NEED FOR RE-DISTRICTING THE STATE IS SEEN

COULD HAVE GIVEN POWER TO DEMOCRATS

ate May Have Three Congressmen-At-Large If Task Is Not Completed in Near Future.

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, Nov. 8.—With the prospect that Texas' lone Republican congressman may stand in the way of a Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, this state's redistricting of the state is seen to be of great importance.

Both the Senate and House of the Texas legislature are solidly Democratic. It is sure that the congressional redistricting will change the 11th district in which Harry M. French, Republican has won re-election.

TAKING THE COUNT ON BOND ISSUES

The nation over, in the various commonwealths voters approved $300,000,000 in bonds and turned down other securities totaling $34,000,000. Gov. Huey P. Long, senator-elect from Louisiana, put over huge bond issues and is the cock of the walk in the Pelican state. He may be the buffoon (his political enemies say he is) but this achievement shows that he is a mighty man "moving among the masses of men." Now the national chieftains of the democratic party are clamoring for him to resign the governorship the coming winter and take his seat in the senate of the new congress.

Huey P. Long has traveled far. Now it is said he is ambitious to be president of the United States but Alfalfa Bill Murray of Oklahoma is said to have his eye on the coveted position and will be a favorite son candidate in 1932.

Fired by ambition and filled with the gas of egotism man is a fantastic performer.

MEXICAN BAN LIFTED FOR MOODY

Mexico placed a ban on Americans hunting wild game in the fat preserves of Pres. Rubio's empire. Gov. Dan Moody had the heel itch. He wished to invade Mexico and fill the bag or the truck. Mexico was killing; the ban was lifted and now the famous game hunter of Texas knows where to get his Thanksgiving venison and his Christmas holiday cheer. Why not invite as a hunting companion the chairman of the state railroad commission—the genial chap who never fired a gun, hooked a fish, threw the dice, moistened his lips with liquor or inhaled the aroma of Arbuckle coffee? It is never too late for a sinner to repent.

FOR BETTER CITIZENSHIP

Gov. Dan Moody has proclaimed this American Legion week. He has urged all eligible persons to join the American Legion. Efforts of this organization always have been toward the goal of better American citizenship, Gov. Moody pointed out.

The local post of the Legion is in the midst of a membership drive.

It appeals to a limited group, only those eligible to membership through service in the United States armed forces during the World war. Privileges of association and effective service within the American Legion are such as to make it desirable for everyone eligible to become members of the American Legion.

The American Legion year begins with installation of Comdr. R. A. Swaugh Armistice day, next Tuesday. Eligible former service men should speed the work of the membership teams by promptly giving answer to the reminder that they may become "buddies."

NOW AS TO POLITICS

By Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald
James Thomas Hefflin of Alabama ran as the standard bearer of the Jeffersonian party. Total vote was one of the greatest in the history of Alabama. John H. Bankhead the regular democratic nominee for the senate rolled up a large majority. He snuffed the political light out of James Thomas. All of James Thomas' nominees on the Jeffersonian party ticket were relegated to the limbo of the lame, better known as the cemetery for the lame ducks of politics.

All the southern state that landed in the Hoover column in 1928 returned home and all the congressional districts lost in 1928 were recovered by the democrats. As for the border states old Missouri and Oklahoma landed in the democratic column by huge majorities and Kentucky is claimed by the democrats. That is a big gain in the Kentucky congressional districts and a democratic United States senator instead of a republican who slipped in in the ancient landslide.

Now that the elections are over perhaps the people will go to work. It is the workers who are the winners. They are the wealth makers. They are the tax payers. They are the hewers of wood and drawers of water. They are the burden bearers. They will continue to be regardless of the complexion of the party in power in state or nation.

Calvin Coolidge is an honored son of Massachusetts. He is the oracle of the republicans of New England. He is as sainted as an idol in a Chinese joss house and it is sacrilegious to speak lightly of the great man. However, Massachusetts will be represented in the senate of the new congress by two democrats and a democratic governor will shape the destiny of the Old Bay State for two years to come.

It is the irony of fate that the new senator is Oscar Coolidge, a democrat from crown to tie and a wicked wet sinner. Shades of the puritans! Shades of William Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips and Charles Sumner! Plymouth Rock has gone over to the enemy and Faneuil Hall is in possession of the invaders of an unwashed and untried democracy. Indeed a very noted augur of Massachusetts who irected the campaign against the wanton wets and the horny handed democrats the morning after the election declared Massachusetts an outlaw state and that she intended to sell her belongings and move to a commonwealth where the atmosphere is more conducive to human happiness and the people bow to the majesty of law.

What will happen next in this vale of tears?

Gifford Pinchot captured a greater part of the organized labor vote. In Pennsylvania in the anthracite fields thousands of coal miners, regardless of the wet or the dry issue, cast their ballots for the man who had been their friend. Old Joseph R. Grundy, the foe of organized labor, picked the winner.

Politics is a queer game. Grundy was defeated for the United States senate in the primary contest and now he will be able to capture an ear of the Pinchot political runner after the inauguration festivities take place. As for the coal miners they needed a friend in high place and regardless of political affiliation they walked to the polls and plumped in their ballots for Gifford. He won a term of four years and while in office he will be a thorn in the side of many important personages in the state where Joseph R. Grundy is the big bagman for money raising purposes in presidential campaign years.

Grundy has a contempt for Herbert Hoover. He may push Gifford for first place if there happens to be an opening.

Yancy Barker passed out in Hidalgo county and on election day the Good Government party elected their nominees for county place by a vote of two to one. Yancy Baker created a political machine in Hidalgo that was high powered, swift running and almost invincible for years. Now he is in his grave. Now his machine has been hammered to pieces. Now the opposition he created has a machine that is all powerful and its leaders hold the spoils of office.

This is the history of all builders of political machines and the machines they build. Death calls the big engineer and political foemen hammer into fragments their machine. New bosses come to the surface and new machines are constructed and in the great cities of America as well as the smaller cities it is an endless chain of boss-coming and machine building with the idols of today the lame ducks of tomorrow. This is the history of politics in this glorious republic and all its commonwealths with their cities and counties and hamlets.

Human nature is much the same the wide world over. There are bosses and their henchmen, or to be more polite about it, leaders and their followers. John Tobin built a machine that was all powerful. He passed it on to C. M. Chambers. Now the Tobin machine is badly cracked and the county of Bexar handed Harry M. Wurzbach, republican, 6000 majority over the democratic nominee, and this in a nationwide contest where the loss of one vote may enable the republicans to organize the new house and keep John N. Garner of Texas out of speakership honors.

MILLIONS FOR THE HOOVER DAM

Plans for asking bids of $60,000,000 to $70,000,000 of construction work on the Hoover dam have been made. On March 1 the contract will be let and hundreds of idle men, according to Washington advices, will be given employment. Before the machine are was ushered in handlers of picks and shovels were employed on these big jobs. Now huge machines do the work. Welders and handlers of shovels and picks are out of the picture. Those who survive the ordeal of the machine age upheaval found jobs in other fields of endeavor. A reminder that this is a new civilization and in its last analysis it will be superior to any civilization that time has known. It is for man to adjust himself to new conditions, new system, new methods and the new age.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

By The Political Analyst
AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 8.—A broadside of opposition to the Texas Bar association's idea of shipping eight carloads of marble from the state of Georgia to the capitol grounds for its approved supreme court monument has been sent out by Attorney William O. Bowers, Jr., of Beaumont.

Attorney W. H. Jacks, Jr., of Dallas, who helped draft the agreed court judgment validating leases on university lands in Reagan county, from which far over $100,000,000 of oil already has been taken, declined to say whether he considered the leases originally valid; it would have been hard to get a court to declare them void.

And that was why the legislative committee investigating the leases found out for him.

Moody park has come in existence as the well-guarded preserve on the T-P ranch in Llano county where Billy and Betty, the 12 point pet buck, his mate and their six fawns in the governor's mansion grounds will find their new home this week.

The preserve was created especially for these pet deer, and Gov. Moody has visited it and seen that his pets will have an ideal home. The ranch is owned by M. C. Parrish and Dr. J. C. Thomas of Austin.

Gov. Moody, before he retires from the office, is to take part in dedicating a huge bronze tablet in memorial stadium here, bearing the names of each of more than 5,000 Texans who lost their lives in the world war. A figure of Democracy her head bowed in grief, stands guards above the silent roster of the dead.

Holidays at the Texas capitol give the huge building an eerie, desolate air, as the empty corridors echo the footsteps of the occasional straggler.

On the election day holiday, the legislative committee started its inquiry into university oil leases, the dozen people taking part swamped in the yawning immensity of the all-but-vacant legislative halls.

When the president wanted the full 90 days allowed by the law before appointing the commission. Even then there was still a member missing in the lineup. This didn't seem to show any great desire for speed on the part of the administration.

And as for the scores of requests for investigations which were received during that period, no work was begun on them. They were merely filed. Of course it took the commission a month to get organized.

Fletcher and Senator Smoot say the machinery will function adequately. But the tariff critics, considering the delay of more than four months before hearings began, the personnel of the commission and what they call the machinery's inadequacy, profess to hold little hope. Previously public hearings have been delayed for six months to two years while the commission's investigators made detailed studies of production costs at home and abroad.

Early starts with the hearings, Fletcher says, will hasten the commission's reports to the president, who may either put the recommendations into effect or ignore them. This interest centers on the question of whether the commission's complete investigations and makes the reports.

Another fight in Congress in connection with the tariff is expected over Mr. Hoover's reappointment of Edgar B. Brossard of Utah to the commission. Something probably will be the safe bet, the fact that Mr. Hoover appointed three republicans and two democrats, without naming a sixth until the commission had organized itself, although it was explained that the president had tried hard to find the safe man.

Brossard, originally appointed as an examiner for the commission through the influence of Smoot, is charged with having been the special advocate of the best sugar interests both as an employe and a member. Democrats have been promising strong opposition to his confirmation and the senate may be in a mood to turn him down.

Under the circumstances, considerable comment was inspired

Live Oak and McMullen counties. This, however, would be cutting in to the district of John Garner, whose party leadership in the house is considered too valuable to tamper with. Garner has been a consistent winner for more than a score of years, but it is possible things might be made difficult even for him with his district changed.

It includes sheep sections which are for protective tariff on wool. In fact Garner, Democrat, and Wurzbach, Republican, have both had to take a stand for the same sort of tariff, recognizing protection for raw products were finished products get a tariff.

The Republican district can be enlarged on the east by taking part of Congressman Joseph Jefferson Manfield's territory. Or part of Congressman James P. Buchanan's territory may be drawn upon.

Haystack Caldwell, of Buchanan's district, border on Wurzbach's territory and Gonzales. De Witt, Gold and Refugio in Manfield's district.

Bexar county which gave a big lead to Wurzbach might be detached from the 14th district but this would add it to Garner's which already comprises 23 counties and 10 years ago had 222,000 population for one man to represent.

Except for the 18th and 16th districts, Garner's is the largest in the state. The three with a smaller tier of counties from the 17th (Blanton's) district comprise all of Texas lying between the Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma.

The big 16th district, running west to New Mexico might have a part taken, say by drawing upon its nearest counties, Gillespie and Kerr, would help Democratic chances little.

flat. He, too, might have spent a sleepless night. His eyes were worn and there were shadows beneath them. The lines in his face looked deeper. He patted the girl's shoulder.

It was some time before the storm had quieted enough for Celia to speak. Then she glanced up and, struggling to control her voice, gasped, "Mother isn't here! They don't know where she's gone. Oh—father, what can we do?"

The anguish in the girl's eyes reproached him.

"I know," Mitchell said huskily. "I found out when I got here. Dry your eyes now. We'll find her, Celia."

"But how can we find her? She's just—disappeared! Nobody knows anything about it!"

Mitchell nodded reassuringly. "Leave that to me," he said. "I've been terribly worried about you, Celia. I want you to know I'm sorry for what I said yesterday. I was hasty. Forgive me, won't you?"

"You mean you don't think all those things you said about me? About—not telling the truth and being a disgrace?"

"Was that what I said? No, of course I didn't mean it. Temper got the better of me—as it has before. Why, I wouldn't make you feel badly for anything in the world, Celia! It's only that you're so precious to me. Do you understand? That's why everything you do means so much, and why I guess I've been too strict. Say you'll forgive me and forget all about it now, won't you?"

Celia agreed.

Mitchell held his daughter in his arms, comforting her. Mrs. Schultz, who had left them together, but remained close to the bedroom doorway, listening eagerly, had to strain her ears to catch his low-pitched words.

He began to ask questions. Celia told him all she had been able to learn about Mrs. Rogers' disappearance. It was little enough. She recalled what the custodian had said and what she had heard at Margot's shop.

"Do you think the woman who runs the place—the one who's out of town—may really know anything?"

"I don't know," Celia admitted. "They were going to give me her address, but I forgot."

"Well, that's a start! Is there a telephone in this place? You might call the shop now and get that address."

Celia jumped up eagerly. Her father was so confident, so self-reliant. It was wonderful to feel that he had taken command and that there was something she could do.

The telephone was a public one, placed in the entrance hall. Celia caught up her purse and hurried out to make the call. In five minutes she was back again with a Toronto address written on a slip of paper.

Her father was talking to Mrs. Schultz when Celia returned. There was nothing in what the custodian told her that Celia had not already heard. He took the paper Celia gave him, folded it and placed it in a vest pocket.

"Is there anyone else in the place—any friend of Mrs. Rogers—who you think might have heard from her?"

Mrs. Schultz shook her head emphatically. "She don't make friends with nobody!" she said. "She's a good woman, but she don't never make friends with nobody. Just say 'good morning' and 'nice day' and something like that, but she don't tell 'nobody what she's goin' to do."

"I see." A few more questions and Mitchell turned to the girl. "Don't you think we had better be leaving?" he said. "Mrs. Schultz has been very kind, but we must not impose upon her. Get your things together and I'll order a cab."

Celia went to the bedroom, where she had left her traveling bag. A glance in the indistinct mirror over the dressing table showed her how completely she had forgotten her appearance. The red-rimmed eyes were swollen. Her hair was unkempt and there was a glossy shine on her nose. Even her frock was rumpled.

She went to the bathroom and bathed her eyes with cold water. Then she combed her hair, got out cosmetics and used them lightly. Some of the wrinkles in her dress were removed by brushing. She was still far from cheerful, but a more presentable figure when she reappeared in the living room.

ended she discovered she was fished. As they ate her father talked. He asked Celia when she had left New York, how she had spent the evening before, but he made no criticism. Mrs. Parsons had discovered the girl's absence, he said, at 10 o'clock. She had notified him immediately, and there had been several frantic hours of search.

It was finally the doorman (he had gone off duty but was reached by telephone) who gave the word that Celia had taken a cab for Grand Central station. Mitchell's trip to Baltimore was made on the supposition that the girl had gone to join her mother.

"Don't mind admitting you gave me a scare, Celia," he said. "A bad one!"

"I'm sorry, father."

"Oh, we're going to forget all that now! Put it out of our minds! We've something else to do!"

Celia nodded gravely. They talked of Margaret Rogers.

"There's one thing," the girl burst forth, "I wish I could know she isn't sick. That's what makes me afraid! She wasn't really well, you know. I'm afraid something's happened to make her act so queerly!"

"I've thought of that," Mitchell said. "I'm going to do everything within my power to find her, Celia." He paused, looking across the table at the girl. "We've got to find her!" he finished.

Evelyn Parsons was reading the telegram in her hand for a second time when the telephone rang. Rose answered and handed the instrument to Mrs. Parsons.

"Hello?"

"Is Miss Mitchell in?"

"No, she's not. This is Evelyn Parsons speaking. Can I take any message?"

"Oh—Mrs. Parsons! I didn't recognize your voice. This is Barney Shields. Do you know where I could reach Celia?"

"What a pity—she's out of town!"

"What did you say?"

"She's out of town. Listen, Mr. Shields." Evelyn's tone was impulsive. "Celia's left me alone. Why don't you come over and have dinner with me? It would cheer me up immensely."

"Oh, thanks—I mean—"

"Please say you'll come!"

BURGLARS ARE BUSY IN RANGER

RANGER, Texas, November 8.—Two robberies occurred in Ranger Thursday night.

The Wrecking Yard on the Bankhead highway in the southern part of the city was broken into for the second time within a week. Two batteries and armatures were taken.

After breaking the locks on a gasoline pump at the Magnolia filling station on Commerce street, thieves took 27 gallons of gasoline.

FATHER-AND-SON BANQUET ON DEC. 12

RANGER, Texas, November 8.—The Ranger chapter of the Future Farmers of America club held its monthly meeting Thursday night.

After the business was attended to, the members voted to have the father-and-son banquet on Dec. 12. This banquet is held annually by the members of the club with their fathers as the guests.

The club has entered the Future Farmer-Texas terracing contest to be held between Sept. 15, 1930, and April 1, 1931. Leo Hise was appointed chairman of the committee with Claude Young and Tylan Hale as assistants. This committee is to find land to be terraced during the year. There are five districts in the state and the winner of each district receives a Texas terracer as a prize. The boys of the club are taking much interest in the contest.

School News

VIRGINIA NEIL LITTLE

High School

Superintendent P. B. Bittle of Eastland public schools brought a careful check of the scholastic standing of the different classes, to the student body in chapel Monday afternoon.

The report is as follows:

Seniors led with forty-eight one hundredths of one per cent failing. Juniors, second with seventy-five one hundredths of one per cent failing.

Sophomores, were third with eighty-eight hundredths of one per cent failing.

The Freshmen showed sixteen per cent failures.

A failure means to fail in two or more subjects.

Mr. Palm, principal pro-tem, explained the point system to the assembly.

Final Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—A sweeping decline in Cities Service Stock on the New York curb exchange was of sufficient weight to bring another wave of selling into the stock market today after a rally had started in the early trading. The liquidation, part of which was for weakened margin accounts, ran until near noon when another rally set in among the leaders.

Before the late rally almost every active stock had descended to a new low for the year and in some instances new lows since 1926 were made.

Railroads continued under heavy pressure. New lows for the year or longer were made by Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central, Atchison and Pennsylvania with losses ranging above 2 points.

Motor shares also made new lows including General Motors, Chrysler, Nash and Packard.

Radio Corporation was a weak spot, touching 15, off 2 and a new low.

Utilities and Oils made new lows. North American lost nearly six points and losses ranging to 2 points were made by Consolidated Gas, United Corporation and American Telephone.

Whoopee Made By Noted Star Pickers

With the appearance of "Whoopee" at the Lyric theatre on Sunday there will be seen the first production of the two greatest talents of the world. "Whoopee" is the joint production of Samuel Goldwyn, chief producer of motion picture business, and Florenz Ziegfeld, world-famous producer of the American girl and of the musical stage. Starring Cantor, containing such names as Eleanor Hunt, Shutta and Dorothy Knauss, "Whoopee" is expertly lavish in talent as might be expected from the conjunction of the names of Goldwyn and Ziegfeld. Samuel Goldwyn's uncanny ability to select unknowns and see them turn into world-famous stars has long been the wonder of Hollywood.

Florenz Ziegfeld's record on the stage is scarcely less spotted with triumphs of selection. During the productions of his famous series of "Follies" and other musical shows of which the stage version of "Whoopee" is a lavish sample, he has given a start to a long list of stage and screen notables will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Eddie Cantor (star of "Whoopee"), Marion Davies, Marilyn Miller, Mae Murray, Billie Dove, Fannie Brice and Ann Pennington. The number of famous screen actresses who began their careers in a Ziegfeld chorus is legion, all the way from Justine Johnson to Eleanor Hunt, the leading lady of "Whoopee" on the screen.

If there is any guidance in past performances, being selected by two such connoisseurs of talent is a sure guarantee of fame and fortune.

Garner Issues Offer Of Hearty Co-operation

By United Press
DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 8.—Promise of propaganda and government by commissions must give way to practical suggestions, representative John H. Garner, ranking member of the Democratic wing of the House, had warned President Hoover today in a formal statement to the press.

If Democrats gain the leadership of the house in December, 1931, the administration can depend on "our hearty cooperation in every suggestion calculated to benefit the American people," Garner declared. "Let us each take our responsibility and let the American people render their verdict."

In the incisive but pleasant mode of speech which has endeared "Jack" Garner to the people of Texas, the prospective speaker of the next house declined to discuss the new regime. "It's 12 months before we make the change. Anything might happen. We might not even have a majority then. Some of the congressmen may die—or be impeached," said he. "But wait until I get into the saddle. I'll have plenty to say then," he promised.

And those of his friends unfortunate enough to feel the cyclonic force created behind a pair of blue eyes vouchsafed his promise. It was in 1898 that a young fellow came out of the cow country west of San Antonio to represent a bunch of counties in the Texas house of representatives. Since that time the foremost statesman of the day have felt the power of his logic and the keenness of his strategic coups. By representative Nicholas Longworth, Republican speaker of the house, Garner is characterized as "one of the ablest, shrewdest and most resourceful men in either house or congress."

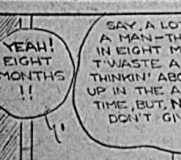

Correnti Pleads Self Defense In Trial For Murder

DALLAS, Nov. 8.—In a special night session of the criminal district court here, Sam Correnti, on trial for murder, took the stand in his own behalf Friday and declared he emptied two pistols at Jack Daugherty when the latter reached for his belt and muttered a curse on the fatal night of Feb. 27. As Correnti's barrage of 12 shots ceased, Daugherty was found dead with nine bullet holes in his back, testimony revealed. "I knew Daugherty would kill me when he saw me and I wanted to be ready for him," Correnti answered when questioned about two pistols in his overcoat pocket.

Woman Speaks On Demagogues In Campaigns

DALLAS, Nov. 8.—Scathing attacks on political demagogues who used the negro as a campaign issue were made by Mrs. Jessie Daniels Ames of Atlanta in the open session of the Texas commission on interracial cooperation Friday. Pop! Goes Stanford!

FRIGHTFUL things have been happening on the coast, gentle reader, where the once mighty Stanford football team coached by Pop Warner was exploded by Howard Jones' Trojans the other day like a child bursts an empty candy sack. The 41 to 12 drubbing administered by Southern California was the worst defeat a team of Pop's has sustained in 30 years, as nearly as I can remember. I think it was in 1900 that one of Pop's teams at Carlisle was belted out of the picture by Columbia, 40 to 12.

Is Pop All Wrong?

POP may have made a few mistakes in his career. It may have been wrong for him to call for the reporters and tell them before the game with U. S. C. that this team was the dumbest lot of clucks he ever coached, adding that only the Trojans exceeded them in intellectual bashfulness. It never has a very salutary effect upon football players to declare them dumb or broadcast that they lack the necessary fighting qualities.

Too Darned Smart

I THINK, however, that Pop might have expanded on his remarks a little. He should have said that this year's Stanford team is composed of young men so smart that they are dumb football players. That may sound paradoxical, but it can be explained. About three years ago Stanford passed the ruling that only 350 freshmen would be admitted annually, including the ladies. These 350 had to be from the upper tenth of their classes in high school during the four years they attended high school. Stanford is now operating in the third year of that system, and while things are going along swimmingly in the science laboratories and engineering classes, the gridiron isn't so hot.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

ZUPPKE says some of his best quarterbacks have been dumb players... but that the plays they selected clicked because the team had faith in the men who called the signals... It was Zupke who invented the huddle, which makes a football game of one hour last two hours and a half... Zupp's 1921 team used the huddle the first time... It has somewhat the same advantage as the shift, as the offense is screened until the center snaps the ball... A lot of teams use the huddle, but Rockne's quarterbacks call signals... and sometimes Frank Carideo calls more than signals... In the game with Carnegie Tech, Carideo was calling signals, something like this: "18-41-19, hey, there, Dreshar, get out of the way!"... And it upset the Tech team... Instead of wondering what the play was going to be the Tartans were wondering whose name was going to be called next.

Stanford is improving the brain pans of a number of smart young people, no doubt, but it seems that these intellectual giants do not make good football players. It is being discovered that smart students make dumb gridiron heroes, if such can be. There are two kinds of football players, it seems. There are football players who are students, and there are students who are football players. Pop has his hands full of a squad of students who are football players. And they can't seem to make Old Pop's wizardry work. Maybe they are too imaginative.

While They Played Bridge In Lovely Juanita Selim's Home Juanita Was Slain!

LAUGHTER... tinkling music... a gay afternoon bridge party attended by charming young women whose names appear in the society blue-book of the little city of Hamilton.

Suddenly, while the players argued about the game, a scream of horror rang through the room. Murder had been committed—an eerie crime, planned with diabolical cleverness.

This is one of the two crimes which confront that keen young detective, Bonnie Dundee, in "Murder at Bridge," a swift-moving mystery novel by Anne Austin, whose "The Black Pigeon," "The Avenging Parrot" and "Murder Backstairs" were widely acclaimed by newspaper readers throughout the country. Watch for "Murder at Bridge," beginning—
