THE STORE THAT QUALITY BUILT

Good on Dry Land Farms.
The dry-land farmer who is making the farm his home and who is saving money, is accomplishing this through live stock and crop farming combined. This produces some cash every week by week, permits the raising of cheap or valueless rough stock into meat, dairy, or poultry products, and provides the farmer with a profitable way to use his time in winter.
Lamesa County used to carry all stock and have no crop farming. The system made a good living for the stockmen. It was because of the pasture. Pasture is Nature's best feed and is the cheapest and best feed for stock.
Now, with more farmers and more land under cultivation, it becomes necessary to plant crops for pasture, instead of relying on the native vegetation, if sufficient live stock is to be kept on each farm. With the raising of the proper kinds of crops, the grazing capacity of dry lands will be increased five to six times over that of the native range. The crops that will do this are alfalfa or Petkus fall rye, sudan grass and biennial yellow sweet clover.
The Rosen or Petkus rye and alfalfa grass make an excellent combination to use in dry lands. The alfalfa grass is planted about June 1, either in rows or drilled or broadcast at the usual rate of seeding. It is seen as this is eight or ten inches high, it may be pastured and is suitable to pasture until frost, unless it suffers from severe drought. The alfalfa of August Rosen or Petkus rye which are heavy-stooling, fall ryes, are excellent for pasture, are planted on clean summer-fallow, or after plowed, wheat ground, using 40 to 45 pounds of seed per acre. By the time the sudan grass is no longer good for pasture, the rye is up and ready to be pastured, and will furnish good feed until the severe winter freezes occur. Early the next spring, this rye pasture comes on and will carry the stock from that time until the first of June, when the stock should be taken off and the rye permitted to head out and a crop of grain cut.
A pasture system of this sort is available on every dry land farm. While it is an annual proposition, it is inexpensive, and provides an abundance of feed. It is easy to grow a stand of each of these crops. Under such a system of pasturing the stock under the care of the farmer at all times, close to water, has plenty of feed and is in comfortable surroundings, and it naturally gives a maximum of production.—By Waldo Kilder, Extension Agronomist Colorado Agricultural College.

The Art of Speaking
Speak little; when you speak Have something so to say That you can find an audience To use another day.
The tongue is made to move, But doesn't have to wag; It doesn't have to curse or lie Or idly boast and brag.
A rapier is the tongue— Sharp as a serpent's tooth; And it can kill me with a lie Or bless me with the truth. Sit not with scolding wives, Nor with those hags of hate Who knit and lie and lie and knit, And give the Goat the gate! Hell has a corner built, Just for the Gossip fit, Where shrews and scolds and jawing janes Can sit and lie and knit. God bless the power of speech! * * * But when you speak, speak fair! The tongue that nags and gossips were Far better moved in prayer. Speak little; when you speak, Speak with a song, a smile! Add something to the sweetness of This mundane Little While! —Henry Edward Warner in the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Kansas editor tells of the change in the ways of winning fair lady: "In days of old when knights were bold, fair maids were won by clanking swords; but now, oh boy, this modern joy is brought about by cranking Fords." It's the truth and tells why we have lost out with the feminine species. We'll lie for 'em, die for 'em, or buy them chewing gum, but rather than march up to a tin Henry and twist its nose we'll get along without their smiles.

We have visited larger cities than Big Spring recently but we did not find any city where conditions and prospects were any better than they are here. We have splendid opportunities here if we but realized it and would work together to keep our city moving forward. Henry Ford has never quit advertising his "flivver" and we must not cease boasting and advertising our town if it is to keep growing.

George Hatch, Eb Hatch, Jim Terry and Bob Hatch returned Monday from a fishing trip on the Colorado and Concho rivers and report the best luck and best time ever had on a fishing trip. They caught over one hundred pounds of fish during their stay on the river. Jim Terry brought home a six-pound catfish to prove that they had more than mere "fish stories" to hand out to their friends.

We have noted that it is not very difficult to get Big Spring folks enthusiastic over a proposition but their enthusiasm seems to evaporate before these propositions are brought to a successful conclusion. We have seen many worthy propositions linger and die because of this waning enthusiasm but we are not going to permit it to kill the one of securing an auditorium and memorial hall.

Mrs. Wm. Price and family left Monday for an auto trip to Fayetteville, Ark. and Springfield, Mo. Her son, Sam, will go on from there to Chicago, where he will take a special course in electricity.

W. W. Rix will attend a meeting of the Board of Directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at Sweetwater, tomorrow, Saturday, June 16th.

Railroad Workers Favor Ryan's Plan to Outlaw All War
The executives of the sixteen recognized railroad labor organizations, at a meeting held in Chicago on May 27, placed themselves squarely on record in support of a worldwide campaign to bring about international peace and the outlawing of war.
The following resolution, which clearly and concisely expresses the views of the leaders of railroad labor was adopted by unanimous vote:
(1) That the executives of the sixteen standard railway labor organizations secure the cooperation of the American Federation of Labor and the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress in calling a national peace conference to bring together and organize for effective action the existing agencies for peace in the United States and Canada.
(2) That the sixteen standard railway labor organizations conduct a campaign in Congress and before the public for the creation of such an official American Peace Survey Corporation, financed and supported by the government, as General O'Ryan proposes.
(3) That this Peace Survey Corporation, following General O'Ryan's suggestion, prepare and submit for acceptance by Congress, a practicable plan for world peace which will forever outlaw war, perhaps along the lines suggested by Senator Borah.
(4) That the international labor organizations of the United States and Canada thereupon bespeak the support of organized workers in every country of the world to wage a campaign for the acceptance of this plan by their respective governments.

"Off Politically" but on Technically
This is an off year politically. Big factional questions are in the limbo.
Even the great furor in West Texas a few months ago over the location of the Texas Technological College has dwindled. The story of West Texas towns, 37 in number, seeking the college is bare to the world. The people know all about the briefs.
We are having a momentary breathing spell!
But wait till the locating committee starts out on its jaunt.
Street corners will again take on the group appearance. Police will resurrect the old command, "Don't block the sidewalk, gentlemen."
If a stranger step into any of the towns that are candidates for the college he will learn that he's in the best town in West Texas.
Town pride, town support, town boasting—that's an encouraging sign that West Texas citizens are not dead, but lofty boosters of their home town.
The thirty-six West Texas towns destined to be losers should take their defeat smiling. They should unite their forces to make the winning town the biggest state college town in Texas. It is regrettable that the state legislature failed to appreciate the "best 37 towns in West Texas" by not giving each of them a college of some sort.
Get on the street corner. Talk your town. Tell its resources, its advantages, its opportunities. Believe in everything you tell. Then do what you preach—develop the opportunities. Put your city ahead.—West Texas Today.

Everybody's Doing It
Those who are loudly berating labor because of its demands for much higher wages are the ones who are, in large measure, forcing labor to do that very thing.
The builders, for instance, are charging more for construction work than ever before. Construction materials cost more, and building owners are charging higher rentals than even they did in war time. These are truths.
The real fact is that the getting is good at present and everybody is disposed to get.
While all kinds of prices and costs and charges are ballooning, it isn't reasonable to suppose or expect that the seller of labor will lose sight of his white alley. He has learned the game. — Fort Worth Press.

A Trip to Galveston
The country is again safe as the Texas editors have returned from Galveston where they took their annual bath, met old time friends, formed new friendships, talked shop, enjoyed the many courtesies of Galveston and are now on the job ready to tackle the problems of the world. To drop all worries and work for a few days is a treat within itself. But when you can spend the vacation thus gained with a bunch of good fellows amidst pleasant surroundings, it is no wonder that the annual convention of the Texas newspaper folks is always a well attended and enjoyed affair.

From every section of the State came the pencil pushers, and no other class of citizens are more royally treated. In fact the citizens of the various communities treat the editors in such fine style that even the most pessimistic among said editors are inclined to think quite well of themselves, during the progress of the convention at least. The editors and their wives, if they had any, gathered at Galveston five hundred strong and enjoyed three interesting and pleasurable days.

The editors from North and West Texas assembled at Fort Worth and Dallas and were assigned to special cars to Waco where the M. K. & T. Ry. Company made up a special train to convey the party to Galveston. The "Katy" extended every possible courtesy to the press gang in addition to supplying transportation to all who wished to accept same for advertising. The "Katy," however, has always been the loyal friend of the newspaper men in the way of furnishing special trains for conventions as well as tendering other courtesies. The trip from Waco to Galveston was especially enjoyable as it was a congenial bunch and not a stranger on the train. Group singing, games, etc., were in order. Flowers for the ladies were furnished by the Dallas Fair Association, Candy and chewing gum for the women and children, and cigars for the men were passed around during the afternoon. The Lone Star Creamery Company treated the entire bunch to cartons of ice cream late in the afternoon.

Assigned at Galveston, many made good night's sleep and a plunge early next morning. But during the three days the beach was the favorite playground when the members were not attending the business sessions.

Among the entertainments scheduled at Galveston were a grand ball at the Galvez Hotel, Thursday night, a visit thru the Lone Star Milling Company's big flouring mill, Friday afternoon, a big sea-food banquet, given by the Galveston News and the Galveston Tribune at the Galvez Hotel, Friday night, a boat ride along the docks and out to the Gulf Saturday afternoon. The party were furnished transportation on 'snails' to the flouring mill and to the wharf and return; bathing privileges were extended by the Murdock and Crystal Palace companies and free admission to the motion picture theatres of Galveston were tendered. In fact, a press badge seemed to be a key that would entitle the editors to many courtesies and favors not accorded the common mortal.

It must not be imagined that the newspaper folk spent all their time chasing pleasure while at Galveston for well attended and regular business sessions were held each morning and afternoon. In our estimation these meetings were more largely attended than usual and the program was carried out more nearly complete than ever before. These sessions of course, are intended as a source of education and profit to the members of the association, and as a rule they fulfill this mission. But even if they do no more than bring the newspaper people together to talk shop, compare notes and enjoy a few days recreation, the annual meeting is worth while.

In the race for the place of holding the next annual meeting Amarillo had a walkover as no city could hope to overcome the strong sentiment the Panhandle had aroused for Amarillo. The Panhandle also won the further honor of supplying the next president of the Association, Sam Braswell of Clarendon.

As stated before we believe that everyone who attended the Galveston meeting was repaid in pleasure if in no other way.

Whether or not Galveston will reap any reward remains to be seen. But with several hundred editors speaking praise for the Playground of Texas, telling of the pleasures of the surf bathing, the hospitality of the citizenship it would appear that she is securing favorable advertising and advertising that if paid for would cost many thousands of dollars. No city in Texas is able to offer so many and such wonderful attractions as Galveston, and as a pleasure resort it has nothing to fear from California's finest. Then, too, with her great shipping and commercial interest Galveston will continue to reign as one of the state's foremost cities and one the people of Texas can be proud of. It is truly a beautiful place with its streets lined with the flowering oleander of every known hue, its beautiful homes and best of all, its hospitable people. There is but one fault that we could find and that was a tendency on the part of some of the hotels on the beach to skin the tourist while the time was ripe. This practice should be discouraged if they hope to attract increasing numbers of pleasure seekers to Galveston. "Get it while the getting is good," may seem a good policy and perhaps it is for the immediate present, but the old story of the "goose and the golden egg," should not be forgotten. This advice may not be appreciated but if due notice is taken thereof the city of Galveston will have profited from the visitation of the Texas newspaper folks.

BIG SPRING HERALD BY JORDAN & HAYDEN

$2.00 A YEAR IN COUNTY $2.50 A YEAR OUTSIDE COUNTY

Entered as second class matter at the Postoffice, Big Spring, Texas, under Act of Congress, Mar. 8, 1897.

Big Spring, Friday, June 15, 1923

Speaking of Abraham Lincoln, one of the leading New York newspapers said editorially in its issue of May 19, 1860:

"The Republican convention at Chicago has nominated Abraham Lincoln of Illinois for president of the United States—a third-rate western lawyer, poorer than poor Pierce. The conduct of the Republican party in this matter is a remarkable indication of a small intellect growing smaller. They passed over Seward, Chase, and Banks, who are statesmen and able men, and they take a fourth-rate lecturer who cannot speak good grammar and who, to raise the wind, delivers his hackneyed, illiterate compositions at $200 apiece. Our readers will recollect that this peripatetic politician visited New York two or three months ago on his financial tour, when, in return for the most unmitigated trash, interlarded with coarse and clumsy jokes, filled his empty pockets with dollars coined out of republican fanaticism."

Five days later a leading Philadelphia newspaper said of Lincoln: "There is not in all the history of his life any exhibition of intellectual ability and attainment fitting him for the high and responsible post for which he's been nominated. His coarse language, his illiterate style and his vulgar and vituperative personality in debate contrast strongly with the elegance and classical oratory of the eminent senator from New York."

In wilder moments some of the leading papers and political haranguers called Lincoln a "freak," a "baboon who has escaped from the penitentiary," and a "low-bred village politician."

Lincoln, when he ran for the presidency, stood about as much ridicule and unmerited slander as any political candidate in our history. However, he looms greater and greater with the passing of the years. His greatness lives on while most of the newspapers that vituperated him have died of dry rot.

You contrast Lincoln's standing in history with the things they said about him when he was alive. There never was a better illustration that the importance and historical worth of a man cannot be judged by the generation in which he lives.

It takes death and the perspective of time to "place" him properly. Most of the prominent people who rank highly now will be gone and forgotten within half a century. And the ones survive time's sifting process and emerge truly great will be, in many cases, individuals who are underrated today.

The ultimate position of Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt in history, for instance, will not be known for at least 50 years.

Hyphenated Histories

Are our American histories pro-American, or are they pro-British? This question is being vociferously agitated in some sections of the country at the present time.

During the war somebody discovered that our histories were pro-German, and immediately a roar went up demanding that they be degermanized. It made good copy for the newspapers.

Now Mr. Hearst and his papers have discovered that our histories are pro-British, and the howl this time is at the expense of England.

If our histories were pro-German during the war, and if they are pro-British now, why is it so, and who is getting the "swag," and why is it not possible to find some one in this country who has a sufficient amount of brains and patriotism to write a history that is pro-American?

Either our historians are un-American for writing them, and our school authorities and teachers are un-American for using them, or somebody is talking through a big hole in his hat.

Ever Levin' June. June is with us once again with all its flowers and cheer, with ice cream sodas selling fast where once we bought hock beer; vacations now are being planned and beans and berries canned. The buzz fans are awfully hot at noon.

Some days are bright and some bring rain; the farmers grow a lot of grain; corn on the cob is all the rage, but how you bite it shows your age. The milkman sees some lovely forms on sleeping porches early morn.

Tillie Clinger looks so sweet, though her red pumps pinch her feet; traffic signals flash and ring; songbirds merrily do sing. Jellybeans and flappers dance, and poker players take a chance.

All the world seems glad and merry; give me a lime with a nice, big cherry; fix a lunch and get the car, and let's go out where the chiggers are. Call the gang and let's drive out where grass and flowers are all about.

Glad to have you with us, June; like you morning, night and noon; not here often, leave so soon, but make it up with song and moon. You're in the middle of the year and at your closing day we realize that Christmas, then, is just six months away.—Dallas News.

There are plenty who want to stand around and tell you how to do a thing but few are willing to get under the load and lift.—Bryan Eagle. * * * Therein lies the trouble with town building and community advancement. Too many men want to ride the wagon of progress while others do the pushing.

We don't suppose there ever was a town or city where the whole citizenship took part in community efforts. It always remains for a few to do community work. We find here in Snyder a very progressive citizenship, and a large per cent taking part in the affairs of the town, but not enough join hands in putting things over. We would like to see the time come when all men everywhere would wake up to the responsibilities of life, and realize fully that man was put here on this earth to serve others, instead of serving self.

It is alright for a man to look after his own affairs and make a success of his individual business, but he should realize that he owes something to his town and fellowman.—Snyder Times.

Brown Items
We had two good rains last week, the one Saturday morning being about the first one we've had this season wherein the hail didn't do any damage.
Most of the crops are looking nice, except where the grasshoppers are raging. We can sympathize with the Philippines. They have the locust in that country, and we have the grasshoppers here.
Everyone who attended Mr. Hudgin's birthday party said they had a most enjoyable time and wish Mr.
Hudgin's many more birthdays like that one.
The Knottites played the Brown-ites a game of baseball Saturday afternoon, and beat the Brownites, the game being 8 to 3 in favor of Knott. Guess our team will have to practice a little, and we need three more good players to make out the team. But come again Knott, we enjoy the practice anyway.
Quite a number were present at the party Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ethredgie and everyone present spent a very pleasant evening. They had planned to have an ice cream supper, but the big rain, and the roads being so bad, they failed to get any ice. But everybody had a nice time anyway.
Bill Johnson was sporting his new car around Sunday. We are now looking for invitations, this being June and Mr. Johnson a very popular "old bachelor" at Knott.
The singing at Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shortes' Sunday night was very much enjoyed by all. A large crowd was there and we had some good singing. We hope Mr. and Mrs.
Shortes will have singing again at their house, in the near future.

Richard Lloyd Jones Says — Don't Try To Lose Your Natural Simplicity

Adelina Patti's test for a singer was never, as you might suppose, "Can you Trill? Can you imitate a mocking bird?" No, it was "Can you sing a simple ballad in honest, straightforward fashion? Such a ballad as 'Home, Sweet Home!'" That was a fair test.

Simplicity shows quality naked and unadorned. And is only genuine worth that dares challenge its criticism.

It takes both courage and the consciousness of value to come before the world with affection. Our assumption of numberless little airs, poses and prejudices is but the confession and apology for weakness.

The strong are always simple. Simplicity implies strength. The weak hide their defects and their lack with tricks and frills.

The highest attainments in painting and sculpture are not the kaleidoscopic, brightly-colored canvases of battle scenes; not the complex many-turreted statue structures that misguided patriots sometimes erect in memorial of achievement. The greatest picture in the world is a mother and her babe. As the sense of skill grows strong and the eye keen in its perception of beauty, non-essentials, jewelry and drapery, are stripped off and the true artist finds satisfaction in the flowing line and satiny flesh texture of the simple human figure.

In the world of letters, that which lives as poetry is not the half-hearted, labored utterances of a Poet Laureate on some quasi "great" occasion. Rather it is the simple stanza that sang itself out of some more obscure poet's heart that binds us all with living bonds through community of feeling and experience. The great song is never the oratorio but the ballad.

Real worth is always unassuming and natural. High thinking seems automatically to draw unto itself the complement of plain living. Napoleon was always most at ease in the Spartan simplicity of camp on the battle field. To his mind, the grandeur and splendor of his French court were a concession to the limitations of the less great.

Great minds focused as they are on great issues have small patience with the trivialities of custom and convention.

It is only when the building is right, true in conception, strong in foundation, pure in outline, that the architect dares let it stand forth unadorned.

So with human souls. Our poor terms "homeliness" and "humanness" may stand for the truest aristocracy of human character.

poem by UNCLE JOHN

Most everybody's got 'em, though it's powerful hard to say, whether they are due immediate, or, at furdur distant day. Yet a feller ort to figger, as he chaws his dally bread, —how they meet the gall—or PROSPECKS AHEAD —in the prospects out ahead.

There's nothin' more absorbin' to a feller's heart an' mind, than in tryin' to shape his prospects to the sort he'd like to find; and, I couldn't think of nothin' that can fill my soul with dread, like a batch of gloomy prospects which is furdur on, ahead!

I aint ashamed to own it,—that the chief of my delights, is, to dream of happy prospects, as I lay awake of nights . . . And I wake up in the mornin' with my face toward the sky, and the appetite fer battle—mebbe never knowin' why!

While everybody's hopin' fer a better state of things, when they swap these carthy garments fer a pair of heavenly wings,—Yet, they better be particklar in the pathway that they tread, if they'd dodge the fire an' brimstone in the prospects out ahead!

HONEY PHILOSOPHY for 1923

ONCE a little schoolboy held a rabbit by the ears. And he talked to the rabbit "Three times four" he said. "How much is it?" When the rabbit remained silent he cracked it over the head with a stick and repeated the question. "How much is three times four?" When he was asked why he hit the poor rabbit he said: "Well the feller I bought him off said he would multiply and he wont do nothing of the kind." Apparently both buyer and seller were honest, but they didn't understand. The unfortunate rabbit on the side lincs got the worst of it.

Save Daughters From Dance

Nashville, Tenn., May 28.—Exit the incompetent chaperon of the dance. The call is now for American fathers to take vigorous measures to save the modern dance—or rather their daughters from it. Mrs. Clara R. Winterton in the May number of the Watchman Magazine of Nashville, Tenn., under the caption, "Dancing Hellward," comments on the report on a dance investigating committee headed by Mrs. Harry Hugh Tuttle of Hartford, Conn. We quote both from Mrs. Tuttle's findings and Mrs. Winterton's comments. "She found six outstanding reasons for the dance's deprecation: A spineless chaperon or dance patroness eager to be popular with the young folk; hip pocket liquor which circulated freely; cigarettes smoked by young girls; a saucy daring provoking manner; the youth of 21 or 22 anxious and eager "to go the limit"; the barbaric savage music of the Congo and the Nile which "turns good young people into modern, immature and utterly regardless sensualists." One of the most dangerous influences Mrs. Tuttle found was "the slash dance," wherein the partner strikes and slaps his companion, a shockingly salacious exhibition that greatly troubled members of the dance investigating committee. "Here are the recommendations that Mrs. Tuttle made to the youth of Hartford and its environs: She beseeched girls in their teens not to smoke, to let cigarettes alone until they were 25, at least. She asked young men; she begged them not to dance close to their partners and to shun the slash dance as they would shun the black death. "A cure for the present manner and habit of dancing is coming," Mrs. Tuttle says, "partly through the young people themselves, who are beginning to see the evil results of their ways and partly through the demand of fathers of their children to reform. Mrs. Tuttle expects nothing from the modern mother—she is too indifferent. Mrs. Tuttle wishes that a male chaperone might be substituted for the back-boneless, social-leader female chaperone who does not care what the young folks do or say. A few good hearty American fathers, she believes, would change the whole thing and without much fuss or loss of time. A father usually is quicker to sense danger for his son or daughter than is a mother. Social popularity also does not loom so large in the eye of a man. Social popularity to the wholesome American women are where women would merely talk men would act. And it is action we need if the young people are to be checked in their headlong career. As the majority of mothers so far have absolutely refused or failed to control the situation what is to be done unless the fathers lend themselves to it, and take some definite step?" Mrs. Winterton in commenting on this report says: "So here is our remedy and hope. Fathers and mothers will you not assume your rightful responsibility? The task is yours. "Who can not see that the spirit of evil in the world today has entered every door of modern society? Even the church has lowered her standards. Bars have been let down to permit questionable amusements to enter. Pride, covetousness, regarding fashions, dancing, the theatre, the card party, are today permitted by many a church that for years stood out against all this worldliness that is engulfing it today. There is no help for these conditions in education, politics, or social culture. These have never saved mankind and never will. The leaders in the world today are awake to the fact that our civilization is confronted with conditions that call for the emphasizing and practicing of the fundamentals of righteousness and truth, otherwise our civilization is doomed."—Taylor County Times.

M. & N. W. Sold to T. & P.

Another chapter in the stormy petrel history of the Midland and Northwestern railroad was written Tuesday, June 5th, when the road which cost over $502,000 was sold for amount of the outstanding recognized claims, approximately $16,700. The amount was paid in cash to special master in chancery, A. W. Norcop, of El Paso, who conducted the sale, by T. D. Gresham, of Dallas, representing the Texas & Pacific railroad.

The road was started in 1915, and the first train was run out from Midland to Seminole, a distance of 65 miles, on Sept. 1, 1917. It was operated until Sept. 1, 1920. On March 20, 1920, N. G. Bearsall, of El Paso, was appointed receiver. He was later succeeded by B. C. Girdley of Midland, and he in turn was succeeded by Homer Rowe, of Midland, receiver at the time of the sale. Representatives of the T. & P. would not state whether or not the road would be put in operation, although it is rumored that the road will again be opened up in the fall. The steel rails used in the road were loaned by the T. & P. at the time of the construction and valued at $218,000. Mr. D. Fasken, Midland ranchman and Canadian millionaire, who owns over 226,000 acres, part of which is traversed by the road, was the largest stockholder, his investment representing an expenditure of over $254,000.

The aid of the West Texas C. of C. will be solicited by prominent Texans in having the road opened up again. Florey and Seminole alone have over 1,000 acres in cotton this year, with no outlet for the crop.

Bill Horn is now spending his spare time making a pet out of an ill-tempered turtle. The turtle, weighing some twenty pounds, was found on one of our principal streets Monday morning by Alec Mitchell, and donated to Mr. Horn. It is not thought that this big turtle came down in the big rain last Saturday night, but that some fisherman taking a trophy home from the river lost his turtle in passing thru our city.

Oil Struck in Scurry County

The Lou-Tex well, being drilled by the Lou-Tex corporation, came in Tuesday night at a depth of 1770 feet. Wednesday morning bailing was commenced and some eighteen or twenty barrels of oil were drawn out at that time. There was great deal of slush in the oil, and it was shut down for twenty-four hours. The well at that time was drawn dry and washed out, and left in fine shape for the test on Thursday.

The Times man joined a party of four and proceeded to the Moore No. 1 well Thursday, a little before one o'clock. We found a good size crowd assembled. Steam was up and in a short time bailing began. We stood on the platform and saw 12 barrels of gasoline and 12 barrels of gasoline drawn from the well. There was some doubt as to whether it was gasoline or kerosene, but it was crude oil.

The mixture was estimated at 50 per cent gasoline or kerosene and 50 per cent oil. There was no water drawn from the well after the first bucket came up. The oil was rich and sparkling, and was considered of fine grade.

When the oil was first struck drillers had only gone 35 feet into a grey sand. This was struck at 1740 feet.

We saw the depth of the oil in the well measured which amounted to about 75 feet. The oil had risen in twenty-four hours to between 70 and 75 feet. There was considerable gas with the oil but no indication of pressure sufficient of the gusher type.

In conversation with Mr. Lechner, the manager, he stated that the well could not be classed at this time as a commercial well, but that indications were good for producing in paying quantities. The present strike will be ceased off and the drill started and will go through the present oil bearing strata. The present well is estimated between 30 and 50 barrels per day.

In view of the fact that the test had only penetrated a short ways in the oil sands leave strong suspicions that some thing sensational will develop at any time. The well contract is for 3500 feet and this depth will be gone unless a paying well is struck sooner. If nothing further is found, or the volume of oil is not increased to paying quantities then a return to the 1770 feet will take place and the well shot. What would take place if the well was shot is speculative. The showing is fine, and it might be that if the well was shot at the 1770-foot depth a big paying well would be brought in if not a gusher.

The situation as the Times man sizes it up is this: There is no longer a question but that we have struck oil in Scurry County, and that the Mitchell County field is extended to the Ira section. If no more oil is struck and the present well does not prove of a commercial status, the showing is sufficient to cause other wells to be drilled in that section. There is no question in our minds but that Scurry County will be the next big sensational oil field in West Texas, and that the Lou-Tex test is ample proof of this assertion. There has been proven beyond a doubt that there is oil in the Ira field but that the quantity is yet to be ascertained.

We made the trip to the Lou-Tex well Thursday afternoon with a gentleman from Sweetwater, who remarked to us that he had been present at several of the tests in Mitchell County and not one of them presented the showing that the Moore No. 1 did on this occasion. He stated that he saw ten times more indication of oil than he had expected. He saw real oil come from the bowels of the earth, not mixed with water or slush—just pure de crude oil, oil highly pregnant with gasoline. On this occasion some parties took some of the oil from the pool to one side and set it afire. It burned as readily as gasoline or coal oil.

The Times man covered this story in person and we saw what we seen. There is oil in the Ira field and there is no mistake in the matter. It only remains to develop same to the sensational paying point. This is going to be done, and the Lou-Tex corporation will accomplish this feat in a very short time. The test will be watched with keen interest by both Snyder and Colorado people. The Colorado people are interested along with the Snyder people. It means much to both towns. It means a great deal more to Scurry County people. That we have an oil field here can not be doubted. Snyder is destined to be the center of a big oil boom in the near future. No one could see what we saw Thursday evening and come away without feeling that we were on the eve of a big strike—an oil field of immense proportions. The Moore No. 1 operations is going to demonstrate the fact that we have oil in big commercial paying quantities. From now on many Snyder people will watch the Moore No. 1 well. They will be there night and day, expecting to see a gusher brought in at any time. Snyder and Scurry County may expect the biggest sensation in its history. Bringing in an oil field in Scurry County in the Ira section is no longer questionable. Just when this will be fully accomplished is the only problem. It may be temporary, the next day or next week. The test will be thorough. A Piece of Impudence

Then, again, there is another angle from which to view Judge Gary's refusal to permit the abolition of the 12-hour day in the U. S. steel mills. He says a change to the 8-hour day would increase steel prices 15 per cent and require the employment of 60,000 additional men. He plainly indicates his belief that the present immigration laws would make it impossible for his company to secure that number of new employees, and a labor problem, impossible of solution, would confront it.

We know, of a fact, that the application of the 8-hour plan never has worked any such hardships as he guesses it will, but let that go. The feature of his reply to the suggestion of President Harding that concerns us at the moment is the direct intimation that he is willing to trade. In other words and in effect, he says to the government at Washington: "You throw down the immigration bars and let the rabble of Europe in, and we, in return, will adopt the 8-hour day."

Cheap labor is what he is after, and for cheap labor he wants to bargain with the United States government. If he can't force the government to the desired end, he will maintain in his mills a system everybody, in these days, knows to be vicious in its every aspect. Judge Gary was not in the least convincing. He was impudent. — Fort Worth Press.

The city aldermen at Brenham, Texas are working to make theirs one of the most beautiful and sanitary cities in the state. According to the State Board of Health, Brenham is the first city to actually make arrests and impose fines on individuals who persist in permitting their private premises to remain unsanitary, and breeding places for flies and mosquitoes. We wish we could see this policy in force in Big Spring.

A good job of cleaning up the weeds around your premises now would complete the work for the year. Anyway it's very essential that we get rid of the weeds if we want to aid Big Spring's chances of securing the Texas Tech.

Endeavorers Eat Supper at Iatan.
Friday evening at seven o'clock we all piled on the truck and were just ready to start when Helen Creath and Dock Howell came up and of course we could not leave them behind because they might cry.

You know at nearly every picnic the crowd has to wait on some one. But we didn't mind. We could afford to wait this time, because Helen is always at Endeavor on time.

When we did get started we had the time of our young lives. We sang songs, yelled, talked. I will tell you a game we played on the truck provided you won't try it when you go on a picnic. Here goes: Nearly everyone got some ice and put it down each others back. Now if you don't think it was a game I will say it was; for the game in it was that we had to keep the ice chunkers from putting ice down our back.

Our president was right in the midst of ice chunking. But you couldn't expect her to sit through the ride without doing anything. She is such a live wire.

When we went through Coahoma we sang C. E. Will Shine, and gave fifteen rabs for C. E.

At about 8:30 we arrived at the tank, and like little crazies we were, we didn't take our bathing suits. We played some before supper; the main game being walking the railroad rails.

Bro. Ruth, his wife and a few more fixed supper. You should have seen what we had to eat, if I began to tell you I would never get thru. All I can say toward the eats that they were sure good, especially when you are hungry like we were.

All too soon time came to go home. We had more fun coming back than we did going.

On every picnic something is lost. This time it was the cream dipper. We should worry about a dipper though because honest we didn't intend to lose it. Just the same it is lost, and can't be found.

About 10:20 we arrived at the church and went to our respective homes. If you want to have a good time come go with C. E. next time.

Remember to come to Endeavor Sunday at seven o'clock and be on time.

If you come and are on time you will feel so much better—try it once. Do remember the place and time.

Explanatory — To Methodist People
Last Sunday Mr. Manuel's Sunday School class offered to pay my expenses if I would go to the Summer School of Theology at S. M. U. Dallas, Texas, June 14-29. There were to be a number of noted lecturers and experts on the program. Appreciating the offer very much, I announced I would go. Having been away recently for two weeks, then Chautauqua and District Conference coming on, I have gotten behind with my pastoral work. So in view of this and the meeting only a month off I have decided not to go. So I take this method of thanking all who were to have a hand in my going and especially Mr. Manuel and his class of splendid men, and take this method of announcing that I will be at the "old stand" ready for business, next Sunday. Ben Hardy.

As the Editor Sees It —
Who is the sweetest woman in this community?
Name her, and you will find a woman who has a good word and a cheerful smile for every one, a woman who makes friends where others make acquaintances, one who injects sunshine into the daily lives of her neighbors, a woman who is a distinct benefit to the community and to the world in which she lives.

Such women make good wives, good mothers, good neighbors and good friends.
Who is the biggest grouch, chronic or otherwise?
Name him, too — and then forget him.

It requires a lot of sweetness to dispel the gloom that one grouch can throw over the people with whom he comes in contact.

We as a people are not slow in providing healthy sports for our young boys, because we know that they aid in making them manly men.

But we need to be prodded up to the point of doing as much for the girls.

One reason why Americans are a hardy and progressive race is the fact our women have more freedom than they have in other countries, and therefore secure more benefit from the open air and the natural exercise incident thereto.

When we arrive at the point where we provide the girls with opportunities for mental and physical development equal to those enjoyed by the boys we will have an even harder and more progressive race than we have ever had before.

We owe more to motherhood than most people realize.

How often do you attend the meetings of the town authorities?
Do you know of the various propositions that are put up to them, and upon which they must pass in your name?

Have you ever expressed your opinion at a board meeting upon a suggestion or contemplated action of the board that did not meet with your approval?

Have you ever kicked about an action the board has taken when you might have voiced a valid objection in time and thereby have prevented such action?

We need a lot of Georges in order to get things done, but it isn't a good idea to expect the Georges to do everything.

Do a few things yourself.

When you were a child in school you considered it an event when your father and mother, and perhaps other fathers and mothers, paid the school a visit.

You were flattered, either consciously or unconsciously, because attention from "grown ups" is pleasing to every child and serves to stimulate its ambition and places it upon its mettle.

Have you a child in school?
Do you ever go near the school.
Does the child know from your actions that you are taking an active daily interest in its scholastic welfare?

Perhaps it is none of our business, but such questions occasionally find lodgment under our hat.

It isn't good to have a life that is all sunshine, and it is exceedingly bad to have one that is all shadows.

To thoroughly enjoy and make the most of the sweetness of life we must experience some of its bitterness.

Remember the good and forget the bad, and you won't feel entirely a stranger when you get to heaven.

Your life is in your own hands. Others are taking care of their own.

IMAGINATION is the key which unlocks the door to opportunity. Our job today is to get ready for tomorrow. Money is the trade token of labor. Labor is power — and power is good — when it is used with a thought of tomorrow.

The man standing behind that door is the YOU of tomorrow. Who he is and what he is depends upon you and you alone.

Initiative is the individual need of today — it's the word with four "I's" in it. Put that word in your tomorrow's tool box — and use it. It will get you somewhere.

Indifference — Doubt — Lack of Self Confidence — Want of Purpose — they all lead to defeat and make labor drudgery and unprofitable.

A bank book is an important text book. Acquire one, filling its entry regularly even though in a small way, and soon you will be able to grasp opportunities which will insure your tomorrow.

Rex Ingram Scores Again With "The Prisoner of Zenda" Motion picture fans who look for exceptional photoplays will have an opportunity on Monday and Tuesday June 18 and 19 to see a picture which is one of the outstanding productions of the year, for on that date Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda" will come to the R. & R. Lyric Theatre.

It is a story teeming with dramatic action, full of intrigue, romance and excitement. It concerns the adventures of an English gentleman, one Rudolf Rassendyll, who, because of a remarkable likeness to the ruler of the mythical kingdom of Ruritania, becomes for a time its actual ruler and wins the love of the Princess Flavia.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" is the most popular romance of a generation. From the time when Anthony Hope, then more interested in his political career in England than in writing, composed it, the narrative of Rudolf Rassendyll's reckless adventure has taken hold of the hearts of all who read. This was the first of the stories of romance in little Kingdoms in Europe, and no better indication can be had of its success than it inspired hundreds of writers to imitate it. But none of the resulting stories had the zest, the devil-may-care spirit of the original, for that was written chiefly for the love of imagination the author had; it was as glamorous to him as to his readers.

In the hands of a director such as Rex Ingram, who made "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" for the same motion picture producing organization, "The Prisoner of Zenda" has stepped out of the pages of the book and come very much to life on the screen. Different essentially from "The Four Horsemen," as different as realism is from romance, the newer picture nevertheless has been done upon the same great scale and with the same faithfulness to the spirit of the written page. In every matter, from the designing of the mammoth settings which represent the Castle of Zenda to precision of court etiquette, Mr. Ingram took charge, and the result is a magnificently beautiful picture.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" is a Rex Ingram production for Metro, adapted by Mary O'Hara from the Edward Rose stage version of Anthony Hope's novel. It was photographed by John F. Seitz.

The Availers

Claude News: Many people compliment their home paper and always see the good things it stands for. Such people are a godsend to the local paper and they are always doubly paid for their kindness. Those who habitually cuss the home paper get very little and are not deserving of anything from the home paper.

Cussing a newspaper doesn't do it any harm as long as it doesn't deserve cussing. When a paper deserves to be cussed, it must expect to get a good deal of that sort of attention. It is the same as any other public or semi-public institution. If it is a poor thing poorly managed it will receive rebuke, whether it be a newspaper, a courthouse, a school, a church or what not. This means that it is the duty of the editor in his office, of the Judge in his court, of the teacher in his school and of the preacher in his church to industriously and intelligently and sincerely devote himself to his work. Indolence, prejudice, perversity, often cripple the effectiveness of men who have it in them to be effective. An availing man is one who avails himself of his talents and opportunities. A complaining man is usually one who is better at complaint than at anything else. The chronic complainer is given to grousing against everything except himself, where the grousing habit makes headquarters. Half the unhappy men in this world are unhappy over their employment or surroundings. They should either improve their work or their surroundings or get out of them and find something better. To grouch on the job and yet be afraid to let go is the sign of a weak character. A strong character will improve with use. A self-reliant man will not perpetually plead the baby act, but will come into maturity strong in self help. So with a newspaper.—State Press in Dallas News.

Will They Form a Third Party?

While in the city yesterday, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi declared that not more than three Democratic Senators will vote against President Harding's proposal to enter the World Court.

That is in line with other estimates of the probable vote of the Democrats, and there seems to be enough Republican votes already pledged to insure that the proposal will be promptly ratified.

The attitude of the Democrats is commendable in view of the purely partisan attitude which was taken by Republicans against the program of President Wilson merely because he is a Democrat.

But the important thing is that it insures the ratification of the President's proposal and thus makes certain that it will not be an issue in the next national campaign so far as the Democratic and Republican parties are concerned.

Unless the Republicans propose to commit suicide by fighting the re-nomination of President Harding, the Republican party will be compelled to endorse the entrance into the World Court as an "achievement" of the Administration.

And the attitude of the Democrats in the Senate insures that the Democratic platform will approve entrance into the World Court, with the probability that it will demand even greater cooperation in the work of restoring the war-torn world than this action involves.

In the face of this situation what will the Borah-LaFollette-Reed-Johnson-Hearst faction of noise-makers do about it?

It is a foregone conclusion that they can not affect the action of either of the old parties; will they get together and organize a new party?

Senator Harrison also declared that "no man can receive the nomination of either party next year who is not an advocate of enforcement of the prohibition amendment."

We think that, too, is a foregone conclusion, for President Harding already is on record emphatically on this point, and it is certain that with the solid South and the dry West in control of the Democratic party there is no possibility of either a wet candidate or a wet platform plank in that camp.

What are the gentlemen who are fathering the program of repealing state enforcement laws in New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and elsewhere going to do about it?

Will they, too, make a move to start a third party, and will these two groups be merged into one?

Are we about to see the formation of a new party pledged to the complete isolation of the United States from world affairs and to light wines and beer?

Unless such a party is formed it can be said with a great degree of certainty that neither the World Court nor light wines and beer will figure in the next campaign.

But to form such a party the opponents of the World Court and the advocates of light wines and beer will have to get together.

And even if they do get together there is no likelihood of a third party of this kind carrying the country.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Revising the Bible

Word comes from Doorn that Mr. William Hohenzollern, late of the throne of Germany, is revising or re-writing the Bible. Among other changes he proposes is the entire obliteration of the Old Testament. He says it is unfit.

It is not surprising to learn of this, the ex-kaiser's latest vagary. The real surprise lies in the fact that he has not decided to replace the old Bible with one written entirely by himself. He has that kind of a mind.

The ex-kaiser is not alone in his attitude. A considerable number of preachers in this country are voicing disbelief in various sections of the Book, and not a few urge that sections of it be discarded entirely.

Incidents of this kind have happened before. The present one will pass and others will come. Always, it is likely, the Bible will be the object of attack. However, it will stand to the end, without mar or scar, because it is of pure gold. Pigmy man cannot alter it or take from it a dotted "i" or a curly "a" that has characterized it from the beginning. It is not within the mental scope of any of us to make it better. It can be sullied and soiled, but, being of pure gold, it will shine thru the stains, and its worth to mankind will be as great as ever.—Fort Worth Press.

A Piece of Impudence
Then, again, there is another angle from which to view Judge Gary's refusal to permit the abolition of the 12-hour day in the U. S. steel mills. He says a change to the 8-hour day would increase steel prices 15 per cent and require the employment of 60,000 additional men. He plainly indicates his belief that the present immigration laws would make it impossible for his company to secure that number of new employes, and a labor problem, impossible of solution, would confront it.

We know, of a fact, that the application of the 8-hour plan never has worked any such hardships as he guesses it will, but let that go. The feature of his reply to the suggestion of President Harding that concerns us at the moment is the direct intimation that he is willing to trade. In other words and in effect, he says to the government at Washington: "You throw down the immigration bars and let the rabble of Europe in, and we, in return, will adopt the 8-hour day."

Cheap labor is what he is after, and for cheap labor he wants to bargain with the United States government. If he can't force the government to the desired end, he will maintain in his mills a system everybody, in these days, knows to be vicious in its every aspect.

Judge Gary was not in the least convincing. He was impudent. — Fort Worth Press.

Endeavorers Eat Supper at Iatan.
Friday evening at seven o'clock we all piled on the truck and were just ready to start when Helen Creath and Dock Howell came up and of course we could not leave them behind because they might cry.

You know at nearly every picnic the crowd has to wait on some one. But we didn't mind. We could afford to wait this time, because Helen is always at Endeavor on time.

When we did get started we had the time of our young lives. We sang songs, yelled, talked. I will tell you a game we played on the truck provided you wont try it when you go on a picnic. Here goes: Nearly everyone got some ice and put it down each others back. Now if you don't think it was a game I will say it was; for the game in it was that we had to keep the ice chunkers from putting ice down our back.

Our president was right in the midst of ice chunking. But you couldn't expect her to sit through the ride without doing anything. She is such a live wire.

When we went through Coahoma we sang C. E. Will Shine, and gave fifteen rabs for C. E.

At about 8:30 we arrived at the tank, and like little crazies we were, we didn't take our bathing suits. We played some before supper; the main game being walking the railroad rails.

Bro. Ruth, his wife and a few more fixed supper. You should have seen what we had to eat, if I began to tell you I would never get thru. All I can say toward the eats that they were sure good, especially when you are hungry like we were.

All too soon time came to go home. We had more fun coming back than we did going.

On every picnic something is lost. This time it was the cream dipper. We should worry about a dipper though because honest we didn't intend to lose it. Just the same it is lost, and can't be found.

About 10:20 we arrived at the church and went to our respective homes. If you want to have a good time come go with C. E. next time.

Remember to come to Endeavor Sunday at seven o'clock and be on time.

If you come and are on time you will feel so much better—try it once. Do remember the place and time.

IMAGINATION is the key which unlocks the door to opportunity. Our job today is to get ready for tomorrow. Money is the trade token of labor. Labor is power — and power is good — when it is used with a thought of tomorrow.

The man standing behind that door is the YOU of tomorrow. Who he is and what he is depends upon you and you alone.
Initiative is the individual need of today — it's the word with four "I's" in it. Put that word in your tomorrow's tool box — and use it. It will get you somewhere.

Indifference — Doubt — Lack of Self Confidence — Want of Purpose — they all lead to defeat and make labor drudgery and unprofitable.

A bank book is an important text book. Acquire one, filling its entry regularly even though in a small way, and soon you will be able to grasp opportunities which will insure your tomorrow.

Rex Ingram Scores Again With "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Motion picture fans who look for exceptional photoplays will have an opportunity on Monday and Tuesday June 18 and 19 to see a picture which is one of the outstanding productions of the year, for on that date Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda" will come to the R. & R. Lyric Theatre.

It is a story teeming with dramatic action, full of intrigue, romance and excitement. It concerns the adventures of an English gentleman, one Rudolf Rassendyll, who, because of a remarkable likeness to the ruler of the mythical kingdom of Ruritania, becomes for a time its actual ruler and wins the love of the Princess Flavia.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" is the most popular romance of a generation. From the time when Anthony Hope, then more interested in his political career in England than in writing, composed it, the narrative of Rudolf Rassendyll's reckless adventure has taken hold of the hearts of all who read. This was the first of the stories of romance in little Kingdoms in Europe, and no better indication can be had of its success than it inspired hundreds of writers to imitate it. But none of the resulting stories had the zest, the devil-may-care spirit of the original, for that was written chiefly for the love of imagination the author had; it was as glamorous to him as to his readers.

In the hands of a director such as Rex Ingram, who made "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" for the same motion picture producing organization, "The Prisoner of Zenda" has stepped out of the pages of the book and come very much to life on the screen. Different essentially from "The Four Horsemen," as different as realism is from romance, the newer picture nevertheless has been done upon the same great scale and with the same faithfulness to the spirit of the written page. In every matter, from the designing of the mammoth settings which represent the Castle of Zenda to precision of court etiquette, Mr. Ingram took charge, and the result is a magnificently beautiful picture.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" is a Rex Ingram production for Metro, adapted by Mary O'Hara from the Edward Rose stage version of Anthony Hope's novel. It was photographed by John F. Seitz.

The Avengers

Claude News: Many people compliment their home paper and always see the good things it stands for. Such people are a godsend to the local paper and they are always doubly paid for their kindness. Those who habitually cuss the home paper get very little and are not deserving of anything from the home paper.

Cussing a newspaper doesn't do it any harm as long as it doesn't deserve cussing. When a paper deserves to be cussed, it must expect to get a good deal of that sort of attention. It is the same as any other public or semi-public institution. If it is a poor thing poorly managed it will receive rebuke, whether it be a newspaper, a courthouse, a school, a church or what not. This means that it is the duty of the editor in his office, of the Judge in his court, of the teacher in his school and of the preacher in his church to industriously and intelligently and sincerely devote himself to his work. Indolence, prejudice, perversity, often cripple the effectiveness of men who have it in them to be effective. An availing man is one who avails himself of his talents and opportunities. A complaining man is usually one who is better at complaint than at anything else. The chronic complainer is given to grousing against everything except himself, where the grousing habit makes headquarters. Half the unhappy men in this world are unhappy over their employment or surroundings. They should either improve their work or their surroundings or get out of them and find something better. To grouch on the job and yet be afraid to let go is the sign of a weak character. A strong character will improve with use. A self-reliant man will not perpetually plead the baby act, but will come into maturity strong in self help. So with a newspaper.—State Press in Dallas News.

Will They Form a Third Party?

While in the city yesterday, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi declared that not more than three Democratic Senators will vote against President Harding's proposal to enter the World Court.

That is in line with other estimates of the probable vote of the Democrats, and there seems to be enough Republican votes already pledged to insure that the proposal will be promptly ratified.

The attitude of the Democrats is commendable in view of the purely partisan attitude which was taken by Republicans against the program of President Wilson merely because he is a Democrat.

But the important thing is that it insures the ratification of the President's proposal and thus makes certain that it will not be an issue in the next national campaign so far as the Democratic and Republican parties are concerned.

Unless the Republicans propose to commit suicide by fighting the renomination of President Harding, the Republican party will be compelled to indorse the entrance into the World Court as an "achievement" of the Administration.

And the attitude of the Democrats in the Senate insures that the Democratic platform will approve entrance into the World Court, with the probability that it will demand even greater cooperation in the work of restoring the war-torn world than this action involves.

In the face of this situation what will the Borah-LaFollette-Reed-Johnson-Hearst faction of noise-makers do about it?

It is a foregone conclusion that they can not affect the action of either of the old parties; will they get together and organize a new party?

Senator Harrison also declared that "no man can receive the nomination of either party next year who is not an advocate of enforcement of the prohibition amendment."

We think that, too, is a foregone conclusion, for President Harding already is on record emphatically on this point, and it is certain that with the solid South and the dry West in control of the Democratic party there is no possibility of either a wet candidate or a wet platform plank in that camp.

What are the gentlemen who are fathering the program of repealing state enforcement laws in New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and elsewhere going to do about it?

Will they, too, make a move to start a third party, and will these two groups be merged into one?

Are we about to see the formation of a new party pledged to the complete isolation of the United States from world affairs and to light wines and beer?

Unless such a party is formed it can be said with a great degree of certainty that neither the World Court nor light wines and beer will figure in the next campaign.

But to form such a party the opponents of the World Court and the advocates of light wines and beer will have to get together.

And even if they do get together there is no likelihood of a third party of this kind carrying the country.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Revising the Bible

Word comes from Doorn that Mr. William Hohenzollern, late of the throne of Germany, is revising or re-writing the Bible. Among other changes he proposes is the entire obliteration of the Old Testament. He says it is unfit.

It is not surprising to learn of this, the ex-kaiser's latest vagary. The real surprise lies in the fact that he has not decided to replace the old Bible with one written entirely by himself. He has that kind of a mind. The ex-kaiser is not alone in his attitude. A considerable number of preachers in this country are voicing disbelief in various sections of the Book, and not a few urge that sections of it be discarded entirely.

Incidents of this kind have happened before. The present one will pass and others will come. Always, it is likely, the Bible will be the object of attack. However, it will stand to the end, without mar or scar, because it is of pure gold. Pigmy man cannot alter it or take from it a dotted "i" or a curly "q" that has characterized it from the beginning. It is not within the mental scope of any of us to make it better. It can be sullied and soiled, but, being of pure gold, it will shine thru the stains, and its worth to mankind will be as great as ever.—Fort Worth Press.

Not One of Them Anglo-Saxon

The New York Times is authority for the statement that of the three dictators of Europe not one is an Anglo-Saxon. "No one of them is an Anglo-Saxon, and no one has any particular sympathy with the political ideals which are supposed to inspire the Anglo-Saxon, as distinguished from the Latin or Slav world."

The key to the world is race; the key to the future is Race; and as yet there are no authorities on Race which those who need light most on this subject will accept. Anglo-Saxon is a term which even in its broadest meaning is too narrow to define the gulf stream of racial quality which in all the ages has flowed down through the ocean of humanity, purifying it and fructifying all shores where it flows. The Anglo-Saxon has been the most prominent branch of that Race, but the stream itself includes even today (for example, among certain sections of the German people) those to whom the name Anglo-Saxon is anathema.

However, that is a big question. The absence of an Anglo-Saxon among the dictators of Europe means nothing. How securely are Bismarck, Mussolini, and Bonaparte on their dictators' seats? What have they been able to do singly or together for the problem of Europe as a whole? What profundity either of hope or menace do they signify? Is there anything in the Latin and Slav political ideals that holds out any promise for Europe? Latin or Slav, which has shown colonizing wisdom? And colonizing wisdom is just this—the possession of such an idea of civil justice as can be applied to any country or any people. It is not by accident, nor is it by political design, that the desirable places of the earth as well as the waste places have come under the control of one racial strain. When racial kinship is recognized a number of national divisions are likely to fall away.

The future of Europe can be almost plainly seen—a gradually growing helplessness under present European ideals, a collapse of all the falsities which led to the present distress, and in the end an appeal to the ideals and materials of the Anglo-Saxon civilization for salvation.

They are crying for the materials now, but the materials are not enough, the ideals also must be put to work.—Dearborn Independent.

Cars, Trucks and Roads

The automobile is rapidly turning this country into one vast expanse of good roads—up to a certain point.

When the first primitive car made its bow to the public a few years ago our highways in rainy weather represented mile after mile of mud and slush, through which horse drawn vehicles had to plow at a snail's pace.

Now hard roads are everywhere, and paved roads are gradually replacing them.

The present system of road paving, however, is only a temporary makeshift. The roads are entirely too narrow for safety and are not made to stand up under heavy truck traffic.

It is only a question of time when public highways will be paved the entire width of the right-of-way, with a foundation and surface sufficiently substantial to accommodate any kind of heavy traffic.

The automobile alone will not bring this greater improvement, but the motor truck will eventually force its adoption.

The time is coming when much of our freight will be hauled in motor trucks, with great caravans of these monsters reeling off the miles at freight train speed.

This will relieve the terrific handicap, caused by car shortage, under which the country is staggering today.

Coming into direct competition with the railroads, it should also result in a material reduction in freight rates.

If you think the motor industry will not compel the widening and paving of all of our country roads, just hang onto life for another fifty years.

You may be so pleased with the transformation you will not want to leave it even for the sake of driving through the pearly gates.

An Ideal for the Times

The address of Dr. R. H. Miller of Kansas City on the occasion of the fiftieth annual commencement exercises of the Texas Christian University yesterday was more than a commencement address—more even than a jubilee address.

It was a message to this generation by a clear-seeing prophet on the great business of education.

His thesis was that the goal of education should be the development of personality and he drew a contrast between this ideal of education and that which makes of education a mere method of imparting knowledge and providing equipment for the "self-expression of the individual."

"There is a vast difference," he said, "between an individual and a personality."

And in illustrating this difference he gave a graphic picture of the contrast between the philosophy of limitation and the philosophy of service.

It is the contrast between the philosophy of Nietzsche and the philosophy of Christ.

The one is the so-called aristocratic ideal and the other is the democratic.

The one sees in education a process calculated to make the individual self-sufficient and to equip him to rule.

The other sees in education a process calculated to develop the personality of the individual and to equip him to serve.

The kind of a man each seeks to produce is the test—the one producing a dominating egotist and the other a consecrated personality, conscious of his common humanity and more concerned about his duties than about his rights.

Dr. Miller designated one as the Pagan and the other as the Christian ideal.

The ideal which he set before his hearers is sorely needed in these times; it is in fact the only thing that can save us from being overwhelmed by the vast material civilization we have brought into being.

And it is not a mere academic problem which is involved.

It is nothing less than the welfare of the entire human race, and more immediately the welfare of the people of America.

Put into the precise terms of technical statement it may sound as if it were something remote from the concern of the common man.

But it concerns everyone of us and it concerns more than our schools and our system of education. It concerns our attitude as parents, as employers, as citizens and as men and women in every activity of life.

It concerns pre-eminently our attitude as a nation.

During the World War there was a clash of those two ideals, and America rose to the heights in dedication to the ideal of democracy, of service.

Since the war there has been a reaction, both with respect to the life of the average man and to the attitude of the Nation.

Nothing is so rarely needed in these times as the passionate preaching of the ideal which Dr. Miller set forth with such power.

For that ideal is needed in every department of modern life, and unless it permeates the very spirit of our people there are perilous years ahead of us.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Work and Play

We work because it is necessary to work in order to live.

We play because it is necessary to give mind and body that relaxation which keeps them in condition for the performance of our daily labors.

When at work the wise man centers his energies upon that work to the exclusion of everything in the realm of play. It is this concentration of thought and action that enables men to accomplish the things that stamp them as successful in life.

It is the same when the wise man plays. He puts the cares of business away from him for the time being, and enters wholeheartedly into that physical and mental exercise which develops the body and strengthens the mind and keeps him in condition to withstand the wear and tear of his hours of toil.

The wise man knows and observes these necessary laws of nature, and gets the substance of life.

The foolish man observes them not—and tumbles around in his own shadow.
