Roosevelt Social Security College Talks Reveal

F. D. R. never hesitates. He never deserts his most important program. His important measures are given the right of way. His vast social security plan, calling for the largest tax in the nation's history, was pushed through the senate by a 76 to 6 majority and thereby assured final enactment.

Five republican senators and one democratic registered against the enactment of the measure. It was a record vote. Several pairs were announced. Although it excludes farm labor, domestic, casual, governmental and charity workers, the bill creates a huge national reserve. Its backers are assured that it would cover nearly 25,000,000 people who would draw $10 to $25 a month after they reached 65 years of age.

Beginning next month, July, it would offer $15 of federal money a month if matched by state funds, for every individual over 65 years of age, or needy blind persons of any age. States without pension plans would not have to match the federal fund for the first two years. Another important provision would appropriate about $50,000,000 for dependent or crippled children, mothers aid and other welfare work, all of which must be matched by the state. Eventually the social security bill contemplates that about 25,000,000 workers will be covered by state unemployment funds to take care of them in periods of idleness.

The old age pension fund will be financed by taxing employers each 3 per cent on the payrolls of employees up to $3,000 a year. This is estimated to yield almost $2,000,000,000 annually by 1950. Companies with approved pension plans would be exempt. Altogether the measure contemplates eventual expenditures between four and five billion dollars annually, more than the present cost of running the entire government. A reminder that the house has enacted the measure and conferees will be named by house and senate to report a compromise measure and then the approved bill will be sent to the President. It is perhaps the most important as well as the most far reaching social justice ever enacted by the congress or the parliament of any nation in the history of the world. It must be true revolutions never go backward."

'FASTEST LAND PLANE' WILL ATTACK SPEED MARKS

Called "the world's fastest land plane" by its designers, this odd barrel-shaped craft, piloted by Cecil A. Allen, right, transpacific flyer, will soon take off from Los Angeles municipal airport for an assault on all land speed records. The Gee Bee No. 7, as this short, blunt-nosed plane is known, has reportedly been flown 321 miles an hour in tests with and against the wind. Allen hopes to achieve 350 miles an hour without attempting to climb into the rarefied stratosphere, and to span the United States in nine hours. Designed by Z. B. Granville, the ship has a high speed cruising range of 1000 miles, carrying 250 gallons of gasoline. It has been undergoing secret tests near Los Angeles.

THOMAS AUSTIN YAWKEY, who spent three of his many millions to put the Boston Red Sox where they are today, which is where the prospects are none too bright, returned from a 10-weeks hunting trip in Alaska just in time to see the outfit lose three straight and drop below 500 for the first time this season.

Yawkey, who has had little news of baseball since he departed from New York on April 13, found his $285,000 manager-shortstop, Joe Cronin, out with a stone bruise, and the expensive southpaw, Fritz Ostermuller, on crutches.

Max Bishop was spiked the day Yawkey joined the Red Sox in Cleveland, and Babe Dahlgren was benched the following day for his failure to hit. Bill Werber, star of 1934, is hitting only 219 and performing commensurately afield.

Had not the time for inter-club and inter-league deals expired, there probably would have been some business, but the situation being what it was, Yawkey fanned about Alaskan brown bear and let it go at that.

Slide Out of Pants WHEN the conversation did veer back to baseball it was of the Red Sox farms that Yawkey and his general manager, Eddie Collins, spoke first.

Their Charlotte, N. C., and Danville, Va., clubs are leading the Class B Piedmont and Class D Bi-State leagues, respectively.

Governor Allred's speech will be the feature attraction in Monday afternoon's program which introduces a radio series to be known as

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEHOLD HERE TODAY
Katharine Stryker, 20 and Michael Vincent, 25, are a young riding instructor and her father is rich and her mother is snobbish.
Following her marriage
Michael is injured in a traffic accident when he regains consciousness his memory is impaired.

He forgets the marriage. Katharine, heart-broken, believes he has deserted her. She goes to New Mexico to forget. Wandering off for an early morning stroll, Katharine becomes lost in the desert.
Michael arrives to explain and beg forgiveness. He hires a plane to search for Katharine. After a long hunt she is rescued.
Michael takes her, ill from shock and fatigue, to a ranch house and a doctor is summoned.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XLV

A nurse had come by car from Santa Fe. Katharine had been made comfortable. She was "resting easily now," the doctor told Michael. She had taken a little water; after a bit she might have some more.

"It was a shock—she has a little fever still—but she is young and strong. She will be all right."
"He was an old doctor, gray and prizzled. He had seen much pain and despair. He liked the look he saw in this young man's eyes."

"You're her—her brother?" the doctor hazarded. Michael shook his head.
"Husband," he said briefly.
"Ah, I didn't understand." The physician had observed the slender hand outside the coarse coverlet wore no wedding ring. But these modern young people—you never knew what they were going to do next.

The Millards were here now, and Miss Vincent. Michael had told them, quite simply, that Katharine was his wife. He had not expected them to believe him. But they had. Frank Millard had glared at him and muttered something in a rude undertone to his brother, Dirk, but Hilda, after one sharp glance at Michael, had silenced him.

Girls had their own reasons for keeping such secrets, she had observed later to Evelyn Vincent as the two rested in the ranch house sitting room and drank the strong tea Mrs. Darragh brought to them.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser thousand embellishments, for years to come.

"I think perhaps I should stay," Miss Vincent fretted. "After all, I am virtually in charge of the child. I doesn't seem quite proper."
"Nonsense," yawned Hilda, patting her disordered blond locks. "With a nurse and Mrs. Darragh for chaperons, I don't see very well how you could do anything. Besides a bride doesn't need a chaperon. At least, if she does, I've never heard about it."
Frank winced at this, but Hilda, always happily unconscious of another's reactions to her gay chatter, rambled on.
"He'll bring her back to Silencia after a few days, when she's ready to travel, and they can go on, picking up what I suppose was an interrupted honeymoon—probably they quarrelled—and everything will be lovely. Young love," sighed Hilda sentimentally. "I do so adore it. Delightful time of life, I always say."
"I don't agree," said Dirk, grinning and showing his big, fine teeth. "It's hellish. What say, Frank?" He gave the young man beside him a brotherly nudge, and Frank grunted angrily and sank deeper into the collar of his coat. Frank was indulging in the luxury of a man-sized hatred for Michael Heatheroe who had come winging out of the sky, out of nowhere, to rescue the golden girl with the mysterious eyes. Now the fellow claimed that girl as his wife.
"Well, come along everybody," said Dirk presently, the words ending in a prodigious yawn. "You knew we Millards pride ourselves on never doing any night driving, but we've got to get going tonight if we expect to reach the ranch by sundown tomorrow."
Frank stood up, stretching his magnificent muscles and shaking his blond head.
"Count me out. I'm not going."
"Why, Frank Millard?" began his sister-in-law combatively. "I never heard anything so silly in my life. Of course you're coming with us."
"No. You're all so anxious to get home, you'd just leave this poor kid to the wolves. I'm sticking around."
Frank must be deeply moved, his brother reflected, to have made such a long speech. Usually Frank's conversation was limited to monosyllables. He was glaring at them all now quite angrily.
Dirk shrugged. "Let him alone, honey. If he wants to stay, let him stay."
"But how will it look?" fretted Hilda. "Why, I never heard anything so silly in my life. And he'll be in the way. They've no place for him."
"Toss out my blanket," Frank grunted. "I'll sleep out."
"Well, it's your funeral," Dirk said philosophically. "It sounds nutty to me. What's wrong with you, anyway?"
"That fellow's no more her husband than I am," said Frank with contempt.
"Come along, girls. The boy's screwy," said Dirk good-naturedly.
"Screwy, am I?" muttered the lessness of alion cub, smoking innumerable cigarets, hands plunged deep into his pockets. Presently Mrs. Darragh came to the door, surprised to find him there.

"Why, I thought you'd gone with the others, Mr. Frank."
"No, I'm sticking around."
He offered no explanation of his strange conduct and she asked none. Mrs. Darragh had met the Millards before this. She thought of them as "real city folks," and none of their vagaries could really surprise her. Besides she had seen Katharine's face, lovely in its stillness; she sensed romance.
"Why, say, Mr. Frank, I'm real sorry we can't give you a room, but you know how 'tis."
He indicated his bedding roll.
"Oh, Millard," Michael said in a friendly tone, "I wanted to talk to you—thank you for looking after Katharine."
Frank stared past the offered hand. In a definitely inhuman tone he said: "No thanks in order. Katharine was in our care. She is, as a matter of fact. I'm staying in to see she's o. k."
There was no mistaking the hostility of his tone; the sneer was marked.
Mrs. Darragh, bustling past with a steaming platter, said cheerily, "Boys, boys, no fighting at the California field toward in here!"
"All right then," grated Frank, burning for action, and not caring what form it took, "Come on outside."
"Oh, Millard," Michael said in

DO NOT PAY CASH IN ADVANCE TO STRANGERS ON ANY MERCHANDISE . . . in many cases and from experience reported to the police department the customer has never received anything for the cash advanced nor has any refund been made of the original cash deposit.

DO NOT CASH CHECKS FOR STRANGERS NOR ISSUE A CHECK as a down payment on an order to a stranger, as in a number of cases these checks have been altered and later cashed by a third and innocent party.

SHOPLIFTERS WORKING THROUGH EASTLAND pilfer merchandise from local stores and dispose of this merchandise to citizens of this territory. Police KEEP CHECK OF SUSPECTED INDIVIDUALS and your co-operation is asked in tracing down stolen goods. Because of this merchandise usually sold as a special deal or offered at a ridiculous price for quick disposal.

IT'S BETTER TO BE SAFE THAN SORRY . . . BE SURE YOU KNOW who the stranger is at your door before granting admittance to your home. IN CASE YOU ARE SUSPICIOUS PHONE THE POLICE AT ONCE . . . as we are anxious to cooperate with our citizens at all times.

PRESSURE, FREE GIFT LISTISTS HAVE BEEN WORKING in the residential and farm districts of late selling all kinds of merchandise and offering "something free" to get into the homes. IN MOST CASES THERE IS NOTHING FREE TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

NEED NOT BE AFRAID OF SPENDING THE HONEST MONEY of a local firm. THEY HAVE THEIR CREDENTIALS WITH THEM and welcome such investigation . . . that is why they are asked to carry credentials. PROTECT YOURSELF . . . ASK FOR CREDENTIALS SHOWING THEIR IDENTITY AND THEIR LOCAL CONNECTIONS.

Miss Mona Pritchard Honored Miss Loraine Taylor honored Miss Mona Pritchard of Fort Worth, her house guest who is to be married on July 12, to Grayson Ray, with a bridge shower Friday.

The guests were met at the door by Mrs. E. S. Pritchard, Mrs. A. F. Taylor, and Miss Loraine Taylor and escorted into a veritable garden of flowers.

The decorations were white shasta daisies and ferns, carrying out the color motif of white, yellow and green, and large baskets of these blossoms were in evidence in the dining and living rooms.

The dining table was dressed in lace over yellow linen centered in a large bouquet of daisies over the mirror reflector.

Plate favors were small bridal hats decorated with orange blossoms, and the tallies and score pads were matched pictures of yellow and white daisies. Each guest wrote a wish to the bride to be on small hearts, all placed in a heart-shaped white box decorated with orange blossoms which was presented to the honoree.

Many handsome and useful gifts were presented in a large white bridal hat to Miss Pritchard, from her friends, the presentation being made by Yvonda Hassell, in a yellow crepe party gown, and Emalee Hoyt, gowned in green organdie, who sang a song to the bride to be accompanied by Miss Loraine Taylor.

Bridge was the diversion of the evening, and high score favor, awarded Mrs. Hollis Bennett, a white crystal rose bowl, and second high score favor, a set of green china measuring cups, awarded to Miss Ruth Hearn, were both graciously presented to the honoree.

Refreshments of golden glow salad, on lettuce, cream cheese and bread and butter sandwiches, potato chips, limeade with mint, and plate favors of small white bridal hats filled with green mints.

Guests at this charming affair were Misses Ma Mae Coleman, Dolores Tanner, Louise Karkalits, Anita Laurie Rosequest, Mary Williams, Bernice Johnson, Ruth Hearn, Joan Johnson, Mmes. W.

Much amusement was created in the spelling bee of household articles, which were to be started with the last letter of the word previously named, the honors in which, a bottle of perfume, was awarded Mrs. Carl Garrett, who graciously presented the favor to the honoree.

A very clever mock wedding was staged with Jack McDonald as the preacher, Kathleen Collie as the bride in the proverbial veil, and Ben Sparks as the groom, in the regulation soup and fish, with the call to come and get hitched, and the solemn ending, "you are hitched."

The announcements were written upon attractive pink and white bridal tallies, bearing the simple inscription, "Wanza and Allen, July the third, St. Louis, Mo."

BRUCE BARTON

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights . . . it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent a year. Advertising-made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertisement paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half-finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he quits successful, he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously—or perhaps reluctantly is a better word . . . THE BALD TRUTH IS THAT THESE RELUCTANT SPENDERS ARE, AS A CLASS, THE REAL OVER-SPENDERS IN ADVERTISING!

The story deals with murders on board, visitors and crew impounded while a young lieutenant turns detective, trails a killer, and after a desperate fight, corners him. Robert Taylor, of "Society Doctor" and "Times Square Lady," is the uniformed sleuth, and Jean Parker, of "Squoia" fame, plays his sweetheart in her most ambitious role to date.

Major thrills are the fight with the criminal in a flooded powder magazine as water slowly rises, the strange killing of the government engineer, the chase through the ship's compartments, the episode of the live wire, and the race against time to install a firing gear.

Edward Sedgwick, who directed "Death on the Diamond," filmed the new picture. The cast includes Jean Hersholt, of "Men in White" fame, in the principal character role, Nat Pendleton, Ted Healy, Una Merkel, Mary Doran, Arthur Byron, Frank Shields, Donald Cook, Raymond Hatton, Mischa Auer and others of note.

The story is by Edgewick, Lt. Commander Frank Wead and Joe Sherman wrote the screen play.

That Reminds Me

Main thoroughfares and on the highways with one or several young people riding on the running board or fenders. This is one ordinance that can be passed without malice or injury to anyone and is a protective measure for those who unthoughtfully do things that they do not mean any harm by but cannot realize the danger of the practice.

Members of the commission will not doubt order the special election to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. O. E. Harvey, at their Monday night meeting.

Naturally the responsibility of running the affairs of the city without compensation and take the criticisms of the disgruntled is no pleasant job at its best. But those who are willing to shoulder the burden can be commended. Above all means they should see that a full membership according to the charter is on the board. It is much better for the present members and much better for the citizenship. The charter does not specify any particular time to call the special election, but when it is called it must be held within fifteen days after it has been called.

That part of the charter should be revised to the extent that immediately upon a resignation or death of a member an election should automatically be held within fifteen days after such vacancy.

A perusal of the city audit indicates that the city's affairs have been handled since 1933 as consistently as possible under the stressing depressive times we have had. It reflects no mismanagement nor reflection on those whose job it was to do it in the interest of the people. That's something that any city can be proud of. The delinquent water bills are an item however that appeared to be excessive. Of course delinquent taxes we take in up to April 30, 1935. There is plenty of heavy work to do in the future on many projects worth while. The present administration is rolling up their sleeves to tackle the job. It takes the cooperation of everybody to see that their administration is a success and that the things done will revert to the interest of everybody.

Success or failure of the speaking tour will give Huey a better idea of his possibilities as a presidential candidate in 1936. Huey isn't saying anything about it, but his closest associates expect him to contest against Roosevelt in next year's Democratic primaries. To make trouble even though he has no hope of nomination.

Meanwhile, Roosevelt isn't worrying as much about Huey as he was at one time. Events have tended to isolate the Kingfish as an individual phenomenon rather than a dangerous leader of a popular left wing movement.

The supreme court NRA decision and subsequent events left Roosevelt with first lien on a radical issue which can be used to sour Huey's support and divert left-wingers to the Roosevelt tent.

And now, by an abortive filibuster designed to embarrass the administration, Huey has lost most of such sympathy as he had in the Senate.

A group of progressive and Republican colleagues had been way, Dallas, is also expected. Lee Simmons, Huntsville, head of the Texas prison system, is an annual reunion visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Christian and children had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Yardley.

Miss Mandy Bell Langley is spending a few days with her sister at Comanche.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hare spent Wednesday with his son Jack, near Lingleville.

There were a party at Mandy Langley Friday night and several attended.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Huey Long will barnstorm the country this summer, drumming up support for his share-the-wealth scheme.

To let the country know just what this $5,000,000,000 scheme is, Huey offered it in the Senate, with an age pension, unemployment insurance, and child welfare provisions, as a substitute for Roosevelt's security setup.

To raise the money, the Kingfish would tax all fortunes over $1,000,000 and limit individual fortunes to $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 with levies ranging from 1 to 99 per cent. Republicans joined Democrats in shouting down the plan.

Success or failure of the speaking tour will give Huey a better idea of his possibilities as a presidential candidate in 1936. Huey isn't saying anything about it, but his closest associates expect him to contest against Roosevelt in next year's Democratic primaries.

Meanwhile, Roosevelt isn't worrying as much about Huey as he was at one time. Events have tended to isolate the Kingfish as an individual phenomenon rather than a dangerous leader of a popular left wing movement.

The supreme court NRA decision and subsequent events left Roosevelt with first lien on a radical issue which can be used to sour Huey's support and divert left-wingers to the Roosevelt tent.

And now, by an abortive filibuster designed to embarrass the administration, Huey has lost most of such sympathy as he had in the Senate.

A group of progressive and Republican colleagues had been way, Dallas, is also expected. Lee Simmons, Huntsville, head of the Texas prison system, is an annual reunion visitor.

had taken his equity in the company in stock and had moved it to his store at Monahans.

using or abetting the Kingfish in some cases, believing that the shrewd Huey, for all his faults, was often of value.

But when Huey kept the Senate up all through the night he merely made everybody more Progressive. He and Schwelienbach of Washington joined in the effort of administration leaders to blackjack him into submission with parliamentary weapons.

They felt Mrs. Filibuster, with the alleged purpose of bringing New Deal appointments under Senate control or to defeat the NRA bill, was so hopeless as to be without excuse, and blamed it on Long's egotism.

Thus Huey's prestige as a dangerous, effective demagogue had dropped several notches.

HUEY'S post-mortem story is that he would have been in position to lead a filibuster from that Friday morning to Sunday, when NIRA would have expired, if his "support" hadn't failed him.

Schall of Minnesota had a speech read and was eventually stuffed, but Gore of Oklahoma was supposedly filibustering—was talked out of helping Huey by Pat Harrison.

Tydings of Maryland, whom Huey expected to filibuster pending the second speech to which Huey was entitled, just disappeared.

You can't say Huey is "stopped." No one will be surprised if his importance as a thorn in the administration's flanks reaches new heights.

Affidavits he presented to the Senate against Jim Farley were so sensational that only a heavy administration majority and the anti-Huey feeling prevented an investigation.
