Federal Aid for Texas Centennial Celebration

Walter Cline and his lieutenants have been haunting the footsteps of federal solons at the capital of the nation. A joint congressional committee agreed that the federal government should participate in the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936. Senator Tom Connally "knows where to find his hat." He said a bill he introduced calling for an appropriation of $3,000,000 specified that the money be spent for a federal exhibit, rather than be given to the Texas Centennial commission of the Central Exposition corporation. John Boyle and J. K. Beretva, leading citizens of the Alamo City, are members of the new commission. Major General John A. Hulen is another member. Col. Karl Elobitzelle of Dallas is a fourth member. There are others. Karl Hoblitzelle began his career at 19 when Former Gov. David R. Francis was the president of the St. Louis Exposition. Francis was very fond of his youthful secretary and clothed him with extraordinary power in arranging for the amusement features of the big show of that period. Well, the youthful secretary of Francis has travelled far in the years that have fled. He is widely known in Texas. He is a long time citizen of Dallas. He has a background.

Away back in 1808 the Knapps of Virginia moved westward to the frontier city of St. Louis and Col. George Knapp, then head of the family, established the St. Louis Republican, a democratic daily which had a remarkable run for many many years and was finally taken over by those who controlled the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Karl Hoblitzelle is the great-grandson of the Knapp who established this pioneer daily on the banks of the "Father of Waters." His father, Charles Hoblitzelle, was born in Maryland. He was for years a democratic as well as a business leader of St. Louis and identified with its growth in population and wealth and industry.

Gen. John A. Hulen carried a division of Texans to the battle plains of France. He made a remarkable record. He led the boys in his division who had survived home again, a distinction which came to but few of the brigadiers or major generals who had been through the school of fire in a preparatory sense, before they faced the armies of the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs in the bloody carnival of human slaughter that almost wrecked the Caucasian world and played havoc with the civilization shot to pieces on Flanders fields.

Prepare for a great Centennial. The Alamo and its fall is a story that continues to ring around the world after all the years and Texas is destined to become the greatest in point of population and area and wealth and industry and agriculture of all American commonwealths.

Texas Highway Builders Plan Mighty Program

"Highway building extraordinary" is the program outlined by the Texas commission. Harry Hines is the new chairman. Gobb Gilchrist continues highway engineer. A session was held Tuesday. The commission awarded contracts aggregating $665,000, and made the interesting announcement that it would seek $100,000,000 in federal funds for emergency construction. Mr. Hines and Engineer Gilchrist will journey to Washington where they will consult or confer with the powers that be. They are going to ask that Texas' portion of the federal government's $4,880,000,000 work relief program be increased from a tentative $46,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Chairman Hines insists that Texas needs a minimum of $100,000,000.

There will be a Centennial celebration next year. Highways of Texas, the main arteries of travel and traffic, should appeal to a vast army of tourists who are coming to Texas. There is one point the state legislators of Texas should not overlook. They have been reminded time and again that the principle of non-diversion of special highway user taxes was given masterful recognition by the congress in 1934 in the Haydon-Cartwright act, whereby any state will be denied a third of its federal aid fund for highways if by diversion of user taxes it reduces its contributions to the federal aid system."

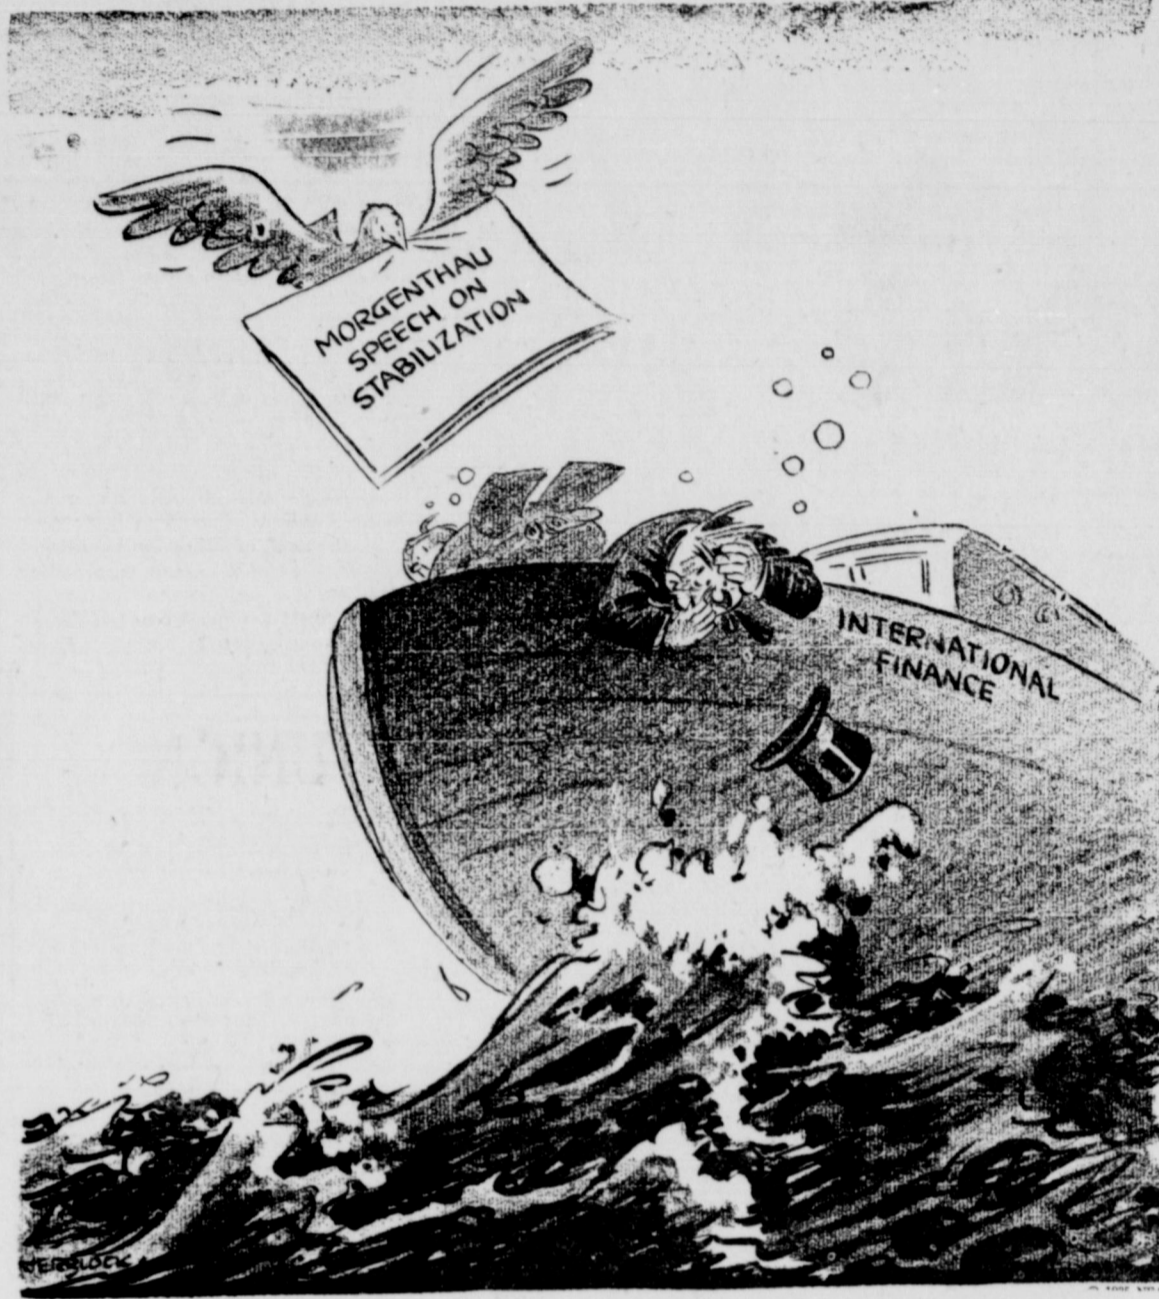

A blind man should be able to decipher the words, and there is said to be only two blind lawmakers under the big dome of Texas when a legislator happens to be throwing bills into the hopper and winking at the diversion to other scourges or departments of the highway tax paid by the motorists of Texas and all other American commonwealths.

"In the devising of public gardens, the problems are varied and at times complex. To achieve the greatest effect, the combination of art and science is necessary," so says the Anglo-Brazilian of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

The Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, Guardian tells about one hundred thousand dollars worth of old stamps being burned by the government to make way for a new issue of pictorial stamps. What a heartache for the stamp collectors!

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE NEA Service Staff Writer AMERICAN housewives like hurried dishes in restaurants, but evidently suppose them to be too complicated for home manufacture. Really, though, curry is easy to use and a fine change once in awhile for the family. A grand way to use up left-overs, too, and make them look partied at the same time. Curry sauce was designed originally to make the East Indians' inevitable bowl of rice more palatable and to stimulate lagging appetites during hot weather. Paradoxical as it may sound, the highly seasoned sauce does tempt the appetite and is a good addition to summer menus. Indeed, the manager of a fine tea-room in New York tells me that curry is one of the most popular dishes she serves on sultry days. Curries look nice, because you put the rice on a hot serving dish to form a border and the vegetables, meat or whatever in the center. Here's your basic curry rule, modified to please Western palates. Curry Sauce One scant tablespoon curry powder, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups tomato juice or meat broth, 1 onion, 1 tablespoon chutney sauce, 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Melt butter and stir in curry powder and flour. Cook and stir until frothy. Slowly add tomato juice or meat broth, stirring constantly. When smooth add minced onion, chutney, lemon juice, su-

Loans On Cotton Crop of 1934 Are Being Extended

WASHINGTON—The commodity credit corporation today advised the agricultural adjustment administration that the maturity date of cotton producers' loans on the 1934 crop, commonly referred to as 12-cent cotton loans, has been extended from July 31, 1935, to Feb. 1, 1936. Direct loans by the commodity credit corporation upon an eligible cotton under the 12-cent loan plan will be available to producers until July 31, 1935. Extension of the maturity date of these loans means that producers who have obtained 12-cent cotton loans may make repayment, obtain the release of their pledged cotton warehouse receipts, and secure the advantage of any market rises between now and Feb. 1, 1936. It means also that no cotton pledged as security for 12-cent loans will be taken over or sold by the commodity credit corporation prior to Feb. 1, 1936, except as provided under the terms of the loan agreement. One of these provisions is that middling 3/4-inch spot cotton must reach 15 cents a pound on the New Orleans market before it can be liquidated by the commodity credit corporation prior to the extended maturity date of the loans. With the present higher basis for spot cotton, on many grades of cotton producers in many sections have an equity over and above the loan value, plus interest and carrying charges. This extension of the maturity date will allow producers to avail themselves of the opportunity of repaying their loans and taking advantage of any equities which they may have in the pledged cotton. Banks and other lending agencies will be permitted to carry the 1935, by executing and furnishing construction finance corporation holding such notes for the bank or lending agency a supplemental contract to purchase. Under this supplemental contract to purchase, the corporation will purchase the notes subsequent to June 30, 1935, upon request of the bank or lending agency, paying therefor the face amount of the contract at the prevailing rate of interest in accordance with the present contract to purchase from the date of the note to June 30, 1935, plus interest at the rate of 1 1/2 per cent from June 30, 1935, to the date of purchase. Provision has been made whereby banks or other agencies may transfer the loans to other banks. As of May 10, 1935, the portion had received advance cotton loans to producers total $268,868.55 on 4,406,787 bales cotton. Of this amount, the portion had disbursed only $37,719.56 on 594,894 bales cotton, the balance of the being held by banks or other lending agencies. of Gibbs Larkin for another minute. When she did, she took it "like a little soldier," John Kaye said later. Her color came up. The ghost of a gasp rose to her lips and was instantly suppressed. Gibbs had followed the tall, sinuous young woman in black net to a table at the very edge of the pool. He was, plainly, absorbed in the conversation. The young woman had the candidly revealed figure of a show girl. Her black hair, growing in a bold widow's peak, was drawn demurely back from a white forehead. Jewels dangled from her ears and her bare arms were agleam with narrow bracelets. Zoe stared. Quite frankly and childishly she stared, as if in a horrid fascination. Gibbs' sleek head bent toward his companion's; he hung, as if enraptured, on her every word. Katharine wanted to turn her eyes away. The naked misery in Zoe's face was terrible. John must have heard something... he must have known, or at least believed, that Gibbs could be found here! How extraordinary was this quiet man with the easy voice and the supple surgeon's hands! She marveled at him. A waiter came up and John said something to him in a low voice and he went away. Zoe said, "I think I must be getting back." That was all. There was dignity in her bearing and pride, too. "Just as you say," said John. "You see it once and you've seen it all." Gibbs, with his back turned, was somehow made aware of the attention of the little group. Perhaps the young woman in the extravagantly cut black dress had told him that three people at a nearby table were gazing at him. He whirled, his rather heavy body pivoting at the waist. His eyes met Zoe's. There was a sickening moment in which Katharine felt the utter folly and useless-

maid, Gerda, came to the door leading to the terrace, which was locked. "Oh, Miss Zoe! I thought you said you weren't to be here for dinner." "She wasn't, Gerda, but I think she's changed her plans. Will you bring some tea up to her room?" "I don't want anything," Zoe said lifelessly. The broad halls were in twilight as the two girls ascended the stairs. Here and there a bar of late sunshine broke through the iron grilles appearing at intervals in the walls. Zoe's room was shuttered and cool. Silver Venetian blinds made a glimmering dusk here. In one swift glance Katharine saw the overnight bag at the foot of the bed. Zoe thrust it aside and flung herself across the taffeta coverlet, sobbing. "I wish I were dead!" "No, you don't. What a silly thing to say!" But Katharine felt the hopelessness, the utter futility of any argument. Zoe sat up, rubbing her eyes with a childish gesture. "But I do! Oh, you don't know—" She burst into loud weeping again, face downward on the coverlet. "I—I was going to marry him," she sobbed. "He said he hadn't seen her for months—" "That girl in Swampscott?" Zoe raised a streaked and distorted face. "No, no, of course not! She didn't really matter. She was just—nothing at all. But the girl we saw tonight—" Zoe clenched her hands into fists. "I hate her," she whispered. "I'd like to tear her into bits!" "Do you know who she is?"

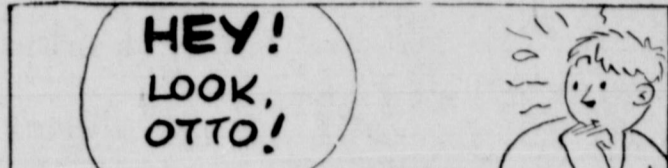

Zoe fairly snorted in contempt. "Of course I do. D'you mean to say you don't? What a little white lily you are!" Katharine flushed. "Oh, I'm sorry," Zoe said hurriedly. "I didn't mean to be so nasty. But, oh, if you knew what I've been through! I don't care what happens to me now—" She ground her fists into her eyes. "She's a singer," she went on after a moment. "Cissy Malotte. Surely you've heard of her—" Katharine remembered now. The girl who was supposed to have had a gangster lover, the girl Gibbs had known last year. "Yes, I remember now." "Well, I knew about her," Zoe said between sobs. "I thought it was—just one of those things. I thought she was an older woman—wicked, fading, all that. But now I've seen her! Why, she's young! She's beautiful in a horrible way. And did you see the way he looked at her? Ahh—" Zoe's sob rose almost to a shriek. "Hush, hush! You don't want the maids to hear you," said Katharine, distracted at this exhibition of undisguised suffering. "I don't care who hears," Zoe cried fiercely. "It's all right for you. You're so calm and cool; you've never known what it is to feel this way—to hate anyone. You've never even been in love." "Ah, haven't I?" thought Kaye bitterly. Aloud she said nothing. "I'll know what I'll do," she shrieked. "I'll kill myself! That will make him sorry for the way he's treated me." (To Be Continued)

A TRIBUTE TO MARY BEA WIEGAND
 "There is no death! The stars go down to rise upon some other shore, and bright in heaven's jeweled crown, they shine forevermore."

Mary Bea was given to us for only the brief space of three years before she was taken back to deck heaven's jeweled crown and "shine forevermore." But in that time she taught us a lifetime of lessons. The perfection of her form and face, the beauty found in every feature, the radiant charm of her personality, her winsome smile, her happy laughter, her faith and trust in those whom she loved so devotedly—from these we learned the nature of our heavenly Father and the glories of His world. We are grateful for this, and comforted in the knowledge that during all the rest of her life she will be in God's keeping. We could ask no better thing for her than that.
 "Thank God for all my loved, That out of pain and care, Have reached the heavenly height And wait to meet me there."

How Many Times

Have You Been Pestered Today By the Peddlers

HOW MANY TIMES have you been disturbed when you were entertaining at bridge or luncheon by some peddler who had the audacity to request the privilege of showing her wares to your guests?

HOW MANY TIMES do you answer the summons of your door-bell during the day, only to find one of those persistent pests—"The Peddler" who insists selling you this, that or the other thing?

HOW MANY TIMES upon answering the bell have you had some peddler hold open the door with his foot in order to force your attention or upon refusing to patronize him how often has he become impudent and abusive?

HOW MANY TIMES have you been interrupted in a telephone conversation by some peddler who was sure she had just the article you wanted?

HOW MANY TIMES have you been called to the door in the late evening only to find some Peddler who claimed to be working late in order to put over a special week's business either for himself or his manager?

HOW MANY TIMES when baby was cross and after several weary hours you have been successful in inducing sleep, has he been awakened by the crash of the door-bell and the inevitable nuisance—THE PEDDLER?

HOW MANY TIMES have you answered the door, only to have a peddler present you with a card that entitled you to some trivial gift, explaining that she would be back to bother you again the next morning to give you the article? What did she sell you on her second call?

HOW MANY TIMES has it been necessary for you to walk one or more flights of stairs just to convince some peddler that you did not want to purchase her wares?

HOW MANY TIMES have you been called from the laundry on a busy wash-day only to have some high pressure artist launch into a long winded talk on the wonderful values HE has to offer?

HOW MANY TIMES by his continual ringing of your bell and persistent talking has this peddler disturbed those in the sick room?

CLIVE DUE HERE
"Clive of India," Darryl F. Zanuck's first million-dollar production for 20th Century Pictures, comes to the Lyric Theatre Monday with Ronald Colman starred in the title role.

Richard Boleslawski was borrowed from M-G-M to direct this powerful drama, which W. P. Lipscomb and R. J. Minney came all the way from England to Hollywood to adapt for the screen from their stage hit of the same name which ran over a year in London.

The story, which traces the rise of Robert Clive from a $25 a year clerk in the East India Company to the conqueror of a nation, stresses the private life of England's greatest hero and the part his lovely wife played in his triumphs and defeats.
Loretta Young is cast as the wife, Lady Clive, while Colin Clive, Francis Lister, C. Aubrey Smith and Cesar Romero are prominent among the seventy-two principals in this Joseph M. Schenck presentation. Others who play important roles are Montague Love, Lumden Hare, Ferdinand Munier, Gilbert Emery, Etienne Girardot, Robert Greig, Ian Wolf, Mischea Auer, Ferdinand Gottschalk, and Doris Lloyd. "Clive of India" is released through United Artists.

FANS WANT CAGNEY
IN NEW MUSICAL
Shortly after James Cagney's assignment to the role of a government agent in the First National picture "G Men" which comes to the Lyric Theatre today, a flood of fan mail urged him to continue on the "right side of the law."

Then came a petition from a group of San Francisco citizens pleading that he be permitted to star in another musical such as "Footlight Parade."
The petition, signed by 485 names and directed to production executives of the studio, read: "We, the undersigned, have enjoyed the marvelous performance of James Cagney in "Footlight Parade" have been eagerly looking forward to seeing him starred in another musical, in which he sings and dances."

Cagney frankly stated he would like to do another musical, one which he would be given an opportunity really to display his vocal and terpsichorean talents.

The "tough guy" of cinemaland is an accomplished "hooper," having graduated to the legitimate stage from the ranks of the chorus. Cagney is cast as a Federal agent in "G Men," his current picture.

His supporting cast includes Dvorak, Margaret Lindsay, Armstrong, Barton Macrell, Hopton, Edward Pe William Harrigan, William Keighley production.
