Although Changsha has been evacuated by most of the Communist forces, a few machine guns and small field pieces were still in action there under direction of the raiding forces.

Man Is Held On Robbery Charge

BRADY, Tex., Aug. 5—Because he overlooked the small matter of a woman's eye for details, a man identified as a bandit was held in here today to await action of the grand jury.

Armed, he entered the McDonald filling station in Melvin, 18 miles west of here, and forced Mrs. McDonald to hand over the money sack. He secured $69 in the act.

As he fled in a coupe, she noted the car license number and sounded the alarm. By means of the number a posse was able to locate the machine, and the driver surrendered after two bullets whistled through the auto top.

Mrs. McDonald identified him as the filling station bandit.

Approximately 200 Men Will Be Used On Pipeline

Construction of 16 Miles of 12-Inch Welded Line From Pueblo Field to Ranger Is Under Way.

A force of more than 100 additional men has been put to work by the Lone Star Gas company coincident with the beginning of work upon laying a new 12-inch gathering line from the Lake Cisco gas field to the company's Ranger plant No. 4, northwest of Ranger about 5 miles.

A total force of about 200 men will be employed upon this project which will require something like five weeks to finish.

Pipe for the line was unloaded recently, together with a large ditching machine with which the ditch will be excavated. This machine and the force of men engaged in laying the pipe are now employed in the vicinity of Eastland, this in a sector in which there were already two large gas wells.

Other wells are now under way as the company carries on a systematic exploitation of the large gas resources which the section has revealed. This section covers practically the entire northwestern corner of the county embracing many square miles of proven or semi-proven acreage.

The new gathering line, which will carry production from what is known as the Pueblo field northwest of Cisco eight miles, will be approximately 16 miles long and will have its western terminus near the company's Pueblo plant. It will be a welded, 12-inch line.

Weather And Crops

CHICAGO, Aug. 5—Sizzling heat that popped corn in Texas, baked apples on Kansas trees, and dried up water reserves in cities from the Rocky Mountains to the eastern slopes of the Alleghenies held on with torrid tenacity in two-thirds of the United States today.

Local thundershowers which brought temporary relief to some parts of the country were too late to prevent the economic disaster which the protracted drought had brought to the farmers with total losses estimated as high as half a billion dollars.

Chicago and vicinity was promised "comfortably cool" weather for today, but forecasters predicted the northwest wind which brought the temperature drop here would not extend far from the Great Lakes and for the remainder of the heat exposed sections little relief was expected.

Showers were possible in some of the affected areas, it was said, but in most others there was no escape in sight from the scorching sun and arid winds which have claimed approximately three score lives since Aug. 1.

Heat waves played strange pranks in "hazy" Kansas, as while agarian leaders sought by radio and public statement to instruct their followers in tricks of marketing and management to prevent further losses.

Alexander Legke of the Federal Farm Board advised farmers to feed low-priced wheat to livestock as long as pasture lands remain parched. Louis J. Taber of the National Grange called for lower freight rates and easier credit to enable farmers to ship their cattle out of drought areas.

Residents of Kansas compared their crop damage to that caused by the great grasshopper plagues of pioneer days. In Oklahoma and Tennessee, cotton fields were literally burning up after five weeks without rain.

Eastern Missourians slaughtered their cattle rather than let them lose weight or die of thirst and hunger in baking pastures. Bee keepers in that region also suffered heavy losses when bees returned to their hives in the absence of

Today With The Endurance Fliers

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 5—Ted Lundgren, navigator and inventor en route to New York from where he expected to start a round the world flight on Friday with Roger Q. Williams, took off from the airport here at 6 a. m. today.

He said he had not decided where his next stop would be, but intimated that he might go to Cleveland.

The noted aviator came down at the local airport early last night. All was well with the plane and pilot.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 5—Plans for a non-stop flight from Mexico to Tokyo sometime in September were announced here today by Albert Calsaditas, Mexican aviator, who said the Mexican Institute of Aviation, the Mexican press and students of the country were backing the project.

Vere Scheuneman, Oceanside, Calif., aviator, will be co-pilot, Calsaditas said. The flight calls for refueling over the Hawaiian Islands after taking off from a three-miles runway near Tia Juana.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5—The world's airplane speed record for women was claimed today by Mrs. Florence Lowe Barnes, Pasadena aviatrix, as the result of a flight in which she was timed at an average of 196.16 miles an hour over a measured mile course.

Mrs. Barnes wrested the speed crown from Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic aviatrix, who set a record of 184.5 miles an hour here a year ago.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5—The endurance monoplane, "Greater St. Louis," soared high today after its pilots threw the ground crew into a scare by announcing over their radio, "It's all over, the motor has quit."

The message turned out to be a hoax—O'Brien had cut off the motor switch while Jackson was at the controls.

At 6:11 a. m. (CST) the "Greater St. Louis" had been aloft 359 hours.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 5—Final tests on a Curtiss-Challenger Robin monoplane which is to take the air at 6:55 a. m. tomorrow on a proposed 1000 hour endurance refueling flight were made at Tulsa today.

The plane was to arrive here late today to await the take-off.

The plane will be piloted by Roy French and Elmer Dodson. Timmy Shier and Bill Bleakley will fly the refueling plane.

Convention Meets Wednesday For 3 Full Day Session

Program Will Begin Wednesday Morning With Registration of Members at the County Courthouse.

J. W. Allen of Elks City, Oklahoma; C. M. Grady of Brownwood; A. L. McCoy of San Saba; C. E. Robinson of Oakland, California; and J. D. Milton of Fairbanks, Arizona, formed the vanguard of Ex-Texas Rangers arriving in Eastland for the eleventh annual convention which opens here Wednesday. Mr. Milton is accompanied by his wife and Mr. Grady is accompanied by his brother, W. E. Grady, also of Brownwood. A number of other members of the association were expected this afternoon and by tomorrow most of the members who will attend the three day meeting were expected to be here.

The convention will open Wednesday morning with the registration of members at the Eastland county courthouse. A place will be arranged so the members may register in the lobby on the ground floor of the building.

The committee on reception, which is composed of Judge C. L. Garrett, Judge W. P. Leslie, Judge Tom J. Cunningham, Judge Jim Steele, Mayor Perry Sayles, City Manager H. O. Tatum, and H. L. Vann, will be on hand to meet the visitors when they appear at the courthouse.

Many of the Ex-Rangers, it is stated, will bring their cots, and bedding rolls. These will be quartered in the City Park on the high hill in the southwestern portion of the city overlooking the town and surrounding country. From this point the old Rangers, as they sit about the old Ranger camp, may look out over the scenes of much of their activities for it was in this section that many of them did a great deal of work. The city of Ranger, ten miles east of Eastland, was named from a camp the Rangers maintained in a valley near where the city now stands, many years ago.

The number of the old time Ex-Rangers is growing smaller every day and Eastland is glad to have this opportunity of entertaining them.

Dallas Woman Is Held For Murder

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 5—Mrs. Leona Broadnax was indicted today by the county grand jury here for the murder in the slaying of her former husband, W. R. Broadnax, who was found shot to death in his bed last June 22. The woman was released on $15,000 bond.

The body of her husband lay in the bed of his room at 2301 Haskell from 11:30 one Sunday morning until mid-afternoon, officers said. Although Mrs. Broadnax maintained a strict silence following the murder, officers are in possession of a pistol she released to them.

Broadnax left an estate estimated at $89,903.39, of which $40,183.64 was cash. Mrs. Broadnax was named sole heir, although attorneys representing the murdered man have secured division of the estate.

Kaw Indian Is Charged With Murdering Brother

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Aug. 5—Fred Monroe, a Kaw Indian, was charged with murder today in the death of his 20-year-old brother.

Monroe is accused of running over his brother with an automobile purposely and then placing the body on the railroad tracks where it was mangled by a train.

Two other Indians, Sid Peppard and Joe Mendoka, and Raymond Smith, were held as accomplices.

The victim's body was found July 1.

With the three other men, the Monroe brothers had started from Kaw City to Fairfax, police said. They quarreled when the Monroes wanted to get more whisky and the other wanted to see some girls, with the result that Joe got out of the car and started to walk, offering his brother a gun.

This infuriated Fred and he ran down his brother. The body was placed on the tracks near Kaw City, according to the charge.

To Conduct Revival

Rev. Lon I. Woodruff, who is conducting a revival at Union, southeast of Eastland, will go to Clarette, near Dublin, Wednesday where he will conduct a meeting.

Coast Guardsman Is Shot To Death

SALISBURY BEACH, Mass., Aug. 5—Machine gun bullets which killed Louis A. Pratt, 30, coast guard boatswain's mate, first class, while he was on duty off the Massachusetts coast last night, were fired from another coast guard craft, it was announced here today.

IPSWICH, Mass., Aug. 5—Louis A. Pratt, 35, a coast guard, died at Cape Hospital here today, supposedly the victim of run rammers.

He had been mortally wounded last night by bullets fired from an unidentified craft while on an errand of mercy off the northern Massachusetts coast.

At the time of the shooting, Pratt, accompanied by coast guardsmen Cleo Faulkingham of the Plum Island base, was searching the darkened waters for two Winthrop men who had been reported helplessly adrift in a frail boat.

The two coast guards had conducted their hunt for some time in vain when they came upon an unidentified and lightless craft. As the two boats drew together, a series of shots, apparently from a machine gun, were fired from the suspected run runner.

HOOPER FINDS WAY TO FINANCE COMS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—President Hoover's secret as to how he finances the activities of his un-official commissions was disclosed today.

The United Press learned the President raised $250,000 for the recent Child Health Commission and is now raising $250,000 more for the forthcoming White House conference on home building and home ownership, the money having already been promised.

These sums together with various smaller amounts make a total of between $600,000 and $700,000 which Mr. Hoover has collected by private subscription.

The major portion of the sums were contributed by the Carnegie Foundation and the Rockefeller Institute, both endowed philanthropic organizations. The Russell Sage foundation also has made a contribution. The President himself has made smaller contributions.

The White House declined to discuss or comment upon the disclosure. Mr. Hoover has steadfastly maintained reticence about the methods by which he has followed the unusual policy of establishing unofficial commissions to promote unofficial public welfare work.

No other president interposed upon any similar policy upon such a broad scale.

In announcing the calling of the Home Building conference, the President merely said: "Funds have been provided privately to cover the entire research and other activities of the conference."

Invitations now are being sent from the White House to 19 organizations to send representatives to a planning committee meeting at an early date to arrange for the conference. It is Mr. Hoover's purpose to deal with the whole broad question of home construction and home ownership, embracing questions of finance, design, equipment, city planning and transportation.

Those invited include the savings bank division of the American Bankers Association, the League of Building and Loan Associations, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, the National Association of Home Estate Boards, the American Federation of Labor and the Farm Bureau Federation.

The planning committee and the conference are expected to work quietly and without public attention in accordance with the President's desires, as did the Child Welfare Conference which has not yet divulged either its work or its recommendations.

Big Passenger Plane Battles Storm

Ships that sail the skies have their troubles with storms, just like those that sail the oceans. This giant $75,000 amphibian plane, carrying nine New York golfers to the National Open Tournament at Minneapolis, was forced down on Lake Ontario near Rochester, N. Y., and nearly wrecked by a 55-mile gale that battered it against the docks. U. S. coast guards towed the airplane to safety two miles off shore. U. S. Chief Mechanic Art Simpson, member of the crew of four, is shown pumping water out of the passenger cabin.

Someone in the crowd had a terrier, and the frog showed plenty of fight after the dog growled at it.

The bull frog suddenly grew to several times its normal size, according to Parrott, and was perfectly willing to fight the dog whose owner decided the frog was too unusual an "animal" for his dog to fight.

Ferguson Replies To Attacks On Himself And 'Ma'

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 5.—Former governor Jim Ferguson today replied to attacks upon him and Mrs. Ferguson which began at Ross Sterling and Governor Dan Moody.

"Knowing Sterling for 25 years as I have, I can't stay very mad very long when I read his tirade against me, for I know it is all being furnished and paid for in some such an inch," said Ferguson.

"Dan Moody, as I remember that Dan Moody at his inauguration used the expression that 'righteousness exalteth a nation.' So when I saw the same identical words in Ross Sterling's tirade, I just could not keep down a real 'horse laugh' and I had on a limb and saved it off between him and the tree." He added that Sterling couldn't define either righteousness or exalteth either looking in the dictionary.

"Ferguson will get awful mad," Ferguson said "when somebody calls his attention to the fact that when (Felix) Robertson and (George) Butte were making the same charges against my wife of being a proxy candidate for me in 1923 that his political son, Dan Moody, was voting for me and begging me to support him for attorney general. They are just taking poor Sterling's money on a chalk mark and it is a measly shame.

"No matter what they say about my good wife, if I should die tomorrow, I know and everyone else knows, she is far superior and would make a better governor than Sterling could ever hope to make.

"Let him or them rave, God has given me courage and power to forgive them all."

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 5.—With the acclaim of every faction of Texas Democracy save one—Fergusonites—ringing in his ears, Ross Sterling of Houston today went about his plans for being elected governor of Texas.

From the vast confines and far reaches of the state came Sterling standard bearers to coordinate a statewide campaign sponsoring his candidacy yesterday. All came to sing the praises of the Houston publisher and to denounce his opposition in the Democratic runoff primary, James E. and Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson—"two governors for the price of one."

Ferguson was pictured as a menace, once-felt and threatening to return. Unanimously the numerous speakers agreed that the issue in the run-off was honesty in government and the possibility of a return of the Fergusones to power.

Republican Leaders Hear Huston Promise to Resign

impassioned tirades was climaxed by Sterling's own appearance on the platform in the afternoon. He sounded the keynote of his campaign with the assertion: "No issue will count for anything if Ferguson gets into office behind his wife's skirts."

He will plunge immediately into his campaign with an address at Hillsboro Friday night, Gov. Dan Moody will speak for him at White Plains on Thursday night.

Charged With Forgery
DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 5.—Charges of forgery were made against Jerome H. Owens here today, after his arrest in Eastland, La. Monday. Owens is alleged to have forged the signature of L. L. W. Coleman, Breckenridge oil man, for amounts varying from $10 to $2,045.

Texas holds on to fifth place in population among the states in the 1930 census. "Third state 1940" is the slogan of the Council of Regional Chambers of Commerce, planning a campaign to advertise Texas to the world.

live with her—that is, if things work out right."
Her name, Anne said, was Mona Morrison. "She's adorable, Dan; we became friendly right away. She has the loveliest, red hair—almost like Clara Bow's—and she's so cheerful and funny. She's cute!"
"Where's she from?" said Rori-

mer. "Remember, I'm responsible to Ziggy Young for you, and if you go around making friends you've got to tell me all about them."
"Yes, sir," Anne made a funny face; serious, like a little girl talking orders from her father. And she spoke in a tiny little voice.
"How old are you, anyway, little girl?" he said sternly.
"Nine," she said, in the same little voice.
"No fooling."
"No fooling," Anne said, "Twenty-one."
"And I'll soon be thirty. I'm your uncle—understand? Now go on and tell me about Mona. I'm jealous, but go ahead."
Well, Anne said, Mona was from Chicago. "She has been in Hollywood almost a year. She told me all about herself. She won a beauty contest in Chicago, and made a few stage appearances in movie theaters and that sort of thing. She has some relatives in San Diego, and when they drove East last year Mona came back with them. She's crazy about pictures. Oh, you'll like her, Dan!"
"And you think you and Mona will hit it off together?"
"I'm sure we would. The only thing—well, you see, Mona is living with a girl now, named Eva Harley. They have an apartment and they've seen the cutest little bungalow, but the rent is too much for the two of them and Mona thinks it would be grand if the three of us took it together. It has five rooms."
Dan asked her if she had met Eva Harley. He really did feel a little jealous.
"No—nor the bungalow either." She added that she would see both the next evening. "Mona has invited me to their apartment for dinner. Eva isn't working, and she's going to cook it."
"Is Eva an extra, too?"
"Yes, Mona says she's beautiful—a blond."
"I don't like blonds," said Dan. "I like brunets from Oklahoma."
"Anne, holding her chin in her hand, laughed. "Dan, you're so absurd!"
He laughed with her, and lit another cigaret, and listened with her to the sound of the water on

Two Fishermen In Unusual Experience

RANGER, Texas, Aug. 5.—A party of Ranger fishermen have returned from a trip to the Rio Grande. In the group were J. C. Smith, John Tibbles, Felton Brasher, Peck C. Cox, Roy Jameson and Roy Jameson Jr.
The trip was enlivened by one especially interesting experience when two members of the group went out in a canvas boat to look at a trout line. When one of the men tried to pull in a big fish, the creature raved a mighty tug and the boat, already low in the water, listed and began to sink.
The two fishermen made their way to shore after one had gathered up the collapsed boat and the floor planks and oars which scattered widely over the river, and the cigar that one of the men had been smoking was still in his mouth and was burning when he reached the bank.
LUFKIN, Tex., Aug. 5.—Two men were instantly killed by a lightning bolt during a severe rain and electrical storm 20 miles east of here late Monday. The victims were Bud Snowden, 29, and Barto Snowden, 17. They with three companions were approaching a shed on the Jim Hogg highway to seek shelter from the storm which overtook them as they picked cotton.

FAMILY MENU

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer
SUMMER entertaining is usually informal and while the refreshments seldom are elaborate, they always are perfect to the last detail.
Luncheon or afternoon tea demands something out-of-the-ordinary and interesting but not fussy or pretentious. For luncheon, jellied bouillon or a chilled fruit soup, salad and dessert with a beverage leaves little to be desired. For tea, a salad with sandwiches and a beverage is really refreshing and satisfying. The salad which does double duty as both salad and dessert is particularly alluring for the summer luncheon or tea. It simplifies serving, an item always worth considering, and has a more cooling effect than the sweet dessert.
A dessert salad is at its best jellied or frozen. Either of these forms is attractive. A variation of the frozen salad uses a frozen dressing. This is particularly desirable when a large number of persons must be served. A pear or peach stuffed with a frozen cheese dressing is delicious and festive.
Ready for Guests
Frozen or jellied salads must be made hours before wanted and all ready to serve when the guests arrive without additional work. They may be chilled or frozen in an iceless refrigerator without any labor or they can be packed in ice and salt and frozen without stirring.
Although the most successful salads have salad dressing folded

The Aisne, Hinge Of World War Makes Rapid Reconstruction

By JOHN WHITE
United Press Staff Correspondent
LAON, France, Aug. 5.—The French General Staff spoke of the Aisne as "The Hinge" during the war. For three-fourths of the operations on the western front it served that purpose. The furthest point of German penetration, both in 1914 and 1918, was in the Aisne, whose peninsulaur tip reaches the Marne at Chateau-Thierry.
Under the circumstances, it could not but have suffered more severely than some of its neighbors. Indeed, its most inconspicuous clump of wood achieved doubtful fame. In the northwest lies the industrial city of Saint Quentin with its famous canal and tunnel. In the lower center are the salt mines of Soissons. Between the two runs the fortuitous Chemin-des-Dames. The Aisne is the one department which attests impartially to deeds of bravery of four armies—French, Belgian, British and American.
Though the evidences, both in reconstruction and the lack of it, are everywhere, M. Gaussergues, prefect of the department, cheerfully furnished concrete figures.
There were 225,000 families driven from their homes, most of them destroyed; 51,000 homes completely obliterated; 60,000 others damaged; but left standing in whole or in part; 1,238,000 acres out of a total of 1,484,000 in the department rendered unutilizable; $600,000,000 as the war bill to be paid.
Happily most of that bill has been footed. But what is even more remarkable is the fact that the estimates were high enough to more than replace, in each instance, the 225,000 families whom shells deprived of shelter have come back to infinitely better homes than they left. Three-story houses have replaced crumbling two-story affairs. Fine new factories have sprung up where no factories were before. Municipal and departmental buildings are not reproductions of those destroyed, but amazing departures, expressing the latest word in modern architecture.
But there was money left over, even so, and this has been wisely spent in public improvements such as elimination of grade-crossings, construction of new highways, sewers, telephone and telegraph lines, municipal parks and playgrounds, and many other things peaceful though it was, and fairly prosperous.
Beyond this, the Aisne today reflects the same prosperity which characterizes a wide-awake France which did not have to pay one penny of its own losses, and consequently had the chance to force ahead in the economic campaign which followed the war.
This city, the chef-lieu, perched atop a little hill and built in the shape of a giant horseshoe, is a place of beautiful parks and handsome shops and hotels. On the terrace of the most popular cafe in the city, situated in the place of the cathedral, three German students sip beer and blink in the sun. Sixteen years ago their then Emperor sat here, also sipping. But it was not beer, nor was the building behind him the same one.
Yet traces of the war remain, in striking contrast to the rest. The department is replete with cemeteries and memorials, and near these and in the woods about, the trenches have been allowed to fall into slow decay, but the interferences of human hands. At Saint Quentin the tunnel still bears the numberless names of British, French and American, as well as German soldiers who crouched there waiting for the attack. The Chemin-des-Dames, the Germans were not going back to Berlin after the first Marne. At Noyan Neville found that the "road of the ladies"

DON SMITH WINS THE HILLCLIMB

RANGER, Texas, Aug. 5.—It's the same old story, folks. Don Smith, the "flying Dutchman," captured the highest honors at the Metcalf Gap motorcycle hillclimb Sunday afternoon. It has gotten to be a habit with Don to win all the first places in sight. In the first contest Sunday he went over the hill, the only rider to accomplish this. In the second contest, he had to be content with 317 feet, but that was sufficient for first place.

He captured $200 in prize money, won two loving cups—one offered here and the other for which he tied in Colorado some weeks ago—and gained the right to take part in the national hillclimb championship at Muskogon, Okla., for Sunday's contest was the divisional championship.

Rural Murry of Ranger, who is usually next to the flying Dutchman—and once captured a first place against Smith—took a second and a third and Ray Newman of Tulsa, Okla., won a third and a second.

In the amateur event, Loal Smith, brother of Don, was first. Loal is from Phoenix, Ariz. His celebrated brother is from Fort Worth but formerly lived in Oklahoma. Tom Hankin of Tulsa was second in the amateur event and Joe Giba of Denver was third. Giba tied Don some weeks ago in a contest in Colorado and it was decided that the loving cup offered there should be given to Smith or Giba on the basis of their showings at Metcalf Gap so Smith won this cup as well as the one offered Sunday.

There was a large crowd and it would have been larger had it not been for the heat. The numerous riders gave the throng plenty of thrills and the events were very successful.

Ramsey earned $133.64 from January to June by operating the motion picture machine in the college Y.M.C.A. His grandmother received $20 each month.

"To our President, Herbert Hoover, from the author, William J. Marsh, Jr., New Milford, Conn., July, 1930, age 11 years." That's the inscription in the book presented to the Chief Executive by Billy Marsh, left, who wrote a biography of Mr. Hoover and printed it at home with the aid of his brother Charles, shown at right. After this meeting on the south lawn of the White House, the boys were shown about inside, where they met Mrs. Hoover and gave her one of the books. "They're the greatest people in the world," gasped Billy, and Charles was too moved for words.

Things You Never Will Find Out

AVERAGES in sports answer a great number of questions. So do performance figures. But there are thousands of things you never will find out—and these are the basis and starting point of those arguments they call the sports department about in the wee hours of the morning.

There is quite a debate raging here and there in America now about the world's heavyweight championship. Many of the people who saw the Sharkey-Schmeling thing in Yankee Stadium stoutly declare the German would have come on to win. On the other side are those who think Max was just about through when he sat on the floor holding his groin. There is just as much chance of settling that one as there is of conclusively demonstrating that Jack Dempsey would have knocked out Jack Johnson, taking them both at their best.

The Horse Quarrel

THERE are still people around the race tracks who deem Whichever a better horse than Gallant Fox, though Fox beat the One in their only meeting as 2-year-olds. Shortly after their race, Whichever developed a quarter crack in training. The followers of the Whitney horse say he was off his oats the day the Fox showed him many heels.

There are legions of close followers of sports to whom one decision is not conclusive. They are able to summon excuses. Some of this band clung to the banner of Dempsey after Tanney laced the Mauler at Philly. And they are still clinging to the Dempsey cause, with a pretty sound claim to the effect that Gene was knocked out in Chicago. For that matter, the woods are still full of determined souls who will tell you right now that John L. Sullivan was a better man than Jim Corbett.

The Ball and the Pitchers

THERE is the debate about pitchers and the lively ball. It goes on and on and there never will be an answer. Pittsburgh has thousands of folk who are positive Hans Wagner would have batted .750 right through the season with the

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

AMERICAN defense of the America's Cup has cost about seven millions. . . . Sir Thomas has spent about three millions trying to cap the container. . . . The tragedy of Al Lassman, who drowned in a Maine lake recently after two years of suffering, is one of sports' saddest. . . . he played football about the world's heavyweight championship. Many of the people who saw the Sharkey-Schmeling thing in Yankee Stadium stoutly declare the German would have come on to win. . . . was seriously hurt in the Carnegie Tech-N. Y. U. battle at Pittsburgh in '28. . . . was nearly dead for months. . . . rallied, but his mind seemed affected. . . . fought with everything he had. . . . his mother had worked hard to give him an education. . . . his drowning, of course, was accidental. . . . any other verdict is unacceptable because Al Lassman had a fighting heart.

umpitious baseball now in use. Just as many thousands of others say there is no more good pitching, and that Mazy was just as effective today as he was in the old days, even though the sphere they toss up there now may be slightly more animated.

Now and then some little body of willful men issue the proclamation that Notre Dame wouldn't have gone through the season undefeated had it been tested in there against the Pitt Panther. Another stridently minded sector comes up triumphantly clutching the crushing defeat Southern California administered to the moleskin mighties from Pittsburgh and pointing to Notre Dame's victory over the team that gave Pitt such a thorough tonquering. But the little body of willful men merely replies, "Bah! Comparative scores!"

However, the fact that Bobby Jones is a golf player seems to go unquestioned. Nobody arises to say that Jones is just lucky or that he's a girl's darling weakness in his play. There would be too many general him down.
