THREE KILLED IN TWO TORNADOES IN TEXAS

What reminds me...

On Saturday, the Lone Star employees and officials of this entire state and Oklahoma will hold their annual picnic at the Fair grounds in Eastland. This is something worth while for all concerned while here. They represent the largest payroll in the community. They represent a citizenship worth while for any community. They represent an industry that has pioneered the gas industry for twenty-five years. This is their silver jubilee. They represent a nucleus that is still pioneering, expanding and constantly applying themselves for an uninterrupted service. Only men who can guide the destiny of a commonwealth with ability and efficiency could have made the strides of something accessible to all people could have accomplished this stupendous enterprise in so short a time.

Wagner Bill Goes Back to Senate

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Labor's "magna charta," the Wagner labor dispute bill, went back to the senate today, having received congressional support. Supported by organized labor and denounced by a large section of industry, it will be sent to a joint committee where minor differences will be ironed out. It probably will be signed by the president and become law within a week.

SHARE WEALTH PROGRAM UP TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, June 20.—President Roosevelt shifted to congress the responsibility for immediate action on his share the wealth tax program. The White House indicated that while the president desired early passage of the three point program for increased tax levies on the wealth he preferred to let congress decide when the measure would be taken up.

A meeting of the senate finance committee was called to vote if it would go into the broad plan at this time. The committee voted to report the resolution extending the present "nuisance taxes" but with an amendment continuing them for one year instead of two years.

It was indicated the White House felt the tax pronouncement was one of the most significant since Mr. Roosevelt assumed office and there was no intention of rushing through immediate legislation. The message provides for: 1—High inheritance and gift taxes on large fortunes. 2—Sharply higher income taxes in the upper brackets. 3—Graduated corporation taxes, placing a heavier burden on large corporation incomes.

The program was estimated as carrying a possible yield of $1,000,000,000 annually. It was indicated the White House would let congress make its own interpretation of the program and work out legislation in its own way.

Dependence Declared Upon the Soil

Byproduct of the recent conference under Henry Ford's wing at Dearborn, Mich., between farming and industry, comes a "Declaration of Dependence on the Soil and of the Right of Self-Maintenance."

This is an illuminated scroll, elaborate in form, and paraphrased from the Declaration of Independence. It restates the principle that all man's basic sustenance comes from the soil, to which he must return gain to regain self-maintenance, or indeed, self-government. And it restates also the familiar Ford thesis that chemistry and industry must together discover ways of using more farm products (i. e., corn into motor fuel, and soy beans into steering wheels).

All agricultural experts agree that it will be a long time before industry will be able directly to absorb enough farm products to make a dent in the surpluses that have been an increasing menace since the foreign market began to disappear. The "declaration" itself implies this when it says "it is a plan which must develop in persistent and orderly fashion over a span of years. Therein lies its strength."

It may be five, 10, 20 years before chemistry has taught industry how to use enough farm products to make up to the farmer his lost markets abroad.

Which is just why there is no real conflict between the Ford "Chemurgic" movement and the government's AAA program. The AAA recognizes that it is an emergency affair, reducing surpluses temporarily to protect the grower from a fall to starvation prices.

If and when Ford's "Chemurgists" devise means of using vast quantities of farm products in direct sale to industry, then AAA should, according to its theory, be the first to cheer and remove such acreage restrictions as still remain.

A beginning already has been made. The acreage of soy beans in Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana has grown amazingly during the past few years. And you can't get away from this: every acre devoted to soy beans in those states is just one less acre devoted to wheat, corn, and cotton, of which there is too much. Well, let's not argue about that; let's say, of which there is more than can be sold at a reasonable price.

These acreages, and the ones going into tung trees in Louisiana, are small as yet. They make no dent in agricultural surpluses. But they may, some day.

The Dearborn Declaration of Dependence probably never will rank with that other Declaration of Independence signed so long ago at Philadelphia. But it may be highly important as the years pass and the farmer, as well as other classes of people, faces the changes of the future.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 bride, 20 and allows her emotions to marry Michael young riding instructor into a title and fortune. father is rich and her
 is snobbish.
 following his mar-Michael is injured in a traf-and when he regains his memory is im-
 He forgets the marriage.
 unaware of this, be-has deserted her. She plans to leave for New Mexico and her friend, Violet Merser, agrees to engage a lawyer in her absence to arrange an annulment of the marriage.

 Dr. John Kaye, an old friend, sees Katharine off on her trip. He tells her he has always loved her.
 Sally Moon, who has snared Michael into a sort of engagement, plans for their wedding, unaware of Michael's marriage to Katharine.
 Meanwhile, Katharine, in New Mexico, finds some peace from her hurt, but still thinks of Michael.

Sally was trying on her wedding dress. The soft autumn air lifted the heavy net curtains. There were brown leaves blowing against the windows.
 "Oh—oh—!" said Annabel Matthias, coming in from a late breakfast, her negligee wrapped tightly around her. "I've heard it's had luck to try it all on together, Sally. Don't you think?"
 "Nonsense," cried Sally, turning on one heel and pirouetting with a satisfied backward glance at the image reflected in the long mirror set in the bathroom door.

 "How could it be bad luck now, with the wedding tomorrow and the rehearsal tonight? By the way, has Joe gone to the golf club?
 Because I want to have an early dinner. We're going over to the church at 8 o'clock. Daddy is being so silly about it all. He still wants us to keep it a secret, although his darned old election was yesterday and he got in, as usual." Annabel, mystified at this involvement, promptly said so, and Sally had to explain, with some impatience.
 "He didn't want anyone to know about the wedding beforehand, so the local storekeepers wouldn't get down on him. You see, I bought all my things in the city—naturaly. And so the invitations all go out by hand this morning."
 "I see," said Annabel who didn't at all and who thought the whole thing sounded "crazy if you ask me." She was to confide this information later to her stalwart Joseph, who would agree half-heartedly.
 Annabel was a big, rosy girl of 24 with blond hair which she coiled neatly at the nape of her rather short neck. She had bright, small eyes and a hearty laugh. Sally hated her rather cordially and loathed the idea of having her cousin as bridesmaid. Of course Annabel would be a foil for her own petite brunet looks. That was one consolation.
 "It's very pretty," said Annabel presently of the silver and white dress with its demurely cut neck and flowing sleeves. "But don't you think it's just a bit tight?" Sally, who insisted on having all her frocks fitted so that the melted and-poured-in-it" look would be definitely stressed, frowned.
 "Not at all," she said. Annabel, yawning and accepting the hint, trailed her negligee out of the door and said she guessed she'd go and do her nails. Privately she thought that in her blue mousseline de soie (how old fashioned that sounded!) she would far outshine the bride.
 Sally lingered, hating to take off the frock. She had designed it herself. She was intoxicated with her own appearance. A pity she couldn't call up some of the photographers of the big city papers, so that they could print her picture in the rotogravure sections later. She might take a chance and call them just before dinner. Her father surely couldn't expect to keep an important event like this wedding a secret forever. He was just being stuffy about it!
 She tried a number of expressions in the glass. Perhaps demureness would be best of all. She smiled at herself, drawing her red lips carefully back from her teeth as movie stars did. The effect, she thought, was enchanting. She would smile that way for her photographs. If she hadn't been marrying Michael (Lord Carden, although he said it was nonsense and didn't like the notion) she might have gone into pictures. Someone had said once she was the Sylvia Sidney type. Or was it Janet Gaynor?
 She called to Frieda, the house-

Isabel "putting herself out" for Sally Moon again!
 Maids came and went with packages and messages in the big, ugly house on the wide street. Some of the people who knew the Moons rather well called up when their invitations were delivered. They exclaimed that Sally had stolen a march on them—wasn't she a little rascal?—things like that. Sally began to feel better about it all.
 The spot on her chin that had bothered her in the morning yielded to the frequent applications of an astringent; her hair looked well. She went down to dinner in good humor.
 Michael was there. Silent as he was always these days, but beautifully polite and gentle. Annabel was impressed by him and said so.
 Sally didn't care. Annabel was a terrible washout. She wouldn't dare to criticize her after this.
 Marriage gave you a certain standing. You could do as you pleased once you had the title "Mrs." before your name. That was one of the reasons she had persisted about Michael, even before he had come into his inheritance.
 "Come on, everybody," she called rather shrilly. "Got to get this rehearsal business over." They all piled into her car and she drove somewhat recklessly the half dozen blocks to the little red-brick church on the side street.
 Dr. Willets, the minister, had arranged to have the side gate left open for them, and they trooped in without attracting too much attention, although out or two idlers stopped to gaze after them. Sally was very gay. She felt exhilarated.
 The plain, dark little church with the wooden benches and dark but only for an instant. Mr. Moon appeared from nowhere and Annabel, as proxy, went up the aisle on his arm. Sally didn't like this.
 Tradition or no tradition, it seemed plain silly to have her fat cousin meeting Michael and Joseph at the vestry, quite as though she were the star of this particular occasion.
 Annabel, blushing and bridle-ing at her Joseph, murmured coyly: "I Sally, take thee..."
 "She's not supposed to say that," said Sally quite angrily. But no one paid any attention to her. They were all staring at Michael who had come dead white and looked as if he were about to faint.
 Before anyone spoke he glanced wildly around and rushed out of the church.
 "Stop him!" cried Sally wildly.
 "Oh, stop him!"

Youth to Lead Mountain Ride

BANFF, Alta.—A young American will lead this year's five-day trek of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, which starts from here July 26 and traverses the Red Deer River region.

President of the Trail Riders at 25, George Vaux is the youngest head the organization ever has had. He is from Bryn Mawr, Pa., is a descendant of a long line of geologists and explorers.

The Banff-Lake Louise area has been a sort of summer home for the Vaux family during the past 40 years. Many remote trails, notably that through the Ice River valley south of Lake Louise, first were visited by pack trains engaged by the Vauxes. Young Vaux himself, likes to "recall" his first visit to Lake Louise when he was less than a year old.

A Lucky Jockey Turns $50 Into A Racing Stable

By United Press

OMAHA, Neb.—Joe Dine would fit into a Horatio Alger role.

Thirteen years ago, Dine came to Omaha from Lincoln, Neb., with a desire to become a jockey and with his eye on the Ak-Sar-Ben track here.

He had 45 cents in his pocket then. He returned this year wearing diamonds. Joe confesses he has had some rough times since 1922.

Landing in Chicago May 1 last year, Dine told newsmen, he had $50 and a promise from Texas friends they'd do right by him.

Dine collected on 20 straight winners, parleying most of his bets and claiming horses until at the end of the meeting in September he'd won $100,000 in purses and wagers. He had a string of 18 claiming horses, selling all but three.

WALSH, Colo.—John Poyner's 14 select milk cows died from "kinked" neck. They were all he had.

Million Was Spent By Relief to Aid Repairing Schools

By United Press

AUSTIN.—Nearly $1,000,000 was spent repairing and building 800 school buildings by the state relief commission, Director Adam R. Johnson said today.

The outstanding project, Johnson said, was a $532,000 landscaping job at nine Fort Worth schools. Relief funds paid all but $28,000 of the cost.

More than 50 Lower Rio Grande valley schools, damaged and wrecked in the 1933 hurricane, were replaced.

Roomier and more healthful educational plants have resulted, Johnson observed, and hundreds given work.

Farmer May Grow A Potato Salad

LUFKIN, Texas.—J. C. Burt, farmer living near Alto, believes he is well on his way towards raising potato salad on his tomato vines.

In 1933 Burt planted a field of tomatoes. Last year he planted the same field to potatoes. This year he planted tomatoes again, and was surprised to find that some of the vines bore a strange fruit.

He brought some of the vines to Lufkin to show his friends. The vines had potatoes on the roots and a queer kind of tomato on the stems.

The tomatoes, however, were harder than the ordinary kind and smelled a little like potatoes. The potatoes were perfect specimens.

NO INTERRUPTION of YOUR GAS SERVICE

as Texas Streams Burst Banks!

With torrential flood waters swirling at many points between you and the gas wells, Lone Star Gas System again has met the threat of the elements. Bridging the gap between the gas wells and your gas appliances, this dependable system has conquered the hazard and kept your service uninterrupted.

The greatest and most widespread floods in the history of this company have threatened the gas pipe lines at many points. As the waters rushed on over the country side, men stood by these lines day and night ready for any break. While bridges went down and roads were washed out and traffic was halted, the gas lines held intact.

This dependable service is not an accident. It is due to a quarter of a century of planning and huge expenditures of money. Seven pipe line bridges across swollen streams, heavy steel pipe laid deep in the ground, a well trained organization, are among the facilities which have made this gas system able to meet the unprecedented flood conditions.

The ability of your gas company to serve you during emergencies is, after all, the supreme test of service. The significant fact is that the facilities and organization necessary to keep your service constantly dependable in such an emergency must stand by throughout every day of the year waiting your instant call.

DEAREST DAUGHTER,

Thanks so much for sending that delightful little note, remembering my birthday. And please don't feel that its being so short made it any the less welcome.

Besides, I know what it is to have "shoppers headache"—to feel all worn out and dragged down, with your feet as heavy as lead from walking around all day.

But, my dear, why do you do it? I know you and Bob have something of a struggle to make ends meet. It won't always be that way, because I know Bob's a very ambitious young man—ambitious for you as well as for himself.

But take an old lady's advice, dear. Look for bargains—no matter how wealthy you become. But don't make an expedition of it. Make it a tour. You get a newspaper. Look for real bargains there, before you set out. Then you'll know where you're going, and you won't wear yourself out. I know, because I do it.

Give my best to Bob, and give Bob, Jr., a great big kiss from his grandma.

Lots of love,

Mother
