American Legion Convention Starts At State Capital

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 1.—Preliminary matters disposed of, 1,500 members of the American Legion took over the capital city today for five days of business and entertainment. Other legionnaires were arriving hourly, and Ernest C. Cox, state commander, offered the opinion that total registration would exceed 2,000. Cox called to order a joint meeting of the legion, the Legion Auxiliary, La Societe Des 40 Hommes, 8 Chevaux, and Des Hott Chauxaux Et Quarante Femmes in the state senate chamber at 9 a. m. Mayor P. W. McFadden of Austin officially welcomed the delegates to the city, to which State Senator Allen C. Hyer of Fort Worth extended greetings. Greetings were given by representatives of the various divisions of the Legion and its associated organizations, and by out-of-state legion officials. At the opening of the convention a fight for the 1931 convention was narrowed down to five cities, Paso, Abilene, Waco, Mineral Wells and Corpus Christi. The El Paso delegation, wearing huge umbrellas and gaudy blankets, was most avid in promoting the rights of their city. A Negro membership in the Texas association was voted down by a special committee over which D. Roy Temple of Waco presided Sunday. The matter was tabled for at least another year, and thus the chief issue of controversy was disposed of. A committee had under advisement the possible organization of subordinate negro posts.

Kidnaped Girl Safe At Home

Unharmed by her terrifying experience, Betty Jane Foster, 10, above, was returned safely to her home near Lawrenceville, Ind., after being kidnaped by a farm hand, who had threatened to kill her if authorities were notified. The girl and Claude Dillner, the abductor, were found at Elkhorn, Wis., when summer resorters reported seeing them camping nearby. Dillner said love for the child caused him to take her away.

Maintenance Work On Bankhead Is To Be Done Soon

State Highway Commissioner W. R. Ely, of Abilene, has announced that he is now engaged in working out detailed plans for "betterment work on State Highway No. 1, the Bankhead, through Eastland and Callahan counties to be done immediately as a measure of drought relief. Suggestion that this be done was made Mr. Ely last Tuesday by State Representative Victor B. Gilbert, of Cisco, who was accompanied to Abilene by County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, of this county, and County Judge W. C. White and Judge B. L. Russell, of District Callahan county. This committee formed at the instance of Rep. Gilbert, requested Mr. Ely to authorize this work at once and that it be done by local labor, a suggestion which Mr. Ely readily agreed to. Commissioner Ely told the committee that he would take up the proposition immediately and Saturday he announced that he would have plans in readiness for it within the next four or five days. The work will be done by the highway department as maintenance and will not be contracted. This will enable the employment of local labor which, it is understood, can not be enforced where the work is contracted. It will be done under the supervision of Division Highway Engineer W. A. French.

Payne Will Be Buried Today At Amarillo

AMARILLO, Tex., Sept. 1.—Violating his last expressed wish, relatives of A. D. Payne, bomber of his wife and himself, prepared to conduct final rites for the former prominent attorney here at two o'clock this afternoon. His body, which he destroyed to atone for his confessed murder of his wife, two months before, will be buried at the family plot of a brother, Sidney, at Tulsa. Payne had requested in his last notes penned in his jail cell that he be buried beside his wife at Llano cemetery here. Relatives of Mrs. Payne refused to permit the arrangement. The funeral will be held at the Boxwell Funeral Home chapel and only relatives will be admitted. More than 12,000 persons viewed the body which lay in state Sunday and Sunday night, but visitors were barred today as members of the family paid their respects. Wrath of townsfolk that at one time had threatened to develop into mob violence against Payne was appeased today. Crowds that thronged the funeral chapel Sunday were awed by the gravity of the tragedy that was enacted before them. Payne's self-imposed punishment, which he deferred until an insurance policy on his life went into effect, had been a retribution for his confessed crime. Three children, La Dell, 13, A. D. Jr., 11, and Bobbie Joe, 9, orphaned by the double tragedy, mourned the death of their father deeply. They had forgiven him after he admitted killing their mother and visited him at his jail cell a few hours before he ended his life with a high explosive. Two sisters, Mrs. Buena Strike, of Long Beach, Calif., and Mrs. Alfa Richards, of San Gabriel, Calif., arrived last night by airplane to attend the funeral. Mrs. Elita Payne of Pecos, mother of the former attorney, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Johnson of New Mexico, were in charge of funeral arrangements. Two brothers, Bun, of Roswell, N. M., and Sidney, who were caring for the Payne children, were the other relatives present for the funeral.

Crouch, commander of the Dulin-Daniel Post of the American Legion, has called a meeting of the members of the Post to be held at the Eastland county courthouse on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This is one of the most important meetings of the year, Crouch said this morning, and every member of the post is urgently requested to be present. Two Landslide Victims Waging Battle For Life

FRESNO, Cal., Sept. 1.—Two of four students caught in a landslide on the slopes of the Sierra mountains today waged a grim battle with death. While Donald Griffen, 19, and Robert Rankin, 18, the last unfortunate of the avalanche victims, were resting quietly in a hospital here, Donald Downs and Edward Jordan, both 19, still were in a critical condition in the fastness of a mountain cabin. A physician and a nurse, attempting to save the lives of the boys, would not permit their transfer, fearing that such a move would prove fatal. Meanwhile a new nurse, answering a frantic call for additional aid, struggled over the steep and rock strewn path leading to the remote spot to relieve those worn out by continual vigil. Downs, whose right arm was amputated, was thought to be suffering from blood poisoning. Dr. Morito Fraser and nurse Iva Lawson, who made a 35-hour journey to attend the injured students, said a second amputation would be necessary and sent out a plea for more surgical instruments and dressing. The accident occurred last Tuesday when the boys, spending their vacation as laborers on a construction gang building a road in the Sierra, were trapped by an avalanche started by a dynamite blast. While two of their fellow students sped over mountainous trails to bring aid, others succeeded in extricating the students. Yesterday an airplane brought Griffen and Rankin to the safety and care of a hospital here. Mrs. Downs, mother of Donald, today was enroute over a treacherous trail to the side of her son, spurred on by Dr. Fraser's message that both boys' condition was critical.

EIGHT PEOPLE ARE KILLED AT ST. LOUIS

Rocks Piled On Track Throws Seven Coaches of "Texas Special" From Tracks. By LELAND L. CHESLEY, United Press Staff Correspondent. ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 1.—While relatives claimed the bodies of eight persons killed near here last night when the "Texas Special," crack southern limited of the Frisco railroad was thrown from its tracks, railroad officials tried to ascertain what motive could have been prompted the apparently intentional wrecking of the train. Seven coaches of the 12-car passenger special left the rails, killing eight and causing the injury of 25 other persons. Officials announced a pile of rocks on the right-of-way tripped the cars from the rails. The locomotive, chair car, combination car, the diner and three Pullmans left the rails. The combination car and chair car were almost completely demolished. Pullman porters were making up berths when the wreck occurred and no occupants of the Pullmans had retired for the night. All of the injured persons were occupants of the chair car. The known dead are: C. E. Ray, engineer, St. Louis; E. T. White, engineer, St. Louis; Mrs. Isabel Newton, New York. Four unidentified persons, including one woman, also were reported killed. While officials placed the death toll at six at midnight last night, P. W. Connelley, superintendent of terminals, in charge of rescue work placed the figure at eight. No Pullman passengers were injured or killed and many of them did not realize that the train had been wrecked, members of the crew said. Passengers were calm and orderly after the wreck, awaiting transportation back to St. Louis. Many men passengers assisted in extricating the dead and injured, while a few women administered aid to the injured. Hiram Nash, Pullman porter, in descent of the wreck said that he hardly realized what had happened. "There wasn't much noise," he said, "and the train made two lurches before it stopped. I was making a down berth and it didn't even throw me down," he said. Atlee Wickersham, Springfield, brakeman, who telephoned for relief immediately after the wreck, said he was in the baggage car when the train was wrecked. "All at once the train went a powerful jerk and lights went out. I knew we were in a wreck but that was all I knew for a few minutes for something struck and dazed me. "I don't know whether we turned over or not when we left the track but our car was right side up although off the track at right angles. I could see the other boys lying about on the inside of the car. "I immediately set about to render relief," Wickersham said. A passenger on the train said he was seated on the rear coach when

Bellonte And Coste Start On Atlantic Flight

BY UNITED PRESS. E. BOURGET, France, Sept. 1. Captain Bellonte took off at 10:55 today in their plane the Quest-Mark for Roosevelt Field, N. Y. The fliers will follow the great route, virtually a reverse of the flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when he reached Le Bourget spanning the ocean. Before the pilot and his navigator, the French aviators described as "the most favorable for years." The Quest-Mark carried enough fuel for a fifty-six hour flight at an average speed of between 150 and 160 kilometers an hour, giving the aviators a radius between 5,200 and 5,500 miles. They reached New York without encountering strong winds that probably could continue far over the American continent. The Quest-Mark rolled half length of Le Bourget field before it ran and cleared a stream at end of the field at an altitude less than 50 feet. Visibility was poor. There was a northeast wind. The fliers faced a head bank about 400 yards from field. The plane carried 400 litres less than when it broke the world's time record on a flight from Paris to Manchuria. A new 645-horsepower motor has been installed since that time and two exhaust tanks put aboard. The fliers told his friends that he considered conditions ideal before flight started. After passing the southwestern tip of England then over somewhat to the south, they were able to avoid a center of

Piggly Wiggly Moves Into Its New Location

The Piggly Wiggly store is moving from its old location on the west side of the courthouse square to its new quarters on the corner of West Commerce and North Lamar. The building which was formerly occupied by the Barow Furniture Company, has recently been remodeled and improved in many ways, making it one of the most attractive stores in Eastland. More than $2,500 was spent in re-conditioning the building and Piggly Wiggly is now moving into a store that will have more than twice the space available that it formerly had. New fixtures are being installed and the stock is being moved today and additional stock is being received to fill the new shelves. The store will open for business Tuesday morning in the new location.

Story Of Death And Madness On Ship Is Told

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—A story of death and madness in the pneumonia ridden steersage of the Dollar Line liner President Monroe, was unfolded here by the 73 survivors of the disease. Five of the victims died at sea, a sixth overcame by delirium hurled himself into the waters as the epidemic swept over the narrow limits of the vessel. An inadequate hospital was jammed with 20 patients and 53 more were cared for in the crannies of the steersage. All of the victims were Filipinos. It was learned. When the President Monroe docked here from Manila, Dr. I. E. Gibson, who was aboard the vessel declared virtually the entire steersage list was attacked by the disease after being a week at sea.

Clinic Held By State Nurse Is A Big Success

The clinic held by Miss Olga Burrah, nurse of the State Department of Health, was one of the most educational and most popular departments of the community fair held at Okra. During the day Miss Burrah inspected a total of 62 children and conferred with their mothers in regard to the defects that were found. Forty-three school children were inspected and 35 of them were found to be defective. A total of 64 defects were found, including conditions of the nose, throat, teeth, gums and posture. Several were found to be underweight. In the pre-school group 19 were examined and 14 of these were found to be defective, a total of 21 defects being found. The parents present showed great interest in the work and most of them expressed the intention of having their children's defects corrected. The exhibits of this department included posters on child care and social hygiene, an infant layette, an improvised bed and exhibits of diet for the nursing mother. Notices were sent to the parents notifying them of the defects found and their names were placed on a list to receive literature from the State Department of Health.

Two Dams Planned Near Mt. Pleasant

MOUNT PLEASANT, Tex., Sept. 1.—Two dams on the Sulphur river may be included in the federal plan to prevent floods in the Mississippi basin, property owners along the Sulphur believed today following the government engineering survey made of the Sulphur river watershed in Titus and adjoining counties. An official list of landowners along the Sulphur and White Oak had been made by the engineers with a view of talking for property which will be overflowed as a result of levee construction to impound flood waters in these streams. Some of the engineers indicated that the project would call for one dam near Naples and the second south of Texarkana near the Louisiana line.

A CURIOUS SOCIALIST.

Heywood Brown, the newspaper columnist who is running for congress on the Socialist ticket in New York City, is an appealing candidate.

Mr. Brown, for one thing, can make socialism interesting. He seems to differ from a lot of other socialists in that he knows what socialism is. But that is not the present point. He pledges himself to short speeches. Imagine a socialist doing that.

"I promise now," he says, "that no campaign speech of mine will take more than 15 minutes. When and if elected to congress, no speech of mine in congress will be more than 20 minutes long.

There's a platform for you! Socialist or no socialist, his city might do worse than send him to Washington for an oratorical example.

But suppose Brown were elected. And suppose he miraculously kept his word. Eventually, then, like every other aspiring statesman, he would probably want to run for senate. And if he did, and won—there would be a test for him! Who, however honest his intentions, could keep such a pledge in the senate?

A rumship from Canada was "lightered" of several thousand cases of beer in Lake Erie, because she had too large a cargo aboard and had to unload some of it. By some curious coincidence, there was a fleet of helpful boats right there in the middle of the lake, just in time to offer their services.

FEMALE ENDURANCE.

Scientists at the Carnegie Institute have found by careful experiments that the female, among animals and also men, stands high temperatures better than the male.

They would discover, too, if they turned their scientific attention to it, that the female stands low temperature better than the male. This seems to be true, at least, of mankind. It is only endurance of heat that is surprising. Endurance of cold might almost be taken as a matter of course, when you consider the thinner clothing our women get along with in winter and the greater resistance they show when swimming in cold water.

In fact, it may be that female endurance in general is greater than male. We are probably deceived by the apparently superior physical strength of men, and by the fact that in civilized society women seldom develop their physical powers through hard work and exercise as men do. Size for size, pound for pound, and with the same training, the advantage might lie with the women. Look at the burdens they bear in primitive tribes.

HUGHES CHAMPION OF STATES RIGHTS.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, in the role of champion of states rights, calls for more than passing mention. A lifelong republican, leader of his party for 40 years, a former governor of the empire state of New York, a defeated republican candidate for the presidency, leader of the American bar, he is looked upon as one of the really great Americans of the age. In an address before the annual convention of the American Bar association he advised the 48 American states to "resist encroachment upon their authority." His remarks constitute a classic for the American scrapbook. They follow:

"Paradoxical as it may seem not only the security but the efficiency of the union lies in the appropriate maintenance of the authority of the states within the proper spheres of local government and local politics. Despite all the economic changes and the intimacies of closely related activity, notwithstanding the vast expansion of interstate commerce in novel form leading to unanticipated application of a national authority, which was granted with extraordinary wisdom in a very general formula, 'the states continue as reservoirs of power reserved, not conferred, by which they deal with a multitude of particular concerns and enjoy differentials congenial to local sentiment.'"

Chief Justice Hughes pointed out the way. He had an audience of 2000 American lawyers. A large number of these lawyers were from Old South states where states rights have been obliterated and the so-called dogma of the fathers rendered obsolete. The same condition exists in all the states. He admitted that the task is a difficult one. His viewpoints follow:

"However difficult it may be, in constitutional interpretation, to maintain perfectly and to the satisfaction of all, this balance between state and nation, it is of the essence of the American institutions that it should be preserved as far as human wisdom makes this possible, and that encroachments upon state authority, however contrived, should be resisted with the same intelligent determination as that which demands that the national authority should be fully exercised to meet national needs."

Where are the states rights democrats? Are there leaders of pre-eminent ability to be found in their ranks? If so they should stand up and a count should be taken. Chief Justice Hughes is not thin skinned. He is for legitimate criticism of court decisions. He holds to the sound doctrine that justice and not the judge is sacred. In his remarkable address he defended criticisms of court decisions as wholesome and he charged the American Bar association with responsibility of securing honest, able and fearless prosecuting officers, magistrates and judges. Now where is the Texas champion who will take up the cudgel and ring out a call to arms to the people of 48 commonwealths "to resist encroachment upon their authority?"

Doubtless this difficulty is less in bigger, stronger, faster planes. Start the passengers in such planes, and they will take to the air more readily, and recommend flying to their friends with fewer reservations. Small planes may be tolerable later on.

What with the anti-noise campaign and everything in New York, it's so quiet just now that you can't even hear the milkman or the colors in Mayor Walker's necktie.

Then again, this drouth may be another covert scheme to make prohibition unpopular.

Eight People—

The train suddenly jerked forward in a sickening lurch.

There followed a series of crashes as the cars before ours leaped the rails one passenger said. B. F. Laretto, signal man for the Frisco, and one of the first to arrive on the scene declared he found the rocks which were believed responsible for the wreck. Special railroad officers took possession of the rocks to use in their investigation.

One theory was that boys playing along the track placed the obstruction on the right-of-way.

According to officials, the rocks, eight in number, ranging from one foot square to eight inches in thickness, had been placed on the rails at a curve.

The wreck occurred 40 minutes after the train left the St. Louis Union Station for San Antonio.

Most of the injured sustained cuts and bruises and were released from hospitals after receiving first aid treatment.

low pressure," he said.

"Afterwards our position should be at the southern edge of an anemone, which should afford favorable winds until we reach the American coast. The distance of this route should be about 6,200 kilometers, (about 3,840 miles.)"

With continued favorable winds Coste estimated that the Question Mark could arrive in New York within 40 hours. The flyers were hopeful of being assisted by a tail wind after leaving Ireland.

Bellonte was less optimistic. He estimated that 52 hours would be required for the crossing. Crowds at the field included men and women in evening clothes who had left the Montmartre cabarets at midnight. They carried faded flowers which they placed in the path of the plane.

As a French symbol of good luck Coste was handed a spray of lilies of the valley just before he took off.

Spectators feared that the big plane would crash as it struggled desperately to gain altitude. It dipped close to the ground twice but Coste succeeded in getting away, although the heavy load of fuel caused the tail of the machine to drag after it left the runway.

The wives of the aviators were among the crowd that watched them depart and saw the Question Mark disappear after it had barely skimmed a row of trees two miles from Le Bourget.

Coste and Bellonte arrived at the aviation field at 4:30 this morning. They studied weather charts and brought their plane to the runway at 6:20 a. m. The start was delayed after weather reports had indicated unfavorable conditions over the English Channel.

Madame Bellonte and Madame Coste were confident that the Question Mark would thrill crowds in New York after a successful flight.

"I am not superstitious," Madame Bellonte said, "but my husband had a few hours sleep and talked about skyscrapers. I interpret the dream as a good omen."

Jack Dempsey To Start Test Training Soon

By UNITED PRESS

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 1.—Two weeks of test-training for himself is planned by Jack Dempsey, who stopped in Dallas a few minutes Sunday and told of his hope for a ring come-back.

The Manassa Mauler declared he was eager to get back in condition, since the only trade he knows is swapping punches in the ring. Dempsey expects to end his present tour of refereeing bouts sometime this month, and promises two weeks of intensive training early in October.

The former fight favorite declared that a Stribling-Schmeling bout was the logical fight for this fall. "If I can get into condition," said Dempsey, "I would be willing to meet the winner of that scrap."

"I do not want to prove a flop and I do not want to enter the ring again unless I can satisfy myself that I am ready. I will continue my tour and get into the grind for a test," he added.

Dempsey said in his opinion Jack Sharkey was about "through" with the fight game. The veteran puncher declared Stribling was the best boxer in the business.

By the Political Analyst AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 30.—Barry Miller, while he was out, recently asking the people to elect him governor, actually was governor and didn't know it.

Gov. Dan Moody had gone out of the state on a hunting trip that lasted a day. He had not planned to cross the state boundary until he was off on the trip, and had no opportunity to notify the lieutenant governor of his absence.

Friends here of Bob Holliday, El Paso, have been gratified at the prospect of his selection as chairman of the democratic state convention, and are predicting he will handle the conventions business with credit to it and honors to himself.

His selection will be a happy choice as a tribute to his own vigorous campaign work and to the concerted support of the new nominee by those who make up the present administration, they have pointed out.

"I did nothing and said nothing in the campaign that I have cause to be ashamed of," Robert Lee Bobbitt had that comment to make and nothing else when he buckled again in the harness to four months of hard work for the state at the sum total compensation of $333.33 per month. After that he will resume a law practice earning him as much in a few weeks as the state job pays in a year.

Canals came first, then railways, then highways, lastly airways. Now all for are being developed and spread over Texas at the same time. With recent new project 1930 will be known as the second era of railroad building. The intra-coastal can is being built; highways are being built and air transportation lines are steadily expanding.

Gov. Dan Moody has mobilized forces for emergency drouth relief for the scattered spots that have been hard hit, with the dispatch and the precision of military mobilization. Some of the steps taken include: Emergency loans to save farmers being forced out of counties most affected. Red Cross relief to prevent actual suffering. Unit organization to receive loans for feed and new-crop seed. Employment or idle farmers on public construction work.

Officers found a screen of the house torn off, and the furniture within turned over in confusion.

Negro Tells A Wierd Story Of Mystery Murder

By UNITED PRESS

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 1.—With only the scanty story of a negro upon which to base their investigations, peace officers today were at work on what they believe is one of the most mysterious murders in Texas police annals for years. James Edwards, negro living on a farm near Rockwall, reported to the county sheriff that a man and a woman in a large sedan stopped him on the road between Dallas and Rockwall, and forced him to wrap in a tarpaulin the body of a white man.

Placing the weird bundle in the back seat, they then asked where the nearest stream or lake was located, and drove away in the direction of Dallas, after threatening the negro with a gun.

Edwards said the body was still warm. The man had been shot through the forehead.

Police visited the scene and found auto tracks, foot-prints and a smooth spot where the tarpaulin was laid to corroborate the negro's tale. Rockwall officers were planning to drag the stream nearest the spot today.

Tobacco Merchant Robbed of $3,000 In Cigarettes

By UNITED PRESS

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 1.—Julius Klugsberg, wholesale tobacco merchant, was robbed of $3,000 worth of cigarettes here Sunday afternoon.

While Klugsberg was giving his family an afternoon drive, a truck bearing on its side the sign "Julius Klugsberg, candy and cigars" drove up to the side of the store. One of two men approached neighbors across the street and asked to use the telephone. In the one-sided phone conversation, the neighbors heard the stranger secure the permission of Klugsberg to enter the store at the rear and procure supplies.

The ruse was not discovered until after the thieves had made their get-away when neighbors, wondering at the "x" in the truck sign when the tobacco merchant's name was spelled with a "g", investigated.

And she made a face.

And she insisted: "But Garry Sloan is an artist—a real artist—many people do, because he takes himself so seriously—but he's a wonderful director; you can't take that away from him. If he had done this picture, now," she said, "it would have been a great picture. But the best you can say for it is that it's a good one."

"There you are," said Collier, and he grinned at Dan. "Maris is right as usual, Dan," he explained to Maris, "can't see Sloan for some reason or other."

"Hollywood's tin gods give me a pain," Rorimer muttered. He glanced, as he spoke, at Anne Winter, but Anne gave him a puzzled glance and was silent.

After the picture they went to Henry's. On the way home with Anne, Dan said something about seeing her Sunday, but she told him that Eva was to return that day from the hospital and she thought she and Mona ought to spend the day with her.

He began to hum a song, and he looked expectantly at Anne, hoping that she would sing; but she was not in the mood. When he asked her, she explained that she was tired.

"And still a little nervous, Dan," he knew that she still had Eva on her mind.

Paul Collier had been invited to spend the week-end out of town at one of the beaches. On an impulse Dan telephoned Maris Farrell, and on Sunday he played tennis with her. Later in the afternoon they went for a drive among the hills and they had tea at a little roadside inn.

Maris was an agreeable companion. He was glad that he had called her up. She made him tell her about his work, and when he became depressing and pessimistic she laughed at him.

"I'm sure you're going to do something really fine some time. You see, I've been talking with Martin Collins. Do you know what he said about you?"

"No."

"He said, 'If they don't spoil this fellow Rorimer he's going to write some real picture stuff.' I think Martin Collins ought to know what he's talking about."

All this was pleasant; it fed his pride. Dan felt confident once more.

On the way back she said, "You know, you're the strangest person, Dan Rorimer."

He had been driving along in silence for some minutes, the wind ruffling his hair and whipping his tie about his neck, and now as he turned to look at her curiously he sensed that she had been studying him.

"How's that?" he asked.

"You're moody, aren't you?" Maris laughed and gestured with her hand. "Up like this one minute, and the next—way down here."

"Am I? I never gave it much thought, Maris."

"I suppose not," and she said nothing more about it.

At her suggestion they played tennis again two mornings later. That was the morning he learned that Amalgamated had rejected his plot; but along with the rejection had come the request to try something else; it had just missed, had been voted down only after a story had leisurely bathed and dressed, Paul was still absorbed in the play, and when Dan made some joking remark about it he stirred impatiently in his chair and glanced up to say that he didn't want to be bothered.

"It's a damn good play," he said. "I didn't know you had it in you. . . . No fooling," he insisted at the other's skeptical smile: "this is great stuff, Dan."

He sat up straight then to reach for a cigarette, and with the lighted match in his hand he paused to deliver a lecture.

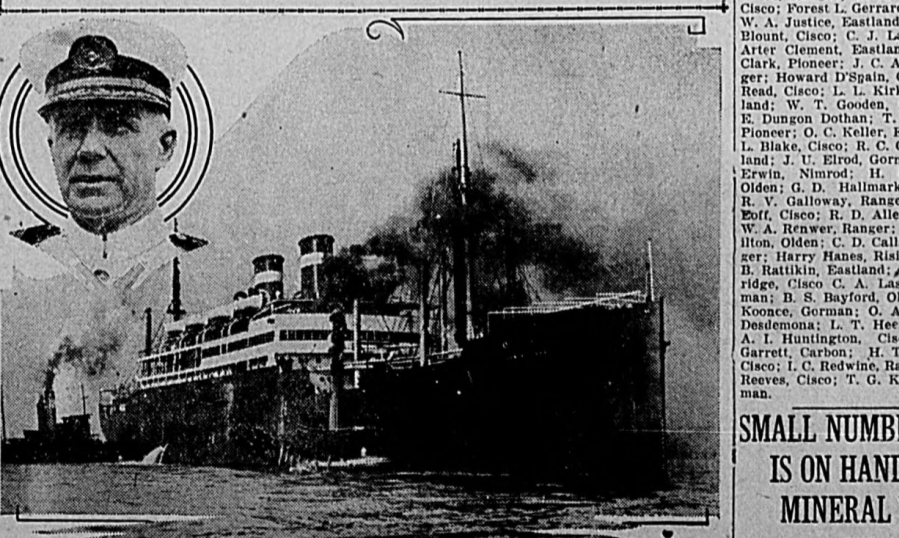

"You give me a big pain—worrying about what the studios think of your stuff when you can knock out something like this. No kidding; if I could write like this I'd have Hollywood eating out of my hand. Where'd you get the idea?"

"Women's night court in New York," Dan told him.

"I see. Well, it's some story! Run along now, my boy, like a good fellow, and let your Uncle Dudley finish it."

Annual Health Conference To Be Held Tuesday

The Civic League is to hold a better baby health conference at the Community Clubhouse in Eastland on Friday, which is at an earlier date than had been planned. The reason the conference was held earlier this year than usual was because Miss Olga Buresch, nurse of the State Health Department will be in Eastland on that date and can aid the movement.

The conference will be open from 9:00 o'clock in the morning until 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon. One of the movements that is to be sponsored this year is the plan to secure a nurse for the public schools here.

Cross Tie Contract Asked As Drouth Relief Measure

LONGVIEW, TEX., Aug. 30—As a practical means of drouth relief for affected portions of the territory it serves, the east Texas Chamber of Commerce has requested of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company that it purchase cross-ties for its proposed 333 mile extension in West Texas along the company's line in the timber-growing section of East Texas.

Cutting of cross-ties from farm woodlots of East Texas would supply labor to many unemployed and give farmers an unexpected source of income, Chamber of Commerce officials hold.

IN THE REALM of SPORT

Practice For Football Teams Starts Today

Today marks the beginning, once more, of that grand old season of falling leaves and flying footballs, the beginning, once again, of an interplay of gridiron rivalry which of all places is the keenest in the oil belt of Texas.

The usual prophecies have been made, the winners forecast in the consensus of sports scribes and followers of the game. This is no different form what occurred last year and it is quite possible, if not probable, that the results at the end of the season may contradict the forecasts as sharply as did those of last year.

Both of the teams which topped the win column in the oil belt last year are "overshadowed" in the championship consideration this year, according to the general opinion so far expressed. The ragged green crew of the Breckenridge high school which copped the district flag without a defeat and then smashed its way to a state championship, has been relegated to third or fourth place in the probable standings.

Abilene Doubtful

The behemoths of Abilene, a machine last year impelled with crimples and slow development, are almost ignored as a possibility this season despite the fact that Mayhew's boys bucked themselves against the Buckaroos at the top in 1929.

It goes without saying, to a student of football tactics, that this disregard is pleasing to the crafty Shetwell and the astute Mayhew. In football as in warfare the unexpected is to be carefully guarded against. The underdog has the advantage and if Shetwell and Mayhew can place their teams in the state of being underdogs, in spite of leading the district last year, they will have pulled a coup which later in the season may cost teams, even more deserving teams, much in bitter disappointment. Regardless of what prospects may be touted of the two favored, Cisco and Ranger, it will be well for the oil belt district to keep a wary eye on what is taking place at Breckenridge and at Abilene.

Prior to the opening of practice sessions last week at Abilene the publicity experts of the Taylor county capital have been assiduously giving out reports of the sad state of affairs upon which the Eagles have come. Two, and maybe four, lettermen from last year's squad will be back for the team this year, according to these reports. The "maybe four" was based upon the asserted hopes that Hohen Foster and E. G. Johnson would "recover their health in time to be of service." The condition of these men and their likelihood of becoming members of the team are in a state of "dubiousness and doubt" to believe these pre-practice statements.

But—in an Abilene article describing the first practice session of the Eagles, we read as follows: Hohen Foster and E. G. Johnson Jr., did something to put brakes on the reports of their bad health. They came out along with Wilson Groselocke and Will Edwin Routh to make the representation of eligible letter men complete. Foster passed the ball, caught a few tosses himself, and Johnson demonstrated that for the time being, at least, he is still the best punter in the ranks.

A thousand pound quart warmed the hearts of the usual assemblage of onlookers. If all those boys can't play, they should be able to do their part of scaring the enemy before the smaller members of the squad are turned loose. They are Groselocke, Lippie, All but Airey are linemen.

The same article informs us that large numbers, considering tonnage, will be the foremost factor in the 1930 football team of the Abilene high school. Forty four took his place for practice, most serious problems has been too many men. Too many candidates is but little less troublesome than too few.

Breckenridge Shows Slump

Breckenridge has not yet begun practice. But he believes that the Buckaroos will not amount to a great deal this year seems a foolish prediction in the face of reports that have come from their direction.

There are only four regulars left of the 1929 champions. Some filled by Cox and Wholford last year cannot be found in the range of fallacy. Contrary to that statement we read in the Breckenridge American that there are several huffy, promising candidates for these positions. Some of them named were T. Spain, of whom great things are predicted; his brother, M. Spain, a chunk of beef who makes up in muscle for what he lacks in agility; Jenner Clark and a youth, red-headed, by the name of Kibatic.

There are three other recruits from Throckmorton, said to be powerful and promising, and Price, a big one and a good-looking. Both Pruitt and Cox of the last year's team have brothers who are counted upon as hustling, likely candidates.

More than this the Buckaroos have Boyce Magnus and his educated toe, and they have achieved a tradition to uphold. Don't forget that.

Cisco Not Rated Winner

Cisco is free to admit that the Lohos have the best prospects this year than they have had in some time. But they are a long way from considering themselves champions or even runners-up. Too many fair prospects have fundered on the shoals of disappointment in the past and the memory of these disasters has kept alive in the Lobo mind an eminent respect for the vagaries of the particular Muse which presides over the destinies of the gridiron.

The prospects look good but what they will amount to awaits the verdict of competition.

Ten letter men are expected to answer the call to practice Monday at Chesley field. In this list and in the ranks of the new players who will report is talent of good quality. There are men with which to build a line which will average 180-pounds. That does not mean that such a line will be built. And there appears to be material from which to construct a backfield having all the essential qualities that a good, versatile backfield should have.

For the latter Coach Chapman and Coach Hill have Co-Captain Turknett for quarter; Chambliss for half; Bryan for full and Connell for half. These men will have opposition. Chambliss is developing into a creditable performer and there are those who are expecting him to make a name for himself in the oil belt this year. In Johnnie Connell the Lohos have a 172-pound speed demon who is expected to pair with Chambliss in giving the team that variety of attack this season. Orville Black, a rare guard, Co-Captain Ray at center; Tubby Wagon, tackle, Van Horn at end and Bill Bennie, tackle. Other candidates are Glenn Steen, 200 pound recruit who recalls memories of Hank Irving; McCall, E. Ray, Aycock; Preston, Hazen McMahon, Chester Norvell, Walter Purvis, J. B. Hanks, Charles Shepard and Coleman O'Brien. Fletcher Blackman, 180-pound end, who looked excellent in the spring training season, his brother Graham and Roy Lee Garrett are other likely prospects. A youth by the name of Jacobs will understand Ray at center, it appears.

The backfield will have competition. Joe Little, brother of Ollie Little who is still in the Lohos district and '28, will be striving for a berth. Ceaborn Yeager, Robert Blackburn, Cleo Ray and Clyde Wilkins are other candidates who will help to make things hump during the season.

All in all the prospects are good, but that doesn't mean that the Lohos will win the district this year or even place second to the winner.

AS AIR RACES OPENED AT CHICAGO

While roaring planes soared overhead, and thousands of spectators lined the streets, a colorful parade marked the opening of the 10th annual National Air Races at Chicago. Here you see a group of "pilots" aboard a unique float depicting the "Spirit of the Air."

natl, New York at Philadelphia, Brooklyn at Boston and St. Louis at Pittsburgh.

In the American League the Philadelphia Athletics visited Yankee Stadium for two games with the New York Yankees and the Washington Senators entertained the Boston Red Sox at Washington.

The Cubs had half a game shaved off their National League lead yesterday when the St. Louis Cardinals beat them 8-3. Wild Bill Hjalbalm held the Cubs to four hits, while the Cards drove Jess Petty, resurrected from the minors, to cover in four innings.

The New York Giants missed a chance to make a long stride in the pennant race by dividing a doubleheader with the Boston Braves, winning the first game, 4-3, and losing the second game, 14-10. Mel Ott's three home runs in successive times at bat failed to stave off defeat for the Giants in the second game.

Brooklyn moved within a game of the Giants and within 6 games of the Cubs by winning from the Phillies, 14-3. The Robins made 23 hits, including four out of four for Rube Dressler.

Cincinnati ended a 4-game streak with a 1-4 victory over Pittsburgh.

Bill Shores pitched a 3-hit game as the Athletics maintained their 6 1/2 game lead over Washington in the American League with a 2-1 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Washington won his third straight game from the Yankees, 5-1. Bump Hadley pitched a 5-hit game.

Tom Bridges, 22 year old rookie pitcher, allowed the Chicago White Sox only four hits as Detroit won, 4-1.

Five runs in the seventh broke a 6-6 tie and enabled Cleveland to trim the St. Louis Browns, 17-6.

friends in the United States who can assure them of work who really set out.

During the first six months of this year only 2,377 persons emigrated from Sweden, as compared to 7,208 last year and 6,915 in 1928. Before the war and the quota system the normal emigration from Sweden to the United States averaged about 20,000.

the scales at about 185 pounds and every ounce of that is brawn and muscle, trained in the ways of football and at the disposal of the Lions through what promises to be a season of ups and downs, with the downs in majority.

One Other Backfield Man.

The only other regular performer from the 1929 team on hand yesterday afternoon was William Harrison, a fleet-footed halfback who is beginning his second season with the Lions. Harrison did not gain a regular berth until near the middle of the 1929 season but once in the lineup, he held his place and played some good football for the Lions. Harrison's game last year was in school and during the past year he has added weight and it looks like he may develop into a real star for the Lions.

Other lettermen on hand Monday were Billy Moore, reserve center of last year; Chester Thomas, reserve for one tackle position but called a regular; Raymond Green, reserve end, and George Herman, who lettered with the Lions back in 1927. Moore, the boy who ran the wrong way in the Eastland game last year, is in school for regular duty at center this season and indications are that he will develop into a real performer.

Chester Thomas, bigger and older than a year ago, is due to pair with Raymond Green in giving the Lions a pair of veteran and capable ends. In fact the Lions should be as strong at end this season as last, provided of course that capable reserves for these two huskies can be developed.

Other Line Prospects.

Jessie Thomas looks like a sure bet for one tackle position but just where the Lions will get another tackle, as well as another guard to pair with Captain Thomas is a real problem for the coaches to solve. It may be that the two Harlow boys, Rodney and Bob, will solve this problem. Rodney was a reserve guard last year and a veritable package of dynamite. Bob Harlow comes up from junior high and though younger than Rodney, is much heavier and may be developed into a real lineman. In addition to these two, there are several others who may make progress in the line. Chief of these being Galloway, a promising end up from junior high. And Brady Thomas is another prospective lineman.

In the backfield will be found William Harrison, the only regular from the 1929 squad. Herman, who was out last year because of having failed the year before in his school work, will also get a chance in the backfield. Jack Lawrence, reserve quarterback of last year, is given first call for this job on the 1930 team. But several more capable backs must be developed from junior high boys coming up this year and from reserves of last season. Arthur Evans, who was ineligible last season, is due to make a strong bid in the 1930 backfield. Then there's Grady Whitehead, heavyweight full-back at junior high last year, and Joe McQueen, quarterback for junior high the past season.

And that's about the crop of proven or semi-proven material on hand for the 1930 Lions. Not so bad, and not so good. But that's hope the coast lies in the future. However, school does not open for a couple weeks and other promising boys may show up between now and that time, or some of those on hand now may develop into first string contenders during the intervening two weeks.

The Cats copped the first game, 8 to 5, and lost the seventh-inning ringer game, 9 to 5. The Indians pounded offerings of four Fort Worth hurlers for a total of 15 hits in the last contest.

The Sports lost to the Exporters, 6 to 5, in Beaumont's final home appearance of the season. The Exporters scored four runs in the first frame off Tiny Owens and scored two more runs off as many other hurlers. Mallet held the Sports to six hits.

The fourth-place Houston Buffaloes triumphed over the third-place Wichita Falls Spudders, 2 to 0, when Dizzy Dean, lanky right-hander, allowed the Spudders only three hits.

The Waco Cubs beat the Dallas Steers, 7 to 5.

Emigration Shows Drop

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 30.—The emigration fever in Sweden has cooled off since the business slump began in the United States, report the American consulates in both Gothenburg and Stockholm, where al Swedish visas have to be signed.

Formerly about one half of those who had filed applications showed up when their turn came and now only about a quarter or one fifth, says Herbert Carlson Biar, who has charge of visas at Gothenburg, and in Stockholm the American consular general, John Ball Osborne, finds that only about one-third respond to the call. The others have changed their minds. Usually it is only those with relatives or

BROWNWOOD HAS SEVEN LETTER MEN

BROWNWOOD, Aug. 29.—Candidates for Brownwood High school's 1930 football team, about 30 strong, greeted Coaches Woodward and Adams Monday afternoon for the first official practice session of the current grid campaign. Included in the squad of 30 players reporting Monday were the seven lettermen from the 1930 squad, but of these seven veterans only two might be classed as regulars from last year's team. Other than the seven lettered men, the squad included a number of promising reserves and a flock of new men from the 1929 junior high school eleven.

Heading the list of lettermen was Carl Thomas, captain of the year's team. Thomas played guard last year for the Lions and was the Oil Belt's best lineman in the district despite that this district listed many outstanding guards, tackles, etc., during the last grid campaign. Thomas tips

SHOW CAR, FARE IN ONE

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Combined theater and street-car tickets is the device hit upon by the Board of Barmen and Elberfeld to stimulate the public's flagging interest in the municipal theaters.

When the two towns were united administratively it was decided that the Barmen street-car should be devoted to opera and that of Elberfeld to musical plays and drama.

Owing to the fact that Barmen residents had to travel by street-car to Elberfeld for drama and Elberfeld residents to Barmen for opera, adding to the cost of the evening's amusement as well as to the time spent, attendance began to fall off. By issuing free passes on the street cars with subscription tickets to the municipal theaters the directors of the theaters hope to bring the theater going public back in full strength.

National League Race Reaches Its Final Campaign

By DIXON STEWART*
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—The turbulent 1930 National League pennant race entered its final day today as the Chicago Cubs, 1929 champions and leaders in the current campaign, opened the 21-game road trip which will decide the senior loop's representative in the forthcoming world series.

Three clubs, New York, Brooklyn and St. Louis, still have hopes of dethroning the Cubs and will watch the Chicagoan's progress during the eastern invasion with more than prurient interest. If the Cubs slump, and inability to win consistently on the road has been characteristic of Chicago teams during recent years, any of the other three first division clubs will have an opportunity to win the pennant.

The Cubs now are leading the pennant parade by five full games with only 26 games remaining on their schedule. Ordinarily such a lead would be considered almost unassailable but all three of the contending clubs are convinced they still have a better than an even chance to pass the leaders.

New York, in second place, five games behind the Cubs; and Brooklyn, in third place, six games in the rear, have the advantage of spending their final month of the campaign on home soil and appear to have the best chance in event the Cubs crumple on the home stretch. The St. Louis Cardinals, six and one half games back of the Cubs, have played the best ball in the league during the past month, but like the Cubs are handicapped by a schedule which calls for them to play 16 of their remaining 21 games on foreign diamonds.

Two Eastland Boys In Final Play At Thurston

George Meredith and Senior, two Eastland golf enthusiasts are making golf history as the Thurber Club invitational tournament.

Bob Scott of Colorado, co-list with James Phillips, golf star, is also in the first against J. L. Ward and will meet the Connor in a per bracket, while Phillips play Meredith. Phillips and Meredith were in the play-off Fourth of July tournament Eastland this year and the Phillips is expected to be closely pitted against J. L. Ward in the first round of the tournament.

The winners in the Scott and Meredith-Phillips match play this afternoon for the pionship, playing 18 holes.

Keller Fights For Low Fares For Students

Originator of Tour Plan Urges Further Reduction of Water Rate.

By JOHN WHITE
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Aug. 31.—Bent on persuading trans-Atlantic steamship companies to offer students and teachers a $150 round-trip fare, instead of the present $200 and up, Dr. Ernest G. Keller, student tour organizer and pioneer in the tourist cabin accommodation move has arrived in Paris and plans to "fight it out" on this line if it takes all summer.

"Teachers and students," Dr. Keller explained, "form a special class of tourists, for the most part more appreciative than the ordinary European visitor. But their means are limited, and they cannot afford to pay $200 to $250 for the time spent on the water."

"Suppose a teacher has $450 to spend on a short summer trip, and can with this amount visit England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, France and Switzerland. With a savings of $50 on her ocean voyage she could extend this itinerary on into Italy. It is no exaggeration to say that even so small an amount as $50 often cuts one country off the list of a person who is obliged to content pennies."

Dr. Keller asserted that despite the falling of the tourist trade generally his student travel club had climbed steadily since 1925, when the "first 600 came over, and that 14,000 teachers and students have traveled "his way" in five years.

"Paris," he smiled, "always attracts the majority of our members; in fact, a larger percentage come to France than to any other European country. Central Europe however, is gaining by leaps and bounds, and this year many are going to Vienna and Budapest."
