TEXAS FREIGHT RATES ON COMMODITIES REDUCED

Effect Carload Lots To Drouth Area

Rate Fixed As Two-thirds of Current Price, With Minor Restrictions.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 3.—Reduction of freight rates on live stock, hay and grain in carloads to and from the stricken areas in Texas ordered today by the State Road Commission.

The order is in approval of a petition presented by A. C. Fontenot, for and on behalf of Texas rail carriers.

The new rate was fixed as two-thirds of the currently applicable rate, with certain minor restrictions.

The change was made effective Sept. 28 as to areas then certified and on the dates of certification additional areas. The reduced rates will expire on Oct. 31, unless otherwise provided.

The provision includes carloads of grain from drouth stricken areas to feeding points in Texas, including markets or public feeding lots, and on the other commodities for feeding purposes only to points in Texas to drouth stricken areas. Both must be certified by the United States Secretary of Agriculture.

Prisoners in Peruvian Revolution

The State Department has demanded the immediate release of Harold B. Grow, above, a lieutenant commander in the United States Naval Reserve, who was captured by revolutionists in Callao, Peru. He has been serving as a captain in the Peruvian naval forces, under a congressional act which permits American navy officers to accept positions with compensation from Latin-American republics.

A prisoner aboard the cruiser Almirante Grau, on which he sought refuge from victorious revolutionists, former president Augusto B. Leguia, above, of Peru, was reported to be dead or dying of a chronic ailment. Officers of the cruiser, who had intended to land the fallen chief Executive in safety at some foreign port, surrendered him at Lima after they had been threatened with court martial by the Peruvian junta.

ATLANTIC FLIERS WILL VISIT DALLAS

Coste and Bellonte To Complete Paris-Dallas Flight For $25,000 Prize

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 3.—Residents of Dallas were enthusiastic today over news that Col. Bill Eastwood's latest air promotion venture would bring Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte to Texas.

Eastwood's offer of $25,000 for a one-stop flight from Paris to Dallas together with a similar offer of $50,000 for a two-stop Rome-to-Dallas flight—had lain open so long that local air enthusiasts had almost despaired of seeing their home town the concluding point of a long flight.

Producer Is Brought In At Noon Today

New Well Extends Field One-Half Mile Further West.

The Hickory Oil and Gas Company's T. M. Terry No. 1, about 2 miles east of Cisco came in at noon today with an estimated production of 300 barrels of oil and 3,000,000 feet of gas daily after being shot with 60 quarts of nitroglycerine.

After the shot the well cleaned itself out and oil gushed over the top of the derrick. It was thought that the flow of oil was increasing.

The shot was made between 3:42 and 3:45 feet. A large number of operators and spectators was on hand when the shot was made and much interest was shown in the new producer, which extends the field about one half a mile west.

The well is located in Block 1 of the H. & T. C. survey and is about 300 yards north of the Bankhead highway eight miles west of Eastland.

The drilling was done by the West Virginia Drilling Company, about two months being required to complete the job. When within a few feet of the contracted depth a fishing job was encountered which delayed the completion of the well about eight days.

When gauged later this afternoon the well was producing oil at the rate of 17 1/2 barrels an hour or approximately 420 barrels per day, with an estimated gas flow of 3,000,000 feet.

Big Lake Boy Killed When Hit By Passing Car

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Sept. 3.—His head pierced by the handle of an automobile door, James Benton, 19, of Big Lake, died Tuesday after an auto mishap in Ozona.

Two girls, Pauline McLeod and Neva Sorrel, were riding in a car that passed Benton on the road. The lad was struck by a wheel and thrown against the car occupied by the girls.

Benton was hitchhiking with T. E. Owen from Big Lake to Texon at the time of the accident.

Fire Destroys Business Block At Oak Cliff

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 3.—Smoking ruins of eight business houses today marked the scene of a disastrous fire which swept through an entire business block in Oak Cliff last night. Failure to maintain an adequate water pressure to give firemen a fair chance to govern the flames brought the city administration once more to the battle lines of municipal politics.

Fifteen lines of hose were laid by Dallas firemen who later disconnected three of the lines because of low pressure. Handicapped by weak streams, nozzlemen finally brought the flames under control with twelve lines, after damage estimated at $250,000 had been caused.

Two firemen were injured, one cut by broken glass and a second bruised when an electric light post toppled on him. A motorcycle policeman suffered rib fractures when his machine collided with a car as he rushed in answer to the general fire alarm.

The blaze started in a lumberyard.

Two Sections Of Middle Span Are Complete Wreck

Police Chief Thinks Bridge Was Intentionally Blown Up By Angered Citizens.

GARLAND CITY, Ark., Sept. 3.—A new state-owned toll bridge here across Red River to have been opened to traffic tomorrow, was dynamited early today. Two sections of the middle span were destroyed. Damage was estimated at $250,000.

The bridge was intentionally dynamited, police chief W. H. Scott and highway officials said. Citizens of this section have had a prolonged controversy with the state highway department over decision of the state to have tolls collected. Labor trouble also occurred during construction of the bridge, which was erected at a cost of $500,000.

Abilene Good Will Trippers Visit Eastland

The Abilene Good Will Trippers visited Eastland at noon today and after having luncheon a short band concert was given by the Simmons Cowboy Band.

Tom Hayden, mayor of Abilene, made a short talk on prosperity and predicted a wonderful future for the West Texas country.

He was followed by Harvey Hayes, nine-year-old Abilene boy, who invited the people of Eastland to visit Abilene, the capitol of West Texas, a city of fine schools and churches and beautiful women, where the corn produced 40 gallons to the acre.

One of the Abilene city commissioners made a short talk on the West Texas Fair and invited the people of Eastland to attend.

BAD ECONOMICS.

Governor Franklin Roosevelt of New York says: "We are paying the penalty now for going off on a wild spree based on uneconomic, unscientific, unbusinesslike foundations."

This is as true of individuals and families as it is of the public. The other day a woman came into an office on some errand, and seeing the bookkeeper she asked that lady if she would help her a moment. She had been married nineteen years, had three children and never until the last month when her husband was seriously ill, had she kept any account of the money passing through her hands.

A friend suggested the household account book given away by a bank. The bookkeeper looked once at the lady's crooked page and said that was too hard to begin on. After an hour of laborious explanation, the woman was started on a fresh little ten-cent book with a page for income and one for outgo.

The friend was appalled. She, too, had been married nineteen years, for all but a few months of which her records were available. She tried to make her accounts as simple and foolproof as possible, and had rather blamed herself for not having a more detailed record.

It had never occurred to the friend that any woman of any sort of family dignity could fail to keep some account of her stewardship any more than that she should fail to arrange for proper food and clothing for her children.

What about an account book for every hope chest, and a little talk with the bank for every bride?

DIVIDING RUSSIA.

Somebody is always getting excited about Russia. Now it seems to be Louis Fischer, whose book "The Soviets in World Affairs," to come out September 1, is reviewed by Robert Wells Ritchie for the Universal Service.

Perhaps this should excite us, but somehow, at this date, it doesn't. What people think of doing in nightmares or times of hysteria is not always what they actually do under normal conditions.

But perhaps it gives a little weight to a certain historic statement that the desirable situation among nations is "open covenants, openly arrived at."

Atlantic Fliers—

Half of America. As Coste and Bellonte brought their ship to a stop and sat for a moment watching the wildly-yelling crowd break police lines and start streaming over the field toward them, their memories returned to the night in May, 1927, when they were part of such a throng running toward a plane which a young man was emerging, saying "My name is Lindbergh."

Secretary Hyde Calls Meeting Of Commission

By LYLE C. WILSON United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has decided to call another national drought conference here after the next departmental crop report September 10 has indicated the final extent of damage.

In revealing his plan, Hyde said this summer's drought was the worst recorded by the weather bureau in point of duration, area and lack of precipitation. The principal droughts of recent times occurred in 1881, 1894, 1901, 1911, 1916, 1924 and this year.

Each of the committee members they need to help them in perfecting plans of the midway. Each of the committee members is to arrange some kind of amusement for the midway and promote the one he selects. In this way the post will have four attractions under its auspices during the fair.

The work on the field is progressing rapidly, according to the reports and it will be but a short time until it is ready to turn over to the government for the expenditure of from $12,000 to $15,000.

The Hollywood Story

by NEA SERVICE Inc. by ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dan Rorimer, former New York newspaper man and now a free scenario writer in Hollywood, is in love with Anne Winter, beginning as an extra, has progressed rapidly and is now under contract to Grand United, one of the largest studios.

Dan formerly was under contract himself at Continental Pictures, but he is now free, because his inability to get along with studio executive whose methods were harsh and disgraced the sensitive and stubborn Rorimer.

Paul Collier, who writes a daily column for a string of papers, shares Dan's apartment with him.

He has great faith in Dan's ability, despite the latter's apparent failure as a free lance. Dan becomes somewhat dependent on this, and over what he considers his rather hopeless regard Anne Winter, whose every step seems to remove her all farther from him.

Dan lives with two other girls, Morrison and Eva Harley, who works only occasionally and but rarely. She is bitter over a rather tragic love romance. While in New York Dan had written, among other things, a play for the legitimate stage. His agent thought highly of it and kept it for a long time, but to sell it to various producers. But it comes back to Dan some time when he is disappointed because of the rejection of his play at screen story.

Anne Winter is enthusiastic about his play. So is Collier. Both

When Legge Visited Iowa Fair

Iowans won't suffer for lack of food products in the next year despite the drought, Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, declared at the state fair at Des Moines, and then he took off his coat to demonstrate that Mr. Legge won't starve, either, at least as long as he's in Iowa. He is shown being served luncheon at the fair grounds by Aileen McAllister, Iowa 4-H club girl.

try to give you any more than the idea," he said. "I think the most effective thing in it is the dialogue."

But he roughly sketched the plot, and Phillips admitted that it might have possibilities.

His secretary returned then, and Phillips himself accompanied Dan to the little office. It belonged to one of the staff who was taking a few days off.

"There's your typewriter," said Phillips, smiling, "and there's plenty of paper. Now help yourself; if there's anything else you want, just ask for it; everything's furnished but running water."

Dan laughed and thanked him, and when Phillips had closed the door and departed he sat down at once and thrust paper into the typewriter and began to write.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY BUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Anyone who likes to sit up and worry about things can have a beautiful day for the rest of his life by worrying about the terrible things that go through Uncle Sam's mails.

You opened up all the hundreds of millions of letters and packages which the government sends to our citizens each week and would find nearly everything but a horse and buggy.

Murder plots, dope, poisons, unsuitable language, stolen money, knuckles, elopement plans, tips for gin, diagrams for bank heists, death threats—and oh, almost every evil thing you can think of. Even chain letters, certain they all go through the mails because every so often things are discovered to have been mailed and they are very obviously only a small fraction of all that gets through.

There Isn't Any Solution

Nothing much can be done about it except to abolish the postal system and open everybody's mail every day.

If the Postoffice Department does something pretty bad it goes to the courts and the courts, but it hasn't got time or authority now to read all the letters and search all the packages.

Of course if you take books and magazines which don't satisfy the censor, that's rather different. You have more or less general censorship and everybody knows about them—at least such classics as reputable magazines as the source of the department has occasionally barred. Literature circulated more surreptitiously presumably has less trouble getting through. The point seems to be that if the sender and the recipient of anything keep their business to themselves it doesn't get called to official attention.

Marked playing cards, obviously designed for dishonest gamblers, are advertised and delivered through the mails, it is pointed out by Mr. Paul Telco in a recent article in the Nation called "How Pure Are the Mails?" But Mr. Walter E. Kelly, the assistant solicitor, says there is nothing in the law to bar marked cards and loaded dice, although there has sometimes been agitation for same. These are sold "for malicious purposes only" and the solicitor's office doesn't see how the vendors can be prosecuted for operating a fraudulent scheme because the goods are as advertised.

Fake medicines come under the head of prosecutable fraudulent schemes, however. The Nation article described the business done in strange herbs.

Several hundred firms are doing mail order business in contrast to the postal provisions against dissemination of birth control information and devices, according to Telco. It is pointed out that scientific works on the subject are barred, but that mail order business in harmful or poisonous compounds is thereby stimulated. The law seems to be met when the manufacturers warn customers not to use the product in a certain way lest it act illegally.

"Yes," he confessed, "it's not a new story. But go ahead."

"Thanks. I'll have to tell you that I'd almost forgotten about this play, it's been kicking around in New York for so long, and it took Collier and—somebody else to see its possibilities as a picture. I'd never thought of it that way; know what I mean? You see, when I came out here and gave up trying to crash the magazines I sort of started all over."

"I see," Phillips nodded as though he understood. He said, "What did you do over at Continental—any original stories?"

Rorimer named a couple of pictures. "They weren't especially good," he apologized.

"They weren't bad. Do you want me to read your play I'll be glad to do it and let you know what I think of it."

And Dan smiled. "There was something else. I've got a special reason for wanting to interest Grand United and I want to do a little bit more than just leave it here and walk out. Have you got a vacant office with a typewriter in it, where I can lock myself up for a few hours I'd like to turn out a rough treatment for the screen and leave that with you along with the play manuscript."

He rose and picked up his hat. "I'm not much of a salesman, I guess, but if you'll take that much of a chance on me I don't think you'll be sorry."

"Wait a minute," Phillips said.

"Sit down." He frowned for a moment. "Why," he asked, "do you want to do that here? Why didn't you do it at home?"

And Dan confessed that he hardly knew. He grinned cheerfully and said, "Perhaps it's because I wanted to try to sell a little personality along with it."

"You win," Phillips told him with a laugh. He bit the end off a cigar and passed the box to Rorimer, who declined. Phillips said: "I've heard stories about fellows rushing into a studio and demanding a typewriter and then turning out a hot idea and selling it on the spot. But I've always been skeptical; I've always had the sneaking notion that they had their ideas tucked away in their pockets before they came in."

But Dan's proposal, he admitted, was somewhat different.

"It is," said Dan. "Here's the play right here. It would take considerably more than a few hours to turn that out."

The scenario chief nodded and pressed a button. When his secretary entered he said, "Will you see if any of the offices in the department are not being used today? I want Mr. Rorimer to have a typewriter where he can work undisturbed."

And when she had gone he turned to Dan once more. "What's the play about?" he asked.

"You've got me curious now," Dan hesitated. "I'd rather not

FAMILY MENU

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

NOTHING can excel sweet pickles for furnishing up an otherwise ordinary meal. The simplest meat dish gains zest and no relish tray seems complete without its compartment of sweet pickles.

Nearly all the fruits and many of the vegetables lend themselves to this method of preserving. Carrots and cucumbers are most delicious of the vegetables. Carrots retain their color and are very delectable to serve. They are easier to make than cucumber rings on account of their natural firmness of texture. Unless cucumbers are at the right stage of maturity, they are apt to become soft and mushy. Beets, small green tomatoes and ripe small yellow tomatoes can be used to make appetizing and colorful sweet pickles. They all are excellent garnishes for winter salads.

Fresh, canned or dried fruits can be used. This makes it possible to make sweet pickles at any time during the year and not only when the fresh fruits are available. Melon rinds should be added to the list, and in a season when fruits and vegetables are generally scarce they should not be overlooked.

Canned pineapple is extraordinarily good when prepared in sweet pickling syrup. Cut the slices in wedges and pour boiling syrup over the fruit for three successive mornings. On the fourth morning, fruit and syrup are brought to the boiling point and put into sterilized jars and sealed.

Fresh plums, pears, peaches, apples and the seedless grapes are good put up in a sweet pickling syrup. A fruit which is pickled with the skin or rind on should be well pierced over the entire surface.

The time for cooking fruits to the syrup varies. The fruit can be cooked until tender in clear water and simmered in the pickling syrup until transparent or the whole cooking process can be done in the syrup. The pickled material should be tender and clear but firm and unbroken. Pouring the syrup over the fruit or vegetables.

Legionnaires To Elect Officers At Convention

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 3.—Selection of the 1937 convention city, election of officers and final committee reports comprised the last day's program of the American Legion in state convention here today.

United States Senator Tom Connally of Marlin delivered the only address of the day at the morning session.

The early morning was devoted to district and division caucuses, selection of nominees for executive committee, assistant executive committee, vice commanders, delegates and alternates to the national convention.

Corpus Christi, El Paso and Mineral Wells were in the thick of the fight for the next convention.

All drum and bugle corps met in competition, and awards were made to the winners. Sweetwater, official department band, defended its honors against a dozen other organizations.

The climax of the convention was reached late Tuesday with the appearance of O. L. Bodnehamer, national commander of the legion, and a parade of all units through the city.

'Flirtation' Killer Is Held In Jail

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 3.—James N. Hale, 50, remained in the county jail here without bond today as officers investigated the flirtation killing of Oscar Bell, 40-year-old Reinhardt farmer.

"I didn't say anything. I just shot him. I knew he was dead, or I would have shot some more," were the words with which Hale climaxed his statement to police Tuesday. Hale declared he saw Bell "making eyes at his wife" as the confessed slayer led the singing at a protracted meeting in the community some time ago.

Buster, 20, son of Hale, told the district attorney he thought the slain man had tried to "date mama up."

Bell was killed Tuesday morning as he sat outside the Hale home in his car.

rumors Say That McGraw May Quit The Giants

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
 Staff Correspondent
 NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The mysterious absence of John J. McGraw from the New York Giants has led to the rumor that the "Little Chief" will not manage the team next season.

Despite the fact that the Giants are out of the running in the National League race, McGraw seems to remain away from the team so far as known has never any explanation.

Walter Bancroft, former Giants' captain who came back to the team as coach this season after being the Boston Braves' manager at Brooklyn, has had one of the club in McGraw's absence, in many quarters, is named as the next manager of the Giants.

There seems to be little doubt that there is a rift in the ranks. Many stories have circulated including one that Charles A. Stone, president of the club, strenuously objected to members of the visiting Rogers Hornsby, was recovering from his ankle injury on his farm at St. Louis, the Giants were out.

Several weeks ago a reported change in the ownership of the Giants brought a denial from Stoneham that he planned to sell his controlling interest of 51 per cent. At that time the Giants issued an official announcement under the signatures of Stoneham and McGraw saying that McGraw's absence from the team was due to "personal matters" and that he would join the club as soon as they were successfully terminated.

In some quarters it is said that McGraw has attempted to enlist the aid of wealthy backers to buy out Stoneham and assume the presidency of the club. Failing in this, the story goes, he has elected to resign as manager at the close of the present season.

Van Orman Wins Gordon Bennett Race

By UNITED PRESS
 CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 3.—Ward T. Van Orman, America's premier balloonist, won the nineteenth Gordon Bennett international race, according to unofficial figures available today.

The Goodyear VIII, piloted by Van Orman, landed last night in the Canton Junction section of Canton, Mass., approximately 550 miles from Cleveland, where the races started late Monday.

Van Orman's balloon was the last of the six which participated to land.

The Gordon Bennett trophy and $1,000 cash will go to Van Orman for his victory. This is the second consecutive year the American veteran has won this race.

WITH THE TEXAS LEAGUE

The Cats of Fort Worth virtually clinched victory in the second half of the Texas League season Tuesday with a brilliant 1 to 0 victory over the runner-up Shreveport Sports.

Following the Sports to six scattered hits, Roberts was credited with the Cat's victory.

Wichita Falls, tied with Shreveport for second place, also met humiliating defeat at the hands of the Dallas Steers by the score of 9 to 4. The game was played in daylight, the only one of its kind in the circuit yesterday.

Maintaining their strong showing of the past few days, the ball-and-San Antonio Indians trounced Beaumont to the tune of 10 to 2.

Houston nosed out Waco, 3 to 2, with a pitching duel between Harris and Kauffman furnishing the thrills. Each team gathered seven safeties.

It was not difficult once he had started. He knew very clearly just what he wanted to say, just where the screen treatment would deviate from the script; and he wrote swiftly, with a keen zest for the task.

At one o'clock there was a rap on the door and Phillips entered. "Have to knock off for lunch," he ordered amiably; "this is a union shop. Come on out and we'll have a bite together. How's it coming?"

"Pretty fair," Dain said. "I had no idea it was lunch time already. I've been at it more than three hours."

Phillips laughed. You've been doing something, too, haven't you?" He moved over to the little desk and estimated the number of sheets that had emerged from the typewriter, and he turned to look at Dan with something like respect in his eyes.

On their way to the restaurant he confided that Collier had dropped in during the morning. "I told him you were upstairs working and he grinned all over himself. Paul thinks pretty well of you, it seems."

"He's the greatest guy in the world," Dan said warmly, and he thought, too, that Collier had appraised Phillips pretty accurately in referring to him as "a good egg."

"Collier was kind of curious to know how you made out with me," Phillips said. He chuckled. "I'm a pretty tough sort, you know." And he added: "Paul sure is hopped up over your play. If it's half as good as he says it is, maybe we ought to feel lucky to get it. What's the title of it, by the way? I never asked you that."

"Traitor" Dan said, and he confessed the title might be something as tame as "The picture." "It was all right—or it seemed all right, anyway—for the stage," he said. "I'm sorry if Paul piled it on thick. I didn't expect him to do that."

He seemed so apologetic that Phillips gave him a curious look. "Well, I wouldn't let it worry me if I were you," he said. "Collier wouldn't say it if he didn't mean it."

They had lunch together, then. Dan glanced idly around the restaurant, half expecting that he might see Anne Winter, but she was not there. He did see Garry Sloan. The director was lurching with two other men and a girl with brown hair whose back was toward Dan; and Sloan chanced to look his way just then, and Dan nodded. Sloan smiled faintly, but without recognition, and turned back to his companions.

Phillips saw it. He said, "Do you know Garry Sloan?"

"I've met him," Dan admitted. On the way back Phillips asked whether Dan expected to finish that afternoon. "If you don't you're welcome to use the place tomorrow if you like."

"Oh, I'll have it done," Dan assured him, and the other smiled pleasantly and said he was glad, because he had the evening free and would be glad to read it.

"I didn't expect action like that," Dan admitted. "You're very decent."

"Not at all. We're always looking for good screen material. You can't make pictures without stories."

It was late afternoon when Dan finished and gathered up the typewritten sheets and placed them in order and read them over. He was surprised at the amount he had written, for he had not numbered his pages; the job was much more elaborate than he had planned.

Phillips was still in his office,

Clash in Bitter Louisiana Row

NEA New Orleans Bureau
Here are the two figures in the bitterest political clash that Louisiana has seen in years. Replying to personal attacks by Governor Huey P. Long, above, a candidate for the U. S. Senate, Captain John D. Ewing, below, publisher of the Shreveport Times, has publicly denounced the governor as a "scoundrel" and announced that he will hold him "personally responsible" for any further attacks. Captain Ewing, who won three decorations for bravery in France, is a past commander of the Louisiana American Legion.

and Dan said, as he placed his work on the other's desk: "There you are, and many thanks for your patience. If you like it I'll tell you why I particularly wanted to sell it to Grand United."

"And if we don't want it?" the scenario editor asked.

"Then you'll never know," Dan said, holding out his hand.

Phillips laughed. "I've got a terrible curiosity, but it seems that I'm going to have to pay quite a price to satisfy it. . . . Well, I hope I do have to. So long—and good luck."

Collier was waiting in the apartment when Dan got there. "I just got in and shook one up," he said, "and you look as though you need one. It's in the refrigerator." He got up from his chair and stretched lazily. "Well, how did you like Phillips?" he asked.

"He's a great guy," Dan said warmly.

"Didn't I tell you? Did you put it over? What did he say? Tell me all about it."

"He's going to take it home and read it tonight."

Paul nodded. "What do you think of my idea now? Chances are if you'd just walked in there and dumped it on his desk he might not have got at it for a week or two. He's a pretty busy person, but not that he's had a chance to size you up he's more apt to give you a break. Did you tell him that it would be a good bet for Lester Moore? They're on the lookout for a story for Moore."

"No," Dan said. "I didn't. I wrote Moore into it, though, so you could hardly miss, but I thought it would be best to let Phillips discover it. You spoke your two cents worth, too, didn't you?" he accused.

"Sure, that?" Paul grinned. "Sure, I told him the same thing I told you. Where's the harm in that?"

"Well, you were pretty swell to do it. I'll owe you a lot if it goes over."

"Don't be silly. They shouldn't let talent like yours run around loose. The trouble with you is you need a manager."
