Failure Seems Our Lot With Dirigibles

Numerous as the talents of the American people undoubtedly are, it is beginning to look as though the knack of building and piloting huge dirigibles successfully is a talent which they lack.

The Macon's plunge into the Pacific differs from our earlier airship tragedies principally in that it was not accompanied by large loss of life. In other respects it is dismayingly similar to them.

A line squall destroyed the Shenandoah. Wind and weather sent the Akron down into the Atlantic. Just what wrecked the Macon is not yet clear, but the probable cause seems to have been the big ship's collapse in a kind of weather which both airplanes and surface ships combat without much difficulty.

In addition, of course, there may have been some structural fault which has not been made public.

All this, to a public which was originally stirred to great enthusiasm by these gleaming silver airships, is exceedingly disturbing.

And as the naval and congressional committees get to work to find out the cause of the latest disaster, it would be good if they could find out definitely whether the fault in this string of accidents lies with ourselves or is something inherent in all big airships.

So far, the weight of the evidence seems to lay most of the blame on the dirigibles.

These ships are big, graceful, marvels of design and construction—and, apparently, a little too frail. It may be that it simply is not possible to put into these light and airy creations sufficient sturdiness to withstand the heavy strains an d stresses of aerial travel.

In other words, it may that we now have enough evidence to justify the conclusion that the dirigible is not and cannot be made practical.

Before we leap to this conclusion, however, we need to do a little more digging. For on the other side of the Atlantic the Germans have shown an amazing ability to handle these airships without disaster. The tragedies that mark dirigible history over here are not duplicated in Germany.

And that leads us to our second consideration: Is the fault with ourselves? Are we just a shade less capable in the matters of design and building than the Germans? Is our method of training airship crews defective?

Is there some skill which the Germans have and which we lack, the possession of which makes the dirigible a safe and dependable craft?

We should not answer these questions offhand. The most thorough kind of investigation is needed—not merely to show why the Macon went down, but to show why all our airships go down; to show whether the airship experiment is worth continuing or not.

One Man Terracer Improves Farms

By United Press
PENNINGTON, Texas.—Farmers of the Friendship community just six miles from here believe M. V. "Bug" Hill is the best neighbor in Texas.

Hill is the champion "terracer" in these parts. Through a one-man terracing program, he has raised the value of deserted farm land $5 an acre and more.

"Bug" has been so interested in his neighbors' welfare that he has not spared time or expense to aid them. And his friends appreciate what he has done.

When he goes to the state capital to try to raise relief funds to help with the work, his neighbors turn up 15 to 20 at a time to do his farm work. Hill also makes many trips to Texas A. & M. college to obtain information.

County Agent C. E. Bowles who aided Hill in his work said "Bug" was responsible for salvage and terracing of 6,000 acres in Houston county.

Hill became convinced many years ago that terracing would prevent the tremendous wastage of fertile land through soil erosion.

"Neighbor" Hill has studied terracing from a scientific point of view. His wide experience has made him an expert and authority on land reclamation.

Bowles said that great gullies on the hillsides have been filled and now thousands of acres formerly abandoned are drained properly and produce good crops—all because of Hill's zeal for his neighbors' welfare.

Some people always spoil things by trying to be different. A woman in Alabama is 106 years old and she didn't celebrate her birthday by taking her first plane ride and she can't read fine print without glasses.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Report comes from Jones county that at the training school held for the pantry demonstrators of the county home demonstration clubs 75 people learned how to make and lay tile for garden sub-irrigation. These citizens will in turn teach their neighbors in their own communities to make tile so that gardens may prosper and fruit trees flourish come rain or no.

In Dickens county every home demonstration club member is a "cooperator" in the yard improvement work being undertaken by these club women. Goals for co-operators are very definite—each one is to "remove all rubbish, repair fences, lay a flagstone walk, learn to recognize and locate for transplanting five native shrubs and report to the demonstrator." Demonstrators, by the way, undertake the complete landscaping of their premises.

Navarro county is going in for more fruit too, with a definite goal of ten home orchards in every community in the county. S. M. Hudgins, a Navarro county orchardist of long experience, recommends to the beginners to have and follow a schedule of regular pruning, spraying and cultivation if they want success.

QUITMAN—From a demonstration plot in which he planted alternately a row of corn and a row of peas this year, J. J. Westmoreland of the Clover Hill community in Wood county cut 7 1/2 tons of pea-vine hay, the estimated value of which is $150, he told James W. McCown, farm demonstration agent. Due to the drought, his corn was almost a complete failure, but the fall rains came in time to help the crop of peas. Now in spite of the drought, Mr. Westmoreland has feed for his livestock.

BROWNSVILLE—A net profit of $2.42 per hen was made on his flock of 178 white leghorn hens during 1934 by Clarence Thieme, 18, 4-H club member in Cameron county, according to H. L. Alsmeyer, farm demonstration agent. During the 12 months the hens averaged 170 eggs each which is almost double the state average of 96 eggs per hen.

Young Thieme started his demonstration in November, 1933, with 192 white leghorn hens and 13 roosters. At that time he was feeding shorts, yellow dent corn and milk, and he continued feeding this ration until the first of March. He then started feeding shorts and laying mash, half and half. He also fed the mash moisture with milk. He had a abundance of green feed for his flock in the winter as well as in the summer. The flock has a citrus orchard for shade in the summer, and in the winter this orchard is planted to oats for green feed. Clarence's records show a net profit of $431.70.

BEAUMONT—Native grasses were made to pay a dividend on uncultivated areas on the farm of Charles Tubre of Jefferson county, according to the report of J. F. Combs, farm demonstration agent. Mr. Tubre had some idle land that was producing an excellent growth of Vasey grass, so he purchased a new mower and a baling machine and saved 2500 bales of hay off this acreage. The hay not only supplied him with his home needs but the surplus paid for his machinery and left an extra profit.

WEATHERFORD—As part of her yard improvement work for 1934, Mrs. A. E. Scherer of the New Hope Home Demonstration club in Parker county put out 63 foundation plantings around her house and 100 shrubs in screen plantings, of which three-fourths were native, according to Miss Janie Parks, home demonstration agent. The dirt had been washing away for many years, so the yard was larger. In addition, Mrs.

J. S. Bombers Ready for Long Dash

A 10,000-mile flight including a 1100-mile overwater hop and a possible non-stop return jump from Panama to Washington, D. C., lay ahead of 29 U. S. Army fliers as their commander, Captain Harold D. Smith, outlined the route as shown in the top photo. In the 10 giant Martin bombers shown being made ready in the lower photo, 15 officers and 14 enlisted men were to fly from their base at San Diego to Washington, then to Miami, and in a final overwater hop to Panama. The map indicates approximate distances without showing exact routes or stops.

with the new plaid collar. She called out, "Where've you been? I've been looking for you all evening." "We only came a little while ago," Gale told her.

"Some dance, isn't it?" Josie grinned. "Everybody's here—"

Other dancers came between them, separating them. Katie Schantz and her young husband passed, looking so happy that Gale smiled. Katie saw her and smiled back.

Gale started to say, "Steve, I think—" but a black-eyed youth with dark hair plastered back severely, cut in and took her away so that she could not finish the sentence.

The black-haired youth was a better dancer than Steve, who knew two or three simple steps and never varied them. Gale and her new partner circled the floor twice before the music stopped.

"Say, you can dance!" the youth said, clapping vigorously for an encore.

"Not very well," Gale told him. "I don't dance often enough. But you're an expert."

The clapping subsided. There was not, apparently, to be an encore. The young man asked, "How about something to drink? There's a place across the street—"

"No, thanks," Gale had halted, was looking across the room. "I think I see my brother," she went on. "If you'll excuse me—"

She crossed the room to where Phil was talking earnestly to the girl beside him—Ruby Griffith, wearing a bright green, sleeveless dress and shimmering green earrings. Phil didn't notice Gale as she came toward him. He didn't see her until she touched his arm. Then he swung around and said quickly, "Oh—hello."

"Hello," Gale included the other girl in her greeting. "I didn't know you were coming to the dance tonight, Phil. Why didn't you tell me?"

Phil's face was flushed and his words were not as distinct as they should have been. "Didn't know it myself," he said. "Decided on—spur of the moment. Why didn't you tell me you were coming?"

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS By Blosser

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

ST. PATRICK'S is my favorite holiday, not so much because of the way I feel about Ireland as that a green color scheme is so easy to carry out for parties. Take the infinite variety of soups for instance—cream of spinach, cream of asparagus or any cream soup garnished with minced parsley. And for salads there is the entire field of greens—lettuce, watercress, endive, romaine—with peppers, olives and chives for good measure.

And if you can't get hold of pistachio nuts for your dessert, blanched shredded almonds or shredded cocoanut with a few drops of green vegetable coloring will serve the same purpose.

Green and White Luncheon

Here's an all-green and white St. Patrick's Day luncheon that may be simplified to suit individual needs or used as is:

Fruit cocktail, halibut mousse with crabmeat sauce, spinach timbales, new potatoes, shamrock rolls, stuffed pepper salad, lucky shamrock cake, ice cream croquettes, coffee.

Filling for Peppers

Cream cheese is mixed with grated pineapple and chopped pistachio nuts as filling for the sweet green peppers. After thorough chilling cut in slices about an inch thick crosswise of the pepper. Serve on a bed of crisp or shredded leaf lettuce.

Balls of ice cream are rolled in green shredded cocoanut to make the dessert. A firmly frozen parrot mixture such as almond or mint will be found most refreshing.

The lucky shamrock cake is covered with a green-tinted frosting and decorated with shamrocks.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Oatmeal, raisin cereal, cream, fried bread, beef, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Anchovy potato balls, lettuce sandwiches, jelly roll, milk, tea.

DINNER: Boiled tongue with raisin sauce, grilled sweet potatoes, green beans in cream sauce, pineapple and endive salad, and nut pudding, milk, coffee.

One package dry mince meat and 1-2 cup water boiled almost dry. 1 cup sugar, 1 cup butter or other shortening, 2 eggs, 1-4 cup molasses, 2 1-2 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-2 cup water, 1-4 pound citron finely chopped.

Break mince meat into pieces. Add cold water. Place over heat and stir until all lumps are thoroughly broken up. Bring to brisk boil. Continue boiling for three minutes or until mixture is practically dry. Allow to cool. Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat vigorously until smooth and creamy. Add molasses. Sift flour once, measure add soda and sift several times. Add alternately with water to firm mixture. Fold in citron and cooled mince meat. Pour into a greased round loaf pan. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) 1 hour and 45 minutes. Cook before frosting.

Bible Classes

Attendance Affected
The attendance of the members of the Bible classes of the various churches of Eastland was considerably less than on usual days.

The Home Makers class was opened by Mrs. E. E. Layton, vice president, in the absence of Mrs. W. P. Palm, president.

Mrs. T. L. Amis led the prayer. The business concerned the program for Prayer Week, which opens March 4th.

The usual monthly social session of the class was set for March 14, with group 5, Mrs. T. O. Adair, captain as hostess.

The lesson, "Peter Healing the Lame Man," taken from third and fourth chapter of Acts, was developed in an original way by the class teacher, Mrs. Day Larner.

Highlights brought, that in helping others, we could be spiritual givers as well as givers of practical things.

Those present: Mmes. Larner, E. E. Layton, T. L. Amis, J. F. Armour, W. T. Morgan, C. T. Lucas, Morgan Myers, S. D. Phillips, William Shrifts, Artie Liles and L. J. Lambert.

Booster Class

The Booster class of the Methodist church Sunday school, opened their session with their vice president, W. W. Kelly, in the chair, in the absence of Mrs. Connie Price, who is ill.

Hymn, "Living For Jesus," was led by Mrs. Ed F. Willman, with Mrs. W. W. Kelly at piano.

The usual business routine was transacted and reports of those on the committee, made by the committee of Messrs. Turner M. Collier, Neil A. Moore, M. H. Kelly and Mr. C. E. Moore, in the class room.

As Judge W. P. Leslie, the class teacher was out of town and the assistant teacher not present, the class adjourned to the 9:49 class.

Prior to adjournment new members were introduced in Mr. and Mrs. King and Mrs. Cook. It was announced there would be no social meeting this month on account of sickness among the members.

Those present were Messrs and Mmes. Ed F. Willman, W. W. Kelly, H. L. Hassell, Joe Kraemer, Mmes. R. A. P. Pool, L. Y. Morris, Joe C. Stephen; Misses Jessie Lee Ligon, Opal Morris, Eula Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. King, and Mrs. Cook.

Truth Seekers Class
The Truth Seekers of the Baptist church held their opening assembly with the Young People's Department, composed of four separate classes.

No business was conducted but individual class heard the usual lesson from their teacher, Mrs. Clyde L. Garrett, on the subject, "Peter Heals the Lame Man," from third chapter of Acts.

The speaker applied the lesson to present conditions, stating, the lame man's kin were willing to lay the sick man at the gate, where the faithful passed on their way to the Temple to offer prayers, and would give him coins. She said so many people were willing to lay their burdens down for others to pick up, and that the beggar was the one where he would excite the greatest amount of sympathy, and that he had been there for forty years.

There was a small number of members in attendance as many are out on account of illness.

Martha Dorcas Class
An enjoyable song service, led by Mrs. June Kimble with Mrs. C. J. Germany as pianist opened the Martha Dorcas class of the Methodist church Sunday school.

Mrs. Mack O'Neal, their president, conducted the business session. The Lord's Prayer in unison, was followed by the report of the committee on the large number of members who are sick.

The class enjoyed a delightful treat in the voice solo, "My Task," by Mrs. Grady Pipkin, with Clara June Kimble as accompanist.

Mrs. W. B. Mellings presented the morning lesson on the Beggar at the Gate, and stated that money was not the only thing needed by that sick man or other sick people to relieve distress, but sympathy, love and understanding brought its own relief.

The session closed with class prayer by the twenty-five members attending.

Men's 9:49 Bible class, Sunday morning in the Methodist church with session opened by their president, Earl Bender, with the hymns, "He Leadeth Me," "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing," "Higher Ground," and "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," with Mrs. T. J. Haley at the piano. Prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. E. R. Stanford. The lesson by the class teacher, Judge J. E. Hickman, applied the conditions and the motivation of the sick man that was laid at the gate, from the third chapter of Acts, in analogy, to the period of 1776, the battle at Valley Forge, and Washington.

The speaker said that a service without price. There were 75 men in attendance and the Booster class were visitors.

Young People's Epworth League
An impromptu Missionary program was developed at the session of the Young People's Epworth League, Sunday evening in Methodist church in various stories told of "A Japanese Boy Called to the Banner of Jesus," with the principal theme developed by Orville Harrell.

This was followed by a questionnaire of the Bible in which answers in the game were based on the principle of baseball.

Sponsors present were Mrs. J. E. Hickman and Rev. E. R. SAN ANGELO.—A bumper grain crop is West Texas this season is predicted by agricultural observers. Oats fields which were formerly yellow from lack of moisture, are now green as a result of heavy rains.

More oats and small grain crops have been planted this year than ever before, according to Elmo Cook, Rains county farm agent. Farmers, he said, have decreased cotton acreage and are turning increasingly to oats for feed crop as a result of the complete failure of the grain sorghums the past two years.

MOVING PICTURE STUDIO ON WHEELS WILL VISIT HERE WEDNESDAY AND WILL BE OPEN TO PUBLIC INSPECTION

Fascinating secrets of sound recording and projection of talking motion pictures will be revealed to the general public for the first time next Wednesday, Feb. 27, when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's elaborate traveling motion picture studio visits this city on its world educational exhibition tour.

The traveling motion picture studio, which was designed and constructed to specifications by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, world's largest motion picture producing organization, at a cost of $150,000, will be placed on exhibition from 2 until 3:30 p. m. at the Lyric theatre, home here of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, according to an announcement made today by Manager Burke.

This studio on wheels, he said, combines facilities for both the recording as well as the projection of sound motion pictures, and the sound equipment aboard the studio is in itself valued at close to $50,000. It is the regulation Western Electric apparatus used in the Hollywood studios and in principal theatres throughout the country.

During the studio's brief visit here, this equipment will be open for public inspection by citizens of this city. They will be permitted to enter the studio, and will have an opportunity not only of seeing the equipment which makes the talkies talk, but will be able to see the operations manifested in both the filming as well as the projection of sound films on the screen.

Sound technicians from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Culver City, Calif., where the great M-G-M pictures are produced, are numbered among the distinguished Hollywood party traveling with the studio, and visitors to the studio on wheels will be privileged to interview the motion picture men when the studio arrives here.

One of Hollywood's outstanding makeup artists, Marcia LaPine, who officially represents the Max Factor makeup studios in Hollywood, and who has had a wealth of experience making up stars at the studios there, will visit here with the Hollywood caravan and will gladly answer any questions on makeup asked of him by feminine visitors to the studio, it is announced.

In addition to the studio itself, which measures more than 65 feet in length, and which is hauled by a gigantic trackless locomotive, the studio caravan from Hollywood consists of a special built camera car and pilot car.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is sending the traveling motion picture studio around the world with two outstanding purposes in view. Not only do they hope to discover new screen personalities for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures and Hal Roach "Our Gang" comedies, but they have undertaken this venture at a terrific cost to serve as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's contribution toward the betterment of visual education.

could confine ourselves to trading for what the other fellow has that the other fellow hasn't, then we could easily look forward to prosperity.

The price of commodities are steadily increasing, particularly those that are necessities. Butter which sold just a couple of months ago for twenty-five cents a pound is now 43 cents. That means of course that the producer instead of getting six or eight cents for his cream is now getting around thirty-two. Eggs were two for a quarter, now they are thirty-five cents per dozen. Canned goods of all kinds have shown steady increases, and so it goes. The buying power of the producer must have certainly increased. The merchant makes no more profit but has a greater investment.

We have no crow to pick with NRA, but we feel that the increase in commodity prices had nothing to do with NRA. NRA of the past may have put more people to work but it hasn't increased the wages of the skilled worker, nor those who are ambitious to apply themselves. In the face of it the worker must pay more for what he buys today—in some instances more than double. The employer must do the same—we haven't struck a balance yet.

Don Juan in Two Favorite Poses

"The Private Life of Don Juan," released through United Artists at the Lyric Wednesday and Thursday.

"DON JUAN" A GAY ROMANTIC COMEDY

"The Private Life of Don Juan," which brings Douglas Fairbanks to the Lyric Theatre Wednesday for a two run, climaxes the athletic star's long-standing preference for films with Spanish themes and backgrounds, which began with "The Mark of Zorro" and followed through in "Don Q," "The Gaucho" and "The Black Pirate."

The most pretentious production yet offered by London Films, the producers of the sensationally successful "The Private Life of Henry VIII" and "Catherine the Great," "The Private Life of Don Juan," is a swashbuckling romantic comedy from the pens of Frederick Lonsdale, distinguished London playwright and Jajos Biro, brilliant Hungarian playwright and scenarist. Biro also collaborated on writing of the two earlier London Films screen triumphs.

The story of the film, which was directed by Alexander Korda for release through United Artists, treats the great lover in rather cavalier fashion and expounds the amusing theory that, deprived of his name and reputation by a trick of fate, Don Juan was no greater lover than the next fellow—if as great.

When an amorous amateur who has been successfully impersonating the matchless philanderer, is killed by an outraged husband, all feminine Seville goes into mourning for the real Don Juan. Don Juan enjoys the "joke" until he realizes that the day of his easy conquests is at an end, and impossible to convince women he approaches is not an imposter. After his disillusioning experience, he is finally compelled to go home.

The beautiful Merle, whom American audiences call as the tragic Ann B. Sheen, is seen opposite Fairbanks in glamorous Spanish dress. Benita Hume, Joan Gardner, Patricia Hill, Princess Natalie Paley, dominant feminine in the resplendent tapestry of the comedy is played.

Sound Truck Magnolia

"When Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer decided to send their traveling motion picture studio into the west it became necessary to get a grade of gasoline and that they could absolutely upon to carry them the time and without difficulty Wayne Jones, agent, Mobilgas and Mobiloil, knew these two products depended upon to do the job completely and satisfactorily.

"The same grade of Mobilgas and Mobiloil used by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer traveling motion picture studio is available at all Mobilgas and Mobiloil stations and dealers throughout the country," continued Mr. Jones.
