Jury Reports On Lingle Slaying

CHICAGO, July 31.—In its report on the Alfred J. Lingle murder and subsequent charges of racketeering by certain other Chicago newspaper men, the Cook county grand jury today gave credence to some of the charges made by Harry T. Brundidge, St. Louis star reporter, but declined to indict any of the men Brundidge named on the grounds that the evidence "was not substantiated."
In concluding their report the grand jurors said they "had every reason to believe that the Lingle murder will soon be solved and exhort the citizens of Chicago to cooperate with the state's attorney and investigators working solely on the Lingle case."
The report said that much of Brundidge's testimony was hearsay and that although certain of the charges were admitted by the jury none constituted indictable offenses.
The grand jury later returned a supplementary report calling on Mayor William Hale Thompson to reinstate Capt. John Stege as chief of detectives. Stege was ousted with William F. Russell, police commissioner, a few days ago.
The Chicago Tribune police reporter, was assassinated June 9, Russell and Lingle were close personal friends.

Chinese Rebels Hold Americans For Big Ransom

PEIPING, China, July 31.—Eighteen towns and villages in the vicinity of Loyang, western Hunan province, were in the hands of Chinese Communists and bandits today, advices received here.
The invaders killed hundreds of natives and wounded thousands of others, seizing the wealthier citizens to hold for ransom.
It was believed all foreigners had escaped before the Communists arrived.
The Communists who seized Changsha, capital of Hunan province, yesterday, have issued demands for $1,000,000 ransom for Allen Cameron and William Lingle, American citizens, it was learned today. The fate of the two men was not known here.
Hunan province, where the latest Chinese Communists' invasions occurred, is approximately 450 miles north of Hunan province, where the capital, Changsha, was seized by Communists from South China yesterday, burned and looted.
The Communists have made a rapid drive northward from Hunan into China during the past few days, marching through Hunan and Kiangsi provinces without meeting any resistance. National government troops were withdrawn from the territory to reinforce government troops fighting rebels in Northern China.
WASHINGTON, July 31.—Americans residing in the Chinese provinces of Hunan, Hunan, Hunan and Kiangsi have received a second warning to withdraw to places of safety because of the increased activity of Chinese bandits, the State Department was informed today.
A report from R. R. Butrick, American consul, received here said the bandits have burned all the public buildings in Changsha and have crossed to the island where the foreign settlement is. The consul reported that all Americans had left Changsha except two, William Lingle, Salisbury, N. C., and Allen Cameron, Lawrence, Kas.
The 45 Americans who left the city before the bandits got control are aboard naval vessels in the river five miles below Changsha, Butrick said.
WASHINGTON July 31.—The United States gunboat Panay has been ordered to proceed up the Yangtze river to protect American lives and property and today was steaming toward Cinglingfo, where Chinese raiders have been active the

Election Laws Violated Says Earle Mayfield

AUSTIN, July 31.—"On account of violation of our election laws, the Republicans will have no difficulty in prevailing by quo warranto proceedings," Sterling's name from being printed on the ballot in the general election, in the event he becomes the nominee of the Democratic party" Earle B. Mayfield, eliminated candidate said in a statement issued here this afternoon.
The amount of money spent in the campaign, Mayfield said "made my head dizzy. The corruption of the electorate by the use of money is an issue in the governor's race that strikes at the very foundation of our free institution. I cannot by my best endeavors, the bold, brazen and defiant attempt to buy the governor's office, as though it were a piece of meat lying on the butcher's block."

THE WEATHER

DALLAS, Tex., July 31.—Sultry weather here today promised to usher July out as the hottest and driest month ever recorded by the federal bureau here.
During the month the mercury has topped the century mark eight times, a record, and temperatures have averaged slightly above 90 degrees for the past three weeks.
Only .01 of an inch of rain fell during the 30 days, the lowest precipitation record for July since the local bureau was opened in 1913.
Again yesterday the thermometer crept up to the high mark of the season, 103 degrees.
Similar records of heat and drought were reported from various cities in the state.
Not since the summer of 1927 had Wichita Falls experienced a heat as the 107 degrees which prevailed yesterday. It was the 14th consecutive day the temperature had gone above the 100-degree mark, and it missed this standing but two days in the past 32.
An all-time record was set at Longview, where 107.5 degrees was recorded.
Rain over scattered portions of the state alleviated to some extent the heat wave yesterday and during the night.
A wind and hail storm struck Rusk county in East Texas, but sufficient to benefit parched crops to a great extent, however.

Knife, Pliers And Gin Used In Operation

Los Angeles Doctor Given Loving Cup for Deed On High Seas.

LOS ANGELES, July 31.—A cook's carving knife, a pair of pliers borrowed from the carpenter, a bottle of Holland gin and a needle and linen thread, saved the life of a seaman stricken with appendicitis, and as a result Dr. David R. Robbins, Los Angeles surgeon, recently was presented with a large silver loving cup by the Planet Steamship Company.

A little more than a year ago Dr. Robbins and his wife left Los Angeles on the steamship Noorderdyk for Germany, where the doctor was going to study for a year. He left all his surgical instruments at home, intending to buy new ones in Germany.

Three days out of Panama, the Noorderdyk received a S.O.S. from the steamship Corvus saying that Henry Lohse, 21-year-old sailor, was stricken with appendicitis.

The Noorderdyk steamed to the Corvus and when they met, Lohse was transferred to the Noorderdyk. Dr. Robbins was asked to save the man's life.

Dr. Robbins borrowed a carving knife from the cook, made the incision and with the pliers removed the appendix. He then sewed up the incision with a needle and thread borrowed from his wife and disinfected the wound with Holland Gin. A piece of rubber tubing from a shower bath was used for drainage. As a result of the operation, Lohse is hale and hearty, hauls on the main brace and lustily sings, "Blow the Man Down."

Because he used such strange instruments, Dr. Robbins refused to accept any pay for the operation, stating that the operation under such strange conditions might not prove successful.

However, the steamship company did not forget Dr. Robbins' deed on the high seas, and when he returned to Los Angeles from his year of study in Germany he was presented with the silver loving cup.

SWEDEN'S TWIN CRACK SHOTS CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

STOCKHOLM, August 1.—Sweden's master shots, Major Wilhelm Carlberg and Captain Eric Carlberg, twin brothers have just celebrated their fiftieth birthday. Although not together because the former lives in Stockholm and the latter in Thera, Persia, where he is employed by the Swedish Match interests, Eric also has served three years with the Persian Gendarmes.

As early as in 1906, at the Olympic games in Athens, the marksmanship skill of the twin brothers was pronounced and brought many prizes to Sweden. Two years later at the games in London, Wilhelm won three gold medals and three silver medals in pistol shooting, while Eric won two first and two second prizes. Wilhelm also captured the world championship in revolver shooting in 1913.

AUSTIN, July 31.—Texas led all states in production of wool in 1929. It is now being tested by the federal department of agriculture before show. The crop was 49,422,000 pounds. Montana was next with 32,364,000. Total for the United States was 327,989,590. The Texas crop was 646,000 pounds less than in 1929.

CHICAGO once more advances something unique—an apartment house built entirely of metal, with silver-toned walls of rustless aluminum metal backed by cork-board and rock wool insulation against noise and the weather. The walls will be only 3½ inches thick as compared with the usual 14-inch brick wall, but will have an insulating value equivalent to a 36-inch wall. The floors will be of insulated battlement construction. The thin walls and flooring will add 14 per cent to the rentable space, and the construction cost will be much cheaper. Every known comfort and labor-saving device is to be installed, including electric heating, which will be economically possible through the insulation.

U. S. to Check Bus Tire Wear

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Tests to determine the impact placed on modern highway surfaces by heavily loaded motor buses equipped with various types and sizes of tires will be started early in August by the Bureau of Public Roads at the Aberdeen proving grounds, Aberdeen, Maryland. The tests, which will be conducted in cooperation with the Society of Automotive Engineers and the Rubber Manufacturers Association, are expected to continue over a period of two months.

The war department has made available a stretch of concrete paving at the experimental grounds, and the bureau has been loaned a large bus of interurban type which will be operated at speeds up to 50 or 60 miles an hour. Tires for the tests will be furnished by various manufacturers and will include both high-pressure and balloon types of the latest design.

Columbus Birth Will Be Debated

MADRID, July 30.—The contention of the Peruvian historian Luis Ulloa that Christopher Columbus was born in atonaha will be carefully examined by the Committee of the Indies of the Royal Academy of History next fall. The committee, shortly before adjourning its activities for the summer, decided to devote its energies this fall to a study of Ul-loa's claims and theories as well as to the examination of the documents which he cites.

Once the committee has thoroughly studied the matter it will be formally debated by the Academy, which will then reach its conclusions. Since the Academy is a body officially recognized by the government besides ranking high among the learned societies of the world, its decision would carry with it considerable weight.

The Committee of the Indies, considers that Ulloa's work concerning the lineage of the Duke of Veragua are not worthy of the Committee's consideration.

Ulloa holds a corresponding membership in the Royal Historical Academy. The president of the society is the Duke of Alba.

Memphis Man Has Bible 315 Years of Age

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 31.—A Scottish printer in 1615 produced a Bible which the Rev. C. W. McCann, Memphis pastor now owns.

The Bible, 315 years old, came into the possession of the minister's ancestors shortly after its publication by Robert Barker, Scottish printer and subject to His Majesty, King James IV. It is the St. James version, printed in bold-face type, believed by the Rev. McCann to be the only one of its kind in existence.

The McCann family "lost track" of the Bible for 79 years, until the present owner discovered it in the possession of an Ohio woman 14 years ago. Establishing his right to the sacred book, the minister requested the privilege of reclaiming it. It was willed to him by the woman on her death.

In what may be its final public exhibition, the Bible was used by the Rev. McCann in scripture readings at the home-coming services at the Gospel Tabernacle church here recently.

Rate of Suicide For Women In Germany Rises

BERLIN, July 31.—The number of suicide in Germany remained as high in 1928 as it was in 1927, numbering about 16,000, but women's suicides increased as compared to men's, the latest official statistics revealed.

This tendency has been observed for several years. In 1926, for instance, 13,333 women out of every 100,000 committed suicide, their rate rising to 14.6 two years after. During the same period, the number of male suicides dropped from 30 to 26.4 out of every 100,000.

The number of suicides does not vary widely from year to year. Nevertheless, periods of declining trade show an increasing suicide rate. Thus 1928, a year marked by a severe economic crisis, revealed the highest suicide rate

Is There No Justice?

SOME day, somebody will do something about it, but until then we must sit back and hope that the Fates will spare us any more swelled thumbs, torn finger nails or pulled tendons. If you're given to prayer, it might be well to ask that Bobby Jones be spared a blistered finger or a sunburned neck when he goes after his fourth major golf title of the season, the U. S. Amateur, at Philadelphia in September.

The Fates are always pulling off mean tricks to the favorite just when it appears certain that he will attain a goal that none other has reached. First it was a torn finger nail and then a swelled thumb for the Bambino. And now our latest to suffer was Blue Larkspur, star of Colonel Bradley's Idle Hour farms. The son of Black Servant-Blossom Time has been taken home to his native Blue Grass region, suffering from a weakened tendon which taxed his right foreleg to swell. He will race no more this season—and perhaps never.

The big four-year-old took the Arlington Cup at a gallop and just when a lot of the experts were figuring he was the horse to put that young upstart, Gallant Fox, in his place and set a new record for American turf winnings to boot, he pulled-up on three legs and had to be moved into a retirement that may be lasting. It is doubtful if we hear any more of Blue Larkspur until 1934, when his sons and daughters will be coming to the post.

Unbeatable at Arlington

AS a two-year-old, Blue Larkspur was initial fame on New York tracks. But it was on Chicago's Arlington oval that he captured a majority of the purses which have swelled his money-winning total to $272,000. He trounced the 1929 winners of the Kentucky Derby, the American Derby and the Dwyer Stakes in the inaugural running of the Arlington Classic a year ago. He took the Stars and Stripes handicap July 4 and only recently galloped in three lengths ahead of the field in the Arlington Cup.

Windy City fans worshipped Blue Larkspur. A long line of admirers of thoroughbreds al-

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

To all newspaper men who would interview Colonel E. R. Bradley himself, the old sportsman gives this answer: "Let's talk about my horses." Colonel Bradley harbors the suspicion that Blue Larkspur, when he was right, could beat any horse of the times. . . . The flip of a coin was the only percentage ever asked by the owner of Idle Hour farms.

The Hobins fall more than any other club to get one run when they need it, in spite of their ability to score half a dozen at a time, sometimes. . . . ways was passing the Bradley Colt's quarters when he was in training at Arlington. Those who lingered around his stall also became acquainted with Jimmy, one of the most quiet and coming mascots to the business.

Jimmy is a tom cat, but he's a bosom friend of the big thoroughbred and spends most of his time in the stall with his buddy. He became as famous as Brownie, the dog mascot of Gallant Fox, who also made quite an impression on the fans when the Woodward colt was quartered at Arlington.

Black Tony, Bubbling Over, North Star III—they're names we seldom hear any more. But they are the companions of Blue Larkspur now—those three, and Jimmy.

The Hollywood Story

COPYRIGHT 1930 by NEA SERVICE Inc. by ERNEST LYNN

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Dan Korimer had been in Hollywood two weeks when he got a letter from an old newspaper friend in New York, Ziggy Young, telling him to look up a young girl named Anne Winter, who had come to Hollywood from Tulsa, Okla., to "crash the movies." Dan is somewhat annoyed at the tone of Ziggy's letter. The latter is one who takes favors for granted.

He complains to Paul Collier, who is present when he gets the letter. Collier, who writes a daily movie column for a string of newspapers, is unfeeling in the matter and tells him his duty to Ziggy is clear. So Dan gets in touch with Anne Winter—and is literally taken off his feet by her charm.

Dan takes her to dinner and suggests that they dance later; and at her request he tells her about himself—how he had given up newspaper work about a year before to write fiction and how one of the movies, a circumstance that led to his signing a contract as a scenario writer for Continental Pictures.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER I

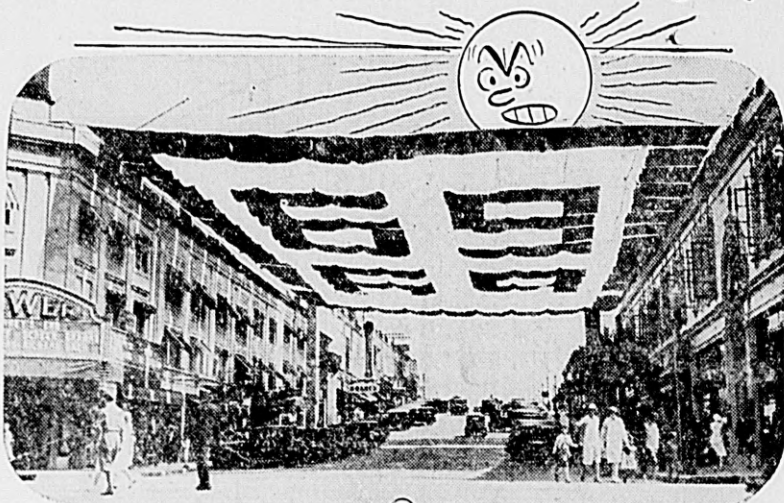

Since coming to Hollywood Anne Winter had worked one day as an extra.

Korimer had said, as they left the Brown Derby: "Tell me now about yourself. I've been very good, I think, to wait all through dinner."

"What did Ziggy Young tell you about me?" she asked.

"He said you had come out here to work in pictures. . . . You've

TO THE VOTERS OF EASTLAND COUNTY

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the magnificent vote you gave me in my race for a second term as Tax Assessor, as I enjoyed a lead of over 1100 votes over my nearest opponent, and, inasmuch as I had three good men running against me, this 1100 vote lead is indeed a vote any man should be proud of, and I want you to know that I speak from the heart when I say I am deeply grateful.

I am not so vain as to think this vote was a compliment to me personally, but on the contrary is a tribute to the services I have tried so hard to render to you, my people.

To those of you who have supported me so gallantly I owe a debt of gratitude which I shall never forget, and I earnestly solicit a continuation of this support. To those of you who did not support me in the first primary I have only the kindest of thoughts, realizing that possibly you had friends or other obligations to take care of. However, I earnestly solicit your vote and influence in the run-off, August 23rd, and I cheerfully invite an investigation.

I have always felt that I have God and Right on my side in this race, and that the majority of the people of this dear old county are an honest, God-fearing people and will never condemn right and truth if the facts are properly presented to them.

Again assuring you of my appreciation for what you have done for me, and earnestly soliciting your vote and influence in the run-off, I am had stage experience, haven't you?"

"Did Ziggy Young tell you that?"

Rorimer said no. "It's in your voice; Ziggy didn't have to tell me." But her voice, he told himself, was not all. There was a definite poise about her, an assured ease of movement; and certain little mannerisms, like her trick of listening and the eloquent use of her hands, bespoke her training.

She laughed. "You're so observant, aren't you?"

"Perhaps."

They turned into the parking lot beside the restaurant and Rorimer, giving the attendant his ticket, asked her if she would like a little ride before dancing.

"Then I can hear your life story without the competition of George Olsen's band." It was decidedly pleasant, he thought, with Anne Winter beside him in the car and Anne Winter's low, vibrant voice in his ear.

They swung east on Sunset boulevard. The cool breeze that had come with the evening sang against the windshield and rushed past them into the night. Dan pointed toward the sky. "Hollywood stars," he said with a smile.

She nodded thoughtfully, her mood changing. "They are far away, aren't they? . . . I've worked just one day since I've been here."

Rorimer might have told her that she could count herself fortunate for that. Instead, he said, "But you've been ill, and you've been here less than two weeks. You'll get your chance."

"Do you really think so?"

"Stage experience helps tremendously, now that the pictures talk."

But her practical stage experi-

"I am registered there," she told him.

"Well, that's something in your favor—they're not registering everybody that's looking for extra work."

"They told me there that I should have enough money to last me, without work or any sort, for at least one year and preferably three."

Rorimer nodded. "I know. If you're just looking for a job, it sounds pretty tough, but if you're looking for a career it's different. You sort of expect to have to make sacrifices, I suppose."

"You know something about that yourself, don't you?" Anne Winter said, smiling.

Rorimer looked puzzled.

"Don't you remember the time you gave up eating lunch?" she asked.

He chuckled. "Oh, yes, I did lay something on the altar of Art, didn't I? . . . Gone far enough?"

"Just as you say. I do feel like dancing, though."

Rorimer swung the car to the left at the next street. "All right, we'll go back on Hollywood boulevard. Meanwhile how about the story of your life? The life and loves," he added, "of Anne Winter."

Anne shook her head. "Life only," she said positively; "and that's so uneventful I'll have finished before we reach the boulevard."

He deliberately slowed down. Anne Winter laughed joyously.

"Born in Tulsa," she said, mimicking the manner of his own recital, "raised in Tulsa, went to school in Tulsa. . . ."

There had been, she added, a course in a dramatic school.

"And then the stock companies. . . . I did well enough to raise my hopes, and to persuade my father against his better judgment to let me come to Hollywood to see if I was good enough for pictures."

She went on to say, with a swift rush of enthusiasm, that her father was "perfectly adorable" and that she was crazy about him.

"Mother's a dear, too—only,

Father seems to understand me better. He's more tolerant of my whims and enthusiasms."

Rorimer nodded and made a left turn, reminding her as the car swung under brighter light that Hollywood boulevard had been reached and she had not yet finished.

Well, it was about finished, Anne Winter said. About all that remained to be told was that she was on probation for one year.

"At the end of that time my parents are coming out to see me, and if I'm making real progress I'm to be allowed to stay. If not," she made an expressive gesture with her hands, palms upturned—"I have to go home. . . . That's fair, isn't it?"

It certainly was, Dan agreed, and he found it a pleasant thought that her stay in Hollywood was to be guaranteed for a minimum of a year.

Her father, she informed him, was a lawyer. "He used to be a judge, but he went back to private practice some years ago."

"His decision," Rorimer said solemnly, "does him credit as a jurist. Solomon couldn't have done better." He said, "You're bound to go a long way with a father like that behind you."

"You're nice to say that. . . . Well, that's the end of my story."

Rorimer said, smiling at her, "I'm sure it's just the beginning."

"You're so kind. I'm sure what you are really thinking is that I'm a movie-mad rattle-brained girl and that I've no business out here. . . . What else did Ziggy Young say about me in his letter?"

Dan, remembering that letter and the things he had said to Paul Collier, laughed. "Ziggy's a rotten reporter," he said. "He told me you were freckle-faced and stubborn."

"Well, I can be stubborn—and I used to have freckles. That's not bad, coming from Ziggy."

"He's not exactly what you'd call complimentary," Rorimer admitted. "He said you were bull-headed."

"He did! Wait till I lay my eyes on him again."

"There's danger in them eyes," said Dan.

"Do you know what Ziggy Young's first name is?" Anne Winter asked, ignoring his remark.

"He never would admit that he had any besides Ziggy."

"Well, it's Clement. Whenever he makes me mad I tell on him."

"You must be perfectly furious," said Dan.

"But he's a dear," said Anne, "and it was awfully nice of him to ask you to look me up."

"I thought of that a long time ago. He's an ornery red-headed runt, but he's a swell guy. Do you know what I thought when I met you tonight?"

She had no idea.

"Well, I told myself I'd send Ziggy a couple of the sweetest ties in Hollywood. I think I really ought to make it half a dozen."

Anne Winter laughed. "I ought to bow," she said, "but the seat doesn't permit it."

"That's one bow you owe me then," said Dan. "Here we are; all out. Stick close to me in the lobby or you'll get run over by a song writer. Hollywood's full of them. Encourage 'em and they'll toddle right over and warble their latest hit in your ear."

In the Blossom Room the lights were subdued and gay laughter floated above the steady murmur of many voices. The orchestra swung into action as they were being shown to their table, and Dan told her that it was in honor of her entrance.

"They knew you were coming," he said. "Do you like to have celebrities pointed out to you? If you do, there's Charlie Chaplin over there. See the table with four "Women just don't find the time to give the game the necessary thought," the 45 year-old champion said.

Those observations are attributed schooled in the game by a woman to a man who never has been schooled at the game. Yet, he has been recognized as a southern champion for 35 years and has won victories from foreign opponents. Jefferson fancied chess in 1912, carving his own players from Irish potatoes. A year later he won the southwestern championship, uncoached to the title. He repeated the performance in 1914 and since has been undefeated.

Champions of Canada, Germany and Hungary have succumbed to his cunning on the board.
