WEATHERFORD SHERIFF FINDS MISSING GIRL

That reminds me...

Figures are always dry except to the individual who counts his dollars, dimes, nickles or pennies that may be possessed. If there are none there is no counting. But when some political aspirants or office holders get to naming figures, particularly as it affects other individuals or industries. My how they do get them mixed up. To deliberately take the receipts of any organization or individual and say that there is truly a basis for enormous overcharges is imaginary from every concept. Many of the congressmen in debate in defence of the holding company death bill are using figures, and more figures, and charges that the average American can only take his word for it. Perhaps there may be some salaries that look unusual, there may be some expenses that could be cut out, but it is inevitable that nothing is stable in industry, and it rocks to and fro one time calm and another like howling winds that destroy. There are things that are never expected at the time they come. Regardless of the uproar of the congressional house action in refusing to hew to the line of presidential demands, and regardless of those who did not vote. There were those who did, and there'll be no death knell for the time being. And now that the excitement has made conscientious government advisors look more soberly at the question of the accused "disastrous holding companies" perhaps they will sit around and make plans for a reasonable regulation of any portions of holding company activities that can be remedied. The holding companies welcome that with open arms.

In this column Friday comment was made on the progress of the Eastland National Bank of the gain in deposits over the past quarter. The figures given were $5,050,000 but should have read $50,000. Some times these things happen in the best of regulated linotype operators and slip by. Suffice to say that everybody is happy that the Eastland National Bank is progressing with the community and becoming an established institution in the welfare and lives of our people.

War clouds continue to hang over portions of Europe, and the Abyssinians are appealing to the United States for some kind of protection. That's one scrap that this country can certainly ignore as certainly we haven't lost anything down in that neck of the woods. It seems that some European nations like the game of war and will never let up on talking engagements or on actual about it. We've had our share and need no more of it. Never can tell however, when it comes something bobs up to mess us all up and as a rule when we get mad there is no hanging back of the masses. They go in and fight and fight to win. One thing that is outstanding and that is that if all the wars we've had and we've won them all this nation has never gotten cocky about it.

A little rain wouldn't hurt just about this time, in fact it couldn't help but do good. It would make things grow a little better, water-melon redder and bigger, and cool off the atmosphere. If there is any kind of crop that isn't showing up wonderfully right now we don't know what it is. Only hope that we have a big pecan crop, as well as a big turkey crop on top of all the other good crops. Great stuff, folks, and happy days should soon be here again.

Society Cannot Evade Ex-Convict's Problem

Now that Alabama Pitts, the athlete who got his try-out in Sing Sing prison, has made his bow to the baseball fans, it is worth while to have a look at some of the implications in his case.

Pitts emerged from Sing Sing to be offered a baseball contract by which he could earn an honest living. An official ruled that baseball was too pure a game to be contaminated by the presence of an ex-convict, and the whole baseball community got up on its hind legs in a display of indignation that did credit to the sports world's sense of fair play.

As a result of this outburst the idiotic ruling was reversed, and Pitts got his chance. From now on he will sink or swim by his own powers, like anyone else.

In all of this argument, one point well worth thinking about was kept to the fore: it is useless to urge the ex-convict to "go straight" if society refuses to give him the job that will enable him to earn an honest living. This is one of those self-evident propositions that need no arguing, of course; but we often manage to forget about it, and the value of the Pitts case was that it reminded us of the way in which society must co-operate if it is to redeem its one-time law breakers.

Pitts got his chance, and everybody was glad to see him get it. But how about all the other men who leave prison and who are not lucky enough to find a baseball contract awaiting them? What happens to them?

Pitts, after all, was only one among many. What would have happened to him if, instead of being a talented ball player, he had been, say, a talented filing clerk; would his chances of finding a job have been good?

That question hardly needs to be answered. His chances would have been very bad indeed. There are too few jobs and too many men looking for them. Few employers will take on a man with a prison record when they can get plenty of men who have never broken any law.

Natural enough, such an attitude, certainly; yet it puts a tragic obstacle in the path of the man who has been in prison and who doesn't want to go back there. He makes contacts in prison, in spite of himself—contacts with lawless circles that will welcome him gladly if he decides to return to crime. If he can't get a job, it is pathetically easy to see how he might turn to such circles for help.

The story of Alabama Pitts dramatized the ex-convict's predicament. It ended happily, because the sports world rallied to Pitts' support. It might have had a different ending if his talents had happened to lie in some other field than baseball.

Dependability Is First Demand of Autoists

Sit on a front porch beside a rural highway and watch the automobiles go zipping by, and you will get that the American motorist asks for one thing, and only one, when he buys a car—speed.

This survey was conducted by the research staff of one group of manufacturers. It sent questionnaires to more than 1,000,000 motorists, asking them to list the general characteristics which they prized most highly in a new car.

The thing the motorist wants most in his car, according to this survey, is the homely old quality of dependability. He likes to feel that the old bus will keep on running, month in and month out, and that he won't always be taking it to the service station for annoying and expensive repair jobs.

In second place came economy, which is, of course, allied to dependability; and next to these two qualities the motorists wanted safety—which also has something to do with dependability.

Next, in the order named, the motorists voted for comfort, appearance, ease of control, low first cost, smoothness, pick-up—and, last of all, speed.

Their replies are rather surprising. The results of this questionnaire are more than a little instructive. They suggest, for instance, that the automobile industry is wise in edging away from the yearly change-of-model stunt; for the car's appearance, after all, ranked only fifth on the list, and the demand for dependability suggests that many a driver likes to hang on to a sturdy car regardless of minor changes in body stylings.

And they indicate, furthermore, that the great mass of auto drivers is not speed-crazy. Looking at the whizzing cars on a through highway might make one feel that everyone in America is intent on shaving seconds from his traveling time; but apparently the speed-bugs are only a small minority of the motoring public.

In fact, the questionnaire indicates that most motorists are pretty sensible when they come to buy cars. Now if there were only some way of putting some sense into that small minority that likes speed, speed and then more speed, we might reach a millenium in which all motorists were as dependable as their automobiles.

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK.—I hear that Bob Smith, the old prize fight manager who trains the Brookmeade Stable, is about to sever connections with Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane. It is reasonable to suspect that relations between Mrs. Sloane and Smith are not as pleasant as they were last year when the Brookmeade barn topped the turf in money won with $251,138.

But it is to be hoped that the combination of Mrs. Sloane and Smith remains intact. It is one of the sportiest in racing. One person, team, or stable cannot have all of the good fortune all of the time, and the vanished Brookmeade string of 1934 virtually has collapsed this season.

To date this year Mrs. Sloane is without a single stakes winner among the older horses. It remained for the 2-year-old, Delphinium, to give Mrs. Sloane her first stakes victory of the year, and the imported son of our own Blue Larkspur was a surprise winner of the National Stallion Stakes, in which he beat the crack White Cockade by a nostril.

Turf fortunes ebb and flow, but the fall of Mrs. Sloane from first place to a point somewhere below the first 30 leading owners—until Delphinium earned her $11,720—is in some way catastrophic. Mrs. Sloane hardly could expect to come up with another 3-year-old like Cavalcade. Such statistical marvels have a habit similar to that of lightning. An owner is fortunate to get one in a lifetime, no matter how much money is spent in the attempt. Yet so complete a downfall as the one that the white and blue cross sashes of Mrs. Sloane has experienced this year hardly could happen without a strong element of bad luck.

Things commenced to break against the Brookmeade Stable last summer. In the Belmont Stakes, won by Joseph E. Widener's Peace Chance, High Quest grabbed himself so severely that he broke down. Cavalcade pulled up with a hoof injury not long after. Earlier in the season, Duke Bellini, who appeared headed for stardom among riders, was killed in a fall from the back of Psychic Bid. Late in the fall, Inlander, the mud-running wonder which captured the Classic Stakes as a 3-year-old, had to be destroyed. Cavalcade was beaten in his first start this year. It was explained that he needed the race.

But, almost a year after High Quest stumbled at the start of the Withers, throwing Mack Garner, and losing all chance of prevailing, Cavalcade stumbled in the coveted Suburban, unseating Johnny Gilbert. Mrs. Sloane captured practically every major stakes event for 3-year-olds except the Belmont last year, and her 2-year-olds reeled ready to sweep the lists in that division as well. But Psychic Bid proved to be only a sprinter, and an uncertain one at that. Special Agent and the other Brookmeade 3-year-olds likewise failed to unfold their supposed class.

Smith was caught without a contract rider after letting Garner out. Pony McAtee found a comeback impossible. Bobby Jones rode Psychic Bid in the Kentucky Derby, while George Woolf was aboard the descendant of Fair Play in the Freeknees. Then Gilbert came a cropper aboard Cavalcade to continue the line of ill fortunes. But possibly Delphinium has marked the turning point in the Brookmeade luck. Cavalcade scarcely can be fixed permanently, and the Brookmeade 2-year-olds are as a group very promising. Anyway, I hope Mrs. Sloane and Bob Smith get along. They're both such good sports.

FLAN ACID TEST ON THOMPSON OPERATION
GORMAN, July 6.—Cement is reported being poured on the Thompson well preparatory to making an acid test. A quick setting cement will be poured and 100 feet of it plugged. Then the acid will be run in and left for the appropriate time under a 2,600 pound pressure. Kirk et al in the Gowan area in the lime and hope to be down to the pay depth within a few more days. Workers on the Kokomo well have recovered the six-inch casing and are now fishing for the tools which they lost trying to pull casing. Only the eight-inch casing remains in the hole. Leasing for two or three more tests over this section is in progress.

STEPHENS COUNTY WELL, COX No. 1 DRILLS ON BRECKENRIDGE, July 6.—H. J. Cox and others No. 1 W. A. Corbett is still drilling ahead at 4180 feet. They had a nice showing of gas in the lime at 4165 feet. Pitzer & West's test on the Geo. DeLafosse ranch is now the deepest drilling well close-in to Breckenridge; they are down to 4350 feet and still going ahead. The most important strike in the district for this week in Ungren & Frazer's No. 1 H. Dorsey, located in the Hawley pool, Jones county, north of Abilene. Sand in this well was topped at 1975 feet and it flowed better than 750 barrels the first 24 hours. While this is flush production, the well can undoubtedly be rated at four to five hundred barrels. This well extends the Hawley pool one-quarter mile west. Ungren & Frazer are said to have a nice block surrounding the well in all directions. Another important completion in the same Hawley area is that of Monray & King's No. 1 Pritchard which is a wildcat located a couple of miles north of production; sand was topped at 2090 feet, and although the well is not as large as the one above, it is estimated at around 25 barrels and should cause more drilling on surrounding acreage.

AUSTIN. — With more than $285,000 already disbursed for materials used in the control of wind erosion in Northwest Texas, officials of the Texas Relief commission expect the total expenditure to run well in excess of $400,000, they said this week. Although the program will end June 30, it is expected that several weeks will elapse before all orders for feed and fuel used in the program will be paid. Since 10 cents per acre was allowed participating farmers, expenditures of $400,000 in the program will mean that four million acres of Panhandle and Plains land have been listed to prevent its blowing away. Plans for the program were formulated by Dr. O. B. Martin, director of the Extension Service, A. and M. College, and work actually was supervised by county agents in the affected area.

"WATCH THE FORDS GO BY"

POWER TO GO AND POWER TO STOP

A SAFE CAR helps to make a safe driver. The Ford Motor Company sees to it that you get a safe car. Unusual power to go is combined with unusual power to stop. Ford brakes are an outstanding feature. They are powerful, efficient and easy to apply—with more braking area per pound of weight than any other car under $1095. But Ford safety is more than the safety of good brakes. It is built into every part of the car. The Ford body is all steel . . . steel reinforced with steel and electrically welded into a one-piece unit for still greater strength. All Ford body types have Safety Glass throughout at no extra cost. Three other reasons why you will feel safer in a Ford are ease of handling, stability, and the alert, obedient performance of the V-8 engine. The Ford is steady on curves. It hugs the road because of correct weight distribution and because its center of gravity is low. You will find that the steady, sure response of the Ford communicates calmness and confidence to those in the car and makes each journey easier and more reposeful. The Ford thus gives you double safety. The way it drives helps you to avoid danger. The way it is built provides unusual protection in time of emergency.

were yet in short pants," he said. "But there are days when experience and fidelity in public service or in business life are exceedingly 'disqualifying'."

He was cheered and applauded when he made the following statement: "Whether it be influence brought to bear by officials of the utilities or by their stockholders, or whether it be the threat of the demagogues and the agitators on the other hand, or whether it be to oppose the chief executive of this nation I will do what I think right."

Huddleston condemned all forms of lobbying, saying that it is regrettable that lobbying is being done by official Washington as well as by outside interests. He condemned also efforts of certain federal agencies to paint all utilities black. "They whipped the country into a rage," he said. "They formed public opinion, especially among those who had the least information. They caused this public opinion to reach a fever heat."

"Demagogues grasped their opportunity and agitators saw the time was ripe for them. So, like cultures riding the storm, they mounted upon the wave of ill will and public opinion against the utilities."

"This is the finest demagogic bait that was ever spread; they not only get a chance to 'soak the rich' and then to fan the prejudices of the poor against those who happen to have managed to hold on to a stray nickel, but they are able to draw around their shoulders the cloak of patriotism—I am the defender of the people."

As Representative Huddleston closed his speech republicans and democratic representatives rushed to his side and congratulated him.

Stoopnagle And Budd on a New Ford Broadcast

If some historian ever undertakes to set down the life stories of comedians, the names of Col. Lemuel O. Stoopnagle and Budd, who will be heard with Fred Warner on the Ford dealers' broadcasts beginning Tuesday, July 2, will be listed as Frederick Chase Taylor and Wilbur Hulick, respectively.

The program is heard over the CBS coast-to-coast network.

The Colonel, Taylor, was born on Oct. 4, 1897, and Budd, Hulick, on Nov. 14, 1905. Colonel Stoopnagle received his education at Nichols Preparatory School in Buffalo, Montclair Academy, in Montclair, N. J., and the University of Rochester. Budd attended high school in Asbury Park and then studied at Georgetown University.

When he was 20 years old, Stoopnagle joined the U. S. Naval Reserve Corp. though of course not under that name. After the war he joined his father in the lumber business, amusing himself on the side by acting, writing and 'drawing'. His first appearance on the radio was over the Buffalo station WMAG, in 1925. He was still active in business, however, and rose to the vice presidency of a brokerage house. On reaching that position Stoopnagle resigned and joined the production department of the Buffalo Broadcasting corporation.

In the meantime Budd was busy starring as a football player (he was quarterback on the only Georgetown team that ever defeated N. Y. U.), playing a saxophone, leading an orchestra and graduating from college. Next he played with an orchestra, learned something about the telegraph business and jerked soda. It was his curious manner of cutting up at a soda fountain that attracted the attention of an executive of a broadcasting station. Budd took time out from his soda jerking to make a microphone test and a short time later he too was on the staff of the Buffalo Broadcasting corporation.

On Oct. 10, 1930, Budd, as an announcer, found himself with a 15-minute morning period to fill just a few minutes before it was time to go on the air. Dashing around the studio looking for material for the quarter-hour spot, he found Colonel Stoopnagle (still Frederick Chase Taylor) typewriting a script. With just seconds to go, the pair decided to announce themselves as Colonel Lemuel Stoopnagle and Budd. They found a folding organ, lugged it into the studio and were off on the first of a series of broadcasts that have made them world-famous for their microphone capers.

"LES MISERABLES" AT LYRIC THEATRE MONDAY

Victor Hugo's immortal classic, "Les Miserables," comes to the screen of the Lyric Theatre Monday in Darryl Zanuck's lavish production of the novel for 20th Century Pictures, starring Fredric March, Charles Laughton and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, under the direction of Richard Boleslawski.

The role of Jean Valjean, celebrated convict hero who spends five brutalizing years in the galleries of a French prison ship for the theft of a loaf of bread and finds his whole future life darkened by the petty crime, is the greatest undertaking of March's brilliant screen career. Laughton, as the fanatical detective, Javert, who has dedicated his life to the literal interpretation of the law, offers a characterization which affords a psychological glimpse into the strange workings of the mind of a manhunter.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, distinguished stage and screen star, is seen as the beneficent Bishop Bienvenu, whose faith raises the hunted Jean Valjean from an unfeeling beast to a noble and prosperous man.

The story, which was transcribed to the screen by W. P. Lipscomb, reveals vividly the social conditions in the France of Hugo's day, against which his stirring novel was a dramatic protest.

Rochelle Hudson, John Beal and Frances Drake supply a love theme that forms a romantic counterplot to Jean Valjean's desperate career.

Also prominent in the supporting cast are Florence Eldridge, who in private life is Mrs. Fredric March, Jessie Ralph, Ferdinand Gottschalk, and little Marilynne Knowlden.

"Les Miserables" is a Joseph M. Schenck presentation, released through United Artists.

The short course has been made an annual school held under the sponsorship of Texas A. and M. College and last year attracted 80 officers. More than 400 attendance is expected this year.

We're not Crazy

What's this? Heating equipment advertisement in this July heat? Yes, and we're not crazy! It's like this: Many homes are using worn-out equipment. We want to help them modernize. It's easier for them to buy early and pay later. So we're making our most liberal terms in July!

Buy modern gas heating equipment in July ... save

Comfort and health are two things every man wishes for his family, especially during the winter season. Right now is the best time to make sure that your home will have a healthful, comfortable temperature next winter.

During July, your gas company is making price concessions and offering the most liberal terms on modern gas circulators and floor furnaces. With either of these units your home will have care-free, uniform, healthful heat at small cost.

Natural Gas will maintain this "Comfort Zone" at low cost

FLOOR FURNACE—ideal for homes without basements because it furnishes furnace-type heat. Easily installed beneath floor. Heats one or two rooms.

BUY IN JULY!
 Begin Monthly Payments in OCTOBER!

Telephone your gas company now for a heating man to visit your home and advise with you on proper equipment, or better yet, visit our showroom, and see these advanced circulating heaters. Pay on a small amount down and equipment will be installed at your convenience. Balance in monthly payments beginning in October.
