EASTLAND, TEXAS, TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 11, 1935

PRICE TWO CENTS No. 188

SECOND LOWE MURDER TRIAL SET FOR JUNE 24

that reminds me...

For several years Eastland has been without an official business building laundry. That's out of the picture now. Frank Roy, who has been operating the Eastland Laundry for the past year near the light depot of the T. & P., has had the entire interior of the building located at 305 East Commerce street remodeled for complete laundry service. New machinery has been added to take care of his fact increasing business. The building is conveniently located and particularly adapted for the purpose of operating a first class laundry. By directing attention to business, rendering the highest quality of laundry possible Mr. Roy built up his business to where it is now one of Eastland's most valuable assets. Frank has spent the major part of his life in the laundry business and knows it from front to back. For several years he has been in Eastland, having at one time been connected with the old Eastland Laundry that closed up and moved to Cisco about three years ago. He continued working for the Cisco Laundry as solicitor, making his home here. A little over a year ago Frank made up his mind to try it out for himself. With a small handful of equipment he began. Today he as well as Eastland can be proud of the progress he has made. Mrs. Roy, who has assisted him through out the beginning of his new business, has added to the inspiration of the business by her pleasing personality and efficient manner of seeing that things went just right and that the clothes were all properly handled while in their charge. Eastland citizens will do well by patronizing this popular and experienced laundry operator and it will add to the payroll which is what it takes to make the cash register ring. Mr. and Mrs. Roy extend an invitation to everybody to come and see how a good laundry works.

Little dribbles of misty atmosphere has been hanging around all day today. Occasionally it gives promise to a downpour. Maybe the rain is not very welcome to those who have their grain in the fields, but God knows we can be grateful whenever it comes as this country likes to drink lots of water and for several years the parched earth and vegetation has shown the earmarks of what happens when there just ain't no water.

Proposals were made to members of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night by two experienced aviators who are promoting a possible airline from Tyler, Texas, to Midland. Eastland would be on the main line of the proposed route. Several who were present at Monday night's meeting pledged their subscription to part of the stock required. Each city it is understood that is on the route will be asked for stock subscriptions to put the thing over.

Looks good to see folks milling in and out of the Eastland National Bank building and gives an atmosphere of activity. Employees and clients of the Eastland county relief are responsible for this activity. This also brings to mind that all sections of the city are now on the active list. That's what it takes to make folks sit up and take notice of a town. Perhaps in the near future all offices available in Carroll which is what it takes to sustain. Won't that be fine. Here is hoping.

Lamb Says Little Lakes Have Fish, Florida the Name

Taking cognizance that Florida's lakes have reputation of affording greatest fishing in the world, Jack Lamb of Fort Worth, twentieth century Izak Walton, told Rotary club members Monday that lakes near Eastland hold greater interest—because more fish can be caught.

Leo Wolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wolf, played a violin solo, accompanied by Miss Clara Jones, club pianist. Miss Florine Anderson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Richmond, played two piano numbers.

Program committee was composed of J. B. Krause and Dr. W. C. Cheney.

Visitors were L. R. Pearson, manager; Rev. J. Stuart Pearce, S. H. Hixon. Cisco and Tommy Thompson of Dallas, guest of F. Williams.

International Meet To Start Wednesday

By United Press
BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 11.—Mexican and United States government representatives and chamber of commerce officials of both countries were assembled today for the annual Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers association.

Thomas Bowman, United States consul general in Mexico, will represent the United States as the personal representative of Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Hull sent his regrets at being unable to attend.

PRESIDENT IS ATTACKED BY REPUBLICANS

By United Press
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 11.—Anti-New Deal speakers, before a Republican grass roots conference were cheered today, while the mid-western party's representatives' own resolution committee, was locked in debate over a set of principles on which to build a backfire against the 1936 New Deal campaign.

While the resolutions committee struggled toward agreement the conference proper heard an attack on President Roosevelt and his administration by former Congressman Robert Simmons, Republican, Nebraska, who charged the President "has asked the American people to aid liberty to commit suicide."

"We should challenge the President to submit to the people of this country the specific constitutional amendment that he and his followers seek," he said.

Simmons charged the President had identified himself with those "who would have us believe the constitution is dead by his statements against the decision of the supreme court—an attack not directed so much at the court as at the constitution."

Delegates to Fire Meet Leave Monday

Four from Eastland left Monday for El Paso where they will attend the annual convention of the State Firemen's association. Delegates were Galand Poe, Ed T. Cox, John Harrison and Wade Overby. Ed T. Cox was the delegate-at-large.

The Texas & Pacific railway furnished free transportation for the group, an annual offering to duly-elected delegates from fire associations.

Eastland, spirited bidder for the convention last year at Mineral Wells, is expected to revive the invitation, but withdraw in favor of Dallas, centennial city, which is conceded the '36 meet.

Eleven Births For May Are Recorded

One death and 11 births have been recorded for May by Mrs. John Matthews, registrar for Texas bureau of vital statistics in Eastland. The records are no file at the city hall.

Sole death was that of G. P. Lyon, 59, on May 15.

Births were as follows:
Baby Dunlap, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff L. Dunlap, May 17;
Norma Fay Hallum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hallum, May 24;
Patricia Ann Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Long of McKinney, May 24; Barbara Lou Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. Robinson, May 22;
John Henry Whately, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whately, May 17;
Olga Segovia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Segovia, May 9; Waneta Travino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felipe Navino, May 2; Thomas Scott Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Scott, May 18; Delores Joyce Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott, May 27; Barbara June Ballard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Ballard, May 28; Babs Elaine Sherrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Marion Sherrill, May 3.

Denmark provides government protection against unemployment and old age, says news item. But maybe the Danish court decided to marry Barbara just in case.

FRESH TROUBLE IS EXPECTED BY CHINESE

By United Press
TIENTSIN, China, June 11.—Signs of a new Japanese-Chinese crisis were heard today as two Japanese destroyers moored along the waterfront and Major General Doihara, mystery man of the Japanese army, arrived to confer with the Japanese high command.

Two thousand Japanese soldiers are due tomorrow. Three factors indicated strongly that fresh trouble was near:

1. Chinese hints that though every concession will be made to Japan, the demands will not be carried out.
2. Japanese complaints that the Chinese agreement to comply with demands already is being sabotaged.
3. The fact that the extent of Japan's intention is not known, but that there is every sign of broadened demands for Chinese co-operation with Japan throughout Northern China.

Original Players In English Version Of Passion Play

When the Passion Play was first brought to the United States in 1927 it was brought by Dr. Alfred Wolff, formerly of Freiburg, Germany. Dr. Wolff was for years with the well known Freiburg Passion Play and has made an intimate study of the production as given regularly at Oberammergau.

For three years the Passion Play in this country was given in German but at the insistence of religious and educational leaders Dr. Wolff wrote the English version which his company is now giving.

The Great European Passion Play will be presented in Ranger by this company of original players under the auspices of the Ranger Passion Play committee, composed of religious and civic leaders of this community, for three performances in the Ranger Recreation building, June 17, 18 and 19. Special attention is called to the fact that this is a stage production and not a motion picture as is sometimes believed.

The principal players that will appear in Ranger have made personal studies of their characters and have interviewed many leading religious leaders about their various portrayals. Many have described these players in these roles as living their parts and not acting them at all. A better understanding of the sincerity of these famed players is to be had upon witnessing their fervor for their roles, which might be interpreted as an act of worship.

The members of the cast include the following:
The Christ, Venoy Skinner.
Judas, Glen Wells.
John, the Beloved, Anthony Wayne.
Mary, the Mother, Mara Wells.
Mary Magdalene, Verona Sampson.
Simon Peter, Fritz Stoebe.
Caiaphas, Creston Wright.
Dathan, Radcliff Hall.
Nathaniel, William Wayne.
Annas, David Becker.
Pontius Pilate, Grant Redfelt.
Longinus, Emil Lauder.
Quintus, Ed Ireland.
Herod Antipas, Nat Wade.
Nason, Richard Martin.
Barabbas, Smith Hamilton.
Blind Woman, Ruth Keyes.
Angel, Elvira Glasen.

According to Miss Kaufman, the advance representative for the players, the continued tour of the production which continued without a break even during the peak of the economic depression, could not have been possible except for the support of the Catholic and Protestant clergy who have with few exceptions, wholeheartedly cooperated to make this outstanding civic memorial in the history of the communities where it has been presented.

Examining Trial For Woman Set In Slaying Case

By United Press
ALICE, Texas, June 11.—Examining trial for Mrs. H. L. Morrissey, 35, charged with slaying her 40-year-old husband, both of San Antonio, while they waited for confession at a Catholic church, will be begun today.

The victim had been court reporter for the 79th district for the past 10 years. He was shot twice with a .28 calibre pistol Sunday at St. Elizabeth Catholic church.

Clemency Denied Two Doomed Men

By United Press
HOUSTON, June 11.—Gov. James Allred said today that he will not commute the death sentences of Elijah Stuart and John Willis, scheduled to die at Huntsville.

Governor Allred said he brought with him Willis' record to study while in Houston, to help celebrate Railroad Week.

"It was a terrible crime. Almost unbelievable," he commented on Willis' attack on a young bride at Tyler.

Stuart was convicted of killing a step-child because it cried too much.

Hopes Rekindled for New Deal

Broad smiles of new hope glowed on the faces of these Democratic leaders as they left the White House after a conference with President Roosevelt at which a program of long-range industrial legislation was agreed on, to meet conditions radically changed by the fall of NRA. Left to right are Senator Joseph Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic floor leader; Atty. Gen. Homer S. Cummings, Speaker Joseph Byrns, and Representative R. L. Doughton, North Carolina, Ways and Means committee head.

HALF RANSOM MONEY FOUND BY U. S. AGENTS

By United Press
WASHINGTON, June 11.—Federal agents today, 10 days after return of George Weyerhaeuser, had recovered more than half the $200,000 ransom, captured two confessed participants and knew the name of a third.

The recovery of $90,700 buried in a canyon near Salt Lake City, was announced by J. Edgar Hoover, making a total of $110,555 recovered or accounted for and leaving $89,445 still in the hands of William Mahan, suspect, or hidden by him.

The record showed:
Found buried, $90,700.
Spent in Mahan's car $15,555.
Spent by Harmon Waley, $300.
Burned by Waley, $4,000.

Officials said they believed the abduction was a two-man job with Mrs. Waley aiding in disposing of the money and Mahan had the rest of the ransom.

NRA PLANS GO ASTRAY TODAY IN THE SENATE

By United Press
WASHINGTON, June 11.—Administration leaders failed, today, in their efforts to rush an NRA extension resolution through the senate during a half hour overtime session.

The senate traditional fondness for protracted discussion, caused downfall of the leaders' plan.

The senate met at 11:30 a. m. but encountered an unexpected move from Senator Thomas Gore, Democrat, Oklahoma, who offered an amendment requiring that all government workers receiving $4,000 or more in annual salary be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

He was supported by Senator Suez Long, Democrat, Louisiana.

At noon, by prior agreement, the senate reverted to the public utility bill.

Seven minutes of the half hour were consumed by a quorum call. Another interruption came when a messenger from the house delivered a bill that had been acted on there.

Allred to Take Short Vacation

By United Press
HOUSTON, June 11.—His next official step will be "to get away and go fishing and rest a few days," Governor Allred said today. He spiked rumors that a special session would be called in July.

"They are offering to bet 2 to 1 in Dallas the legislature will be in special session in July," said Representative Kenneth McCalla, to the governor.

"Take all you can get. The legislature certainly won't be in session before September," Allred answered.

Government at War Against Kidnapers And Associates

By United Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, June 11.—The federal government warded against kidnapers and their associates in Oklahoma today.

In United States district court today forces of the government sought punishment for Ben Laska and James Mathers, attorneys who defended members of the Bates-Kelly gang who kidnaped Charles Urschel in 1933 and held him for $200,000 ransom.

Gun Club Officials Expect Complete Installation Equipment Soon: State Shoot Due When Clubhouse Finished

Installation of all equipment of the Oil Belt Gun Club within the next 10 days was predicted Tuesday by officials of the organization. Equipment to be installed includes that for skeet, straight traps, pistol, small and large bore rifles, with regulation army target rangers up to 1,000 yards.

When the clubhouse is completed it is planned to hold a state meet with shooters from over the state invited to participate.

In opinion of club officials, a novel feature is the interest manifested by the ladies and juveniles. The club boasts as one of its lady members the holder of the state championship at skeet, Mrs. James Horton.

Regular days will be set aside for practice and instruction of the ladies. A boys class is also slated for organization. The boys will receive instruction from a former rifle instructor at the New Mexico Military Institute.

Association with the government affords free use of government rifles and free ammunition for pistol and rifle ranges, while quantity purchases enable members to shoot skeet and targets at a saving of from 15 to 25 per cent over public clubs.

Membership, officials said, is open to adults with good character and is divided into two groups: "Voting members or stockholders at $25 each, and associate members without voting and clubhouse privileges but with shooting privileges for all events at $3.00 each payable annually in advance."

Stiff competition is expected between shooters of Eastland and Breckenridge at next Sunday's shoot.

OPPOSITION TO PROPOSED AAA PLAN VOICED

By United Press
NEW YORK, June 11.—Vigorous opposition to a proposed amendment to the AAA which would devote 30 per cent of customs receipts to bounties and subsidies to exports of American agriculture, was expressed today by Robert O'Brien, chairman of the Federal Tariff commission.

"This bill," he told the conference of seaport cities, "would make it mandatory on the treasury to spend about $100,000,000 annually, according to the present rate of trade.

"It would work out badly, for example, it would enable Japan to buy cotton so cheaply from us she could take away our Central and South American markets with our own products. I regard it as a dangerous tendency and I feel we must lessen the stultifying effects of such a nationalistic policy."

Brazil Is Not Yet a Threat In Cotton Markets

By United Press
RIO DE JANEIRO, June 11.—Immediate threat of Brazilian competition with American cotton waned today as the Japanese mission studying the possibilities of turning its purchases to this country, apparently found the Brazilian market, thus far, unprepared for the exports required and now acquired from the United States.

Cotton circles here gained the impression the Japanese would continue their present method of making purchases, though keeping in close touch with the Brazilian situation.

Many factors mitigate against large sales of Brazilian cotton to Japan, including quality of staple and prices. The latter are considered unsatisfactory, according to reports.

Singing Society Undergoes Change At Colorado Meet

Changes regarded as important by Judge R. L. Rust of Eastland, honorary president for life of the T. P. Sunshine Singing convention, were made at the meeting which ended Sunday at Colorado.

The constitution was changed and there are now 25 rules to abide by, Judge Rust said Monday. Formerly there were only a few rules, he said.

The convention voted to confine the singing convention to West Texas. Formerly the singing convention had no geographical boundaries.

Outstanding singers were present from over the state, Judge Rust, instrumental in the convention's organization, stated.

Breckenridge was awarded the 1936 convention, Judge Rust stated.

Others from the county attending were Roy Moore, Ranger; E. L. Brummett, Ranger; Mrs. Pearl Hunt, Ranger; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Fisher, Mangum; Judge Rust and daughter, Willena, of Eastland.

Pete McKenzie Is Facing Chair Again

By United Press
HUNTSVILLE, Texas, June 11.—Pete McKenzie, diminutive murderer of a San Antonio detective and accused slayer of a fellow convict, moved today back into the shadow of the electric chair.

The state, represented by District Attorney Max Rogers, prosecutor of the late Raymond Hamilton, will seek, at a hearing today to find McKenzie sane, and carry out the death sentence imposed for the officer's slaying.

LOWE CHARGED WITH SLAYING AT EASTLAND

Jury in First Trial Was Dismissed By Judge G. L. Davenport.

The second trial of Jep Lowe, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of William Seaman Garrison, 26, on the Eastland square Nov. 17, 1934, will start Monday, June 24, in 91st district court.

A special venire of 100 names has been drawn.

Justice Agents Still Seeking Slayer of Four

By United Press
EL PASO, June 11.—Department of justice agents were preparing to "back track" on every movement of the two Illinois couples missing for three weeks, since the date they checked into a hotel at Vaughn on the night of May 21.

The two couples are Mr. and Mrs. George Lurios and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heber, who were on a vacation trip to Colorado.

They hoped to pick up information as to where the two couples were last seen, and with whom, in an effort to identify the man who drove their car to Dallas and abandoned it May 28, after leaving a string of traveler checks from El Paso to Dallas.

Henry Ford "Nice, Folks," Eastland Woman Is Convinced

Henry Ford—"nice and folksy"—was the opinion of Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland after half an hour's conversation with the great American automobile manufacturer at his museum in Dearborn, Mich., Saturday.

Mrs. Perkins, who joined the Texas delegation Friday at the triennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Detroit, enjoyed half an hour's talk with Ford, who conducted her through the Stephen C. Foster birthplace house.

Mrs. Perkins was born five miles from Wayside Inn, Longfellow's home, which Ford has restored in Massachusetts, and knew in childhood Benjamin Lovett, Ford's instructor for the old-fashioned dancing groups. Through Lovett, Mrs. Perkins met Ford informally.

He arranged a special trip on the spot for Mrs. Perkins' children, Betty, Bob and Dorothy, who have been attending conventions with their mother since babyhood.

Officers of Dry Group Are Named

Officers of the Eastland County Prohibition organization were announced Tuesday as follows:
Chairman, J. L. Roden, Gorman.
Vice chairman, G. M. Meglasson, Cisco.
Secretary and treasurer, E. E. Bowden, Gorman.

Rev. Roden and other officers expect to have an organization functioning in every town and district in the county to aid in the fight for retaining of state dry laws.

Hero, Who Flew Fame, Cherished Life More

Perhaps the most interesting thing about this man Lawrence of Arabia is the fact that he turned down wealth and ran away from fame.

Here was a man who gave the twentieth century a unique flareback to the age of chivalry. In a time when men in the mass seemed to be all that counted, he restored the worth of the lone individual.

And then, having done all this—having helped to remake the map of the world and written an epic of old-fashioned, knightly achievement—he voluntarily stepped out of the spotlight.

He dropped out of the service of the British colonial office and buried himself in the anonymity of an army enlisted man. He wrote one of the most absorbingly interesting books of modern times and withdrew it from circulation after it had paid his expenses—although it might have made hundreds of thousands of dollars for him.

He retired to an obscure country cottage and—at a time when newspapers and magazines would gladly have paid him fabulous prices for anything he cared to write—put in four years translating the Odyssey.

Now a man who could do all that can be set down as a freak, if you wish; but a verdict like that doesn't begin to cover the ground.

What is apparent when you think the matter over is that this Lawrence somehow learned something about life and the rewards it can give a man which most of us never quite discover.

It is as if he had quietly told us that all the things we prize most highly—wealth, fame, high position, leisure, and the acclaim of our fellows—do not, after all, amount to a pint of beans.

The things that make the difference between a good life and a failure lie deeper; they take place inside a man, deep in the recesses of his own heart, and the outward, visible trappings are less than the dust.

This, to be sure, is not a new discovery. Great men of all times and places have usually reached the same conclusion, have discovered that if a man can square matters between his own soul and the mysterious, God-given impulse that drives him forward, that is all that counts.

But the rest of us seldom get more than a suspicion of it. We want the outward, visible signs of success—even if these signs be no more than a fine home in the suburbs, or a 12-cylinder car, or our picture in the newspapers.

That, to us, is what makes victory complete—until a man like Lawrence comes along and tells us that we don't know what we're talking about.

HERE'S REAL ACTION BY A REAL FISHERMAN

This remarkable action picture of Jack Lamb, world renowned angler, was taken recently after a press photographer followed him on a trip of over 400 miles in an attempt to get an action picture of Lamb in action in a battle with a game fish. That their troubles were amply rewarded is proven by the above picture. Lamb is to give a demonstration of casting here the latter part of this week, and will answer all queries by novices.

Early History and Development Of Passion Play As Outlined By The Author of the English Play

The Freiburg Players are more liberal in their views, although I do not think any more commercially inclined than the Oberammergau villagers. They have become professionals, without, however, any serious impediment to the moral and artistic value of the play.

Until 1264, the Passion Play largely was presented in tableaux. Those scenes which were of the spoken dialogue, were spoken in Latin. In the second known script, the one of 1604, the German language has replaced the Latin, from there on, the words of the Passion Play were spoken in the German tongue.

The Easter plays represented in their days, the highest development of the secular drama. They were about the first form of intellectual entertainment that the people ever received. They caused the people to think, and the people saw that the mere story of the Crucifixion was not enough. The people had the instinct to desire a play which would present the entire life of Christ—which would go far back of the Christ to the very origin of mankind.

Slowly, this form of drama grew up, rounded out, completed itself and became wholly dramatic, with the Passion of Christ as its central episode and climax.

The Life of the Old Testament entered into the play with all of its Oriental mysticism and color of symbolism. The plays began with the Creation, the sin of Adam and Eve, and the fall of Lucifer and the rebellious angels.

Next, two short dramas were inserted; the Lament of Mary, and the Mary Magdalene play, the first, represented Mary the Mother at the foot of the Cross, then the introduction of Jesus and John, with the bystanders taking part in the lamentations. The Magdalene play represented the seduction of Mary Magdalene by the devil, and her sinful life up to her conversion. In her sinfulness, the people saw the depraved condition of all mankind after the fall of Adam.

What an impression the Passion Play made in the late sixteenth century and the early seventeenth is the very crest of this ancient magnificence. Thousands of citizens lined the squares and packed it densely to the very planking of the long wooded stage which was erected in front of the cathedral of church. The throng was made up of townspeople, peasants, and of villagers, from many miles around—a sea of heads—a great buzz of tongues and rustle of garments.

Food vendors passed through the crowds just as food vendors were to pass through greater crowds in centuries to come; and there were purveyors of wine and sticky sweetmeats. Jugglers showed off their skill, and there was a man with a trained bear. Troubadours with their zithers and their garb circulated in the crowd, humming their songs of love and romance, and promising gentle entertainment for the well-to-do when the evening fell. All around the square, the windows framed heads and shoulders for hundreds who were seeing the fine spectacle of their own homes.

Lamb Will Answer Fishing Questions After Demonstration

Jack Lamb, world champion bass fisherman, arrived here yesterday and will demonstrate his skill with bait and fly rods Thursday at courthouse square. Jack has been fishing in nearby lakes for the past several days, and you may have run across this celebrated angler out on the creeks without knowing it.

For many years he has worked in the Fort Worth offices of the Gulf Production company, but since he has gained a national reputation as a fisherman, his employers let him go on occasional trips into fishing country to teach casting to less successful anglers. Lamb has demonstrated his prowess in cities throughout the south but explained that in some manner he had always missed Eastland Ranger and Cisco. He is coming here with the hope of being of some benefit to novice anglers. It has been a lifetime custom with him to aid beginners, and he has taught more than 2,000,000 men and boys how to fish.

What Lamb does not know about ten in the books. He studied these game fish for years, and even today he experiments with every kind of new lure that is produced. He is thoroughly conversant with the habits and traits of game fish, and knows exactly what they are likely to do under all conditions. It is no accident that he catches fish every time he goes out. He simply puts into fishing what it takes to get results, and fills the creel so easily that thousands have marveled at his uncanny fish-catching ability.

Many people in this section have heard his weekly broadcasts over radio station WBAP. His articles on bass fishing have been syndicated throughout the world, and his book "How To Catch Old John Bass" is recognized as the last word in authority upon this subject.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 Katharine Strykhurst, beautiful, in love with Michael Heather, owner of a riding school, whose father is rich and her mother a snob.
 Parker, Katharine's friend, in an unhappy love affair and is threatened by suicide by young Dr. Kays.
 Hearing two detectives ask Michael's address, Katharine tells them, although she has never seen him since his engagement to Sally Moon, local cotillion, has been announced.

Michael refuses to go away unless Katharine comes with him. They are married in an obscure little town. Then Michael insists on returning to face the detectives. He learns he is heir to a fortune and title in Ireland. Michael leaves at once for New York to see the lawyer handling the case. He is injured in a traffic accident.
 Katharine, frantic when she does not hear from him next day, tells Violet Messer, her friend, that she thinks Michael has run away.
 Now Go On With the Story
 CHAPTER XXIX

Sally said furiously, "I don't understand it. I simply don't get it at all!" She glared at the inoffensive Tips and at Clarence, stooped and returning to face the detectives, graying, in the background.
 "You say he said he was going to the city?" Sally demanded.
 Clarence nodded. They had been over the ground several times before, but if the young lady wanted to ask the same questions over and over he had no objection but to answer them.
 "He say he goin' to the city," Clarence elaborated, with a side-long roll of chocolate eyes in a dark face. "He say fo' me to lock up."

 "And that was day before yesterday?"
 "Yes'm. In the evenin'. We ain't heard nothing from him since."
 Sally waved an afternoon newspaper in his eyes. "Have you seen this?"
 "No'm. Ain't seen nothin'."
 Clarence's eyes executed a sudden roll of apprehension. "They ain't nothin' in it 'bout Mist' Michael, is they?"
 Sally laughed—an unpleasant laugh, drawing back the corners of her lips from small predatory teeth.
 "Read it."
 Tips bent over. "Pa can't read," he said. "Lessen he has a magnifying glass. His eyes is bad."
 "What do you say?" Clarence wanted to know.

Tips bent over the newspaper, reading slowly. "It says how Mister Michael is a lord or something," he said slowly. "It says how his daddy was a son of a lord in England or Ireland—and now Mister Michael, seems to come into the business."
 "Exactly," Sally Moon, with a sound that was more like a snort than the sarcastic laugh she had intended, slipped down into the shabby porch chair. Over her linked, gloved hands she regarded the two shabby men.
 "I believe you two know more about this than you pretend to," she said on a note of angry suspicion. "I believe you perfectly well know where Michael is."
 "No'm." Clarence shook his head.
 "Well, I'm going to find out," Sally said swiftly. Before either one of them could stop her she had flung herself inside the door of Michael's house. "I'm going to search his papers," she said. "And don't either of you interfere!"
 She was inside the room which had served Michael as a bedroom before either one could say a word. Tips looked at his father, and the older man looked back apprehensively.
 "She ain't got a bit o' business in there," the boy said humbly.
 "How we goin' to stop her?" Clarence wanted to know.
 Sally went through bureau drawers like a whirlwind. The neat, plain, bare chamber did not afford many hiding places. A bed, tidily made up with a mended white spread, a common oak chest of drawers, a wardrobe with one of the old-fashioned doors swinging wide—she went through them all.
 There was little enough. There was pitifully little. A handful of old letters with the postmark of a little town in a western state. A thick, clumsy old gold watch. A button box.
 Sally rifled through the letters. The stable boy came to the door to stare at her.
 "You go away, Tips," she said crossly. "Don't you bother me. This is my business."
 "Ain't nobody got any right buttin' into Mister Michael's private things," he said stubbornly. But he dared not interfere. After all, she was the girl his employer had been engaged to marry.
 Clarence had shuffled out into the kitchen. You could hear him rattling pots and pans and setting down the cups with angry gusto. Sally paid no attention to all this. She had come with a determination to go through Michael's belongings, to see if she could find any clue to his disappearance. She flounced into the living room after a busy five minutes, a small bundle in her hand.

Tips watched her go, open-mouthed. His father came out of the kitchen to ask him. "That her car goin' away?"
 "That's it," Tips sniffed, going into Michael's room and picking up a cushion Sally had dropped in her haste. "She sure made a mess of this here place. She sure is a big-talking young lady, Miss Moon."
 "Her!" Clarence uttered contemptuously. "Ain't no Moons ever goin' to come high-tonin' me. I know 'em."
 "She takes away a lot of stuff of Mist' Michael's," Tips offered hesitantly. "Letters and such."
 Clarence grinned, an old man's wide, sly grin. His lips were stretched inconspicuously wide. "She did, huh?"
 "Yes, suh!" The stable boy was emphatic. "Looks like Mist' Michael run away from her while the runnin' was good. What you think about it?"
 His father lifted his shoulders in an eloquent shrug. "Boy, I ain't mindin' nobody's business."
 "You think we better stay on a while?" Tips said.
 "Where'd we go, anyways?" Clarence demanded. "You talk crazy, sonny-boy. Course we're stayin'. And, case that girl comes back here lookin' some more, we goin' to lock up this here place."
 He turned the key in the lock and went back to his leisurely pattering among the kettles. Tips wandered out into the stableyard, fed the horses and idly swept up some scattered hay. In the kitchen behind the red checked curtains, an old man took out an official-looking paper and chuckled over it.
 "Here's somethin' that big-takin' young lady ain't goin' to find," Clarence said to himself. "Cause I got it first. An' it's Mist' Michael's private business."
 It was the marriage certificate

Plans Completed For Construction For Centennial

DALLAS, June 11.—Preliminary plans are now complete for Texas' 100th birthday celebration which will center in the spacious exposition grounds here commencing June 6, 1936.
 Just one year is left for construction of a $10,000,000 exposition plant, and ground will soon be broken for the first of the scores of unusual and artistic structures, international exhibits and all-embracing amusements.
 When work actually is started on the grounds it is expected thousands of workmen will labor 24 hours each day in eight-hour shifts.
 Ample funds are available to make the Texas Centennial Exposition one of the greatest international expositions of its kind in history.
 The State of Texas has appropriated the sum of $3,000,000 of which more than a million dollars will go into the construction of a State of Texas building which will be permanent on the exposition grounds.
 The City of Dallas is issuing $3,500,000 of bonds for exposition purposes. The Texas Centennial Central Exposition, Inc., has already sold practically $2,000,000 of bonds to private individuals and corporations to aid financing of this Texas World's Fair.

 It is considered more than likely congress will appropriate another $3,000,000 for a federal building and other features. This appropriation has already passed the senate and is now being considered by the house.
 Walter D. Cline, managing director of the Central Exposition at Dallas, expects to make it a 20 million dollar show for 15 million people.
 Frank N. Watson has been selected as the promotion manager for the central exposition and has plans under way to tell the story of this great Texas celebration in all parts of the nation and throughout the world. He will aid in the creation of a national "urge" to visit Texas next spring and summer, and will advertise far and wide Texas historical background, her unparalleled resources and the business advantages of the Lone Star State.

Try a WANT-AD!

Frankly - Who Pays the Bill?

When government steps out of its sphere and tries to operate or control business, who pays the bill? THE PEOPLE PAY THE BILLS! It might be in the actual cost of service or it might be in higher taxes, but THE PEOPLE PAY THE BILLS!

When the government decided to operate the railroads, what happened? Chaos and confusion followed. When the railroads were returned to private ownership there was a tremendous deficit. Who paid it? THE PEOPLE DID WITH HIGHER TAXES!

When more and larger government commissions and bureaus are created, who pays the bills? THE PEOPLE DO!

Taxes in the United States have INCREASED more than a billion and a half dollars IN THE PAST 12 MONTHS! Who paid these increased taxes? THE PEOPLE!

There is legislation now pending in Congress known as the Wheeler-Rayburn bill which should be of vital concern to every citizen because it will create costs which, in the long run, THE PEOPLE MUST PAY!

This bill is aimed solely at the electric industry.

The provisions of the bill are so severe and restrictive and so revolutionary in character that the companies could not live under them. The bill would give government a vise-like grip on the management and control of these companies and in doing so would create new federal commissions and bureaus. As usual, more bills for THE PEOPLE TO PAY.

The inevitable result of such a program would be the complete collapse of the electric industry with losses running into the billions for 10 million investors. Again, THE PEOPLE WOULD PAY THE BILLS.

This would lead to socialization of the industry and bring the risk of inferior service and higher rates to be PAID BY THE PEOPLE.

The record of privately-owned electric companies needs no defense. They have contributed generously and unselfishly, through excellent service at low rates, to the communities of which they are an integral part.

We don't believe we deserve to be singled out as the next national experiment—the 1935 "business guinea pig."

Father's Day Plans Perfected The Martha Dorcas class of the Methodist church Sunday school held their regular session Sunday morning in the church.

The session was presided over by Miss Ila Mae Coleman, vice president, and opened with a song service, "The Old Rugged Cross," and "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," led by Mrs. W. A. Hart, with Mrs. Dee High at the piano, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

During the business session plans were completed for the Father's Day program next Sunday when the Martha Dorcas will be hostess to the Men's 9:49 Bible class in the church auditorium.

The reception committee was appointed in Mmes. W. E. Coleman, W. A. Hart, and E. C. Satterwhite. Ushers were named in Mrs. Ed T. Cox Jr., Mrs. James Harlander and Miss Ila Mae Coleman.

The decorations will be attended to by the floral committee, Mmes. W. A. Hart, O. M. White, and W. B. Collier.

The class voted to pay for flooring one of the rooms in the parsonage, which is being repaired throughout.

A letter was read from Mrs. J. E. Hickman, expressing her appreciation for the many lovely affairs tendered her prior to her departure for her new home in Austin, and cards of thanks were read for remembrances during the recent illness of Mrs. W. A. Hart and Mrs. W. C. Marlow.

Mrs. C. G. Arnold of Wichita Falls was introduced as a visitor to the 25 members present.

Mrs. C. C. Robey, class teacher, brought a lesson for the day in her usual interesting style.

Revival Meeting Marked Monday by Special Singing

In spite of the showers of rain there was a fair crowd out Monday night for service at the revival at the Church of the Nazarene. The song service was the best yet. The Rev. N. E. Scott of Eastland is directing the music.

The message of the evangelist was directed to those who are saved and are children of God. A holy life was held up by the preacher for all who know they are saved from sin. Evidences of the remaining sin in the heart of the unsanctified was pointed out. Such a remaining sin is a hindrance to growth in grace, but "if we walk in the light, as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another and the Blood of Jesus Christ, His Son cleanses us from all sin," the pastor said.

The special number by Rev. and Mrs. Knight was very much enjoyed. They sang "The Lord Followed Me." Mrs. Knight is an accomplished musician and is here to assist through the remaining part of the revival.

Services are continuing daily at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.—Reporter.

What a Grand Slam They'd Make

It's 450 feet down to the water, so there'd be a great chance for a grand slam with these four bridge hands—if they lost their footing. The crew is stretching the mesh flooring of the catwalk cables of the San Francisco-Oakland bridge. Approximately 71,000 miles of cable wire will be used to support the world's greatest span.

ON TEXAS FARMS

"Knee deep in June" is okeh for the poet but apparently not for the dairyman if he is knee deep in Sudan grass gone to seed.

According to Extension Dairyman E. R. Eudaly, the value of Sudan grass is reduced about half if it is allowed to form seed.

He says it should be cut for hay just as it heads. If it is being grazed, but not kept down, mow half of it and two weeks later the other half. That way grazing will not be interfered with.

Mow the permanent pasture too. Twice a year mowing will kill the weeds Eudaly says. Cut high the first time—three or four inches off the ground—and low the next time to get the suckers and new branches.

Plant now for trench silo filling.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE NEA Service Staff Writer

Do you want to know how I manage to get plenty of nourishment into my child during vacation without his suspecting it or sensing anything but delighted with his diet?

The secret is to be very foxy indeed about planning desserts.

Make your luncheon dessert, for instance, the main dish and do a pudding of such noble caloric proportions that the young one gulps down quantities of eggs and milk without ever being aware of it. It's old stuff but necessary to tell you that every child should have in his diet every day one quart of milk.

He should have two fruits, one preferably raw, one serving of meat, fish or eggs, a whole grain cereal, three slices of bread or toast and four glasses of water.

When the dinner is hearty, a simple luncheon of raw vegetable sandwiches, one hot cooked vegetable, a glass of milk and a nourishing dessert proves most satisfactory for hot noons. A vegetable salad with bread and butter sandwiches can take the place of vegetable sandwiches.

Drinks made of milk and eggs are nourishing and easily digested. They are quickly made, too, and children like them. It's a good plan to serve a cup of hot boillon or a hot vegetable dish when a cold milk and egg drink is served.

Fruit juices also can be combined with eggs to make nourishing and inviting drinks. When these are used, a hot vegetable cream soup with sandwiches of lettuce or some other green vegetable rounds out the meal.

Here are two desserts for children that do everything you could ask of a dessert. For the first, drain canned pear halves and places in glass cups, two halves to each cup. Pour over the pears a rich boiled custard.

For the second dessert line the cups with sponge cake cut in strips, add drained canned peaches and finally, custard sauce. Both desserts should be well-chilled in the refrigerator.

NEW YORK—Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin no doubt could go on and on without proving anything conclusively.

Eventually, Ross probably would run McLarnin down, as have younger and less showman warriors in other famous series, but the plucky kid from the Chicago Ghetto would know that he was in the front line all the way along the route.

There wasn't a great deal to choose between Ross and McLarnin after their third 15-rounder, or 45 heats in all. I considered the unanimous decision that once more placed the world welterweight wreath on Ross's raven looks correct as did the majority of the critics, but it was hooded faintly and admittedly was debatable.

Quite naturally, the Irish vote was solidly behind McLarnin, with the cloak and suiters just as firmly entrenched behind Ross. Ohhand, I would say that 75 per cent of the unbiased opinion agreed with the officials.

Ross and McLarnin stiffened the pace as they went along. The battle at the Polo Grounds the other night was more savagely fought than their second edition, which was more hotly waged than the first.

McLarnin Would Continue WHILE Pop Foster, disappointed at the verdict, announced that McLarnin had made his last start, the Vancouver lad himself is willing to continue the rich thrillers with Ross.

A fourth fight would meet with the approval of Ross, so don't be surprised to see them back again. McLarnin took his defeat philosophically and with much more grace than Foster.

"I haven't made up my mind about retiring," asserts McLarnin. "I really don't believe that I lost. I convinced myself that there still is plenty of fight in me. I couldn't understand the odds of 3-to-1 against me. Certainly, I've never looked like a boxer against whom odds like that should be laid, and I hardly could have looked like one this last trip, either."

Irishman Favors Right McLARNIN would continue his series with Ross despite the fact that his vaunted right hand apparently is gone. The British Columbia bomber used his right with much less frequency than in the past. He bluffed with his right a great deal of the time, and when he did bring his once most formidable weapon into play the body generally was the target.

There is a large lump on the back of McLarnin's right hand caused by constant jamming of the cuneiform bones through 12 years of warfare. Once jammed these bones cannot be unjammed. Jack Sharkey suffered the same way, and once remarked that his right hand hurt even when he gripped the steering wheel of a motorcar.

Lake many another outstanding gladiator, Jimmy McLarnin hit too hard for his own hands.

McLarnin making it so close with the younger and ambitious Ross shows how great a fighter he really was when he did not have to use his right fist sparingly. I suspect that it was just as well for Ross in all three engagements that he wasn't squaring off with the McLarnin of several years ago.

Three tons per cow is what will be needed. Cane or grain sorghum can be planted on the oat stubble if there is enough moisture.

Cows need dry feed too. Eudaly says. And roughages are cheaper than grain. So plan for one ton of hay or bunched feed for each cow.

The government's drought relief cattle buying removed about one million dairy cows from Texas farms, according to Eudaly. Remaining milkers should now be tested to be sure they are "worth their board and keep."

SULPHUR SPRINGS—Farmers of Hopkins county are seeding their pasture land with bur clover, dallis grass, and lespedeza this spring. County Agricultural Agent S. L. Neal recommends that the three kinds of seed be mixed together and fed at the rate of two pounds of the mixture to every 100 pounds of feed. This method serves a two-fold purpose, in that the seed is not injured and is left in fertile places, and the stock does not bother the plant the first year. Other farmers in this county are mixing the seeds with barnyard manure and putting it out in the pasture.

BRENNHAM—Eight inches of rain in two days last month in Washington county convinced many of the value of terracing, according to C. Hohn, county agricultural agent. "Many of those who were skeptical about the ability of terraces found the greater part of their soil pushed out into the road and pastures, while those who had terraced their land found the terraces full of dirt which otherwise would have been lost," he states.

ARCHER CITY—Z. T. Burkett, dairyman living near Archer City, states that he is glad that he terraced 30 acres of land last fall. The land was seeded to oats for grazing purposes only. A freeze in February killed all the oats. He replanted the land in spring oats and his dairy cows have fed off the pasture since the oats were big enough for pasturing. Burkett says that it looks like he is going to be forced to eat the oats the cows have been unable to eat, according to a report of the Archer county agricultural agent.

BEAVER CREEK—Buttons made from walnuts add distinctiveness to a dress. That is the opinion of Mrs. Ray Ackerman, wardrobe co-operator of Beaver Creek Home Demonstration club in Wichita county. She saws the walnut through the middle, removes the meat, adds a coat of shellac and has a one-inch walnut button. Mrs. Ackerman has already received an order for one dozen of these buttons at 10 cents each.

DICKENS—"Cut the glove on a true bias of the material to insure a smooth fit," Mrs. W. A. Harris, Espuela Home Demonstration club member of Dickens county said in giving a demonstration last night when she gave a demonstration last night when she gave a demonstration last night.

SINTON—By using white wrapping paper given to her by the groceryman, a piece of scrap lumber for another shelf, and an old broom handle for another clothes rod, Miss Anita King, clothing demonstrator for the Miscellaneous Home Demonstration club in San Patricio county, has remodeled her clothes closet. The only cash expenditure was 30 cents for paint and for the shelves, rods and the floor, which were given two coats of paint. Miss King's closet is 6 by 3 by 7 feet. Forty-two yards of the white wrapping paper were used plus home-made flour paste. The result is a neater closet, more rod space to hang her clothes, and a shoe shelf.

DEAREST DAUGHTER,

Thanks so much for sending that delightful little note, remembering my birthday. And please don't feel that its being so short made it any the less welcome.

Besides, I know what it is to have "shoppers headache"—to feel all worn out and dragged down, with your feet as heavy as lead from walking around all day.

But, my dear, why do you do it? I know you and Bob have something of a struggle to make ends meet. It won't always be that way, because I know Bob's a very ambitious young man—ambitious for you as well as for himself.

But take an old lady's advice, dear. Look for bargains—no matter how wealthy you become. But don't make an expedition of it. Make it a tour. You get a newspaper. Look for real bargains there, before you set out. Then you'll know where you're going, and you won't wear yourself out. I know, because I do it.

Give my best to Bob, and give Bob, Jr., a great big kiss from his grandma.

Lots of love, Mother
