beating very fast, looked from one to the other. They weren't making fun of her; they were in earnest! She had tried to hard to get it all in—the rocks and the drooping gray-green plants clustered about them and the flame and burnt orange of the nasturtiums. . . .

"You've got something there, really," said Evelyn Vincent, who ran an art shop on Fifth Avenue.

For the first time in weeks hope stirred in Katharine's heart. Her "dabbling," as Bertine had always called it, contemptuously, might prove to be a way out for her, after all.

"CALIENTE" DRESSES SMASH HIT AT LYRIC

With all its beauty and haunting music and expense, comes to Eastland the latest First National "In Caliente" has premiered at the Lyric

"Caliente" is a musical with wit, replete with humor, action, romance, and introduces production numbers that spectators will agree exceed previous efforts of Busby, who staged the dances in Warner Bros. First National which preceded it. Action takes place in Agua that "made-to-order" resort near the California, and concerns the ad of Pot O'Brien, who is the military or naval servant, in the role of a hard-boiled editor is kidnapped to the resort on a expedition by his publisher Edward Everett Horton. He runs into Dolores Del Rio, a Spanish dancer, who dances by from Glenda Farrell, portraying a blonde menace. Carrillo has the role of Miss rascally uncle who tries in on her charm. Others cast who do excellent work Regan, who has a special number; Dorothy Dare, Winthrop, who also sings one of

She Gets Her Man

Bette Davis (above) was the man wrecker in "Bordertown" and "Of Human Bondage." Now, she makes a man of a society derelict in "The Girl From 10th Avenue," the First National picture which will open at the Lyric Theatre, 11 p. m., Saturday night.

The big production songs; Luis Alberni, George Humbert, William Davidson, Harry Holman, Soledad Jimenez, Herman Bing and Florence Fair.

The DeMarcos, famous dancers, make their film debut in the picture and another novelty is the specialty singing number of the Canova Family.

The costumes are particularly noteworthy, and may start some new style fads.

Busby Berkeley has outdone himself in the three numbers he created and directed, especially in the "Muchacha," in which a score of blonde horses appear with the dark-eyed señoritas.

In this number, which is sung by Phil Regan, Miss Del Rio appears with the ensemble in a specialty dance. Miss Shaw is responsible for the song "Lady in Red," while the title number "In Caliente," is excellently rendered by a group of entertainers.

Lloyd Bacon has done an excellent job of directing. The screen play was written by Jerry Wald and Julius Epstein on story by Ralph Block and Warren Duff. The picture has caught the spirit and the tempo of the gay resort for which it is named, and assures a most entertaining evening.

"FOLIES BERGERE" COMING TO TOWN

The most famous of the world's musical extravaganza is brought to the screen for the first time in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Folies Bergeres," starring Maurice Chevalier and coming to the Lyric Theatre for two days Monday.

More than $1,000,000 was spent in creating the sensational effects for this 20th Century kaeidroscope of musical thrills, in which the singing star plays his first dual role. Chevalier is seen not only as Charlier, charming, singing, straw-hatted star of The Folies Bergeres, but as the amorous, be-mustached, be-monocled French baron whom Charlier impersonates in his act, as well.

The scenes of the original Folies Bergeres so familiar to visitors to gay Paree—the auditorium of the famous music hall, the Folies bar and all the rest of the colorful settings, have been reproduced in this magnificent screen adaptation.

Merle Oberon makes her Hollywood debut as the seductively beautiful wife of the Baron, while Ann Sothern is cast as Mimi, the jealous partner and sweetheart of Charlier.

Things begin to happen when Charlier is called in to impersonate the Baron in life as well as in the Folies, and a hilarious climax is reached when the Baron returns unexpectedly and tests his beautiful wife's fidelity by pretending to be merely Charlier's impersonation of himself.

Several sensational dance numbers, featuring a hundred beautiful dancing girls, were staged by Dave Gould, noted for the Caricoa Number in "Flying Down to Rio" and the Continental Number in "The Gay Divorcee."

The lavish musical effects cost $30,000 a minute to film and are said to be the most thrilling ever flashed on a screen. All are staged in the manner for which the Folies Bergeres is internationally famous.

Chevalier sings five songs especially written by Jack Stern and Jack Meskill and the team of Lane and Adamson who wrote "Stormy Weather." He also sings a chorus of "Valentina," with which he first broke into fame in the original Folies Bergeres as well as on Broadway.

Roy Del Ruth directed "Folies Bergeres" for release through United Artists.

BETTE DAVIS IN NEW FILM DRAMA COMING TO LYRIC

Bette Davis, cast at last in a role in which she will be loved instead of hated by her audiences, is coming to the Lyric theatre at 11 p. m. Saturday night and Sunday in the First National picture "The Girl From 10th Avenue," a screen drama based on the sensational stage play by Hubert Henry Davies.

Miss Davis' work in "Of Human Bondage" established her as one of the screen's outstanding emotional actresses. Opposite Paul Muni in "Bordertown," she added to her prestige. Now she has a part in which there is not only ample opportunity for her to display the dramatic ability for which she is famed but to which she can bring her fine, if seldom recognized, talent as a comedienne.

Supporting Miss Davis are two brilliant English stage and screen stars, Ian Hunter and Colin Clive. Others in the cast are Alison Skipworth, John Eldredge, Phillip Reed, Katherine Alexander, Helen Jerome Eddy, Gordon Elliott, Adrian Rosley, Andre Cheron and Edward McWade.

"The Girl From 10th Avenue" relates the adventure of a young shop girl who marries a society derelict at a cocktail party and then makes a man of him despite his addiction to drink, wild women and foolish friends.

Ian Hunter was brought to this country to play the part of The-sens in Warner Bros. "Midsummer Night's Dream," and was immediately engaged to play the role opposite Miss Davis. Colin Clive has the role of an old rake who marries Katherine Alexander, who portrays a married and flirtatious gold digger who don't care how many lives she ruins to further her own ends. Alfred E. Green directed from the screen play by Charles Kenyon.

Dolores Del Rio Sets New Dress Styles

Dolores Del Rio, First National star, wears a diversified array of smart garments in her new musical, "In Caliente," which comes to the Lyric Theatre today. These include evening gowns, cocktail gowns, afternoon dresses, sport outfits and negligees.

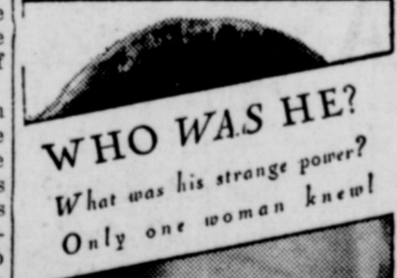

The production is a veritable 1935 style show, according to Director Lloyd Bacon.

Stage Comedienne With Bette Davis

Alison Skipworth, grand old comedienne of the stage, has a comedy role in "The Girl From 10th Avenue," Bette Davis' new starring vehicle, which comes to the Lyric Theatre 11 p. m. Saturday. "I almost killed myself rushing from one studio to the other," she growled, "but I was determined to do this role. You see the trouble is I was working on a picture at another studio at the same time."

Director Names New Carnation For Star

A beautiful new carnation, hybridized by Director Alfred E. Green on his 1,500 acre Puente Valley ranch, was named "The Bette Davis," in honor of the First National star whom Green is directing in the romantic story, "The Girl From 10th Avenue," Saturday night and Sunday showing at the Lyric Theatre. The bloom, one of several developed by Green, is a lovely raspberry shade, streaked with a deeper red, and exquisitely ruffled. Miss Davis was presented with a bouquet of the new blooms, and also a half a dozen of the "Bette Davis" plants for her Hollywood hillside garden.

How Sir Blakeney cleverly outwits Chauvelin in the very face of a firing squad and opens the way to new love and understanding between himself and Marguerite forms a thrilling climax.

That Reminds Me

This week Mr. Mickle announces a special event in an advertisement which features an American citizen plowing down the rows, and as he goes to put the prices at rock bottom and show them how much I do appreciate my experiences of business life." The bottom of the advertisement tells only a part of the story—the 18,000 square feet of floor space in the store on West

Main street tells the rest with merchandise piled up to the ceiling. Its a big store and a big man runs it, with his son, Omar Mickle, who isn't a teeny weenie man either, and they both know how to smile and keep folks in a good humor.

There is another fellow and his charming wife that Eastland can be proud of for their efficiency in handling crowds in an emergency or otherwise. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Scott, operating what is fast becoming West Texas' most popular hotel, the Connellee, did the perfect job Thursday in seeing that everything went off in shipshape fashion during the day, for the celebration part of the Highway 89 program. The noon luncheon was a cracker-jack. The evening dance was orderly and well attended and the overplus was handled to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

It's good to have a good hotel, and it's better to have folks like the Scotts running it. And of course the employees were strictly on the job and knew how to handle their particular duties from the coffee shop girls to the porters, which of course includes those two popular desk clerks, Burt Finley and S. S. Griggs.

Let's have Recovery...

THE one goal toward which we are all striving is RECOVERY! What will bring Recovery? Recovery depends upon the building of bigger payrolls; fewer people on the dole; the creation of more real jobs.

And the only way to build bigger payroll is through renewed business confidence, confidence of investors in the soundness of the securities of American industries, confidence of business in the fairness of government.

There can never be RECOVERY as long as industry is threatened and harassed, as long as it is throttled by crushing taxes, destroyed by unfair government competition or ruined by governmental red tape, interference and political control.

Before any measure of true RECOVERY can be restored the fog of uncertainty and fear that now engulfs American business must be dispelled!

Passage of the Wheeler-Rayburn utility bill now pending in Congress would instill new and increased fear into all business. Thousands of employees of the electric holding and operating companies, which the would arbitrarily hinder and destroy, would be forced to join the millions of jobless.

With a single stroke it would bring tremendous loss to ten million utility investors this state and the rest of the country. The folks really own the utility industries.

The way to RECOVERY is through the establishment of business confidence which will permit private, tax-paying capital to go to work again. If we are to attain RECOVERY in the next few years our country must become a workshop, not a laboratory.

The Wheeler-Rayburn bill would seriously retard RECOVERY!
