'Shop in County' Project Launched in Campaign

Five concepts for community and business development were presented to a group of businessmen and women at a seminar sponsored by this newspaper.

Louis W. Capone of Austin who conducted the luncheon meeting said that this area has the potential to grow into any kind of community the citizens want, providing they want it badly enough and providing they become enthusiastic about doing something.

"Nothing happens until somebody gets excited", he said. He urged the group to plan to attract the young adults who now seek smaller cities in which to raise their children because the metropolitan areas of the country have so many insoluble problems.

The five concepts he outlined are: The residents can make into their own kind of model city. Attract industry if it concentrates on small companies that employ 25 or less.

REYSCHLAG INSURANCE presents THE WEATHER Eastland and Vicinity - Fair warm and hazy this afternoon, tonight and tomorrow. High today lower 90s.

The creation and development of a museum or other tourist attractions will cause travelers to stop here one or more days.

The residents and businessmen can create a favorable image for the city. Promotion and development of the entire city as a giant shopping center.

"The businessmen must take the initiative to make things happen that will benefit the entire city," Capone told the group, "and signs, billboards and other unsightly areas at the entrance highways of the city should be your first concern for developing a better image."

Another seminar on Personality, Charm and Sales for businessmen and their employees will be held early in September.

This second seminar to be conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Capone is also sponsored by the newspaper.

The two meetings are a part of a program of the newspaper to help promote Eastland as a community and as the best trade center of its area.

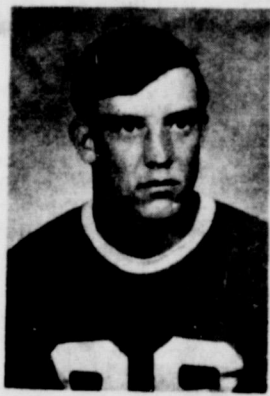

Purpose of the program is to enhance the image as a shopping and business center; to develop better relations among members of the business community and to help the salespeople provide better service and sales assistance for the customer.

Could Be Murder

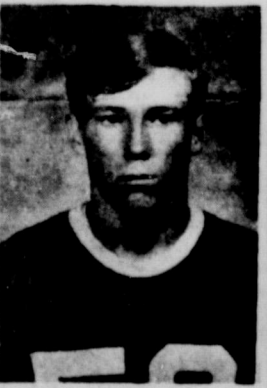

James Eidson - T E

Gil Gaeta - Nose G

Craig Lund - QB

Mike Jones - C

The big question being posed by Eastland backers is whether the knee of stand-out quarterback Craig Lund is completely mended. If it is, District 8-AA rivals had best dig in. If not, Coach Shiley Frazier and Co., might have to do some twelfth hour scrambling.

Lund, a 6-2, 190-pound left-hander who performed well enough in his first seven games to earn All-District and All-Area honors, underwent post-season surgery and indications are that all is well. But, as Frazier points out, only competitive contact will tell for sure.

Lund is one of 14 returning lettermen on the Maverick roster. Seven offensive starters and eight defensive regulars return — and all but defensive end Steve Lopez are seniors, lending a great deal of experience to the '71 hopes.

"We feel we should have a pretty good defensive football team," Frazier points out, "and if all goes well our offensive unit could perform well. Our major weakness is a lack of depth in the offensive line and the fact that we lost both defensive tackles."

The entire backfield returns with Lund at the helm, directing All-District and All-Area wingback Randy Rexroat (160), tailback Ruben Gaeta (165) and fullback Ronald McCleskey (165).

A pair of All-District ends, James Eidson (TE, 190) and Bob Mace (SE, 140) return in the line along with regular center Mike Jones (180).

Defensively, Frazier welcomes back line-backers Scott Miller (140), Joe Herrera (140) and McCluskey along with ends Eidson and Lopez (150), halfbacks Rexroat and Mace and nose guard Gil Gaeta (190).

New faces which are being counted on to fill some of the vacated offensive spots include guard Gil Gaeta and 220-pound tackle Rodney Reynolds.

Jones, who played only offense last year, may well find himself a two-way performer this fall, filling one of the defensive tackle spots along with 180-pound senior Jim Moseley, a second teamer last season.

In brief, the Mavericks could be strong contenders if a couple of key players come through. And there is good reason to believe they will.

50th ANNIVERSARY

This fall will be a memorable date in Eastland history. It will be the fiftieth anniversary of the adoption of MAVERICK as the name for Eastland High School athletic teams. You may be aware of this anniversary, but as a letterman of the first Maverick teams (track and football) I wanted to be sure it did not get by unnoticed.

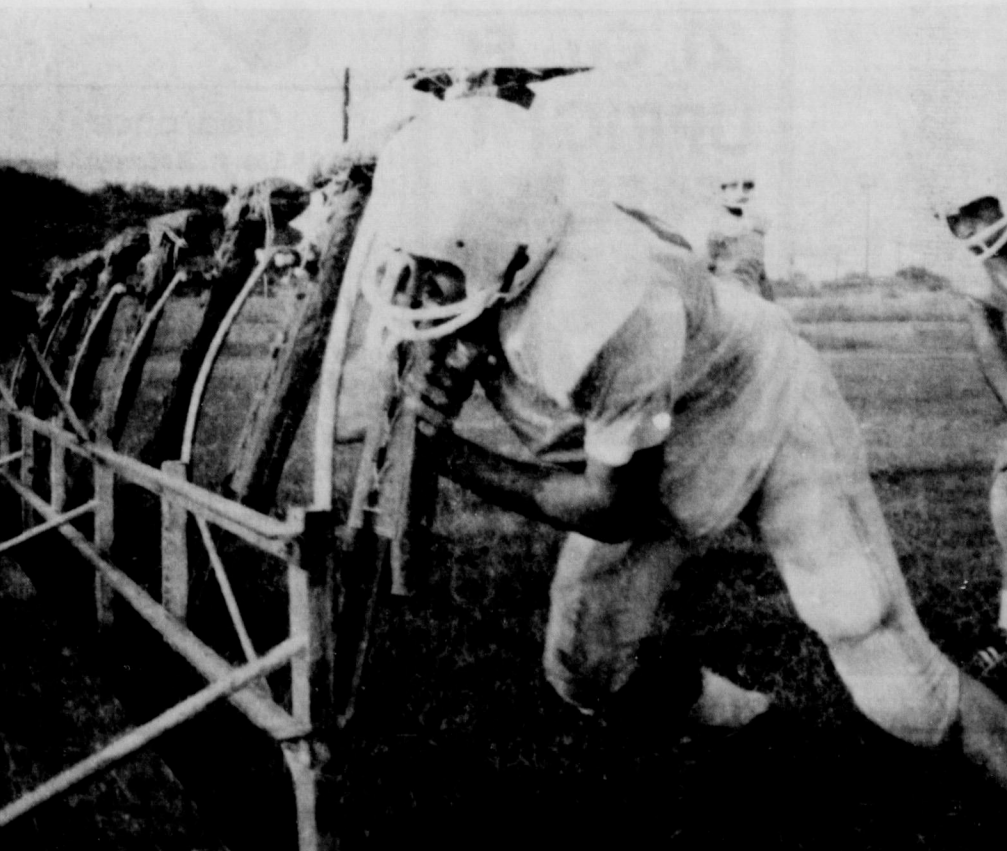

A special feature in the Telegram at the start of the season coming up may inspire the Mavericks to their first state championship.

A few facts I remember: At a school assembly in the fall of 1921 several names were suggested. Howard S. Parker, our football coach, submitted the name Maverick and pointed out in his speech the fine qualities of a Maverick which would inspire our teams. His proposal was unanimously adopted. Mr. Parker went to Cleburne from Eastland where he was a very successful football coach for many years. First year Mavericks I know of are Artie Liles and Judge Earl Conner in Eastland and Bert Williams and me in Ft. Worth. Bert's mother and sister live on South Seaman.

First year letter men were awarded a black blanket with Maverick head in red applied. I donated mine to the High School trophy exhibit before the 1970 reunion and it along with my second and third year sweaters were on display.

Willie Speaker was there, too, back in those days. It was good to see you again last Friday.

Sincerely, Homer Mitchell

Reality Missing Link on Interstate Routes

By FRED BRUNNING
Associated Press Writer
For two weeks last month we surged through America and, now that the motor has cooled and there is no money to get the color film developed, I am wondering was it worth it?

The acknowledged purpose of the trip was to reach Colorado, and, on the way, visit the friends and family who have managed to scatter themselves around the country. But, in the back of our minds, I think we also had another purpose—to return with a rejuvenated vision of America.

With so much traveling to do and all those households to descend upon, time was of the essence. In fact, the only way we could accommodate our ambitious itinerary was to minimize the hours spent driving and that meant rolling the interstate way. And, of course, that is how things began to go wrong.
In terms of sheer ground-gaining, America's interstate highways are tops. They are smooth and well-maintained. The speed limits are reasonable. There are rest stops and wide road shoulders and never a traffic light.

YET, WHILE whizzing along at 70 miles per hour with nothing but the illusion of America's extraordinary sameness to occupy the eye, one gets to thinking about all that the interstates do not provide. And, although a list of some substance might be compiled, the most notable missing ingredient is reality.
Not only do the superroads surgically skirt the outposts of civilization, but the occasional signs of life that are available appear so distant and pass so quickly that the traveler learns no more about these surroundings than he does about France when his mother, touring Paris, sends back a picture postcard of the only American hamburger joint in town.

By far, the most rewarding portions of our trip were those spent off the interstates, back where the people are. There was, for example, a memorable scene in Ogallala, Neb. It was Saturday evening, the sky was golden, and, despite Ogallala's considerable downtown traffic, there was peace in the air.

WITH A STRAW Stetson drawn back on his head, a cowboy went to the middle of the parking lot, turned around and gazed up at the sky. Then, he just stood there, not really looking for anything, wearing an expression of vague wonderment on his face.

I don't know, of course, but I suppose that, in those moments, the dimensions of his life were being made known to him and that he was contemplating the peculiar crossing of fates that had placed him, on this summer evening in 1971, alone and in Ogallala.

Had the fellow even been visible from the interstate, he would have attracted about as much attention as a field mouse sunning himself in a row of Nebraska corn.

Unlike the progenitors of the interstate—those two-lane blacktops that ran through and not around the little circles on the map—the superroads are no aids to the discovery of America. Travelers are tempted to dream of Colorado when Indiana stands ready as a less exotic but more sane alternative.

True enough, no one has to take the interstates. But we do. There is something built into our national spirit that makes the smooth swift roadways irresistible. Nor do the interstates seem fated for early obsolescence.

AND THE final irony is this: In an attempt to save time we spend it. During this vacation we averaged 12 hours a day on the interstates.

that spoke of other places and the miles in between. lost the elements of our vision. And, so, the peril of the superroad. Traveler, beware!

Given so little to see, we

The idea, of course, was that if we didn't drive so long we'd never get where we were going. And where we were going was determined by the time we could save getting there. It is the motorist's version of "Catch-22."

On our trip, moments like the one shared in secret with the Ogallala cowboy were too few and the richness of previous and more modest journeys was all but lost. During those 12-hour sprints we waved at no parades, whispered in no country chapels, saw no school children celebrate 3 p.m. by ripping out of a rural school.

While the interstate allowed us access to such an enormous swatch of this wide country and took us to the doorstep of city after city, we could barely sense the complexity of our land, nor determine its state of health and mind. We could not, in fact, be sure that anything was out there, beyond the signposts

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

As the nation continues to debate the pros and cons of proposed health delivery systems, one health care effort which has withstood the test of time prepares to observe its 25th anniversary.

For the past quarter century, the phrase "Hill-Burton" has been a part of the language of the hospital world and the public-at-large.

In Texas, Hill-Burton has meant the construction of over $739 million in hospitals and other health care facilities since 1946," said Dr. James E. Peavy, Texas Commissioner of Health.

Many of these facilities would probably not have been constructed without the aid provided by the Hill-Burton program. The joint federal-state program has aided 539 projects in Texas. It provided 31,493 inpatient beds in hospitals and nursing homes and added 113 other types of health facilities.

The Hill-Burton program was initiated when President Truman signed the Hospital Survey and Construction Act on August 13, 1946. The legislation authorized federal grants to assist states and communities in constructing needed hospitals and public health centers to furnish adequate care to all their people.

On August 13 of this year, the Hill-Burton Program was a quarter-century old. Health officials in Texas and across the nation plan to commemorate the silver anniversary of this program.

"No other program," Dr. Peavy said, "has had greater impact on the availability of health care facilities."

While the construction of new facilities has been extremely important, state health officials feel that efforts to upgrade the health facilities in the state have been of major concern. Of the 530 projects undertaken in Texas since 1947, funds for 176 have been construction of new projects while 354, or two-thirds of all projects undertaken, have

A MAN AND A BADGE

It has been said that a certain gun, a .45 revolver of considerable heritage, won the West. This may be true but it is only part of the story. There was also a badge and even more important, a man. There has always been a man behind the badge, and behind that shield he wears on his breast are the millions of decent, law abiding citizens of a great nation. The man we are talking about here is the sheriff. He may be an elongated, raw-boned man who prefers a large Western-style hat and has a single deputy to back him as he enforces the law in a small community. Or he may be the conventionally-dressed officer of a great metropolis with the readily accessible facilities of a modern crime-detection laboratory. Wherever he is, whatever his appearance, he is the sheriff and he, along with the police, constitutes our front line of defense against crime, against anarchy and disaster itself, be it an act of man or nature.

It is a common misconception that a sheriff and his duties do nothing but look for criminals and trap traffic violators. Nothing could be farther from the truth. As officers of the court, these men and women, have a tremendous responsibility of processing and serving civil warrants and handling allied papers.

Once city police or other law enforcement agencies file formal criminal complaints and processes, the sheriff's office becomes the responsible agency. This often includes apprehension of dangerous criminals and the transfer of accused from other states on extradition. Whatever the task, there is potential danger involved and the sheriff, the county's most responsible sworn officer of the law, knows it. His office is a sacred trust he has asked for and we have given to him through the democratic process of the ballot. Let's support him to our utmost.

The Hill-Burton legislation developed a new concept in governmental relationships in the health care field. It provided a federal-state partnership in administration. State Hill-Burton agencies were established to administer the program in each state and to advise the U. S. Public Health Service of their changing needs. The State health Department was given this responsibility in Texas.

Mystery and intrigue surround Tom Sawyer and his friend Huck Finn as they roam the graveyard at midnight in this memorable scene from David O. Selznick's Technicolor production, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," which opens at the Majestic Theatre on Friday. The picture, released for all the family to enjoy, is based on the immortal story by Mark Twain. Tommy Kelly is Tom Sawyer, Jackie Moran is Huckleberry Finn, May Robson is Aunt Polly, Walter Brennan is Muff Potter and Victor Jory is Injun Joe.

Farmers, Ranchers Get $104 Million Drought Aid

DALLAS - The Farmers Home Administration has disbursed $104 million in loan funds to 9,346 drought affected farmers and ranchers in Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, according to a report to the President released today in Dallas by the Federal Interagency Drought Committee.

The report has been sent to President Nixon by George A. Lincoln, chairman of the committee, established at the President's direction to accelerate and coordinate federal assistance to the four dry Southwestern states.

The FHA loans were made in three categories: emergency, operating and farm ownership. Emergency loans are being used to pay for production of living expenses and to replace livestock and equipment needed to restore operations affected by the drought.

Operating loans are being used by farmers and ranchers to buy livestock, equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer, poultry and supplies for farm and home operations. They also may be used to refinance certain debts or to pay interest on them, pay depreciation on equipment, make minor real estate improvements, improve forest lands, or establish farm-based business enterprises to supplement farm income.

Ownership loans are being used to refinance drought-related debts, buy lands, construct or improve buildings, improve farm lands, develop water facilities, and establish farm-based enterprises to supplement farm incomes.

The report noted that the Small Business Administration has approved its first economic injury loans for businesses in the Southwest area that have suffered losses because of the drought. Three such loans were approved in Texas for $39,200 and two in Oklahoma for $120,000. Thirteen applications, totaling nearly $700,000, are pending in Texas.

The federal government also has been subsidizing the purchase of feed grains to assist drought-affected stockmen in the four-state area. Thus far 13,493 farmers and ranchers in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona have purchased 62,403 tons of the grains at about half the current market price.

In a companion program to the livestock feed grain aid, 67,778 tons of hay were transported by Southwest ranchers with two-thirds of transportation costs - up to $20 per ton - paid for by federal funds. To date, 2,363 farmers and ranchers in the four-state area have supplied for and received this assistance.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, working with the Drouth Committee, has filed a request with the Interstate Commerce Commission that six additional Texas counties be eligible for lower freight rates on incoming hay. The counties are Bell, Collin, Colorado, Freestone and Wise. The provision previously applied to 11 counties in Arizona, 28 in New Mexico, 13 in Oklahoma and 166 in Texas.

Additionally, over 35,000 applications have been accepted for a newly initiated emergency conservation program in the Southwest drought area. The program permits the federal government to pay up to 80 per cent of costs for such conservation practices as water development, deep plowing, pipeline installation and water storage facility construction.

The report notes a favorable reaction from livestock men to a recent authorization allowing Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service county committees to reimburse approved livestock owners for transporting grains from Commodity Credit Corporation stocks where commercial transportation is not readily available.

In another program change, eligible livestock owners now are authorized to purchase supplies of hay, while available, to meet their needs through April 1, 1972 and to receive transportation assistance for eligible quantities at the time of purchase.
