

CHICAGO MAYOR'S WIFE ROBBED

HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

We have been asked to urge motorists once more not only to drive slowly, but carefully, while near school buildings, especially during recess time and before and after classes.

Instances of children being barely missed or knocked down, although by comparatively slowly moving cars, are being reported often. It is declared.

The Texas & Pacific boys of the mechanical forces all along the line are having a good time in their annual sessions at the Settles, it appears. They have put in plenty of time with business, discussing the scores of rules entering into agreements under which they work for the T. & P. It is refreshing to hear employees of a great railroad speak almost always in terms of "friendliness and confidence of their employer."

President Lancaster is "The Old Man" to them and they use the term respectfully and tell you he is a fair-minded fellow.

Such a condition must of necessity arise from two-sided fairness: both the men and the company must be tolerant of each other's claims and interests and viewpoint or that condition could not arise.

It is prof that the employer who takes for granted that he must watch his men like a hawk to keep them from soldiering or taking too much leeway in any manner, as well as the workman who just naturally believes the boss is a crook and trying to make a slave out of him may both be—and very likely would, be—wrong.

Persuad of the census bureau's report of the number of farms Texas will bring out some facts that ought to mean something in presenting the Texas & Pacific Northern application before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The increase in number of farms in the counties that would be traversed taken in comparison with the large portion of the total tillable acreage, yet affixed will show why the road would treat new traffic.

Maj. Fred N. Oliver, formerly at Fort Worth, is now at Big Spring, Texas, where he has been retained as special counsel for the towns along the proposed road, is leaving no stone unturned in preparation of the case and is working in complete cooperation with Texas & Pacific counsel. If this road is not built it will be no fault of these towns—Big Spring and the Chamber of Commerce in particular.

We still contend that Howard County ought to snap out of its lethargy and vote bonds to pave highways and some county roads as well. We have heard some threats of "activity" along this line but no action yet. Things seem to be rocking along just as they have for these many years.

BRADY FLOOD LOSS PLACED AT $3,000,000

Red Cross Feeds 175 Made Homeless; None Are Missing

BRADY, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—The loss caused by flood waters from the Brady river, which partially inundated the business section of town yesterday, was estimated at $3,000,000 today. No lives were lost and no one was missing.

Telephone communication was re-established after it had failed last night.

None of the loss was covered by flood insurance, according to Carl Blasing, manager of the chamber of commerce.

The water and light plants were not in operation and water was being rationed with a supply of 80,000 gallons available. An effort was being made to place the light plant in operation by night.

One hundred and sixty-five persons, made homeless when about 50 small houses were washed away, were fed by the American Red Cross last night and today. The Red Cross also was issuing bedding and clothing.

Eighty business houses reported damaged stocks.

Typhoid serum sufficient for 200 persons was sent from Austin by the state health department.

Mechanical Forces Of T. & P. End First Convention Day In Annual Banquet And Ball

Rotary Club Classification Talks Heard

Mechanical men of the Texas & Pacific Railway company who have established for themselves and their road records ranking high-made merry Monday evening at the Settles hotel at the banquet and ball of their annual convention.

With J. A. Yarbrough, local chairman of the mechanical employees' association, as master of ceremonies, a group of speakers, shop men and local business men, were heard before the splendid meal, which was followed by the dance, 10 p. m. until 1 a. m.

Speakers were C. T. Watson, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce; C. T. Elder, Marshall, general chairman of the association; B. Reagan, president of the West Texas National Bank, and George Crouse, local machine shop foreman.

Seated at the speaker's table were D. L. Ringler, assistant master mechanic here, with Mrs. Ringler and their small son; Guy Cravena, general boiler foreman here; George Crouse; Miss Marguerite Crouse; C. T. Watson, C. S. Kyle, T. S. Currie, A. L. Pate, B. Reagan.

J. N. Blue, master mechanic here, was one of the guests. Mechanical superintendent Prendergast of Dallas wired that he would be unable to attend.

Watson Heard

Mr. Watson stressed importance to the community of the railroad and its men. He took occasion to puncture some ideas which were declared to have been more prevalent in the past than now with reference to the attitude of the Chamber of Commerce here to organized labor.

"A man who makes more than a living is a better citizen than one who makes just a livelihood. The business men of this community know that and, therefore, would be foolish to favor any reduction of wages or advent into the city of laborers or business men who would seek to fill positions already well handled by residents," he declared.

Watson, he said, that once became angry at unfair charges made against the Chamber of Commerce in this respect and attempted to run them to their source but, finding they apparently had no responsible source had grown to "consider the source" and did not worry for that matter.

Mr. Elder, veteran T. & P. man who heads the association of mechanical employees, reiterated what Mr. Watson had said with reference to mutual value of cooperation between the workman and business man, and also contended that one should "consider the source" of prejudiced or thoughtless charges brought against the Chamber of Commerce or the workmen of the railroad.

Mr. Elder resided here 35 years ago he said, adding that "I hardly knew the old town."

"I am glad two shop men are on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and we appreciate your efforts for the Texas and Pacific Northern railroad," said Mr. Elder.

"Who thought the T. & P. would become the road she is? The Marshall Chamber of Commerce is boasting for this new railroad. I'm glad I live in a town with a live Chamber of Commerce," continued Mr. Elder.

"I'm also glad I serve with a railroad like the T. & P., which has such wonderful supervision from the lowest to the president of the road. The management believed in a 50-50 break and, if necessary will even go 51 per cent."

Mr. Reagan was repeatedly cheered, particularly when he declared that, as a merchant here for many years, he had always specified that his goods be shipped via the T. & P. He added that he believed all business men of Big Spring should thus support the road.

"The T. & P. is the biggest thing in the town. We ought to say to merchants that they patronize the road with their freight business. The bus lines are all right and we have no fight on them but they could stop running tomorrow and the town would stay here, just as it is. Such would be far from the case were we to find ourselves without the railroad," said Mr. Reagan.

George Crouse, popular as machine shop foreman here, and a veteran of 27 years with the Texas & Pacific, in whose service his father or before him spent 40 years, was the final speaker.

He outlined mechanical development of locomotives and the resultant track improvements.

"Much and lasting good will come through this gathering," he said. "These men are builders. I know every delegate here and I know what sort of men they are."

"That working men have the right or organize and represent themselves has long been conceded."

Terrell Recommends Action After Listening In On Hearing

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (AP)—Approval of the application of the Southern Pacific Railway to acquire control of the Gulf and West Texas Railway was voted today by the Texas Railroad Commission in a letter to the Interstate Commerce Commission which has the application under consideration.

Commissioner C. V. Terrell sat in on the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing and on his recommendation the following report was signed by all members of the commission:

"The control sought would assure prompt construction of the San Antonio-San Angelo line.

"It would preserve the routes and channels of trade which would be created or exist after construction of the proposed line by the Gulf and West Texas Railway.

"It would preserve the competition which would exist in event of dependent construction and operation of the line.

"It would result in better transportation service than could reasonably be expected in the event of independent construction and operation of the line.

"Finally, it would result in substantial economies beneficial to the public interest."

GEMS WORTH $50,000 LOOT OF GUN MEN

Chauffeur Slugged at Door Of Home, Victim Hysterical

CHICAGO, Oct. 7. (AP)—The crime wave reached brazen heights today with the robbery of the mayor's wife, Mrs. William Hale Thompson, in the very doorway of her Gold Coast home.

She was stripped of jewels valued at approximately $50,000, and was so shaken by the experience as to become hysterical. Her policeman-chauffeur was robbed of his star and his revolver, and narrowly escaped a bullet death. The three thugs escaped.

Mrs. Thompson had attended the theatre with her sister, Mrs. William Burkhardt. Her chauffeur, Peter J. O'Malley, had picked them up and driven them north along the lake shore drive which at that hour—shortly before last midnight—teemed with the traffic of lunatics and jabs, homebound from an evening in amusement places.

Hit Chauffeur

Mrs. Burkhardt had been dropped at her home, O'Malley continued north on Sheridan road, turning west into Barry Avenue and drawing up at the Barry Avenue entrance of the apartment hotel in which the Mayor and Mrs. Thompson make their home.

He stepped out and walked around the rear of the limousine to open the door for Mrs. Thompson. A man stepped from the darkness and stunned him with a blow on the head. This robber stood guard over O'Malley as two others ordered Mrs. Thompson out of the car.

At pistol points they forced her to walk into the entrance of the building. Roughly they snatched her jewels, including a diamond ring for which she recently had paid $10,000; a diamond bracelet and a diamond pin.

Several minutes were required. Meanwhile the robber who held a gun on O'Malley observed the officers police holster.

"What are you doing with that?" the robber demanded.

"Just carrying it," replied the policeman.

His coat fell open, revealing his police star.

"You're a copper," snarled the robber.

"No," said O'Malley. "I'm just a chauffeur, but I wear a police star."

"You can't fool me," growled the man with the gun. "You're a cop, and I ought to give you a bullet in the belly."

Find Gun

At this point the two others stepped back to the curb, the robbery finished. They were about to leave in the car, they had parked nearby when the third man—O'Malley—said he had a gun somewhere.

"This cop's got a gun somewhere," they searched the limousine, and found the police revolver on the driver's seat.

They sped away.

O'Malley started pursuit. As he whirled the limousine into the street with a roar, the mayor's wife fainted on the sidewalk.

Pedestrians found her there a moment later and carried her to her apartment. A physician said her condition was temporarily serious.

O'Malley maintained the case for half a mile then lost the trail.

A.F.L. Session Of Day Brief

BOSTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—A brief session for the disposal of routine affairs was the extent of the activities today of the American Federation of Labor convention. Other business was deferred until tomorrow to give the 400 delegates an opportunity to witness the parade of the American Legion.

Resolutions contributed by delegates were compiled and made ready for future action of the convention at large. With the time for filing resolutions expiring tonight, it was expected that action on those submitted could be started tomorrow.

The convention had before it for consideration the appeal of President William Green for immediate inauguration of the five-day work week in industry with the exception of the service groups. Although some branches of organized labor are not working a five-day week, the appeal of President Green in his opening address to the convention yesterday paved the way for the effort to make such a program universal.

Acquittal Given Man After Brief Trial On Murder Charge Filed Nearly Half Century

LUBBOCK, Texas, Oct. 7. (AP)—Orville Parks, 24, was dead today and his pretty 20-year-old estranged wife was seriously wounded after a double shooting here.

After a futile attempt at reconciliation, Parks shot the young woman yesterday and then fired a bullet in his head. He died several hours afterward.

Mrs. Parks began work recently in a restaurant, and at the rooming house where she stayed it was known she was married. She went under her maiden name of Velma Hayes.

Roomers said Parks came to the young woman's house and asked to see her. After talking in his automobile, they entered the house, which presently was alarmed by the man's loud voice.

"I'll put the gun up if you'll live with me," he was quoted as saying.

Oliver, I can't," was the reply.

A roomer saw the girl crouched before an open closet, while her husband confronted, her gun in hand. Parks threatened the onlookers, and they fled.

When police arrived, the girl had been shot once in the abdomen and twice in one wrist and an arm. Parks had been blown from his head by a bullet through the temple.

LUBBOCK MAN KILLS SELF BUT WIFE MAY LIVE

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala., Oct. 7. (AP)—A Marshall county jury today returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of James F. Neely, 70, charged with murder for the alleged slaying of Hiram Cooley 47 years ago.

Neely was placed on trial yesterday, testimony and arguments being completed in half a day, and the jury taking the case early last night but retiring before starting deliberations.

A handful of witnesses, including the aged defendant, paraded through the witness stand in the brief court hearing that was in a way a decided contrast to the years that have intervened between the slaying and the trial to give their versions of the fight atop Georgia mountain, near here, in which Cooley was fatally beaten.

Speaking in a low voice, Neely told a simple and dramatic story of his fight with Cooley, pleading that he fought in self-defense after Cooley himself had made the rendezvous to "settle the trouble between them."

Neely said the fight started when Cooley attempted to hit him with a hoe handle and that they fought with hands and fists for several minutes before Cooley attacked him with a knife, stabbing him in the right hand and right hip.

"Cooley fell," Neely explained, "and when I left the scene I did not know he was hurt."

The fight started after Cooley died three days later. Neely told in a brief history of 47 years' wanderings through Tennessee into Ohio and finally to Tyler, Tex., where he was arrested while visiting a brother.

The jury returned a verdict a little more than two hours after beginning deliberations this morning.

The 70-year-old defendant expressed confidence throughout his three weeks stay in the Marshall county jail.

Julian Loses Dismissal Plea

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 7. (AP)—A motion of the C. C. Julian Oil & Royalty Co. to dismiss its appeal in the state supreme court which attacked the constitutionality of the Oklahoma proration laws and the jurisdiction of the corporation commission to enforce them was denied by the state supreme court today.

John Head, attorney for the Julian company, sought the dismissal immediately after the federal district court issued an opinion in a Fort Shook, a clothing merchant, denied of suffocation at 2:30 o'clock this morning in a fire which destroyed his residence. His wife was rescued from an upstairs balcony.

Shook and his wife were asleep before the fire was discovered. He went to investigate, lost his bearings on the first floor and was overcome by smoke. Mrs. Shook ran to the balcony, screamed and received help from friends.

Possibility that the fire might have been caused by a burglar dropping a cigarette in inflammation, if dismissed, might again be the ground for argument again the fire officials. The Shooks were gone over, wasting time of both the court and the attorney general's office.

Fort Worth Man Burned In Home; Friends Save Wife

FORT WORTH, Oct. 7. (AP)—Shook home several times and that neighbors had reported seeing prowlers around the Shook home Saturday night.

Mrs. Petta said Mrs. Shook told her that she and Shook had heard a shuffling noise downstairs shortly before the fire was discovered.

However, there was a chance that the fire had been caused by defective wiring, as lights had been out at the Shook home and candles had been used on such occasions.

Shook's body was found under a piano in the front room downstairs. His body was some distance from the front door which was still locked but near two windows had been unlocked. The windows were swollen in their casing by the wet weather, and it was believed probable that Shook had been unable to open them.

T. A. Bunker, 51, Found Dead; Daughter In Hospital, Very Ill

T. A. Bunker, 51, resident of Big Spring about eight years, was found dead about 8:25 p. m. Monday, by his son, Walter.

Returning from school the lad found his father's body in a sitting posture on the rear steps of the home, 605 East 16th street, a newspaper before him, shears with which he had been pruning roses beside him, his head resting against the banister.

Meanwhile, Miss Ailyn Bunker, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bunker was in a Big Spring hospital, critically ill. She underwent a major operation Saturday and her condition has not allowed her to be told of her father's death.

Mrs. Bunker had gone to the hospital. Mr. Bunker, who had been too ill to work for three weeks, being alone at home. The elder son, Thaddeus, was at work in his father's place as watchmaker in the Amos R. Wood jewelry store downtown.

In Ill Health

Mr. Bunker had been in ill health but his wife told friends he appeared to be feeling better Monday morning than he had in several weeks. Death was from a heart attack brought on by chronic kidney trouble, it was said by friends.

A few minutes after Mrs. Bunker had reached the home J. D. Eiler, long-time friend of the family, in whose drug store Mr. Bunker conducted a watch repair business for some time, arrived with a will.

$2,500,000 Battle Over Legal Meaning Of One Word Foreseen

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—A $2,500,000 battle over the legal meaning of a single word was foreseen here as the result of the distribution of major oil companies to pay a back production tax on every head of gas.

The attorney general's department has ruled that the word "gas" in the statute means only the gas that is produced in the state and not the gas that is produced in other states and brought into the state.

39 Counties In Abilene Cooperative District To Gin 100,000 Bales

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 7. (AP)—The Abilene district cooperative district will gin more than 100,000 bales of cotton this year, according to the district manager, J. W. West.

The district is the largest in the state and covers 39 counties. It is the only district in the state that has a central gin.

Livestock Buyers Dig Deep: Money Flows In

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 7. (AP)—At least a million dollars of northern money has started to move into the southwest as cattle and sheep buyers, who have been sitting on the sidelines waiting for the producer to make a move are digging deep into their pockets.

Cattle are in greater demand and are selling at prices which enable the cowman to make some money on his operations this year while lamb sales have gone well over the 100,000 mark. Shipments have been made from Sterling, Reagan, Upton, Brown, Tom, Green, Sutton, Schleicher, Valverde, Crockett and other West Texas counties.

Most Houston Babies Of Native Parents

HOUSTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—Houston, notwithstanding its great increase in population during the past decade, will continue to gain most of her growth from native stock, if figures compiled by the bureau of statistics are to be relied upon.

While of 487 children born in the city during August 31 were offspring of native mothers. One hundred and fifty one newcomers had mothers born in other states of the union while only 45 were children of mothers who started life in another country.

Oil company attorneys have filed two contentions in a hearing before the state to collect the tax first, that "gas" is not oil within the meaning of the statute, and second, that the legislature, knowing the tax was not collected and yet not making specific legislation to tax casinghead gas, had by its acquiescence indicated its intent to tax only the receipts from gross production of crude oil.

The attorney general, who has been asked to aid the comptroller in collection of the back tax holds on the other hand, the gas is an oil within the construction of the statute, and does not presume to say what the legislature intent, nor why the tax has not been collected during the twenty odd years the state has collected the gross production tax.

In a brief filed with the attorney general, the oil companies point out that court have uniformly held that tax statutes are to be construed against the state and favorably to the tax payer and cannot be extended by implication to tax subjects not plainly included. From this premise they proceed to another rule of law established in Texas courts, that words of a statute are presumed to be used in their ordinary and usual sense.

With these two rules as bases, they contended that "oil" in its common and usual sense means "crude oil" and that to otherwise hold would be to place the state at an advantage and tax increased by implication.

Casinghead gas in gas in natural state produced at the mouth of oil wells through a casing head. As early as 1900 gasoline was extracted from casinghead gas and the industry now amounts to millions of dollars yearly.

Since the enactment of the original gross production tax law in 1907, the statute has been amended twice. The oil companies claim that since the legislature, on both amendments, knew that the department construction of the law did not include a tax on gas, the construction of the department became a part of the law.

The claim is made that the attorney general's opinion holding casinghead gas taxable was based on a previous opinion which stated a court ruling to the effect that "gas" is a constituent of oil. This ruling, it was argued, was based on private contracts wherein that terminology was used.

It appeared probable that before any tax is paid, or the question finally determined, the highest courts will be called on to settle the question. Neither in the oil companies' brief nor the attorney general's opinion was any ruling cited specifically dealing with this question.

The gross production tax is an occupation tax, based upon the market price of oil produced, in the amount of one and one-half per cent of the market value.

FEW CASUALTIES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 7. (AP)—Casualties among employees of the Missouri Pacific railroad during the first seven months this year decreased 41.6 per cent from the corresponding period last year. C. F. Larson, superintendent of safety, has announced.

In an effort to further reduce the death rate, as well as illness among Father Houston's children, the God department made 4,539 inspections of places where food is sold during the month, resulting in the destruction of 56,985 pounds of canned food, 46,320 pounds of vegetables and fruit, 147 pounds of meats and 178 pounds of fish.

CASUALTIES OF ALL SORTS, including those at grade crossings and of trespassers, as well as employees, showed a decrease of 21.96 per cent.

COSTE TO FLORIDA NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7. (AP)—The French trans-Atlantic liner, Major Dieudonne Coste and Lieutenant Maurice Bellonte, flew away from New Orleans at 9:45 a. m. today and headed for Pensacola, Fla., accompanied by their escort of two department of commerce planes.

Reasons For Employment Trouble Given

BOSTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—Representatives of labor in the United States and Canada were assembled here today for the 50th annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

President Hoover is to be the guest of the federation a few hours after his appearance at the American Legion's annual convention.

The delegates today had before them the annual report of President William R. Green and the executive council, outlining accomplishments of labor during the past year and a program for its guidance in the future.

This report dealt with the unemployment and business conditions. It said that despite conditions during the past year, investigation revealed that experiences in 1921 and 1924 were considered as having been worse for labor.

The council found that "under our present business economy there have been frequent breakdowns due to failure to adjust production to markets and the inability of our credit systems to meet such emergency."

Upon business management it placed the responsibility for such breakdowns in the economic system. The field of distribution was declared to be unorganized with only the preliminary moves made to obtain information which would develop better management.

The council, which is composed of 11 of the leading officials of the federation, held that "society has a definite responsibility for providing service to those who need employment," in this regard it suggested as possible remedies for the situation, shortening of hours and work week lengths; encouragement of vacations; old age pensions; control of the tendencies of bettered machine design to displace workers; and better understanding and better economic information.

President Hoover's opposition during the past year to reductions in pay rates as a means towards betterment of business conditions was lauded by the council.

Physician Missing Off Ocean Liner

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (AP)—Dr. J. R. Campbell, 37 years old Lansing, Mich. physician, vanished from the liner George Washington on Sept. 29, the day it sailed from Cherbourg. Captain A. B. Randall reported on the vessel's arrival here.

Dr. Campbell had been ship surgeon and later had practiced on Europe. The day the liner was to leave Cherbourg Captain Randall said, Dr. Campbell came to him and he lacked funds but wanted to come back to the United States. He was signed on as an officer and was seen on deck a few minutes after the ship sailed, then was missed.

Gang Blamed In Two Deaths

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 7. (AP)—Two men are dead today, shot down by an unknown assassin in a parked car and a third was in a hospital dangerously wounded, while police held Edge V. Varble, self-styled racketeer pending investigation of the shootings.

Oldom L. Heffries, Ottawa, Kan., was killed and Jess Trowbridge was wounded fatally by a stream of pistol fire when they stopped their car beside one containing a man and woman early Sunday morning in answer to a hail.

The slayings occurred shortly after police had been called to the apartment of Miss Lillian Rice, cigar clerk, where they found Floyd Thompson wounded near the heart. Miss Rice told police Varble shot Thompson when she quarreled in her apartment.

Varble and Miss Rice were taken into custody some hours later when their car smashed into a light pole. He was armed, police said, his pistol containing several discharged shells.

Varble, described by police as a racketeer, said he was in the vicinity of the double murder approximately at the time it took place, but denied the slayings.

Aged Houston Recluse May Share In Estate

HOUSTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—A 75-year-old Houston recluse lives in a two-room house unperturbed, while just around the corner may lie a considerable slice in a $400,000 Irish estate.

Richard Henry Grady, for more than 30 years a traveling salesman, tired of the life, put his hut in East Houston and settled there.

Through the efforts of Cornelius Ferris, United States commissioner, working with Patrick Hannan, county collector of County Longford, Ireland, Grady was assured a "just claim." Ferris wrote to a share in the estate. But much legal maneuvering, it was added, would be necessary to get it.

"I suppose," said the recluse, "I'll never get it. Really, it makes little difference. I'm getting along very well here. I have everything I want. I need very little."

He claims a close friendship with United States Sen. Thomas J. Walsh of Montana.

Air Mail Service On Line Through Amarillo To Operate October 15

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—Service over the New York to Los Angeles airmail route begins October 15.

The postoffice department announced the date today along with the stopping places and time schedules. Assistant Postmaster General Glover said the air mail advantages would have been lost had all cities wishing to be made stopping places been included.

Stops on the main route are Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Ohio, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Wichita, Amarillo, Albuquerque, Phoenix, Ariz., and Los Angeles.

A supplemental service also is provided from St. Louis by way of Springfield, Mo., Tulsa and Oklahoma City, to Amarillo.

The postoffice department explained it had not been possible to connect this leg of the schedule with the New York-Kansas City layout because of the necessity of operating a daylight flight from St. Louis to Amarillo. With complete route lighting, it will eventually be worked into the continuous transcontinental schedule.

Bill Of Sale Signed By Billy The Kid In Museum of Panhandle

CANYON, Texas, Oct. 7. (AP)—Visitors to the Museum of the Panhandle Plains Historical society can, if they are curious, see a bill of sale written by the famous outlaw, William H. Bonney, better known as Billy the Kid. The bill of sale was for a horse and was made to Dr. H. F. Hoyt, who was a resident of old Tascosa during the days when it was the most popular town in the Panhandle.

It is said that this specimen of hand writing of Billy the Kid is one of the only two in existence. When Billy the Kid was slain at the age of 22 years, he was supposed to have killed 24 men. All of this took place in what was known as the Lincoln County War. Effects of it were felt throughout New Mexico and in the western part of the Panhandle.

With the bill of sale is a copy of what is said to be the only picture of William H. Bonney in existence. This copy was also once the property of Dr. Hoyt.

A photograph of Dr. Hoyt, author of the Frontier Doctor, has also been deposited with the society.

Lynn County Man Finds Few Seeking To Get Employment

TAHOCA, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—Things are not in such a bad state in West Texas, particularly in Lynn county, it was revealed in a recent test by C. C. Williams, secretary of the chamber of commerce here.

Williams offered the services of his organization as a free employment bureau, "but at the same time, asked that farmers employ only home people preferably whites rather than negro or Mexican labor, thus keeping negro people at work and home money at home."

"Forty farms" immediately asked for cotton-picking crews, but only two home men applied for jobs, leading Williams to the conclusion that the employment problem is not bad in these parts.

Highway Maintenance Material To Be Bid On Road Board Says

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—All material purchased in carload lots for the maintenance division of the state highway department, will be purchased on bids received at the Austin office instead of at the headquarters of the 28 divisions. J. B. Early, maintenance engineer, has announced. The practice has been used for the past three months in the purchase of asphalt and has met with good results, Early said.

Early stated that more information concerning the various materials was on file in Austin and said adoption of the central bidding plan would facilitate awarding of contracts.

Novel Banned By El Paso Library Lauded By Many

ALPINE, Oct. 7. (AP)—"Conquest," first novel by Jack O'Conner, young Texas writer, is creating a furor in the Southwest. It has been barred by the El Paso public library and denounced by prominent citizens in many Arizona cities. But others are hailing it as a realistic masterpiece of old Southwestern life.

The novel was published by Harper & Bros., September 17.

The story is laid in the sixties and seventies in Arizona, when that territory was being won from the Apaches and made into a civilized state. Pendleton, the principal character, is a hard, unscrupulous "poor white" from Virginia who enters the scene as a professional scalp-hunter, gets a connection with the old Butterfield stage company, acquires land and cattle, build a town, and finally becomes one of the richest men in the West.

His career is followed in minute detail and his speech and actions are recorded by the writer.

In defending the portrayal of the character Harvey Ferguson, famous Southwestern writer and author of "Wolf Song" and "In Those Days," said, "Sensitive and idealistic men did come to the old West, but they were few and they tended to die young. Pendleton achieves something of the rich and detailed reality of a figure by Dreiser or Zola."

Chester Chope, managing editor of the El Paso Post, writes, "Here at last is a story of the West that is different. It is as virile as the pioneers about whom the author has written."

O'Conner, a native of Arizona, is a Texan by adoption. He is a former Chicago newspaper man. He forms a realistic trilogy of novels laid in the Southwest, which will form roughly a social history of that section. His second novel is finished in first draft and will be published by Harpers next fall. Notes and outlines for his third are under way.

Automobile Races On Laredo-Monterrey Road Considered By A.A.A.

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 7. (AP)—Holding annual international automobile races on the Nuevo Laredo-Monterrey paved Mexican highway, a distance of 147 miles with the great racing cars and drivers of the world participating and prizes aggregating $10,000 to $15,000 or more being offered, is now being given attention by the American Automobile Association, the Mexican Automobile Association and others interested in the event.

In discussing the matter in Laredo after the auto road races of September 14 dedicating the paved Nuevo Laredo-Monterrey highway, A. A. A. and Mexican Automobile Association officials looked upon the proposition favorably. The fact that the Nuevo Laredo-Monterrey paved highway probably could be given over to races each 16th of September, when Mexico celebrates her independence day, was discussed, officials said that the paved highway from the Mexican border would provide even faster track than the Indianapolis speed way, and in the Cuernavaca Mamu lique (mountain pass 100 miles south of Nuevo Laredo) provided a hazard that would make the races all the more interesting.

Plans are to offer purses in two classifications, professional racing cars and stock cars.

For the guidance of strangers the municipal authorities of Berlin have erected a large, glass covered map of the city at a central point.

W. L. Moody 3rd to Build Native Stone Mansion In Hills of Kerrville

KERRVILLE, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—A castle of native stone will rise in the hill country 40 miles west of here.

Preliminary work has been started on the $250,000 structure, to be a summer residence for W. L. Moody III, Galveston capitalist, who has a 63,000-acre tract owned by his father, W. L. Moody Sr., near Kerrville.

It is planned to have 45 rooms, including 19 baths. A dam on the homestead will provide a lake for fishing and other recreation.

Girl students in Walls Wall, Wash., high school have voted to give up frilly dresses and wear a sort of uniform during classes.

New "Jackie" Coogan Confuses Visitors

You'll remember Jackie Coogan with Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid" (center) and recognize him as a knight of King Arthur in "Tom Sawyer," his next role—but have you met his little brother? It's confusing, but Robert is shown with Jackie at the right.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jackie Coogan grew up, of course. But over on the lot where he is making a picture, a new model from the Coogan pattern is romping about to confuse visitors.

The new model is Robert, Jackie's little brother, just 5 years old. Robert looks very much as Jackie did in the days when he was making "The Kid" with Charlie Chaplin.

He wears his hair bobbed in the same manner, dresses in coveralls, but is a bit plumper than Jackie.

At home they call Robert "The Sea Gull" because of his appetite. He eats anything—and much. The appetite comes from his active life, for Robert is a good swimmer already.

He has started his studies, too, and speaks a smattering of German and French as well as English.

But will he follow Jackie? "I'm going to be in 'Tom Sawyer,'" he says in his soft voice, barely audible unless one leans over to his level.

"No, you're not," his father smiles. "One actor in the family is enough. Robert's going to be a business man."

In the meantime Jackie, 15 now, is finishing his picture and ready for high school again. He wants to go to university later.

The Coogans believe Jack must have a college education before continuing his career. If parts are open during vacation he may take them.

Where he'll go to college isn't sure. His father thinks Harvard, Notre Dame or Santa Clara, Cal., with a year at Oxford or Cambridge.

Pumpkin Pie, Queen of Fall Desserts

Your First Or Your Hundredth, This Recipe Will Help You

Superseding the frivolous summer desserts—the ices, ice creams, light cakes and gelatin favorites to say nothing of fruits and fruit drinks—the brisk fall days turn the family appetite toward hearty puddings, delicacies increased in whipped cream—and most of all, to pumpkin pie.

Whether you are contemplating the making of your first or your one hundredth pumpkin pie you can learn something about simplifying its preparation or brightening its flavor from the following procedure:

Wash and pare the pumpkin and cut into small pieces and cook. Paring is made easy by cutting the pumpkin into sections after washing. It may then be clipped into small cubes.

Of the two methods of cooking—steaming and cooking over a direct fire—the first is preferable. Steaming gives a superior product and eliminates the possibility of burning. Pumpkin cooked over a direct fire must be watched carefully and must be stirred quite frequently because the sugar in it causes it to burn easily.

After the pulp is cooked until it is very soft, it should be passed through a wire strainer, to avoid coarse-grained and stringy pies. If desired, the pulp may then be kept several days before it is used if the season is cool and there is a good storage place.

Prebake the Shell Partly bake the pastry before adding the filling to the pie. This method keeps the crust from becoming soaked and makes it unnecessary to bake the custard at a high temperature with the danger of causing curdling.

Make a plain or rich pastry as desired. Place in the pan without stretching and see that there are no bubbles between the pastry and pan. Prick pastry with fork and bake in hot oven, about 450 degrees Fahrenheit, for 10 minutes.

It will be necessary to prick the pastry several times during the baking process to destroy air blisters. To prevent soaking of the crust, brush it lightly with melted fat just before the pumpkin filling is poured in.

To obtain the deep crust desirable for this type of pie, the pastry must be cut about half an inch larger than the pan and the surplus folded under at the edges. If the edge is then frilled with the fingers, the crust will hold quite firmly and not shrink into the pan.

To prepare the filling, the following ingredients are required: 1 1/2 cups steamed and strained pumpkin, 3/4 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, a 1 1/2 cups milk and 1/2 cup cream.

This recipe may be modified and the filling seasoned to suit the taste. Mix sugar and spices together, and add to the pumpkin. The spices are likely to lump if not separated by the sugar before being added to the liquid. Beat the eggs until whites and yolks are thoroughly blended but not frothy. Egg do not make a smooth custard nor thicken well. Combine all ingredients and stir until thoroughly blended. Pour into shell and bake.

If the shell has been prebaked, the custard will cook best at a temperature between 300 and 325 degrees Fahrenheit. It will take about half an hour to bake the custard.

If the shell is not baked before the custard is poured in, the temperature must be higher, about 350 degrees for 15 minutes, in order to bake the crust thoroughly. The temperature may then be reduced to 325 degrees. The entire baking will require at least 45 minutes. A too high temperature causes the albumen of the egg in the filling to harden and separate, giving a custard or watery product.

Fruit juices instead of spices may be used as the predominant flavor of the pie.

Pumpkin Pie with Lemon 1 1/2 cups pumpkin, 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup rich milk, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, Grated rind of small lemon or 1/2 half large lemon.

In adding acid juices, the filling mixture should be heated before the juices are added, then heated over water for five to seven minutes. This reduces curdling. Orange juice may be substituted.

Pumpkin Pie with Orange Marmalade 1 1/2 cups cooked pumpkin, 3/4 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon ginger, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 2 cups milk, 6 tablespoons orange marmalade.

The pumpkin may be steamed or baked, or canned pumpkin may be used. Mix in the order given and bake in a crust like custard pie in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for 10 minutes. Then lower temperature until set. Serve hot or cold, atop to 325 degrees Fahrenheit and garnish with whipped cream. Just before serving dot with orange marmalade.

O. E. S. MEETING TONIGHT The Order of the Eastern Star will have a stated meeting tonight at seven-thirty. All members are urged to attend. Initiation will be held.

Mrs. G. Fiske Tells Of First Women's Clubs

Four Attend Midland Meet From Big Spring Saturday

The first woman's club in the United States was organized in 1883 in Jacksonville, Ill., according to the story of the history of women's clubs, told by Mrs. Greanleaf Fiske of Abilene, state president of the Federation, at the first meeting of the newly organized Women's Federation of Midland Saturday afternoon, in the Scharbauer Hotel ballroom.

She further stated that three other clubs were formed at about the same time in Boston, New York and Washington state.

"There are," she said, "over 60,000 federated clubwomen in Texas. They may be divided into three classes—the row-boat type, the sail-boat type and the steam-boat type."

"The first class must be pushed and propelled, the second glides easily about, but shifts with the wind, and the third type knows where it is going and gets there."

Mrs. Fiske was present at the first meeting of this club and assisted in the opening services.

Four Attend From Here Four Big Spring women, representing two city clubs, attended this meeting. They were: Mrs. E. H. Huppel, Mrs. Mary Bumpass, Mrs. L. S. McDowell and Mrs. R. W. Hedy.

Health Officer Speaks Dr. Bryan, city health officer, spoke to the women on the subject of infantile paralysis, in view of

He stated that there was no known preventative other than good health, but that there were three cures that had been used successfully. They are: the spinal puncture, the administration of serum and the administration of blood from a child who has had paralytic.

The most common ages during which children are likely to take the disease are between one and three. Between three and seven the danger is less and decreases with every year over seven.

Wallace Bibby gave a short musical interlude, and played "Romance" and "Turkey in the Straw." Mrs. Peters sang a solo.

Big Spring clubwomen had been invited to this meeting as it was the first one to be held by the new Midland Federation.

Mrs. R.M. Parks Entertains For Miss Cushing

Final Party Given For Bride-To-Be Before Wedding

The final pre-nuptial affair, honoring Miss Mary Lou Cushing, who will marry Hubert Chapman Stipp tomorrow evening at the First Presbyterian church, was given last evening by Mrs. Robert Parks at her home on West Fourth Street.

Mrs. Parks gave one of the most charming small parties of the season, carrying out the wedding colors of orchid, pink and green in all of her decorations.

The bridge tables were covered with the colored coverings and ornamented with large bows. The score cards and tables carried out the bridal motif. Miss Cushing's place at the head table was indicated by two small cupid in wedding regalia.

Miss Eleanor Antley won high score and was presented with a gold and black silhouette. Miss Spencer Leatherwood won consolation prize and was presented with a deck of cards.

Miss Cushing was presented a silver gravy ladle by Mrs. Parks and a silver whipped cream ladle by Mrs. J. O. Copland.

A large angel-food cake was placed before Miss Cushing at the refreshment hour, which she cut and passed to the guests. Ice cream, coffee, sandwiches and olives were served to the following guests: Misses Dorothy Joe

French-fried potatoes — as quick as broiling a steak

1 All you need is a large saucepan, a wire deep-frying basket (or strainer) and a 3-lb. can of Crisco. Fill the saucepan a little more than half full of Crisco. (Don't be afraid to use enough—you can use Crisco over and over again.)

2 Heat Crisco to 400° F. (a small cube of bread will brown in it in 20 seconds). Never wait for Crisco to smoke—Crisco doesn't smoke at proper frying temperatures. As soon as the Crisco is hot enough, put in the food to be fried. Crisco, a delicate, sweet-tasting fat, quickly wraps around foods a delicate crisp brown coat—and leaves kitchens fresh and smoke-free.

3 When the food is cooked, lift it from the fat. Hold the basket over the kettle to drain fat from the food. Finish draining on absorbent paper, paper towel or paper napkin.

4 Now strain Crisco back into the can through cheesecloth or a very fine sieve, to remove any possible burned particles. You can use Crisco over and over for anything you want to fry—Crisco doesn't carry the taste of one food to another.

Cooking School Note by Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig

In the cooking school I conducted under the auspices of The Herald recently, I stressed modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, I use and recommend CRISCO—for it's a modern shortening. Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig.

Realization

For a long time the Shellys had done without a piano although Mrs. Shelly and Tom and Mary all knew how to play. When the family had moved to West Texas from Kansas the piano had been sold and one thing and another had prevented the buying of another. Then one day Mrs. Shelly happened to glance through the classified columns of the Herald and there she found an opportunity to secure a good used piano at a sacrifice. Another family was moving from the city and could not take the piano. Now Mrs. Shelly realizes (since the piano was bought at such a moderate price) that the classified advertising columns daily offer just such opportunities as provided the piano for her family. She never misses reading the "want ads" every day.

Almost every imaginable object can be purchased through the Classified Ad Columns of The Big Spring Daily Herald, Big Spring's greatest market place.

World Series Teams Move To Philadelphia For Last Of Games; Managers Optimistic

By THOMAS WELLS
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The Athletics and Cardinals of Philadelphia and St. Louis today were in their way back to Philadelphia to resume their world's series battle tomorrow on the American League grounds.

Both teams had reason to be satisfied with their three-day stay in National League territory. The Cardinals won two games to get them back in the series, while the Athletics captured the final clash in Missouri in a thrilling battle of pitchers and started home a game ahead and only one decision from another world's championship.

The Cardinals left Philadelphia last Thursday night two games behind the Athletics and they return only one in arrears, but still their task is the harder. In a split match the holes eventually run out and this is all in favor of the player ahead. The Athletics have to win only one more to repeat their 1929 triumph and win the supreme prize of Connie Mack as a "great team." The Cardinals must win two straight.

Mack Optimistic

Manager Mack today made no forecast of the ultimate end of the series except to say that he had faith in his "boys."

The "gabby" general of the Cardinals, the weather-bitten Charles Street, as always, was optimistic today.

"We can win two straight from the Athletics," he said, "and this we will do. We have done it already in this series and we can do it again."

The final game in St. Louis, won 2 to 6 by the Athletics in the ninth inning when Jimmy Fox drove a home run high and far into the left field bleacher seats among a group of disgusted customers, was a gripping struggle.

For seven innings the 37-year-old Burleigh Grimes, a courageous, heavy pitcher, and George Earnshaw, younger, biter but not craftier, battled on even, scoreless terms. The day was dark, with a low ceiling and rain threatening throughout, and all in all it was a pitcher's day if ever there was a world's series stage set with scenery made to order for the sharpshooters on the mound.

Burleigh threw his famous "spitters," mixing enough fast balls and curves with them to prevent the A's getting "set," while Earnshaw had a fast one, a curve, and a half-speed ball that baffled the opposition by throwing the batsmen off their stride.

In the eighth inning Earnshaw moved out of the picture to make way to make room for a pinch hitter. The honors were even with his rival for each had allowed two hits in seven chukkers. The pinch hitter got on but in spite of the partial success of the Mackian strategy, Grimes pitched himself out of his hole.

Lefty Groves, the speed ball king of the A's, came in to succeed Earnshaw and as he held the Cardinals rudderless during the eighth and ninth innings and as the pitcher of record when Fox hit for the circuit, he was credited with the victory. This was compensation for a game he saved for Earnshaw in the last world's series when the big right-hander under the scoring rules was credited with the victory.

Tax-Free Army Gas Sold To Post Folk For Own Use, Charge

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (INS)—Just another example of the "olds army game," is the way the attorney general's department views the case. A protest that tax-free gasoline for San Antonio army posts is being sold to army people for their private use has been made by Assistant Attorney General Rice M. Tilley to the adjutant general of the army.

Gasoline sold the government is exempt from the four-cent occupation tax. Army officials claim that the private cars sold tax exempted gasoline are used for official purposes.

Kappa Sigma to Build New House at Texas

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—Construction of new $31,500 home, which will be furnished at the expense of $5,000, has been announced by Kappa Sigma fraternity of the University of Texas. The home will be ready to occupy next spring.

The fraternity has vacated the old house, which is the oldest fraternity home west of the Mississippi, and has moved to temporary headquarters.

Highway Offices May Be Provided

AUSTIN, Oct. 7. (AP)—Another of the numerous problems that are expected to be submitted to the next legislature in January is the construction of state office buildings to house the highway department exclusively. Incidentally, this problem has been faced and turned down by several preceding legislatures.

It is known, however, that those in charge of the highway department and the Department of Public Safety are in favor of the erection of the highway department building. Storing even went so far at one time as to recommend its construction, stating that it could be put out of highway funds without a special appropriation from the legislature.

The highway department could simply use a structure of its own, highway officials stated. The main office of the department now is crowded into one floor of what is generally known as the land office building.

Officials estimate that to house the activities of this main unit normally would require about two and one-half floors. This would provide adequate space for the various units of the office and would provide enough room for the voluminous files kept by the highway department.

At the present time, owing to the crowded condition of the office, it is necessary to keep only a limited number of the more active files in the main office, the remainder being stored in the basement of the building.

It was pointed out that this often necessitates long delays in searching for records and documents because the files are so closely packed in the basement that it is extremely difficult to look through them.

Another item officials proposed as a reason for a new highway building was that the present overcrowded condition impaired to a certain extent, the efficiency of the office. The desks are tightly jammed against each other, with bare room for employees to pass through.

In addition to its space in the land office building, the highway department is forced to rent approximately one and one-half floors of space in a downtown building. Officials said that money spent for rent for offices in this building and the money that would be saved by having this unit close in contact with the main office would nearly offset the cost of the new building.

It tentatively outlined the new building would be four or five stories high with all activities of the department centered in this one structure. This would include the laboratory and testing department, the commissioner's hearing room, general offices of the highway department, the central division offices and the United States bureau of public roads. The latter unit now is cramped into a small room adjoining the main offices of the highway department.

Construction of the new building also would provide relief for overcrowded conditions in other state departments since it would release an entire floor of the land office for use of other branches of the government, some of which are badly crowded.

Tendency To 'Low-Rate' Baylor Team Vanishing Because Of Splendid Showing at Purdue

By GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Oct. 7. (AP)—There had been a tendency to "low-rate" the Baylor Bears before their coach with Purdue Saturday, but Coach Jennings' machine will have a hard time sneaking up on any Southwest Conference foe now. The battle put up by the Bruins was, without doubt, an outstanding feature of the mid-west invasion.

Southern Methodist did little more than its followers anticipated in holding Notre Dame to a single touchdown margin, but Purdue had been rated a top-heavy favorite over the Bears. The fact that the Baptists fought the Boilermakers on almost even terms all the way and lost only because their secondary failed to hit a couple of passes will not be overlooked by conference rivals.

On the strength of their form to date, the eluding contenders might be ranked: 1. Southern Methodist, 2. Texas Christian, 3. Baylor. The Bears, thus, are moved a notch above the University of Texas Longhorns, who yet have failed to show anything like championship class.

Farmers May Buy Wheat of Government

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—Opportunity to purchase wheat and other feed in carlot loads from the Farmers' National Grain Corporation of Chicago was before farmers of the state today.

In a telegram to officials of the Agriculture and Mechanical College yesterday, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde called attention to an offer of the corporation to ship grain in carlots to drought-stricken counties at minimum charges.

He suggested that arrangements be made with local dealers, elevators or cooperatives to purchase such grain from the corporation and to parcel it out to farmers at "reasonable handling charges." He urged that county agents look into the matter.

At the same time, he stated reports to him indicated farmers were paying widely divergent prices for say, wheat, oats, barley and corn and blamed uneconomical methods of handling and distribution, and he believed the carlot purchasing would prove a relief to them.

Word also was received that 20 Texas counties were being certified for drought relief reduced freight rates and that the rates would be effective as soon as railroads could issue tariffs. The counties are Palo Pinto, Jack, Brewster, Reeves, Pecos, Presidio, Jeff Davis, Culberson, Hudspeth, Glascock, Martin, Howard, Edwards, Kinney, Val Verde, Crockett, Upton, Reagan, Real and Terrell.

Return To Camp Mabry Is Desired

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—Efforts toward returning the official camp of the Texas National Guard to Camp Mabry, near Austin, are being made by Travis post of the American Legion. At a recent meeting of the post, officers were requested to keep in close touch with National Guard developments and be ready to press Austin's claim for the encampment.

Members of the post charged that R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman, was influential in inducing the government to spend large sums of money at Camp Palacios and said this was one of the main difficulties in returning the camp here.

The 36th division is the only National Guard in the country to hold a full division encampment yearly, and the Austin veterans said it should be held at the state capital. The division encampment was moved from Camp Mabry during the administration of Governor Pat Neff. It was contended that time that Camp Mabry had insufficient grounds to handle the entire division encampment.

Camp Mabry was purchased by the citizens of Austin and decided to the state for a military reserve. T. H. McGregor, democratic nominee for the legislature from Travis county, said he would introduce a bill at the next session of the legislature calling for the establishment of a military unit, composed of students of the University of Texas, at Camp Mabry. McGregor stated that the plan for the student military organization had been given the approval of Maj. Gen. John A. Hulen, commander of the 36th division, who will assist in passage of the measure.

Gen. Hulen said he would request the war department to furnish equipment and military instructors for the school if it is established by the legislature.

State Institutions Found Overcrowded By Official Visitors

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 7. (AP)—Overcrowded conditions have been found in each of the five state hospitals. A committee of officials from the state board of health, headed by Governor R. A. Wright, made the inspection with the executive and his return to Austin.

The institutions inspected were the San Antonio State Hospital, the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Colquhoun, the Dallas State Hospital, the Wichita Falls State Hospital and the Travis County Training School for Girls.

At the San Antonio State Hospital, Walthall said, the committee found 61 patients sleeping in hallways and he said that similar overcrowded conditions existed in the dining rooms. He stated the committee announced it would recommend to the legislature that a bill be passed authorizing the construction of a new building at San Antonio at the earliest possible time.

At Wichita Falls the committee found a badly overcrowded condition although this will be alleviated somewhat by the opening of a ward building for white women October 15, Walthall said.

Great interest was evinced by members of the committee in the operation of the Gainesville Training School for girls. Walthall said the committee was greatly impressed at the south of state in the institution, many of them being nine or ten years old.

Walthall said that a new building was needed at Gainesville since the board of control was forced to parole many of the girls prematurely or find private homes for them.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

Answered By
Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Questions from readers are answered by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

Stoneham, Mass.
In reading the Bible there are certain passages which are more or less cryptic and perplexing to me. One instance is verse 18, chapter 13 of the book of Revelation.

Would greatly appreciate your interpretation of this and your opinion of the significance of 666.

Perhaps you know that the letters of the Hebrew and Greek alphabets have numerical equivalents. Countless efforts have been made to find the names of men known in the numbers 666 and 616. The likeliest explanation is that these numbers represent the numerical value of the name Nero Caesar as spelled in Hebrew letters. If written in full Neron is designated in this cryptic form by 666. If the last letter 'n' is dropped we have the resulting number 616, which is the alternate live read in some New Testament manuscripts.

That half had imposed a satanic shadow on your thought world and now it is the shadow fall more devastating than on the infant child who has been persecuted.

table and servants I cannot any longer bring myself to ask for money for myself. It always takes days of urging before I can get the most modest amounts and then only after much unpleasantness. The situation has grown worse with time. I guess well have a beautiful home, automobile and two servants. But no money. He has a good business and can well afford to give me an allowance. He makes no bones about spending money lavishly on me.

He is a good man in many ways but is not fair to me in this respect. It troubles me to think of breaking up our home. What would you suggest?

I grant that his position in the military service and army. Have you ever plainly asked him for his reason for his attitude? Your letter does not intimate that you have done this, possibly you feel that to do it will lead to more unpleasantness. Probably it will. But it would be still more unpleasant either to go on enduring this situation or to take up and quit. Choose the lesser of two evils and get to the basic facts in the situation. Without those you are trying to do dark.

Let me be less direct in speaking to you. You are a woman of a worldly and worldly way of thought. You are a woman who will give him credit for being interested in your life and happiness. Let me be less direct in coming back to avoid trouble. What is your difficulty? It should separate husband and wife. This thought is all that matters.

My sister and I have a seemingly unsolvable problem. I am twenty-seven and married. She is thirty and helps mother at home. Mother is strong minded and refuses to put up with conditions contrary to her own. She and father have never been on good terms and father has been given to drink, which makes matters all the worse. The home is in mother's name and she has ordered him to live elsewhere because she says he has been unfaithful to her. I don't know this and as mother has not told me anything about sister and me which are untrue, we think she is mistaken with respect to father. She talks of going away from a bad husband and disjunct children. What can we do?

Kindly omit our address.

If your father has disapproved these charges, to your satisfaction communicate that fact to your mother and suggest a family conference for their investigation. Be patient with her. A woman who has had to endure a drunken husband should be forgiven much. She has need of a strong mind and a resolute heart. Should she persist in believing him guilty of infidelity, yet submit no evidence to substantiate her belief, your father is entitled to your confidence so far as that particular charge is concerned.

Insist, however, that he abandon his drinking and let him clearly understand that this habit has been one of the main causes of your distressing difficulty. If he refuses to live a sober life, stand by him and let your unmarried sister watch over you, to your sister whose state of mind is decidedly disturbed. But bear in mind her provocations. I can add little by way of advice to two daughters who have need of courage and discretion in their unselfish efforts to salvage what is left of a shattered and faded life.

It is surprising when, during the calling and quarrel, the children are duly considered that the unfortunate couples do not succumb to selfishness or despair. The children always face a hard lot in such situations. But at twenty-seven and thirty both of you can raise above it. If all means maintain your own home as you, please, in this domestic world.

"The old time watch-word— 'Let the Buyer Beware' has given way to the modern slogan of confidence 'Buy in Safety', and this miracle was wrought by the honesty of manufacture which characterizes every fine American product. Southeast Texas Community Ravaged By Tornado, Injuring Twenty-Six, None Seriously

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 7 (AP)—A southeast Texas farming hamlet, Latex, was all but swept away by a tornado reported to have injured 26 persons late yesterday, while Houston and much of the remainder of the area were assaulted less severely by wind and rain.

None of the Latex victims, according to available reports, were in a dangerous condition. The storm there came out of the southwest, missed the town of Crockett, nearby, and dragged a lethal tail some 300 yards wide for more than six miles. It skirted the school house by a quarter of a mile and disappeared with a roar in the woods.

In Houston, a much less destructive windstorm struck over 20 blocks in the thickly populated south end, wrecked servant houses and outbuildings, tore up power and phone lines and damaged roofs. A cloudburst ahead of it had flooded in many of the streets, filled basements, halted street car traffic and automobile traffic.

Fire apparatus, answering several minor alarms, was stalled. No one was reported injured.

Woman Married Through Want Ad Reported Missing

CHICAGO, Oct. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, who met a man through a want ad and borrowed $500 to marry him last June 16, has vanished.

In the Lac Du Flambeau region of Wisconsin where she went on her honeymoon, a woman's body has been found. It is yet unidentified, but it may be Mrs. Hackett's.

The man she married, George W. E. Perry, is missing, too. But he made one appearance during the time he was presumed to be on his honeymoon. That appearance was in Cleveland, O., at the home of his first wife, his only legal wife, authorities say. He was driving a tan-colored sedan, and he was alone; and Mrs. Hackett owned a tan-colored sedan.

The woman that Mrs. Hackett, 42 years old, answered was for a woman companion on a trip to California. She went to the address given and met Perry. He said his mother was wealthy; that she regarded him as a spendthrift; but that she was prepared to set him up in business provided he would settle down. He suggested he was ready to settle down; and he proposed marriage. Mrs. Hackett accepted.

Needed $500
Perry needed $500 for the journey to his mother in California. Mrs. Hackett, her friends revealed, borrowed that sum at a loan bank although she was understood to be in comfortable circumstances and a property owner.

They were married in mid-June and left for the Lac Du Flambeau region on their honeymoon. Letters from Mrs. Hackett to Chicago friends indicated she was happy. Then the letters and postcards stopped.

In early July Perry drove a tan-colored sedan up to the house of Mrs. Katharine Gebhardt Perry in Cleveland. He had several suitcases and bags containing women's clothing. He said the clothing had been given him by his "sunt," a Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett.

Shortly afterward Perry left Cleveland and he was going to Texas, Mrs. Perry has not heard from him since.

Not Aunt
In a book found among the "wanting aunt's" effects, Mrs. Perry discovered the address of Mrs. W. H. Rogers of Chicago. She wrote in curiosity, inquiring about Mrs. Hackett—Mrs. Perry's aunt. Mrs. Rogers replied that Mrs. Hackett was not Perry's aunt but his wife.

Meanwhile Mrs. Hackett's sister in New York, Miss Peggy Young, became concerned over her failure to hear from Mrs. Hackett. She engaged counsel to investigate.

Chicago police thus have been interested. They report the fact that Mrs. Hackett and Perry were last heard from in the Lac Du Flambeau region as significant, especially in view of the discovery of a woman's body here.

The sheriff of Vilas county, Wisconsin, said no woman had been reported missing in that section. The clothing in which the body was dressed was a riding habit recognized as a Chicago style.

The body corresponds in general to Mrs. Hackett's description.

A general message went out to all police officers today to watch for the tan-colored sedan. Perry also is wanted for questioning.

Single Grave For Dirigible Blast Victims

30,000 See Procession Of Forty-Seven Caissons Start Seaward

BEAUNVAIS, France, Oct. 7 (AP)—Thirty thousand persons, from Beaunvais and the countryside hereabout, lined the streets of this little city today as a procession of caissons bearing the 47 bodies of victims of the R-101 disaster were taken from Beaunvais city hall to the railroad station.

They were put reverentially on a special train which takes them today to Boulogne-sur-Mer where they will be placed aboard the destroyer Tempest and Tribune for the trip across the channel to England and an eternal resting place in a single grave.

Thirty French airplanes and a squadron of British airplanes hovered low over the procession as it wended its way to the railway station, sometimes swooping so low as to scatter the frightened crowds. Troops stood at each side of the caissons' route.

Each caisson was covered with a British and French flag and bouquets of flowers, most of them wild flowers picked by the passants.

After consultation with the British government it was decided to abandon the plan of a memorial service in the historic cathedral Saint Pierre, since it was not known to what denomination the victims belonged.

As the coffins were taken from the city hall and placed on the caissons Premier Lardieu of France and Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India in the British cabinet, stood with uncovered heads. Earlier in the morning a storm broke over the town. Hailstones as large as eggs beat at the mourning-bedecked city, and forced the thousands who had gathered to participate in the memorial ceremony to seek shelter.

The artillery caissons which rumbled along to the strains of "God Save the King" ranged from those of the famous French "seventy fives" to the big siege guns of King Louis XIV. By the time the cortege reached the railway station, where there was an imposing honorary guard, all the caissons were draped with flowers which passants and others had laid upon them.

Officially, at least, the number of those to die in the disaster has been settled. Air Commander E. V. Holt, in charge of British investigation of the catastrophe, when supervising transfer of the bodies from pine shells to oak caskets, found that two pine shells held what were believed to be parts of the same body, previously identified as two corpses.

The body, badly burned, had fallen apart when relieved from the oak casket and had been mistaken as two. The discovery made it appear that only 46 persons died originally in the crash. There were eight survivors, of whom one died yesterday, the total 54, conforming with the air ministry's total of 54 aboard ship.

The discovery apparently disposed of the theory of an "oneway board" which police, unable to explain the "extra bodies," believed yesterday to have been the cause. The ruins gave no further clue to the significance of a woman's burned body, with buckle attached, which was found in the debris. It was suggested it might have been a suggestion of a romantic adventure carried by one of the crew of passengers.

70,000 March In American Legion Parade

BOSTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Seventy thousand marching men, who trod the muddy roads of a vast city today through streets where once the cannon of another war roared. Perhaps to the "boys" of the American Legion, as they swung along today, their heads high, their faces gleaming with the memories of "18 here was little thought for the boys of '78. But about them as they stepped briskly through the streets of historic old Boston, there was much to remind them of the men who fired the first shots for the liberty for which they fought nearly a century and a half later.

Flag old Boston Common, which school to the impassioned cries of Revolutionary orators, over Beacon Hill and down the hill beside the weather stained walls of Kings Chapel, where the soldiers of Great Britain worshipped, they marched today, surrounded by the ghosts of the past.

They swung beneath a victory arch that turned their faces toward Faneuil Hall, "Cradle of Liberty," and toward the spot where British rifles cracked in the "Boston massacre." The rampant uniforms of the old state houses from whose balconies the Declaration of Independence was read to the populace, gazed down upon them as they passed, as they have gazed upon the marching men of every war in the country's history.

In unbroken array, eight abreast, the men of the Legion marched in what their officers said was the greatest parade of World War veterans—a greater array than gathered in one marching unit even during wartime days. From 10 o'clock when the first units got under way, there was but a net up through the days and darkness was expected to fall as the last rank reached the end.

They were from Alaska to Panama, from Maine to the Philippines, a regiment or more from nearly states. At 9 o'clock they began to form and the first to start had reached the end of the five mile route, before many of the delegations had gathered at their starting points.

Former State Official Given Year In Prison

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 7 (AP)—W. Oscar Gordon, former assistant state attorney general, was sentenced to 12 months in the Oklahoma county jail here and fined $1,000 by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaughn today on his plea of guilty to extortion.

Gordon was sentenced on one of five charges against him growing out of the alleged extortion of a total of $2,300 on three occasions from Homer Knappenberger, former mayor of Earlsville, born oil fields. The other counts were dismissed. The count on which he pleaded guilty charged he accepted $805 from Knappenberger during Gordon's investigation of vice conditions in the Seminole-Pottawatomie oil fields.

Knappenberger testified at the Pottawatomie county liquor conspiracy trial here last winter he had paid the money to Gordon to avert prosecution after the state officer had discovered Knappenberger and other city officers were accepting protection money from bootleggers.

Gordon resigned from the state office after Knappenberger's revelation.

LLANO, Tex., Oct. 7 (AP)—Llano river was falling today, after a rise of 22 feet yesterday. Traffic west of here still was blocked by high water.

Soon afterward Mr. Lancaster and his organization were set up and a great forward movement began. More cars were moved more quickly over heavier rails, rock ballasted.

T. & P. Records

During the past year the Texas & Pacific set a record of moving freight cars more miles per day than any other railroad and of burning less fuel per 1,000 miles than any other, Mr. Crouse said.

"It was largely through the loyal work of the mechanics that this was possible," said the speaker.

Mr. Crouse told of the designing, largely by T. & P. men, of the "Texas Type" locomotive and of the purchase of ten at a cost of more than $100,000 each. Since that time more than 50 other locomotives have been bought. It was the "Texas Type" that put the road in first rank in car movement and fuel consumption, he said.

The convention continued through Tuesday, election of officers being on the program as a major item of business.

Woman Married Through Want Ad Reported Missing

CHICAGO, Oct. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, who met a man through a want ad and borrowed $500 to marry him last June 16, has vanished.

In the Lac Du Flambeau region of Wisconsin where she went on her honeymoon, a woman's body has been found. It is yet unidentified, but it may be Mrs. Hackett's.

The man she married, George W. E. Perry, is missing, too. But he made one appearance during the time he was presumed to be on his honeymoon. That appearance was in Cleveland, O., at the home of his first wife, his only legal wife, authorities say. He was driving a tan-colored sedan, and he was alone; and Mrs. Hackett owned a tan-colored sedan.

The woman that Mrs. Hackett, 42 years old, answered was for a woman companion on a trip to California. She went to the address given and met Perry. He said his mother was wealthy; that she regarded him as a spendthrift; but that she was prepared to set him up in business provided he would settle down. He suggested he was ready to settle down; and he proposed marriage. Mrs. Hackett accepted.

Needed $500
Perry needed $500 for the journey to his mother in California. Mrs. Hackett, her friends revealed, borrowed that sum at a loan bank although she was understood to be in comfortable circumstances and a property owner.

They were married in mid-June and left for the Lac Du Flambeau region on their honeymoon. Letters from Mrs. Hackett to Chicago friends indicated she was happy. Then the letters and postcards stopped.

In early July Perry drove a tan-colored sedan up to the house of Mrs. Katharine Gebhardt Perry in Cleveland. He had several suitcases and bags containing women's clothing. He said the clothing had been given him by his "sunt," a Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett.

Shortly afterward Perry left Cleveland and he was going to Texas, Mrs. Perry has not heard from him since.

Not Aunt
In a book found among the "wanting aunt's" effects, Mrs. Perry discovered the address of Mrs. W. H. Rogers of Chicago. She wrote in curiosity, inquiring about Mrs. Hackett—Mrs. Perry's aunt. Mrs. Rogers replied that Mrs. Hackett was not Perry's aunt but his wife.

Meanwhile Mrs. Hackett's sister in New York, Miss Peggy Young, became concerned over her failure to hear from Mrs. Hackett. She engaged counsel to investigate.

Chicago police thus have been interested. They report the fact that Mrs. Hackett and Perry were last heard from in the Lac Du Flambeau region as significant, especially in view of the discovery of a woman's body here.

The sheriff of Vilas county, Wisconsin, said no woman had been reported missing in that section. The clothing in which the body was dressed was a riding habit recognized as a Chicago style.

The body corresponds in general to Mrs. Hackett's description.

A general message went out to all police officers today to watch for the tan-colored sedan. Perry also is wanted for questioning.

area, including both light and heavy oils, was 2,261,567 barrels, an increase of 4,208. While Oklahoma and Kansas showed small declines, other areas registered gains. Oklahoma production was down 640 barrels at 557,583 and Kansas had a loss of 685 at 415,747 barrels. West Texas, with an output of 271,134 barrels, a gain of 3,128, and North Central Texas, with a gain of 1,287,741, 103,988 barrels, accounted largely for the moderate increase.

Eastern production was unchanged at 118,690 barrels; Rocky Mountain production was 113,719, an increase of 1,208 barrels; and California production, including both light and heavy oils, was down 2,750 at 587,900 barrels.

It is just as necessary for one as for the other, to prevent the evaporation of the fragrant volatile oils that give them both their flavor. The West discovered how to preserve coffee flavor in vacuum. And the West has found the proper process for tea, but it still remains exclusive to the originator—Schilling. It is literally the only fresh tea you can buy.

Single Grave For Dirigible Blast Victims

30,000 See Procession Of Forty-Seven Caissons Start Seaward

BEAUNVAIS, France, Oct. 7 (AP)—Thirty thousand persons, from Beaunvais and the countryside hereabout, lined the streets of this little city today as a procession of caissons bearing the 47 bodies of victims of the R-101 disaster were taken from Beaunvais city hall to the railroad station.

They were put reverentially on a special train which takes them today to Boulogne-sur-Mer where they will be placed aboard the destroyer Tempest and Tribune for the trip across the channel to England and an eternal resting place in a single grave.

Thirty French airplanes and a squadron of British airplanes hovered low over the procession as it wended its way to the railway station, sometimes swooping so low as to scatter the frightened crowds. Troops stood at each side of the caissons' route.

Each caisson was covered with a British and French flag and bouquets of flowers, most of them wild flowers picked by the passants.

After consultation with the British government it was decided to abandon the plan of a memorial service in the historic cathedral Saint Pierre, since it was not known to what denomination the victims belonged.

As the coffins were taken from the city hall and placed on the caissons Premier Lardieu of France and Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India in the British cabinet, stood with uncovered heads. Earlier in the morning a storm broke over the town. Hailstones as large as eggs beat at the mourning-bedecked city, and forced the thousands who had gathered to participate in the memorial ceremony to seek shelter.

The artillery caissons which rumbled along to the strains of "God Save the King" ranged from those of the famous French "seventy fives" to the big siege guns of King Louis XIV. By the time the cortege reached the railway station, where there was an imposing honorary guard, all the caissons were draped with flowers which passants and others had laid upon them.

Officially, at least, the number of those to die in the disaster has been settled. Air Commander E. V. Holt, in charge of British investigation of the catastrophe, when supervising transfer of the bodies from pine shells to oak caskets, found that two pine shells held what were believed to be parts of the same body, previously identified as two corpses.

The body, badly burned, had fallen apart when relieved from the oak casket and had been mistaken as two. The discovery made it appear that only 46 persons died originally in the crash. There were eight survivors, of whom one died yesterday, the total 54, conforming with the air ministry's total of 54 aboard ship.

The discovery apparently disposed of the theory of an "oneway board" which police, unable to explain the "extra bodies," believed yesterday to have been the cause. The ruins gave no further clue to the significance of a woman's burned body, with buckle attached, which was found in the debris. It was suggested it might have been a suggestion of a romantic adventure carried by one of the crew of passengers.
