Giving the reason for their successful marriage, Mr. Adams insisted it was because Mrs. Adams was "so good-natured she put up with things."

MISS LANEAU'S NOTES

By Mary Whaley

In olden times and even in some primitive countries today, people worshipped fire as a god and held rituals concerning it—and maybe it is this hangover from a former civilization that makes normal people go berserk when they hear a siren wail.

What ever the reason, regardless of time of day or condition of attire, the sound of the fire truck is a signal to take out after it and find the fire. Once there, the group becomes the audience and the critic; is sympathetic and cynical.

No matter how the firemen go about putting out the blaze, the kibitzers (of which we are the worst type) never think the firemen are doing right. Remarks as to how they themselves would handle the situation come unchecked from the bystanders.

They sympathize with the owner as they see the result of many hard earned dollars disappearing in the smoke but the excitement of the moment is not abated. Remarks which at any other time wouldn't seem very funny make others laugh hilariously now.

None of the firemen is spared the darts of the would-be firefighters. Why they come and what they expect to do is unexplainable. They clutter up the place, get in the way and cause the firemen many headaches. But all feature themselves members of a large army of volunteer firemen and they just naturally wouldn't miss a fire within running distance.

MIKE McCORMICK SHINES IN CINCINNATI WORKOUT

TAMPA, Fla.—Inasmuch as the pitchers still are taking it easy this may not mean much, but a young fellow who has a chance to turn up in the Cincinnati Reds' lineup is Myron (Mike) McCormick, late of Indianapolis. The 200-pound rookie outfielder is hitting the ball to all fields, including the one beyond the fence. He also is capable on defense.

MONTREAL GRADUATE CATCHES VITTS' EYE

FORT MYERS, Fla.—The Cleveland Indians believe they have a pitching "find" in Paul Calvert, 21-year-old spectacle semi-pro from Montreal. Manager Oscar Vitt heard Calvert's fast one singing past the hitters and thought a rough ball made the music. Vitt gave Calvert a new, shiny ball. It also sang. And Coach Johnny Basler reported the youngster also has a hook and control.

HUBBELL EXPECTS TO WIN 16 GAMES THIS YEAR

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Carl Hubbell admits his screwball was the cause of all the trouble he has had with his left arm the past few seasons, but the 37-year-old south-paw figures he will be good enough to win 16 or 18 games for the New York Giants this year. Hub says his arm feels better this spring than it has in years, and he's taking care not to try throwing hard too early in the season.

Chambers Here To Look Over Possibilities For Ring Show

Here to look over the possibilities for a regular wrestling show recently was Cliff Chambers, at one time the ace in ring villians and more recently of Pampa where he conducted weekly amateur and professional wrestling programs. Cliff revealed he could gain plenty of cooperation from Dutch Mantell, the admitted czar of West Texas wrestling, if he could get started here.

Wrestling interest throughout the West Texas sector has long been dormant but can be made to pay if put on right.

Most of the fellows who showed a couple of summers ago when Herman Fuhrer was the local promoter—Sailor Moran, Johnny Nemanic, Andy Tremaine, Don Hill and the like—could not interest the local fandom again. Their faces have been seen too many times.

About the only boys that the supporters would pay to see again are Jack Hagen, Vic Webber, Sailor Watkins and The Masked Marvel.

Cliff intimated he would dedicate part of his time toward the maintenance of interest among the younger boys in amateur boxing.

He helped train the Pampa Golden Gloves boxing team of two years ago, carrying it to the state tournament in Fort Worth.

Cliff Reveals That Gordon Nell To Play With Pampa Again

Chambers in the chia-fee-feel revealed the rather startling fact that the Pampa baseball club, of which Grover Seitz is the pilot, all but has Gordon Nell, the heavy hitting outfielder suspended in September of last year, under contract to play again this year.

We had heard previously that Nell was through as a professional ball player, that he had resigned and retired to his farm in Oklahoma.

That little item will be had news for the whole raft of WT-NM league pitchers who will see service in the family this season. Nell was capably of hitting all kinds of pitching last semester and led the circuit in practically all divisions of mace welding.

Chambers also told us that Lefty Bailey, the Oilers' versatile first sacker, would not play under Seitz again this year, having returned his unsigned contract to the Pampa team.

Charles Engle, the newly appointed pilot of the Lubbock Hubbers, has been rounding into shape by working out with the Saint Louis Browns at San Antonio.

FORSAN THINLY CLADS OPEN DRILLS, McDONALD IS BACK

FORSAN, Mar. 6.—Track drills at Forsan high school have opened with Brady Nix, who coached the Bisons to the Howard county championship last year, in charge. Seven boys have reported for the workouts.

Chances for another county title will hinge on the development of Tommy McDonald, who tied with Hollis Parker, another Forsan boy, for individual high scoring honors in last year's meet.

McDonald counted 20 points, winning first place in the javelin, with a toss of 137 feet, five inches, the shot put, with 36 feet, six inches and the 100-yard dash in the time, 1:11 seconds and second place in the high jump and third in the 400-yard run.

The short legged senior may desert the shot put this year but will compete in the dashes, high jump and javelin.

Other boys reporting for practice and their specialties include Warren Qualls, dashes, broad jump and pole vault; Kenneth Cowley, high jump, pole vault, broad jump and shot put; Vard Cowley, dashes and hurdles; James Gardner, pole vault, high jump and hurdles; Robert Yarbro, high jump, broad jump and hurdles, and Ray Dunlap, broad jump.

Miners Upset Aggies, 50-43

LAS CRUCES, N. M., Mar. 6.—The New Mexico Aggies ended an off-and-on season today with a tie for their fourth Border conference basketball championship.

Arizona university which finished play a week ago slipped into the other half of the title as the Texas Miners of El Paso defeated the Aggies for the second night.

AUSTIN QUINT LOSES IN AAU TEST, 41-38

DALLAS, Mar. 6.—Quint-finals will be played tonight in the southwestern AAU basketball tournament with Majors and Majors meeting Sammy's, E. M. Kahn No. 1 clashing with Dallas Railway, James K. Wilson tugging with Oliver Farm Machinery and Dr. Pepper engaging American Liberty Pipelines.

E. M. Kahn No. 1 staged a surprise last night in taking out Schoonerville Cafe of Austin, made up principally of University of Texas players, by a score of 41-38.

Oliver Machinery won over Wolf and Klar of Fort Worth 51-44, Majors and Majors defeated Willis Point Chamber of Commerce 64-33 and Sammy's beat E. M. Kahn No. 2 of Dallas 56-19.

Texas Steers Are Baseball Favorites

DALLAS, Mar. 6.—Spring weather has flushed the Southwest conference baseball teams, and unless the signs are very deceiving, Uncle Billy Ditch will be owner of his twenty-first pennant around the middle of May.

University of Texas is running in the same league, with the little red fox.

Neither is likely to get caught. Only one thing keeps "The Old Man" from being certain of bagging title No. 21 in 25 years of coaching in the Southwest conference. One of his star hurlers, Bill Dumke, a Wisconsin lad who came down to get some of Uncle Billy's tutoring, is ailing.

It isn't his pitching arm, but his pitching leg. Dumke, a great prospect with a terrific fast ball, has turned up with a loose cartilage in his right knee. Ditch fears that an operation will be necessary, thus relieving the Longhorns of a fine pitcher who was scheduled to join big Melvin Deutsch to give Texas an almost unbeatable staff.

The rest of the team is solid with veterans—Third Baseman Bobby Moore, First Sacker John Hill, Outfielder Charlie Haas, and others. Haas clubbed the ball for a .440 average in 66 times at bat last season and is one of the fastest base runners in conference history.

But Haas has an ailment, too. He still has a football shoulder that may hamper his throwing. For a while it was planned to teach him to heave with his left hand.

Moore has major league aspirations. He hit .337 last year with Texas and was the sparkplug of the Grand Prix team that won the state semi-pro and Houston Post tournaments.

Johnny Hill is, without much argument, the best first baseman to come along in conference history. He was named to the all-American semi-pro team after the Wichita, Kas., tournament last summer and is definitely big time timber.

Little is known about the rest of the field—Baylor and the Texas Aggies, tied for the runnerup spot last season; Southern Methodist, fourth place finisher, Rice and Texas Christian.

The Methodists, only three seasons ago the comedy team of the league but now coming along under tutelage of Roosevelt Higginbotham, have been picking up speed annually.

FOUND INSANE

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 6.—Assistant District Attorney George F. Langfitt said today a sanity commission had found Agnes West, 34-year-old one-time brilliant student at West Virginia University, to be insane and that he would ask criminal court to solve precise murder charges against her for strangling her mother in a downtown hotel room last January 5.

ARSON CHARGES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Mar. 6.—Police Sgt. Carl Pittelko said today a man listed as Roland G. Taylor, 41, was held on six arson charges after admitting he set fires "for excitement" and because he liked "to hear fire engines scream down the street."

Rideout Twins Lead Denton To Laredo

Eagles To Give Rice And Texas Battle For Championship

LAREDO, Mar. 6.—Silent, bespectacled Wayne and Elaine Rideout, the North Texas State Teachers college twins, will lead a team into the eighth annual Border olympics here Friday to give the nation's first outdoor track and field meet of the 1940 season a dog fight for college honors.

Entry of the Rideouts in the mile and half mile events, plus the appearance of their world record-holding mile relay teammates—Bryant, McDonalds, Jackson and Rodgers—thrust the college division into a three-way scrap between Texas University, defending champions, Rice and the North Texas Teachers.

Texas, still potent with its Boyce Gatewood, great hurdler and sprinter, and Lonnie Hill, sophomore 100-yard dash marel, must win the meet to gain permanent possession of the Clyde Littlefield trophy. The Longhorns have won the last two meets.

Flyin' Freddie Wolcott, Rice Institute's world record—holding hurdler and ranked as the nation's foremost high hurdler, again must contend with Gatewood—a boy he barely beat in many races.

The 100-yard dash on a fall program for 15 colleges and 25 high schools arranged by J. L. (Curley) James, athletic director of Laredo high school.

The Southwest's fastest sprinters will be entered in the 100-yard dash. They include Wolcott, Hill, "Red" Cecil, Texas Aggies; Earl Withcer, East Texas State Teachers; Gatewood, James Minor, Howard Payne; Haas and Roseborough of Southwest Texas Teachers and Sanders of Abilene Christian college.

Wolcott and Gatewood will have fast company in the high hurdle event, especially from Dreiss of Texas Aggies, who finished fourth in the Sugar Bowl event at New Orleans several weeks ago.

Boeufus Bryan of Texas, who cleared 14 feet, 1-3-8 inches in the pole vault here last season, will be back to defend his title.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIEZE

NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—Hot Stove League: Detroit is using the "dead" ball exclusively in training and the Tigers are pounding the daylight out of it...The Athletics were flattered no end when a delegation of White Sox drove 40 miles from Pasadena just to watch them practice...If that Rudy York-for-Cecil Travis deal isn't hot again, why are they betting Hank Greenberg will be back on first 30 days after the season opens?

ONE ACT PLAY

Tony Galento visited Norfolk and was introduced to the Rev. Ralph Kyle, pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church. The Rev. Kyle: See this little book, Tony? It says your body is worth only 84 cents. Galento: Whaddaya mean, 84 cents? (He pulled a huge roll of bills from his pocket and flashed it in Mr. Kyle's face)... "That don't look like no 84 cents to me. (It didn't to the minister, either and he made his exit quietly).

The Timer, Seattle Times: "The San Francisco Seals, unable to do their training outdoors because of rain, have been practicing in an empty swimming pool. That seems to be the only dry place in the neighborhood." The Maryville (Mo.) Teachers went undefeated in two major sports this season—football and basketball...Sherrad Smith, the old big league pitcher, has been appointed captain of the guard in the Georgia state pen.

THAT'S CALLING 'EM.

Jesse Abramson, the Herald-Tribune's track expert, picked New York U. to win the L.C. 4-A team title five years... N.Y.U. did... In 1929 Abramson picked N.Y.U. to win with 25 points and it came through... The boys up there must believe what they see in the papers... How about the fifth at Tropical today, Jesse.

Holman's Cagers Again Surprise

NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—The old adage, "Don't sell a hot moly team short in March," still holds good. The Little City college Beavers—beaten thoroughly by Oklahoma Aggies, Marshall, Santa Clara, St. John's, St. Joseph's, Franklin & Marshall, Butler and Springfield—today are the toast of eastern basketball. They humbled mighty New York University last night, 36-24, as 15,000 screaming fans watched in Madison Square Garden's last doubleheader the unraveling of the season's biggest upset.

It was no fluke. City college simply ran the Violets rugged.

BILL BURKE SHINES AS HE AND PARTNER WIN AT C. GABLES

By LARRY ROLLINS

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Mar. 6.—(AP)—Billy Burke hasn't been in the golfing headlines very much lately, but from the way he is hammering the ball in the $5,000 international 4-ball, you'd think he was an eager youngster accepting his first taste of victory.

He and Craig Wood are in the final against Dick Metz and Roy Laffoon today.—dis consider-ably to Burke's wisardry with an approaching iron, the same art that carried him on a memorable 144-hole triumph over George Von Elm in the 1931 national open.

A trifle thick in the midriff at 36, Burke still hangs the ball on a trolley wire anywhere from 200 yards to the green. Yesterday he and Wood defeated Clayton Heafner and E. L. (Dutch) Harrison, 4 and 3.

For excitement, however, the other semi-final stole the show. In it Horton Smith and Paul Runyan bowed out in as tense a match as you're likely to see.

They lost it to Metz and Laffoon, one down, on the 36th green, where Smith—conceded one of the finest putters of all time—missed one of his Aunt Kate could have knocked in with a broomstick.

Metz and Laffoon turned back the Harry Cooper-Jimmy Thomson and Stanley Horne-Jules Huot teams in the first two rounds, but Burke and Wood have been the tournament's real surprise.

They knocked over Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen, then top-sliced Ralph Guidahl and Sam Snead, the top-seeded entry, on their way to the semi-finals.

By BILL WHITE

NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen of Kansas university could hardly be called a "voice in the wilderness," yet the chairman of the National Basketball Research Committee seems to be a lone and forlorn figure as he demands a drastic revision in basketball rules.

The coaches' consensus, gathered in a nation-wide poll, seemed to be "let the rules alone"—until the Kansas precinct reported! All Allen wants to do is increase the height of the basket two feet, create a 16-foot "don't-shoot-in-here safety line" around the basket, restore the center jump, decrease the size of the ball, increase the size of the court and add two players to each team!

Or in the words of Coach Mike Brumbeul of Texas Christian, whose teams have finished last in the Southwest conference for the last five years, "leave the rules alone—I can't think of any changes that would help us!"

Allen does not stand absolutely alone in his amazing plan to partition off part of the court. Ken Loeffler of Yale would mark off a semi-circle with a 14-foot diameter under the baskets. No player would be permitted to enter this "no man's land" until the ball had touched the hoop or the backboards, and then only for about three seconds.

Diametrically opposed to those "left wingers" was the report of Coach Harold G. Olson of Ohio State: "A questionnaire sent to coaches in all this area, including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, shows that the coaches are well satisfied with the rules as they stand. We feel we have a game full of spectator interest, and we want to keep it that way."

In the history of Texas school basketball East Texas has a wide margin with eight championships. North Texas is next with four and South Texas is third with three. West and Central Texas each has won twice.

Cubs About Set To Open 1940 Campaign

By ROBERT MYERS

AVALON, Calif., Mar. 6.—The Chicago Cubs should have a fighting ball club this year, judging by the battles going on at this Santa Catalina Island training camp for most of the positions on the team.

Manager Charles Leo Hartnett, looking more like the Gabby of old as he goes into his 19th year with the National League Bruins, scratched his head and grinned as he pointed out the scraps for jobs.

Only Glen (Rip) Russell, back for his second year at first base, Billy Herman a fixture at second, and Stan Hack at third when he reaches camp and gets into shape from a recent, untimely operation, seem solid choices for regular duty.

Mainstays of the pitching staff—Big Bill Lee, Larry French, Charley Root, Claude Passeau and Clay Bryant, who hopes he's lost his dead arm of 1939—form the nucleus of this department.

Augie Galan, Hank Leiber, if he reaches a salary agreement with Mr. P. K. Wrigley, and Jimmy Gleason are back for the outfield but one or all of them may take a back seat if Phil Cavaretta, his broken leg mended, dynamo Dominie Dallesandro or Bill Nicholson, who finished the 1939 season with Chicago after playing with Chattanooga, come through.

Galan looks like a sure thing, and Dallesandro, who stands 5 feet 6 inches and turned in a terrific 368 season with San Diego to lead the Pacific Coast League last year, may move into the lineup.

Bobby Sturgeon has replaced Bobby Mattick for short for the time being. The position seems weak unless the Cubs can find someone before the wars start. Sturgeon lacks experience, although he's a fine fielding prospect. Veteran Billy Rogell will be used as utility man and probably fill in at third until Hack is ready.

Hartnett isn't sure how much catching he'll do, but he has reliable Al Todd and two capable rookies on deck at the moment—Bub Collins, from the Los Angeles Angels, and Clyde McCullough, from Kansas City.

The great Dizzy Dean? He is still a holdout at this writing, and there appears to be more pleasure than address over the great one's absence.

Ball clubs are hard to figure out, but it does seem the spirit of the Cubs is much better than it was at the end of the 1939 campaign. Mr. Wrigley should be glad to hear this, for there was very little despair for the morale of the outfit to go before it hit bottom.

Wesleyan Wins Opener, 50-46

ADILENE, Mar. 6.—Texas Wesleyan was one-up today, on Abilene Christian college in the play-off for the championship of the Texas conference basketball championship.

The teams meet at Fort Worth Friday night in the second game of the series.

HOUSTON, Mar. 6.—The Rice Owls, not resting on their laurels as Southwest conference basketball champions, looked forward today to two more major tournaments.

The Owls will go to New York next week to participate in the national intercollegiate invitation tournament and to Kansas City the following week to play in the national collegiate athletic association event.

Taisto Maki Is Nearing Top Shape

By RUSS NEWLAND

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 6.—Taisto Maki, who exchanged a soldier's rifle for an athlete's spike to help build up the depleted finances of his native Finland, apparently is not far off the form that enabled him to crack running records right and left less than a year ago.

The mud of Finnish trenches, heavy boots and war ordeals are still fresh memories, yet without much training the 140-pound speedster stepped out here last night to win easily a three-mile race. He was timed in 14 minutes, 15.3 seconds, without being pressed.

The American indoor record is 13:46.3 set in New York February 24, 1925 by Willie Ritola, one of Maki's countrymen. Maki is unofficially credited with running the fastest outdoor three miles ever recorded when he went the distance in 13:24 in Finland last June.

Accompanied by Paavo Nurmi, his countryman and world's greatest distance runner of the early 20's, Maki made his first appearance in this country in what will be a series of performances dedicated to the benefit of the Finnish relief fund. Nurmi, now 43 years old and partly bald, ran an exhibition half mile.

The two endurance stars were given tremendous individual ovations as they raced around the indoor track in Civic auditorium. Some 2,500 fans turned out, and the receipts were expected to total approximately $1,500.

Track Drills At Coahoma Underway

COAHOMA, Mar. 6.—Athletic interest at Coahoma high school has turned to track.

B. L. Townsend, who will be in charge of the team this season, said he would take a team to Stanton this weekend to compete in that school's annual invitational meet.

Nearly a dozen boys greeted Townsend as the workouts began Monday afternoon.

Cooperation On Budgets

Revival of its budget analysis staff and the community public expenditure and taxation committees represents another worthwhile objective on the part of the West Texas chamber of commerce.

Such a program—designed to promote efficiency and economy in local public expenditures and to secure retrenchment in local public affairs commensurate with economic conditions—was carried on at the depth of the depression. Accurate figures are not at hand, but to our knowledge, impressive reductions in public expenditures in many cities and counties were achieved.

We believe that public officials, such as county commissioners courts, city councils, school district trustees and others, welcome a more active public interest in the shaping of fiscal affairs. Budget hearings for the various governmental units are held according to law each year; but the unfortunate part is that nobody shows up at the hearings.

Theoretically, there is no reason to believe that a committee of business men, representing all the business of a community, cannot sit down at a table with public officials and contribute worthwhile information to the listing of needed public expenditures, helping to eliminate the useless and to keep all figures in balance.

George Tucker Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—O. O. McIntyre has been dead two years, and as yet no motion picture company has filmed the story of his life. In an era when dead heroes and slain gangsters are glorified almost before their remains are decently composed, this omission is not easy to understand.

McIntyre's career had more elements of real drama, and bore the marks of more personal triumphs and private griefs, than an anthology of Horatio Alger heroes. He was a country boy who made good in the big city. All his life he suffered from an inferiority complex. He grew into a nervous, jerky neurotic who hated daylight and was afraid of being poisoned.

Whatever your opinion of McIntyre may have been, this much is certain: in point of readers, no other columnist ever came close to him. And when he died he was mourned by millions in every city and in all the hundreds of lost hamlets and country courthouses from coast to coast.

He came from the tall corn to a princely income and an apartment on Park Avenue. The very last line he ever wrote ended with the word "success." But even more important, I imagine, were his last words, addressed to his wife, the only woman he ever loved. "Won't you please turn this way," he said. "I like to look at your face."

I seem to be making frequent mention of Oscar Levant these days, but then that just shows how much you get talked about when you do important things. A year or so ago Levant's friends were worried because he didn't seem to be getting anywhere. They knew he was an unusual young man, perhaps a genius.

So they talked it over and decided that Oscar should write a daily column about popular music, since popular music touches the lives in one way or another of nine out of every ten persons in this country. They knew he was fitted for such a task, because Levant knows everybody who writes successful music. But nobody wanted Oscar as a columnist, although he is a witty talker and a very funny writer.

This, remember, was little more than a year ago. Now, with his book, his music, and his position as an intellectual expert on the Information Please show, almost any metropolitan newspaper would give him by-line at the head of a column. But now Oscar hasn't the time. The trouble with days, he says, is that they never have more than 24 hours.

Katharine Hepburn, she of the long gangling legs and the high cheek bones, is a changed young woman. Maybe it is because she is tired of having broiled reporters on toast every morning. A few years ago she was an unpredictable young hellion who loped across fields and dove through kitchen windows to escape interviews.

Leap Before You Look

Chapter Two A MILLION FROGS

Allen Bartell gave one look at Tom's flamingo dress, then focused his attention on the long legal document in his hand. Tom wondered if he usually breathed as heavily. It couldn't be the man was laughing at her again. It seemed to her that he was having difficulty with his facial muscles.

The will was a masterpiece of satire. Each bequest, from the dozen pairs of silk stockings to Great-aunt Hannah to the turnip watch, which didn't run, to Major Toland, was pointed. These bequests were something more. Each had a stated value. They established Timothy's remembrance of each and acted as a curtailment of a will contest.

Looking at the dismayed faces about her, Tom reflected that this was the first time she had not been made the butt of whatever joke was in the air. She regretted she had not made friends with Timothy. She hadn't known a Toland was capable of under-surface discernment.

Red lips parted, Tom leaned forward and listened. "Farm, all buildings and implements, ten-room house and furnishings as listed, herds—last count one million head—"

Herds! Tom nearly bounced on the prim sofa where she sat hedged in between the Major and Aunt Augusta.

Herds! For one heavenly moment she visualized herself in a ten-gallon hat, riding the plains. Oh, blessed Uncle Timothy. She'd better pinch herself. In a moment Molly, the cook, would be shaking her and telling her she'd be late at the office.

No, that shaking was the Major, getting up breath for a pronouncement. In a moment he'd burst forth. There it came. "Farm!" he belted. "No farm was ever mentioned to me. What does it grow?"

"Frogs," continued Bartell, and Tom had a ludicrous vision of little green frogs growing in long green rows, and herself standing over them with a watering can.

"But the herds," prompted Austin Toland, the legal light of the family. "You specifically mentioned herds."

"Not Interested in Legs?" "The value must depend upon the marketable legs, frogs' legs, Miss Toland. In the winter months these would drop to zero. In the spring your herds would present you with about five million eggs, but the mortality rate on eggs is heavy. Allowing one-fifth of these to reach the tadpole stage, you have again the mortality rate on tadpoles. How many of these will sprout legs before some natural enemy dines on them, sans legs, is questionable. After that, the market value of those left is a potential value. It takes three years for a frog to grow an edible leg."

Great-aunt Hannah's face was stiff with dignity. "Young man, I am not interested in legs, frogs or any other kind. Give me the approximate value of the entire estate."

Tom's eyes were bright with interest. Was she such a child of the pavements that she had thought frogs' legs descended onto platters out of thin air. This inheritance was beginning to look like something, after all.

Bartell seemed reluctant to comply; then with a strange glance at Tom, he said, "According to the inheritance law, the estate is valued at thirty thousand dollars."

"Sell it immediately!" ordered the matriarch. Tom smiled. That was an excellent idea. Sell it. She could use thirty thousand dollars, and goodness only knew she couldn't use thirty thousand frogs, French fried or on the hoof. She'd keep fifteen thousand for herself and divide the rest of it amongst the family.

"I'm sorry," Bartell was saying, and he didn't look sorry. "There is a stipulation that Miss Toland must take immediate possession of the farm and maintain it at its present financial status for five years before it becomes hers to dispose of as she desires."

There was a moment of tense silence, then May Toland-Carrington purred across to Tom. "Never you mind, dearie. We'll help you run the place. I'll take charge of the house and Carrington will run the farm."

Other voices evinced a similar intent, nearly drowning Bartell's protest. It seemed he was again sorry.

"But under the terms of the will, Miss Toland can accept neither personal nor financial aid from any relative. Nor can she, during this probationary period, entertain any relative on the property more than once a year and for more than twenty-four hours at that time."

the farm nor the stamina to face the work. "Oh, he did, did he?" flared Tom. This sounded more like Timothy, the old fossil. And why, if he felt like this, had he troubled to will the property to her? There was a catch in it some place.

"And if I haven't these two priceless qualities, what becomes of the estate?" she asked. Bartell's gray eyes met hers, their expression hidden quickly by short, thick lashes. "Failure on your part to live up to any stipulation, in any way, will cause the estate to revert to me, to be disposed of in any manner I choose."

Right there was a catch. It settled the whole matter as far as Tom was concerned. Sooner than see this person in possession of her frogs, she'd go out and live with the things.

"When do I assume control?" she asked. Bartell seemed to relax. "Immediately," he replied. "I'd like to leave for the coast tomorrow; however, if that isn't convenient—"

"If isn't!" Hannah Toland answered for Tom. "And the only place that young lady will go will be to her room... and immediately. As for you, young man, I'll handle you. I'll contest this will. Timothy was out of his mind. I'll prove he was a victim of senile dementia; that you preyed upon his good will until he allowed you to draw this document to fit your schemes. Tom, will you go to your room?"

Tom arose. "But Aunt Hannah," she protested, "isn't this my inheritance?" "Definitely not!" came the reply. "And if you persist in interrupting and assuming, I shall have to ask you to make an immediate choice between the family and the..."

"Frogs!" suggested Bartell. Tom debated only a moment. The Tolands didn't need the money. For her to give up this breathtaking challenge, perpetrated by Uncle Timothy's ghoulish joke, was unthinkable. She couldn't. She'd accept her loss graciously, if she failed. Meanwhile, she would have the fun of trying to win.

"Aunt Hannah—" her voice begged for understanding—"if you don't mind, I think I'll have a go at the frogs."

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—If Republican state politicians had any choice they would have the woods full of GOP presidential candidates. Reports coming here after each of the western tours of the various Republican candidates indicate that state organizations feel a surge of new life after being touched by the magic wand of an aspiring visitor.

It is an advantage the Republicans have over the Democrats and they are playing it to the full. Democratic candidates can't speak out too loudly—except Vice President Garner. He has boldly declared for the presidency, regardless of whether FDR blows hot or cold on a third term. And Garner, as a candidate, isn't giving the state organizations the aid the Republican candidates give by traveling around.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan hasn't hit so many high spots. As a result, while he has a lot of friends—as reported by camp followers of the other candidates—there is a mild mutter of resentment that he hasn't taken actively to the field.

Incidentally, while the Japanese may have mused up certain treaties with respect to handling China, they have stood solidly by an informal agreement to keep their ships out of American salmon fishing waters.

In 1936 and 1937 there was a frightful disturbance in West Coast fisheries because a group of Japanese fishing vessels appeared in Bristol Bay, off the southern coast of Alaska and calmly loaded up with prime salmon. It panicked the U. S. salmon industry, whose Alaskan branch is estimated roughly as a $10,000,000 industry. The Japanese, using nets three miles long, were screening up the salmon before ever they reached the spawning Alaskan streams where the U. S. fishermen were waiting for them.

Efforts were made to put through a bill to declare the whole "continental shelf" off western North America to be a part of the American zone. It was to be a sort of "neutrality zone" for fishermen—American fishermen. The proposal hadn't a legal leg to stand on, but might have become a nasty issue, like the Japanese Exclusion Act of 1924.

Under the agreement they were allowed to continue fishing for crabs and other "bottom fish" in the Bristol Bay area, as they had been doing for a dozen years. But, in keeping with the agreement, they evidently have taken not a solitary salmon.

Time jitters about, but adolescence—in 1915 or in 1940—is essentially the same. Here's the familiar story of the tragedies of Willie Baxter, his consuming 17-year-old passion for the visiting siren Lola Pratt, and the cross that Willie Baxter bears—a kid sister in training for a modern expatriate service.

Willie and his milieu have kept in step with progress. Willie as Tarkington created him in 1915 had problems aplenty, but the kind of car he drove was not among them. When Willie's mother sent him to a neighbor's for the washing equipment, Willie of 1915 had simply a wash boiler to lug home, which was plenty of grief and confusion when he passed the girls. Willie today has the wash boiler—and a modern washing machine.

Lola (who is played with devilish cunning by the talented Miss Field of "What a Life!") used to be a simpering baby-talker, but Lola of 1940 is a visiting "sophisticate"—"almost a divorced woman," as the boys whisper with awe. She's a babe who knows about night-club, and a drink called "Black Velvet," and how to make the local boys squirm and sigh and shiver in her service. (Lola, 1915, wasn't so bad at that herself, was she?)

Today's Lola has a devastating bag of tricks, in which the flicker of her lashes is but a minor director's stunt. Today's Lola expresses her "sophistication" by a disquieting manner of speech, sentences apparently broken off then finished with r/asing inflection. She panics the boys, first thing, with her "Who do you think you are—ANYHOW?"

Jackie Cooper, who grows in talent, puts over this modern Willie Baxter perfectly. He inspires—at least in the older members of the audience—exactly the right degree of lofty amusement, reminiscent embarrassment, and sympathy.

Kruger and Miss Shoemaker are right, too, as the parents, and Norma Nelson as tattling little sister Jane, as omniscient as the Gestapo, is a praiseworthy part.

Unless you're a Seventeen and it's all too close to home to be funny, I think you'll find the picture decidedly pleasant. It's not absolutely quiet on the Western Front. The soldiers' naps are daily disturbed by the tapping of a typewriter as the latest communique is written.—States Island Advance.

GAS SNUFFS OUT PLANE FIRE—With a great roar a blast of carbon dioxide gas shoots out toward a flaming airplane motor, in a demonstration staged for the Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. HE FIGHTS—BUT WHY?—Versatile Arturo Godoy, the Chilean heavyweight who stayed with Joe Louis for 15 rounds, has talents not limited to the ring, as proved by this view of Godoy and his attractive wife doing a tango in New York. MOUNTAIN FLOWS LIKE A RIVER—Down the slopes of the upper Rhone valley comes a landslide of rocks, mud and shale, threatening the little village of Saxe, Switzerland, whose inhabitants fled for their lives. They'd been betting with other neighboring villagers as to whose village would slide the farthest down the mountain. They won—in their regret.

POINTED CRITICISM—Finger-wagging Dorothy Gish gave her sister Lillian some friendly advice about the latter's acting after a performance in Chicago. Many hearts throbbed to the Gish Girls in the silent movie days.

NATION NOT HEALTHY ENOUGH, SAYS THE SURGEON GENERAL

WASHINGTON, Mar. 6 (AP)—Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the public health service, said today that even though the American people are the healthiest in the world, they are nowhere near as healthy as they should be.

"It would be possible to add 10 years to the average life span of people living in the United States if we made full use of the scientific knowledge now available," said the 47-year-old physician, whom President Roosevelt has just re-nominated.

The health service's work during the first four-year term, he declared, was only the beginning of widespread public efforts to curtail heart disease, cancer, pneumonia, diphtheria, venereal disease, infantile paralysis and a host of other ailments.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE WAR DEVELOPMENTS

By DeWitt MacKENZIE

John Bull's effort to make Signor Mussolini sing "Britannia Rules the Waves," as token of submission to the English embargo on German coal exports upon which Italy depends, has precipitated a quarrel which might have grave consequences, though not necessarily. John found it due in good voice, but instead of a song got a blunt protest and an intimation of possible reprisal. England's retort has been seizure of Italian colliers carrying German coal.

The resulting situation isn't nice. However, a knock-down fight would be so unprofitable for either party that a settlement without broken heads would be logical.

The British appear to have an advantage whereby they can squeeze Italy rather badly if they are so disposed.

Rome gets small satisfaction from the English assertion the embargo is aimed wholly at Germany and isn't calculated to compel Italy to sell arms to Britain in exchange for Welsh coal.

The Italians have to call on the outside world for their coal. They have been depending on Germany for sixty per cent of this.

It is highly important to note that prior to February 29 England and Italy were engaged in trade negotiations. The British demanded that Italy sell them arms in exchange for coal and Mussolini declined to do this. He would sell planes, but not arms.

The point was that it was a heavy blow to his line on neutrality. He was taking no chances of causing Germany grave offense.

On February 29 the English suddenly suspended trade negotiations and the British navy was ordered to halt all shipments of German coal consigned to Italy as from March 1.

This order was pursuant to the British policy of stopping all German exports as well as imports.

Washington and other neutral capitals protested that belligerents had no right under international law to seize neutral ships carrying cargoes from enemy countries. This question is one of those being taken up in Washington today by Anglo-French representatives.

LEAVE 'EM WHERE THEY LIE

Dislocated Joints of the Shoulder, Elbow, Wrist—Leave 'em Where They Lie and Treat Shock

A dislocation means that one of the other bones that make a joint is out of place and is more painful than a fracture (broken bone).

Because of pain there is apt to be more shock—so watch out for shock.

How can you recognize a dislocation?

To attempt to move that joint increases the pain and any motion possible is very little.

In dislocations of the SHOULDER (where the pain is) a lump may be felt in the arm pit which is the upper end (head) of the arm bone (humerus). The patient cannot place the hand of the injured side on the opposite shoulder.

What to do?

Lay him flat with a folded coat between the arm and chest. bend the arm to the body with a belt or neck tie. This will take the pressure off the muscles and hold it still. Any movement hurts and increases shock.

Do NOT try to pull or jerk it in place because you may damage the nerves as they come out of the neck, through the arm pit into the arm and cause paralysis of the arm or hand.

And REALIZE that they may be a fracture of one of the other bones about the joint at the same time. If so, which you can't tell—think of the DAMAGE you may do.

Lay him flat—fix (splint) the arm to his side with a pad (folded coat) between the arm and chest. Give him a drink—no hurry; treat shock — SPLINT 'EM WHERE THEY LIE.

Dislocation of the ELBOW is displaced backwards onto the back side of the elbow. To do this lay the arm in a little flexion (a little bent) and with the palm down. To bend the elbow more is very painful and to force it is agony. If the head of the radius (little bone of the forearm) at the elbow is alone dislocated, there is no obvious deformity as described above, but there is pain at the elbow, increased by elbow or forearm motion.

And REMEMBER there may be a fracture also—so of course do what?

Bind it by his side with a belt or something with a coat between the arm and body—or apply a splint with it in the most comfortable position. To do this lay him flat; remember shock. DON'T pull on it—splint 'em where they lie.

At the WRIST, dislocation is very rare as nearly always the disability is caused by fracture—and even if dislocated, one of the small bones may also be broken, so do NOT manipulate it BUT splint 'em where they lie. Lay 'em flat and understand they, too, may be shocked. Make a splint of folded newspaper, magazine, tree branches or board, reaching from the elbow to the finger ends and bind in place snugly with handkerchiefs (not too tight) shirt sleeves or neckties. Your object is to take off the strain by some sort of support (splint).

Any of these dislocations may be compound—one of the bones ends stuck through the flesh and skin.

If so, lay 'em flat and treat the wound first—wash off the protruding end of bone (see without lead in best) and gently pull it back inside the wound, then control bleeding and dress the wound (see article on wounds).

Then splint 'em where they lie. Give 'em a drink—whiskey, coffee, water. Keep 'em warm and DON'T speed through the country with open windows. A dislocated shoulder or wrist don't kill but shock does.

LEAVE 'EM WHERE THEY LIE. TREAT SHOCK.

Armory Loan Under Study

FORT WORTH, Mar. 6 (AP)—Erwin Lieut. Gen. John A. Hulen said today a program of construction of some 70 armories in the state possibly is "on the road to accomplishment" but that the Texas national guard has not as yet accepted a $7,500,000 loan to make this possible.

Gen. Hulen, chairman of the national guard armory board, declared there is nothing definite on whether the board would accept the money offered by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

However, a meeting will be held at an early date. "There are certain conditions that we must study thoroughly before giving a final decision," he added.

Brig. Gen. C. W. Nimon, secretary of the board, said there would be nothing definite about which places would get armories until and unless the loan was accepted. More than 50 cities and towns would receive armories under the program.

The loan would carry a 1-1/2 per cent interest and be repaid over a 27-year period. The armory board would pledge revenues from the leases of the armory buildings and a part of the annual appropriation from the state to secure the loan.

Museum Piece Is Trophy Of Odd Border Chase

Harold P. Steck could tell them much more about it—how he came to get it.

While with the U. S. Border Patrol a few years back, Steck was patrolling a section of the Rio Grande early one morning.

Presently he sighted a Mexican heading for the river aboard a burro, the more popular mode of transportation along the Rio. The patrolman commanded the man to stop, but this only excited him.

So much so, in fact, that he quit his burro and took off afoot for the river. Determined to catch him, Steck ran to the burro, thinking that he would overhaul the fleeing figure.

"I had hardly got on the burro," recalled Steck, "when I realized why the Mexican had left him. I whacked, kicked and beat the thing, but he wouldn't take a step. By that time the Mexican was about across the river."

"After I looked into the saddle bags, I found only a few pounds of suits and two bottles of Mexican cure-all medicine. I knew he was taking the stuff to someone on the other side who was sick. I yelled for him to come back and get the stuff, but he suspected a ruse and wouldn't put a foot in the Rio. It took me half a day to get the burro to a point where it could be taken over, along with the cargo, to the Mexican."

The famous Drury Lane theatre in London was opened in 1696. It was originally called the Theatre Royal.

Britain Says New Palestine Decrees Required By War

LONDON, Mar. 6 (AP)—The British government today answered opposition charges of a "shameful" betrayal of its promises to the Jews with the practical wartime declaration that its new Palestine laws, anti-Jewish in effect, were necessary to keep the powerful Arabs of the Near East in line.

Malcolm MacDonald, colonial secretary, said the government had had "most stern warnings from Palestine in recent weeks that despite appearances there was beneath the surface a growing unrest among the Arabs."
