FOUR MEN SHOOT UP STORE, KILLING THREE

Jess Maples Given Death In Policeman's Murder

FOUR MEN CONFESS TWISTING CHILD TO DEATH

Woman Took a Part in Brutal Murder Of Child

Reason Given In Confession Was They Wanted To "Get Rid of the Kid."

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 4.—Four men, one of them a government worker assertedly confessed to police today to the murder of three year old Garlan Bailey whose body was found on Grand Island in the Ohio river early Monday morning.

The boy's mother Eya Bailey, 40, is implicated in the confession. Terminating an all night period of questioning, Ray Henry, light under on the island for the government; his brother, Charles and Jess Maples and James Dunn, both Grandview, Ohio, signed confessions admitting the killing, police said.

The confession was a cold-blooded story of how the four men and a woman who was divorced from the boy's father, took the child to the island last Sunday afternoon for a drinking party, and decided to "get rid of the kid."

The men took the screaming child in their hands and twisted the body until it was lifeless. They then sought to tear it apart by their force, police said. The body was thrown into the river, drifting back to shore.

A desire to "get rid of the kid" was the only motive the quartet would advance for the crime, police said.

The four men declared that after disposing of the body, they and the child's mother returned to her house and played the radio for the rest of the night.

Denies Reds Sought Farmers' Ruin

NEA Chicago Bureau

The short selling of 7,500,000 bushels of wheat by the Russian Soviet government on the Chicago Board of Trade was an ordinary "hedging" operation and not part of a conspiracy to increase the plight of the American farmer by depressing the price of wheat, according to testimony given a congressional committee by John A. Bunnell, president of the Chicago Board of Trade. Bunnell is shown here, at the left, with Congressman Hamilton Fish, chairman of the congressional committee investigating communism in this country, as they met in Chicago.

Suspect Held In Shooting of Man At Gas Station

DEL RIO, Tex., Oct. 4.—Officers of Terrell and surrounding counties were scattered throughout this section of the state today on a man hunt, after Lupe Espamilla, 30, employe of deputy sheriff Joe Nance's filling station at Sanderson, was shot in the back in an attempted holdup early this morning.

The robber, accompanied by a woman and baby, drove into the garage in a Ford sedan and asked for tire service. As the attendant secured his tools the motorist pulled a gun and demanded cash instead.

Esparilla is believed to have turned to flee when the motorist fired and fled. Espamilla was brought to a hospital here, where attending physicians accord him a good chance to live.

Does Not Help His Attorney In The Trial

Man Who Did Not Give Officers He Killed a Chance Is Resigned to Fate.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 4.—Jess J. Maples, confessed bullet killer and former army sharpshooter today was given the penalty he asked.

A jury returned a verdict of death in the electric chair for the murder of motorcycle office E. D. Fitzgerald slain in a gun battle when he tried to arrest Maple for a furniture store holdup September 20.

Fitzgerald's partner W. B. Phares also was slain in the battle with Maple.

Maple had told officers "I guess I'll get the cap, and I deserve it for I did not give them a chance, and they gave me one."

He refused to take any interest during the trial, refused to aid his appointed attorney and refused to testify concerning his war record in an effort to create sympathy for himself.

The only defense was the testimony of his wife, little German woman whom he married when he was with the army of occupation in Germany, that he was drunk the night of the gun battle.

Phares and Fitzgerald had spotted the car in which Maple sat a few hours after the holdup, having been furnished the license number. As they approached the car parked on a side street, they were met with a volley of shots.

Phares fell mortally wounded, his leg and arm shattered, and he died a few hours later. Fitzgerald continued to advance towards the car, and when he was a few feet away, a hand darted out of the car, a pistol blazed and he too fell instantly killed.

Maple fled from the car, went to his rooming house, and got his clothes, and the three of them spent the night in the sanctuary of a church awaiting a chance to flee from town.

Early the next morning, Mrs. Maple went to the room to get their clothes, and she found her husband and child.

Four youths whose ages ranged from 16 to 18 years were arrested following the burglary of the office of the Texas & Pacific railroad company's car inspector in the railroad yards in Ranger at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Two of the boys gave their homes as Oklahoma City, one as Tulsa, Oklahoma, and one as Riderwood, Ala. One of them is said by police to have confessed to having had a part in the burglary.

When the burglary was reported someone remembered seeing four boys in the vicinity of the car inspector's office. Police Chief Jim Ingram, thinking the boys caught a freight train that had just left the yards going east, had the train stopped at Tiffin, just east of Ranger a few miles, and searched for the boys. When the four boys saw the officers, two of them started to run, but stopped when the officers drew their guns and threatened to shoot.

The boys were taken back to Ranger.

No Motive For Slaying Found By The Police

BRADDOCK, Pa., Oct. 4.—Two men and a woman were killed and a third man was probably fatally wounded here today when two men stepped to the entrance of a small grocery store and opened fire with revolvers.

Mr. and Mrs. Grego Lobianco, both 29, proprietors of the store and Louis Tomiano, 70, a customer, were killed.

Witnesses said our men drove up to the store and two of them ran to the entrance. They stood for a moment firing their revolvers from side to side of the store. Their victims fell without an outcry. The men ran back to the car and were driven away.

The car used by the assassins was recovered by police. It had been abandoned a mile and a half from side of the store. The men escaped.

Mrs. Lobianco, an expectant mother, was rushed to the Braddock hospital where efforts to save the life of the child failed.

Grego Lobianco was dead when bystanders reached the store. Tomiano died a few minutes after his admission to the hospital. Mike Lobianco, 26, brother of Grego, was so badly wounded physicians feared he would die.

James Toffe, 8, standing in the store at the time of the shooting escaped injury.

No motive for the slaying was advanced by police.

Two Truck Loads Of Clothes Given United Charities

About two truck loads of clothing, a part of the I. Moldave fire damaged stock, has been turned over to the United Charities of Eastland for distribution among the needy this winter. The insurance company buying the damaged stock donated the clothing and the Modern Dry Cleaners & Dyers, local concern, cleaned and dried the clothing.

In this connection it is suggested that individuals having clothing they do not need and which is clean and warm may render a service to humanity by donating such clothing to the United Charities as it is expected that a large quantity of clothing will be needed this winter.

BIRTH CONTROL AND FIVE DAY WEEK FOR LABOR.

A statement favoring a five-day week for industry and an intelligent attitude toward birth control was adopted by the commission on social justice of the central conference of American Rabbis in convention in the city of Baltimore.

"If our constantly improving machinery with its displacement of human workers is not to produce unemployment before it produces aught else, not only must the number of working days a week be reduced; there must also be a diminution of working hours a day with corresponding increases of wage rates enabling all workers to earn sufficiently."

Furthermore the statement suggests that investments be withheld from enterprises where reasonable standards of hours, wages and working conditions are ignored and should be directed to those whose standards are high.

"Following in the wake of the central conference of American Rabbis Universalists, Methodists, Presbyterians and Unitarians have, of late, resolved upon an intelligent attitude of birth control. Birth is one of the many forces of nature which like steam, air, gravitation, electricity and chemical valence, succumbs to human control as civilization progresses."

All this is a reminder that there is a new civilization and that the order of things appears to have been handed a solar plexus blow by the makers of the new civilization. In the not remote past advocates of birth control were given jail sentences in certain American states and advocates of a five-day week for labor were classified as advanced socialists or hungry communists by those who disapproved most emphatically of their proposal.

TEXANS OUTLINE PLANS FOR FARM RELIEF.

Texans visited Washington and held an important conference with Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve bank. Bankers and farm representatives outlined four programs by which they hope to establish a number of farm credit corporations for the relief of farmers who are facing financial disaster as a result of the drouth.

It is the hope of the Texans, according to Washington correspondents, to be able to set up a group of perhaps 10 farm loan corporations organized by local subscription, which would discount farm loans at federal intermediate land banks without further security.

State Comptroller George H. Sheppard appeared before the annual convention of Texas Tax Collectors' association and submitted a proposal that the state remit the 10 per cent penalty on delinquent ad valorem taxes as a relief measure for farmers in drouth stricken sections.

Judge Believes Gangster Rule About Broken

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Judge John H. Lyle, who announced and practiced policy is to put known gunmen and racketeers in jail first and find charges against them afterwards, believes that gang rule in Chicago has been broken.

"I think the people are at last so aroused that the gangster is through in this city," declared Lyle in a demanding honey of $50,000 for James "Far" Sammons, who has a criminal record that extends back to 1909 and is listed by the crime commission as one of 26 public enemies.

Sammons was arraigned under an old law of 1874 which declared Lyle in a demand for $50,000 for James "Far" Sammons, who has a criminal record that extends back to 1909 and is listed by the crime commission as one of 26 public enemies.

Sammons was arraigned under an old law of 1874 which declared Lyle in a demand for $50,000 for James "Far" Sammons, who has a criminal record that extends back to 1909 and is listed by the crime commission as one of 26 public enemies.

"He is a menace and it is a travesty of justice to let men like him walk the streets," declared the judge when Sammons' attorney objected that bonds of $100 were insufficient to guarantee his appearance.

"If I thought he could raise $50,000 and keep out of jail I'd make the bond even larger," Lyle added. "I believe the gangsters are doomed. The handwriting on the wall says they had better pack up and take up the gypsy life."

SEA FOODS GO INLAND

WHEN far inland, on mountain or plain, you open a can of your favorite fish—clams or shrimp, mackerel or cod, or any other of the vast variety now packed—perhaps you wonder how these denizens of the sea retain their fresh-caught flavor, so reminiscent of salt air and tide.

Does it ever occur to you, as you go about your inland business that thousands of fishermen spend their lives along the coast earning their livelihood in as picturesque and adventurous a manner as the fisher-folk of the sea stories that thrilled your youth, while they pull in the finest fish from the sea for inland appetites, and that these are clamped into cans and hermetically sealed faster than they could be cooked and served to you at the table?

The Popular Clam At any seaside resort, one finds during the summer season, myriads of visitors reveling in clams—steamed clams, clam broth, clams on the half-shell, clam chowder, etc.

Clams that are just as excellent as those served at seaside stalls are being dug for the canneries, so that enthusiasts may eat them all year round. The clam beds are miles from the nearest village, in clean, fine white sand. Great containers of these fresh dug, fresh shelled juicy clams become immaculately clean in vast washing machines where they are cleaned in their own liquor, thus retaining all of the clam strength.

And if clam chowder happens to be your favorite clam dish, you will also be interested to know that the veg-tables for canned clam chowder are all pared and cubed by machine and only the finest pork and seasonings added.

More salmon is canned than any other kind of fish. Much has already been told of the romance of salmon fishing—the lives and fortunes that are risked annually to capture the mysterious and adventurous wanderer who has such a strong instinct to return to his birthplace at spawning season that he leaps cataclysmic in the cold northern streams and braves great hazards to effect that purpose.

And of how salmon fleets carrying complete canneries are located out in the mouths of rivers whence the salmon starts his journey inland, so that the fish may be caught at the moment when it is sleekest and fittest.

Sardines come second to salmon in popularity, and are sometimes called a canner's invention because they are really small herring and similar fish until they enter the can and become "sardines." Fish, another canner's invention, was formerly considered inedible until one year when sardines were scarce, canners discovered that, by cooking tuna, the oil could be removed by steam and when the salad oil was used to replace the natural oil it became as tender and appetizing as the breast of chicken.

Caviar is the roe of various species of sturgeon which inhabit the waters of the Atlantic Ocean and the waters along the shores of Russia, but it is in Russia where the art of preparing roe is one of the oldest industries. In past ages caviar was eaten only by the highest nobility and the poorer classes, but its large production in recent years has brought it within the reach of all.

With the advent of fish in cans, this healthful food has changed from a one-day-week affair to an everyday food—and fishermen can now sell their products more cheaply because they know there is a steady market. Formerly they had to obtain from one day's sales sufficient profit to cover six days' expenses.

Up in Gloucester, where fishermen go out deep-sea fishing and where the quest of the sacred cod has been handed down from father to son from the time when the shores of Cape Cod were only straggling fishing villages, the wives of the fishermen pride themselves on preparing excellent sea food. The following recipe makes a strongy of Gloucester:

Rice Cold and Shrimp Sauce: Boil one cup of rice until tender. Drain two tablespoons of butter, two slightly-beaten eggs and two tablespoons of evaporated milk. Place into a buttered mold, set in a pan of hot water and bake until firm for about twenty to thirty minutes. Meanwhile saute two tablespoons of chopped onion and two tablespoons of chopped green pepper in two tablespoons of butter, add two tablespoons of flour, stir smooth; then add one No. 3 can of tomatoes slowly, stirring constantly. Add one 5 1/2-ounce can of shrimp, one-fourth cup of sliced ripe olives and salt and pepper to taste. Unmold the rice and pour over tomato and shrimp sauce. This serves six persons.

"Moby Dick" Now Showing At Ranger Theatre
 "Moby Dick," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone picture starring John Barrymore, comes to the Columbia Theatre in Ranger, today. Based on the famous novel of the same name by Herman Melville, the story of mad Captain Ahab and his long hunt for the great white whale, is the most spectacular drama ever transferred to the talking screen.
 The most difficult voice-recording ever attempted, taken during a furious storm at sea while the whaling ship, rebuilt for the purpose, was being tossed about in almost helpless fashion, is heard in this version of "Moby Dick."
 Joan Bennett plays the feminine lead opposite the star and Lloyd Hughes, Noble Johnson, Walter Long, Nigel De Bruiler and Jack Curtis are in the cast. Lloyd Bacon directed.
 "Moby Dick" was the basis of an earlier silent picture in which Warner Bros. starred Barrymore, known then as "The Sea Beast" in which Dolores Costello, now Mrs. Barrymore, played the role essayed this time by Joan Bennett.

World's Smallest Midget Does Dance In Lyric Picture
 The smallest actor in the world goes "collebrate" in one of the hilarious dancing scenes of "Good News," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-talking adaptation of the well-known Broadway stage hit, now playing at the Lyric Theatre.
 He is Harry Earles, tiniest midget who hides in a waste paper basket during a rendition of the "Varsity Drag" number but scrambles out to join in the general stomping.
 Earles is one of the star attractions in the Ringling Bros. Circus, appearing in films during off seasons. He played the part of the midget crook in both the silent and more recent talkie version of Lon Chaney's "The Unholy Three."
 The "Varsity Drag" number is one of the most spectacular of the many "whoopie" scenes in the production. The scene starts quietly enough in a classroom with the student body industriously bent over their books. But when the professor leaves the room, the industry shows itself in a different way. Chairs and desks are pushed back and with Dorothy McNulty leading the way the entire group go through a whirlwind maze of intricate steps to the music of Abe Lyman's Band.
 Edgar MacGregor, who staged the original show, directed the screen version in association with Nick Grinde, and between the two of them they have made every effort to retain the spontaneity of the stage work. The original song hits have been included in the picture and a number of new ones have been added.

 The cast, headed by Bessie Love, includes Mary Lawlor, Stanley Smith, Gus Shy, Lola Lane, Cliff Edwards, Tom Jackson, Billy Tate, and Frank McGlynn. Also participating in the picture are members of the University of Southern California football squad who stage the realistic football sequence used as the climax of the plot.

International Oil Exposition Opens At Tulsa
 TULSA, Okla., Oct. 4.—The seventh international petroleum exposition and congress, "the world's fair of the oil industry," officially opened today with two members of President Hoover's cabinet participating.
 A record crowd saw Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, give signals that sent rockets bursting over the heads of visitors from all parts of the United States and from foreign countries including leaders of petroleum, banking, railroads and other parts of the industrial world.
 The speakers stand overlooking the $13,000,000 store of war, who returned to his home city to take part in the most elaborate display of the oil industry offered since the exposition came into being in 1923 within a roped off street.
 Immediately after the formal opening at 1 p. m. most of the visitors attended the dedicatory ceremony of the new $300,000 Skelly stadium to see the University of Tulsa open its football season against the University of Arkansas team. The stadium was the gift of W. K. Skelly, head of the Skelly Oil company and president of the exposition.
 Secretary Lamont was guest of Walter Phillips, Bartlesville oil man, at the football game. Secretary Hurley had with him an Indian blanket and chieftain's feathers presented him last night at an Indian powwow in his honor while the guest of Frank Phillips, Oklahoma oil man.
 Many universities sent large groups of students to inspect the latest inventions of the oil industry.

King Boris Of Bulgaria To Wed
 ROME, Oct. 4.—A royal romance triumphed over the objections of church and state today with the official announcement of the engagement of King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna of Italy.
 Princess Giovanna is 22 years old, the third daughter of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena. Boris, "bachelor king" and considered Europe's most handsome monarch, is 36.
 It was understood that Pope Pius XI was not inclined to grant dispensation to the princess to marry Boris, who is an orthodox (Greek) Catholic, but the difficulties were overcome eventually. It is not known whether the princess will abjure Catholicism, but the Bulgarian constitution stipulates that an heir to the throne must be a member of the Bulgarian orthodox church.

Hoover Not To Mention Politics In His Speeches
 WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—President Hoover's decision to shun politics in his swift swing around the little eastern circuit—Cleveland, Boston and Kings Mountain, S. C.—has created disappointment in Republican congressional campaign circles.
 The Republican nominees who are up for election next month are known to have made some private appeals to the White House for aid.
 Some have asked for letters of endorsement and others have sought to get the president to appear in their home states in their behalf.
 While these appeals have been turned down, with a single exception (that of Rep. Carroll Reece, Repr. Tenn.) it was thought the executive would at least lend some aid to the Republican senatorial candidates in Ohio and Massachusetts during his visits there.
 His refusal to do so was carried to such an extent during his recent Cleveland trip that he failed to pose for a picture or appear in public with Senator Roscoe McCulloch, Republican incumbent. McCulloch boarded the residential train before it arrived in Cleveland, but did not ride with Mr. Hoover in the parade or appear with him when he delivered his speech.
 The president leaves here late Sunday night for Boston, delivering his speeches to the American Legion and American Federation of Labor conventions there Monday and then will leave immediately for Kings Mountain, where he speaks Tuesday.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Celia Mitchell, 17, faces a new life when she leaves the home in Baltimore where she has lived with her widowed mother, Margaret Rogers, to join her father, John Mitchell, and her grandmother in a stately New York dwelling. The girl had not even known her father was living until the day he came to the Baltimore apartment. Celia had supposed Bob Rogers, her mother's second husband, to be her father. Mitchell offers the girl a life of wealth and immediately everything changes. She leaves her mother, unaware that Mrs. Rogers is seriously ill and she leaves Barney Shields, ambitious young newspaper photographer, who swears that some day he and Celia will be married.

The girl is lonely and ill at ease in her new home. Mitchell finds her in tears and is worried. He appeals to Mrs. Evelyn Parsons, beautiful widow whose husband has been Mitchell's close friend. Mrs. Parsons agrees to introduce Celia to the right set of young people though it is obvious she regards the girl as a means to gain Mitchell's affections.

To this end she invites Celia to spend a week-end at her Long Island home. Among the other guests is Tod Jordan, a handsome and fascinating young man who devotes himself to Celia.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Jordan drew the girl quickly toward him. In that swift instant Celia was conscious only of the hypnotic gaze that held her. She had no thought of resisting as Jordan's arm pressed closer. He bent his head.

At that very moment, as though timed by a stage director, the French windows were thrown back and a figure appeared, silhouetted in a flood of light. Eve Brooks, throaty laughter pealed out on the night.

"Look at what I've found!" she cried. "Romeo—and if it isn't little Juliet out here rehearsing the balcony scene! Come on, everybody, this is a better place to dance than inside."

The others crowded after Eve. Celia had drawn away from Jordan in embarrassment. The young man, entirely undisturbed, remained where he was, coolly smiling. Eve Brooks approached him, her eyes mocking.

"Your turn next," Jordan said casually, and as the radio orchestra again began its tempestuous blue harmonies, the pair moved off in a fox trot.

"Want to dance?" Jimmie Webster asked Celia.

She didn't want to. What Celia wanted was to slip away where no one could see her cheeks were burning and ask herself how in the world she had come so near to forgetting herself, forgetting Barney Shields, forgetting everything! She knew Jordan had been about to kiss her. She had not even tried to stop him! The swift reaction was shame and burning remorse. Nevertheless she let Webster

THE WEEVIL'S GONNA GETCHA EF YOU DON'T WATCH OUT!

By R. R. Peppert, Entomologist
A. & M. College of Texas

Ef yer cotton pickin's over, an' you haven't raised a hand to get th' mules out int' th' field an' agitate th' land, An' th' bug that come from Mexico feels sassy-like an' fit, A-eatin' of fresh cotton leaves until th' frosts have hit; An' ef when winter opens with its snow an' ev'rythin', He finds a place to snuggle down until th' comin' spring, In th' trash that clutters up yer ditch an' fences round-a-bout; Then th' weevil's gonna getcha, ef you don't watch out!

Creet they was a feller 'at'd jest stand round an' smile, When th' neighbors plowed th' cotton up fer many and many a mile; An' he said he didn't keer, ef th' long-nosed bug'd take; An' all that they could find was th' Department 'lowed they'd make. Th' bug's our friend, and ef he doesn't eat th' crop, no doubt, Th' market bugs'll get us, ef we don't watch out!

One day whiles they was starvin' bugs by plowin' up the stalk An' drillin' outs an' barley in, teams ploddin' in a walk, His neighbors heered him holler an' his banker heered him bawl, An' when they seeked him in his field, he wasn't there at all; An' all that they could find was a sick boll here an' there, An' a great big grouchy weevil a-sardin' frum each square; An' he never answered nothin', although th' e'd shout an' shout; An' th' weevil's gonna get YOU, too, ef you don't watch out!

So you better plow your ground this fall, an' throw the stalks all out An' plant a good clean cover crop ef you know what you're about, An' you better plant good healthy sees, an' fertilize, an' plow, Just ev'ry day next season that th' weather will allow; 'Cause th' first warm days th' weevil's gonna jump on ev'ry row, An' they'll be a million others when th' squares begin to grow; Why, the weevil eats so very much, you'd think he'd have th' gout, An' he's surely gonna getcha, ef you don't watch out.

lead her away to the rhythm of the fox trot. Dancing with Webster was chiefly bobbing and turning and bobbing, but at least everyone was not looking at her.

Gradually Celia was able to conquer her confusion. She danced with Walter Carr and again with Webster.

Mrs. Parsons had disappeared. Kate Duncan and Courtney Brooks were sitting in the shadows at the far end of the porch. Lisi was trying to perform a sailor's hornpipe with coaching from the sidelines.

"Try this one with me?"

The orchestra had begun another waltz. Celia did not turn her head. She knew Tod Jordan had come up behind her even before he spoke, and she had made up her mind not to dance again with Jordan.

"No, thanks," she said. "I—I'm just a little tired."

He stood in front of her then so she could not avoid his eyes. Perfectly straightforward his gaze was. One might have thought they had just met.

"Then let's sit over here," he suggested, nodding toward a rattan porch seat in the shadows.

"I prefer the moonlight."

"In that case so do I."

The porch rail was wide enough to make a comfortable seat. Celia had seated herself and was leaning against the corner pillar. She had no idea how becoming the pose was. Jordan looked down on her for a few moments, then dropped to the rail and sat facing her.

He studied her face before he spoke.

"Eve Brooks thinks I like you too well," he said in that slow, oddly stirring tone.

The girl eyed him inquiringly.

"Surely, you understand that little—scene of Eve's," he went on. "I hope you didn't let it disturb you! No one else would—that is, no one who knows Eve Brooks."

"Oh, no, I didn't mind."

Celia spoke quite as casually now as the man.

"That's right," Jordan said. "You see Eve, poor thing, is something of a cat. It's just as well to know that if you're going to be around her much, she's got the idea now that I'm interested in you."

There was a pause, timed romantically, then Jordan added softly, "There's someone else not very far away. I wish I could persuade to believe the same thing."

Celia was on her feet.

"Excuse me, please," she said. "I almost forgot! There's something I want to speak to Lisi about."

Then, with her heart pounding, she hurried away. Celia could not risk coming under Tod Jordan's spell again. His presence made her feel guilty.

She avoided him the rest of the evening. This, she was a bit surprised to learn, was not difficult. Jordan did not even ask her to dance again.

Celia joined Lisi and Walter

Carr, who was describing his experiences as an amateur airplane pilot. Lisi declared she too was going to enter a flying school. Already she had a fund of technical information and asked Carr a great many questions.

The radio program switched from dance music to a monologue, and someone in disgust turned it off. Jordan had been dancing with Kate Duncan. Now they joined the group.

"Listen," Lisi looked up impulsively. "The party's getting stale. I know what let's do—let's go swimming!"

"But Lisi!" remonstrated her sister. "It's midnight."

"What of it? Its only two miles to the club. And there won't be a crowd around. I want a swim! Who else is going?"

Courtney Brooks and Webster were enthusiastic over this idea. There was some discussion and then the two men were off to get cars. Celia Mitchell, who had been in an alarm, looked about for Mrs. Parsons. She was chatting with Jordan, apparently content to see her guests take entertainment into their own hands.

Celia edged away. When the opportunity came, before the cars had arrived, she touched Mrs. Parsons' arm.

"I think I'll slip upstairs," she said. "It will be all right if I don't go with the others, won't it? I'm really sleepy."

"Just as you wish, of course."

"Then I'll say good night now."

Celia disappeared. A little later from her upstairs room she heard shouts of laughter and then the sound of the cars going down the driveway.

So this was a fashionable house party! The evening had been nothing at all as Celia had imagined it beforehand. She stood by the window a moment, looking out at the bright moonlight. Then she went to the dressing table, slipped her lovely pink frock from her shoulders, and presently was ready for bed.

With her chiffon negligee about her Celia perched on the foot of the bed, feet curled beneath her. She took Barney's letter from her purse and spread out the pages. Then she re-read the whole letter carefully.

"Barney" she whispered softly when he had finished. "Oh, Barney!"

For a long time Celia sat looking at the crumpled envelope. Finally she folded the pages, tucked them away and put the letter away in her purse. After that she turned the light out and slipped into bed.

She lay with her eyes open, staring up at the black ceiling. There was so much in this new world that Celia Mitchell did not understand.

She went to sleep at last, but it was not Barney Shields the girl was thinking of as she dropped off to slumber. It was Tod Jordan and that unforgettable moment in the moonlight.

When Celia came downstairs next morning, wearing the little white tennis frock Mrs. Parsons had bought for her, there was no ease in sight.

Hilda, the maid she had seen the day before, told her that breakfast was ready. Celia went into the dining room and Hilda brought her fruit, toast and coffee.

After that Celia wandered out on the big porch. It was after nine o'clock, but she saw no one. The garden was beautiful in the sunlight. Celia followed the cobblestone path, pausing to watch the goldfish in their pool, and then strolling on among the flowers. It was an informal garden, perfectly suited to the rambling house and good grounds.

The day would be warm, no doubt, but the morning breeze made it perfect. There was a path Celia had not inspected the day before. Now she followed it.

She heard a shout and looked about quickly. Over the shrubbery ahead she caught sight of a flashing bit of motion.

Tennis! Of course. These must be the tennis courts she had heard Jimmie Webster talking about last night.

Now she saw them. A man and a girl on either side of the net in frantic pursuit of the tiny, spinning ball. It was Lisi and Webster. The players were too intent on their game to note the spectator. Lisi served amazingly, and Webster's racket sent the ball spinning back into an impossible corner. Lisi returned it. Over and back again. Over and back.

Celia watched, spellbound. She had never seen such skillful tennis playing. At last when the game was finished she waved and came forward.

Lisi paused a moment to call a cheerful greeting, and then the set was resumed. Celia sat on a bench at the side of the court and watched.

"Hello!"

She looked up. Tod Jordan, looking more bronzed than ever in his white clothes, dropped to the bench beside the girl.

"Good morning."

"I saw you heading this way, and so I followed," he said. "I hope you don't mind?"

"Why of course not?"

"Oh? I—er, rather gathered last night that you didn't care to be friendly."

Celia continued to watch the flying ball.

"I'm sorry you thought that."

"Then isn't true? I mean, you think you might possibly come to like me?"

"I might."

"Enough to turn around right now and smile?"

There was no use. She couldn't pretend to quarrel. Celia didn't want to quarrel with Jordan anyway. She wanted to go on talking, saying little things in a way which meant so much.

The rest of last night were forgotten. When the tennis players were exhausted and they all walked back to the house together, Celia was addressing Jordan as

"One - night stands"

REMEMBER the medicine shows that used to come to town? With minstrel music and flaring gaslight, the eloquent "Doctor" sold a good many bottles of his marvelous elixir. No chance to discover that it was only molasses and water! He was gone next day to another town, playing "one-night stands."

Modern advertising and selling methods are very, very different. Merchants and manufacturers are in business day after day, year after year, at the same address. They need your continued custom. They must tell the story of their merchandise truthfully to keep your confidence. They must offer honest values to insure your satisfaction. And they do—in the advertising pages.

Read the advertisements. There's no surer, easier way to economical buying. They show you what you want at the lowest price and tell you where it may be had. You can go direct to get it or order it delivered. You save time, save money. Read the advertisements—and read them regularly.

OIL NEWS

JOINERSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 4—Drawn by the magnetic attraction of flowing gold, a mass of humanity had converted this quiet plains country into a scene of excited activity today as oil trading boomed in the wake of the Joiner No. 3, which came in last night. The new wildcatter flowed in heads. As operations were resumed by the crew this morning, drillers were confident the well will make a good tubing producer.

C. M. Joiner, Dr. A. A. Lloyd, and their associates, have been exploiting in Rusk county for several years. Early last month they made their initial discovery while making a drill stem test.

SHREVEPORT La., Oct. 4—With an estimated daily production of 1200 barrels, the Tarter and Lanier Newton No. 1, Sabine Parish was flowing today from a depth of 60 feet in the Zwolle chalk. Five-eighths inch casing was set at 2-325 feet.

Day
 The oil flowing was of Taylor Marl formation, and convinced drillers they were justified in setting casing for a test. The bottom of the loc is 1,460 feet.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 4—Mills Bennett's No. 3 Butler on Barbours Hill was flowing between 2,000 and 2,500 barrels on a five-eighths inch choker. The well was completed at 5,147 feet.

WILLS POINT, Tex., Oct. 4—A saturated core was removed from the E. L. Chapman Wolverton No. 1 after the well had entered the Wobline sand about 20 feet. A paleontologist of one of the major companies urged the well be drilled deeper, since formations closely resemble those at Van. Many scouts have been attracted to the new well.

ELECTRA, Tex., Oct. 4—J. Lon Martin, supervisor for the oil and gas division of the Texas Railroad Commission reported only eleven drilling permits were issued for this district during September. A year ago 86 permits were issued for the same month.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Tex., Oct. 4—Oil prospects in this section boomed with the spudding in of the Fanning Hess No. 1 by the Oklahoma-Tex. Company, 10 miles from here. The well is now below 1,000 feet, and is expected to be completed within 25 working days.

HENDERSON, Tex., Oct. 4—Drilling in of the C. M. Joiner No. 3 well here is scheduled for today. The liner was dropped Thursday and it was necessary to send to Van for a new one.

BIG SPRING, Tex., Oct. 4—Seven pipe lines now connected with the Howard and Glasscock county fields will increase runs for the month of October by 11,250 barrels. The Corden increased its take to 12,000 Larrels, compared with 4,000 during September.

EASTLAND COUNTY—A 925 square miles; population 34,000; fruits, dairying, natural gas, oil, cotton, peanuts, farming, stockraising, poultry.

Witt Resigns As Senator To Aid Election
 The Clarke well will drill the plug out Sunday. This well found oil sand at 2,680 feet. It is located at Pinehill, 12 miles east of Henderson.

Witt Resigns As Senator To Aid Election
 Senator Edgar Witt of Waco Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, by tendering his resignation to Governor Moody has made it possible for his successor in the State Senate to be elected on general election day, Nov. 4. This will prevent the necessity of two election days in McLennan, Milam, Falls and Limestone counties which comprise the senatorial district.

Newt B. Williams and W. R. Poaze of Waco, both former members of the House of Representatives, and Lewis Seay of Groesbeck are candidates to succeed Senator Witt.

The two million members of the Boy Scouts of America are the future fathers and citizens of tomorrow. Scouting is learning by doing.

 The following officers and tea-

land.
 The program was prefaced with the introduction of the League by Mrs. Stallter, its president.
 It was decided that there would be no formal mapped program and no year book as the book of the previous season would still be in effect, that the League would host itself in readiness to work in connection with the Chamber of Commerce and the mens organizations along civic lines, that the usual flower show would be held in October and that other standard avenues of work by the League would be taken up again in their order.
 The president then introduced Miss Bailey of the Warner Memorial University, who played in magnificent form, the Hungarian Rhapsody by Liszt.
 Miss Russell was presented and gave a forceful reading of "The Lillies".
 The third course of the luncheon was followed by the introduction of Mrs. Scott W. Key, with the thought expressed by toastmistress that the Civic League had brought many good things to Eastland, and now, Civic League, just had victory and that other standard avenues of work by the League would be taken up again in their order.
 Mrs. Key pictured the famous Walled City of China declaring that the traveler's impression was of "waves of Chinese," one wave succeeding another, endlessly, just like ocean waves. The conditions in China are so crowded she declared, with both the living and the dead, that a never ending stream of humanity simply engulfs every possibility of improvement.
 Other cities were pointed in rapid succession, and justly received their tribute for their beautiful wares, in bronze and cloisonne and its wonderful temples.
 Mrs. Key touched upon the attitude of both Japan and China toward the Exclusion Act, and expressed great admiration for the culture and art progress of these races, of fatuous age.
 Mrs. Stallter expressed appreciation of Mrs. Key. And then stated that it was but right that Mrs. W. K. Jackson should be introduced as one having presided over the League for five consecutive years.
 The president closed the program informally. The luncheon was attended by Mmes. George A. Davisson, J. M. Armstrong, K. B. Tanner, O. C. Punderburk, James Horton, Weiland, C. L. Thompson, Carl Springer, Ernest McCarty, P. G. Russell, J. M. Mounser, R. E. Sikes, J. A. Beard, J. M. Ferrell, W. Z. Outward, W. E. Chauey, May Harrison, Lonnie King, H. O. Tatum, Patterson, W. K. Jackson, W. G. Doughtie, George K. Taggart, Bert McGlamery, Burke, W. B. Smith, Earl Conner, Miss Russell, Miss Bailey, and those at the speakers table.
 The president announced that the League will meet hereafter every four weeks instead of each fortnight as heretofore and the next session will be held in the Community Clubhouse, October 22 at 3 p. m.
 The officers of the League are Mrs. W. E. Stallter, President; Mrs. Earle Johnson, first vice president; Mrs. N. N. Rosenquest, second vice president; Mrs. H. L. Vann, recording secretary; Mrs. Bert McGlamery, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Joe Driskill, treasurer; Mrs. W. E. Chaney, parliamentarian; Mrs. James Horton, custodian; Mrs. O. C.  Juan Francisco was reported to be leading the revolutionists.
 Two federal officers were said to have been killed.
 Reports were conflicting regarding the originators of the movement and how it was carried out. One dispatch said that Gen. Figueroa, chief of the federal forces in Rio Grande Do Sul, and Col.
