Garner Warns the Mohair Producers

Rep. John N. Garner is the ranking democratic member of the ways and means committee and minority leader of the house. He has warned Texas goat raisers, who produce practically all the mohair of the country, that they stand to lose large sums of money during the next several years unless an amendment to the republican tariff bill providing for an increase of the duty on low grade wools is admitted to the bill.

Texas sheep and goat raisers asked for an increase of duty on low grade wools to 31 cents a pound. It was denied by the makers of the bill. They retained the 24 and 26 cent duties on the low grade wools, although raising the duty on higher grades.

There isn't a woolen factory in Texas. There isn't a mohair mill in Texas. Makers of things are all powerful under the big domes of the city of Washington. They demand low grades of foreign wool. This enables them to hammer down the prices of Texas mohair.

RANDOLPH GRADUATES THIRTY-ONE

CISCO, Texas, May 31.—Thirty-one students were awarded diplomas of graduation from Randolph college and 15 pupils were given certificates showing them to have completed the prescribed courses of the preparatory, or high school, department of the institution in the commencement exercises closing the scholastic year of 1928-29 at the First Christian church.

The diplomas were presented at the conclusion of a stirring address by the Rev. Leslie J. Funnell, of the Magnolia Avenue Christian church of Fort Worth. The candidates for graduation were presented to President T. T. Roberts, of the college, by Dean E. Buford Isaacks, who in his presentation of the class of 1929 said that it is the best as well as the largest class that has gone out from the institution.

Mr. Funnell took for the subject of his address "Seekers After Truth" making an appeal to the graduates to follow the Truth as exemplified in the life of Christ. He pointed out the wonderful opportunities before them as they stand on the threshold of life and declared that if they follow the Truth they are bound to succeed.

The following were certified and received diplomas awarding them the degree of Associate in Arts:

Mrs. H. B. Allen, Nellie Anglin, Mrs. Anna Carter, Melvin McFall, Ruby Mansfield, Boynton Martin, Frank Cockrell, Flossie Cogburn, Mildred Greath, Inez Eubank, Halle Gantz, Katherine Garrett, Opal Hale, Mrs. R. A. Higginbotham, Thelma Jackson, Theodore Knight, Ruby Latson, Irene Lisenbee, Byron Lovelady, Jessie McFall, Maurine Martin, Elsworth Mayer, Mary Grace Phillips, Lou Delle Perry, Opat Ramsey, Eugene Shockley, Mrs. John T. Thompson, Beulah Williams, Russell Wiley, Henry Wooden, Clifford Yeager.

The following were presented diplomas of graduation from the preparatory department:

Doris Bates, Virginia Callahan, Joe Frederick, Mary Elene Graston, Allen Harwood, Evelyn Spruill, Will Jo Starr, John T. Thompson, Robert Phillips, Elwood Potter, Ralph Ross, Elizabeth Spruill, Dorothy Kimberling, Lessie Mansfield, Wallace Nard.

Dean Isaacks also stated that practically all of the high school students had been carrying some college work, one student, John T. Thompson, having completed practically two years of college work.

Awards Diplomas.

Dr. Roberts then awarded diplomas as recommended by Dean Isaacks.

Dean Isaacks then announced that the honors should be awarded as follows:

The first honor, to the pupil making the highest average in all subjects for the two years in college, to Segie Marie Thompson, Cisco, Texas.

The second honor, to the pupil making the second highest average in all subjects for the two years in college, to Mary Grace Phillips, of Winnfield, La.

The third honor, the third highest average in the class to Eugene Shockley, Cisco, Texas.

Dr. Roberts then asked Mrs. Thompson to stand, and after praising her for her excellent scholarship, and mentioning that during the time she was attending Randolph as a student, she was also occupying the position as secretary of Randolph college, presented her with scholarships from the following colleges and universities, such scholarships having been awarded to the highest honor pupil:

Southern Methodist university, Dallas, Texas.

Texas Christian university, upon application, Fort Worth, Texas.

Trinity university, Waxahachie, Texas.

College of Industrial Arts and Sciences, Kingsville, Texas.

He then presented Eugene Shockley with scholarships awarded him by the following colleges and universities on account of his being the highest honor graduate among the boys:

Southern Methodist university, Dallas, Texas.

Texas Christian university, upon application, Fort Worth, Texas.

Trinity university, Waxahachie, Texas.

College of Industrial Arts and Sciences, Kingsville, Texas.

State university, Austin, Texas.

Miss Grace Phillips was asked to stand, and Dr. Roberts praised her for her excellent work in Randolph, expressed appreciation for her character and commended her for being the second honor graduate.

Upon the recommendation of the Dean of the Fine Arts department, Thomas Reid, Dr. Roberts then presented a diploma in voice to Mrs. Thompson, she having completed three years work in the fine arts department, having majored in voice, and having given a voice recital in two languages.

After the song "Benediction" by the congregation, the happy graduates were presented with flowers by their well-wishers.

Their 11-game 8 to 7 victory over the Boston second round "chuck" was a well-deserved triumph.

Shriners Ready for Los Angeles Conclave

The vast Los Angeles coliseum, shown above, will be the scene of the principal events, including a huge night electrical pageant in which thousands of Shriners marching behind 40 bands will carry illuminated novelties, when 100,000 delegates and members of their families gather at Los Angeles for the 55th annual Shrine conclave beginning June 4. At the left is Leo M. Edwards, potentate of Al Malakiah temple of Los Angeles, who is director-general of the national convention, while at the right is Leo V. Short Story Writer Is Seeking "Color"

A real, live author—a writer of short stories at that—was in Ranger today.

Just how rapidly he writes may be seen from the fact that three magazines now on the stands contain products of his typewriter and the last week's issue of another magazine contained one of his short stories.

John A. Thompson of New York city is roving over the southwest in search of "color" for his fiction. He is accompanied by his wife, their little son, and the author's mother.

He was enthusiastic about Ranger and manifested interest in romantic sidelights of its history. It is his first trip to Texas and he is delighted with the state.

Thompson has had wide experience on New York newspapers, notably the News, pioneer "picture newspaper," though he has been connected with Hearst's New York paper and with other newspapers of Manhattan.

He found time, despite his news writing, to produce numerous short stories and found a ready demand for them. In the current issues of Ace High and Adventure Trails, some of his writing can be found and in last week's Argosy. All Story was another of his stories. Also this week's Argosy.

He decided that the best way to write fiction however was to get

Breckenridge Woman Isn't Like The Same Person

Feels Beter Since Taking Orgatone Than In Years, She Declares

"When I began taking Orgatone I was feeling in pretty bad shape in fact my husband and I formerly had a chicken ranch but I was in too bad health to stay on same," said Mrs. D. F. Head, who resides at 128 E. Walker St., Breckenridge, Texas, and whose husband runs "Shorty's" cafe in that city, in an interview with the Orgatone representative a few days ago.

"For several years," she continued, "I had been going down hill and had gotten so weak I couldn't attend to my regular duties about the ranch. I was so nervous and miserable I couldn't sleep and suffered with rheumatism in my arms and shoulders which caused me to be in miserable shape most of the time. I also suffered with bad dizzy headaches which completely upset my nerves. I tried everything and kept getting worse until I lost hope of ever getting well."

"When Orgatone was recommended to me I said, no, there's no use trying anything else, nothing can help me. Finally a friend of mine persuaded me into trying Orgatone and when I started on it, I was in very very much run-down condition. My skin was yellow like a pumpkin. But when I finished half of my first bottle I began to feel better and from then on my improvement was rapid. I have taken three bottles now and have gained both in weight and strength. My nerves are quiet, the rheumatism don't bother me like it did and I sleep better and my food does me good, as my increase in weight and strength show. I feel stronger and better than I have in years, my complexion has cleared up and my appetite is extra fine. I feel that I owe my present good health to Orgatone and I recommend it to everyone who is suffering, no matter what the trouble is."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Eastland exclusively by Toombs Richardson Drug Store who are our laboratory agents.

Babe Visits Victims of Panic

"Sure—I'll autograph one for you!"... And the pain-twisted face of 11-year-old Leon Gaffner became wreathed in happy smiles. For none other than the great Babe Ruth came to visit him, and several other injured in a New York hospital, where they were confined by injuries received in the recent panic at the Yankee Stadium during a sudden rainstorm. Here you see the Bambino autographing a baseball for the young patient while pretty Mrs. Ruth smiles and holds his hand.

away from the duties of a newspaper office, escape from the narrow confines of the great city and come out to the vast southwest, especially as he writes stories of action, usually with a western setting.

He has answered thousands of questions on mining and not once has a captious reader written in to point out an error or a flaw.

His advice to one who aspires to write fiction is to study a magazine thoroughly, learn the type of stories the magazine wants—and then give it that kind of story. Sounds simple, doesn't it?

Stories of the oil fields are infrequent, he said, because few writers are familiar enough with oil operations to write convincingly. One need not be an expert nor need he write a story that is absolutely true to life—most "westerns" are unrepresentative of conditions as they actually exist today—but the writer must know details that will give a verity to his tale, he must bring in phrases and touches that will show he knows something of the scenes he is describing.

There is a good market for sport stories—fiction dealing with the prize ring, gridiron, diamond and other athletics. One reason for this is the sameness of situation and treatment of most sport stories that are submitted. Consequently originality is at a premium. Most authors of stories on sports imitate the writings of Witwer, Hellman or Lardner's early baseball yarns, said Thompson.

Air Stories Needed.
The broadest field of all however is for fiction dealing with aviation. The time has passed when a man can put a story over by merely calling a plane "a crate" and speaking of a "three-point landing," for the public's knowledge of flying has progressed rapidly. Consequently, the stories must treat of aviation in a way that is little short of authoritative. At present, most of the writers of flying fiction are well-versed in the technique of aviation but are lacking in the ability to tell a story well. The question is whether these writers will learn to unfold a tale skillfully before the more adept writers master the technique of aviation.

Thompson said that he considered he had turned out a full week's work if he produced an 8,000-word story in addition to some feature writing. He said that usually he writes a story "at white heat" and sends it to the editor without attempting to rewrite or even to revise it.

For the man or woman who is writing, not primarily for an income but for "glory," the Saturday Evening Post offers a great field as this magazine, read by 10,000,000 people each week, is always looking for new writers.

Texas Electric Service Company

In Readiness For Formal Opening

A complete new line of electric appliances will be shown opening night, Saturday, at the Texas Electric Service company, 111-13 East Commerce.

Much effort has been expended to beautify the company's plant, and to afford Eastland one of the most up-to-date and modern electric appliance show rooms to be found in cities much larger.

The company deserves much credit for its work in beautification of its rooms, adding the newest and most modern equipment and appliances, and making every effort to furnish the people within the trade territory of Eastland with the finest accommodations obtainable.

In the modern electric home of the city today, as well as in the country home, all needs can be rapidly taken care of by the management and employees of the Texas Electric Service company.

Furniture Store Is Now Located In Large Home

The Eastland Furniture Exchange, which moved to Eastland one year ago, has been occupying its larger, remodeled home adjoining the Texas Electric Service company on East Commerce street since December.

A big new stock of furniture has been added recently to the company's store.

W. E. (Bill) Brashler is manager and C. M. Campbell is assistant manager.

New Building Houses Modern Tire Company

Those buildings or remodeling homes will do well to visit the Masengale Modern Tin and Plumbing company, under the management of G. B. Masengale.

This firm has been in Eastland for several years, but has just recently moved into its own building built especially for its needs.

The new home is located at 307 East Commerce street, and is a spacious building of concrete construction.

The firm specializes in tin and sheet metal work as well as in plumbing.

Poe Furniture Company Came Here Year Ago

The second door east of the Texas Electric Service company's new home is the Poe Furniture company, with a large stock of both new and used furniture.

Mr. E. N. Poe, the proprietor, moved to Eastland with his family a year ago and bought this business at East Commerce street. Eastland is just emerging from a period of depression," Mr. Poe states, "but as I see it the city partly. Much credit goes to Mr. Bida for his efforts in making this possible. He has one of the best show rooms and service departments for trucks in the whole of West Texas and let us say that no line of trucks deserve a better setting than his: The G. M. C. Trucks powered with Buick, Pontiac and Big Brute Motors.

RADIUM BATH HOUSE.
The Radium Bath House is another neighbor of the new Texas Electric Service Company who bids them welcome and wishes for their every success.

At this time the bath house is doing wonderful business and doing their part to keep the people of Eastland in the best health through the curative properties of their mineral water. Miss Hughes who manages the Bath House said that from now until the 21st of June they would have a special rate on a series of baths and that anyone stayed up for any one of the several courses of baths over on the last day would be given the special rate.

WELCOME EXTENDED BY BATES' G. M. C. SALES CO.
Mr. Bobby Bates of the Bates' G. M. C. Sales Company said this morning that he joined with the other merchants of East Commerce Street in extending a hearty welcome to the Texas Electric Service Co. on their moving to their new and beautiful business house.

In less than a year this street has grown from a row of empty and more or less uninviting business houses to a street of prosperous of his expert crew it is only a few days until the car will be rolled out of the shop looking almost like it did when new.

In next Sunday's issue of this paper Mr. Bida will have a large advertisement with graphic illustrations of what his magic can do. We will say nothing about it now, except, don't miss seeing it. Even if you are not a car owner you will be interested in seeing the pictures he has had made.

moved out. Browning will stage a great show of his own in Madison Square Garden.

Three auctioneers will sell to the highest bidders 60 parcels of property which Daddy has been accumulating for 30 years. They range from a 16-story mercantile building in the Canal street section to one-story "taxpayers" and include apartment hotels and elevator apartments the length and breadth of Manhattan.

The buildings to be sold cover 268,000 square feet, with a total content of about 20,000,000 cubic feet, and Daddy expects to get about $6,000,000 for the lot.

With a part of the proceeds, Browning will establish his foundation off some $6,000,000 worth of houses and establish the Browning Foundation for his "young friends."

Browning got the idea last Christmas when scores of children attending his annual toy party crashed through plate glass windows in their eagerness for candy harps and toilet sets, and were sent to the hospital.

"Why not," said Daddy, "move my charity closer to the hospitals so the kiddies won't have so far to go?"

With Daddy to think was to act—and in terms of millions. So on June 11, when Prof. Milton D. Crandall's dance marathon supposedly will have ended and ation and put his big idea into effect. The foundation will operate and maintain playgrounds for children in various parts of the city, "preferable near hospitals," and endow hospitals with expensive permanent toys and play things for child patients.

Large doll houses, mechanical railways, model farms, race courses and anything else that Daddy can think of will be furnished to make sickness a pleasure. Many East side urchins would gladly fall ill for less.

SHORT STORY WRITER IS SEEKING COLOR

However the standard is so high that—as one writer-friend of Thompson said—"I can get in the Post twice a year and that means about $1,500 but I can get in the pulp magazines fast enough to make $8,000 a year."

He possesses a ready sense of humor. When asked if he writes novels, he answered: "My bank account won't even permit me the time to write a novelette." Short stories, being written of course more quickly, are, naturally, more readily converted into cash.

In appearance, Thompson meets the public's expectations of what a writer should look like. He has a large head, with a broad forehead, thick hair that is swept back, a moustache, and he puffs a pipe. As befits one who is rambling over the country and especially an author, he wears a dark suit which is neither freshly-pressed nor baggy. One might describe it as Bohemian or Greenwich Village. He walks around hatless.

The writer is quite modest about his stories. He says that he cherishes no delusions that they are literature but that he hopes to accumulate an amount sufficient for him to live on while he attempts to write fiction not merely to be sold but that will represent what he wants to write.

The New York Giants beat Brooklyn 8 to 7, and 19 to 6, before 55,000 in the polo grounds. Terry's hit in the ninth won the first game, while the Giants collected 19 hits to win in the second.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, lawyer, does not suspect that his secretary, NAN CRAWFORD, who has been with him three years, is in love with him. Nan, honorable and "square as a man," despises herself for this and determines to resist.

Morgan is deeply in love with his beautiful and selfish wife IRIS. Elated over a big legal triumph in which the brilliant and clever Nan has rendered invaluable assistance, Morgan invites her and BERT CRAWFORD, a friend of the family, to his home for dinner that night.

Nan does not trust Crawford and is puzzled by his extraordinary interest in Iris. She goes to the dinner and is treated with snobbish indifference by Crawford and by Iris, whom she thoroughly dislikes. After dinner, an officer appears with a warrant for the arrest of Crawford. The next morning's papers carry stories about Crawford's part in a whirlwind stock-selling scheme intended to finance a packing plant.

His friend and treasurer, ROY BLAND, has disappeared with half a million of the proposed company's funds.

Morgan, believing in the innocence of Crawford, stakes his professional integrity to defend him. Nan realizes that the unsuspecting lawyer needs her now more than ever and therefore she postpones her resignation until the Crawford case is finished. Nan overhears by means of a listening-in device a conversation between Crawford and his switchboard operator, ALICE BELTON, which takes place in Morgan's private office. Crawford bribes the girl to forget he talked with the cashier of the bank, approving the check young Bland cashed just before his disappearance.

Nan is startled when she hears Alice chide Crawford about a "red-headed dame." She is now convinced that the insinuation about Iris Morgan contained in a blackmail note addressed to Morgan which she intercepted to save him anguish is true.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

"That Belton girl here yet?" Morgan asked Nan, his deep voice dragging a little with fatigue. "If she is, I may have to ask you to stay a little late to make notes on her testimony—that is, if she's at liberty to talk to the defense attorney."

Trainer hadn't seen her yet. She's been out of town—her father's funeral in New York." Nan answered crisply. "She'll testify for us all right."

She did not tell him that she had already made notes on Alice Belton's story, but as soon as he had passed on into his private office she swiftly inserted three sheets of plain white paper with two of carbon into her machine and with almost incredible rapidity transcribed the shorthand notes she had made while listening in upon that incriminating conversation between Bert Crawford and Alice Belton.

She had just finished the transcription when the buzzer sounded. Tearing the sheets from the machine she folded the original very small and tucked it into the pocket of her heart-colored tweed skirt. The two other copies she secreted very effectively for the moment by tucking them between two sheets of carbon paper in their box. Then, with her notebook in hand and her brown eyes fixed on the door, she went to take her seat beside John Curtis Morgan at this desk.

"The gods are with us, Nan," Morgan exulted. "Miss Belton is going to be one of our star witnesses. Now, child, tell your story again from the beginning, so Miss Carroll can make notes on it. Jove, this is luck, Bert!"

There was such genuine gladness, such boyish relief in his voice that Nan's heart swelled with pain for him and anger against his friend whom she believed to be betraying him ruthlessly. As Alice Belton's coquettish, tinkling voice ran on and on, punctuated with little gasps and exclamations, Nan obediently took notes. Crawford had done his work well; to Morgan the story must have sounded utterly convincing.

"Splendid, Miss Belton!" the lawyer applauded her, when she had finished. "I say, Bert, maybe Miss Belton could give us some idea of what Gladys Payne has against you. Girls do talk among themselves, you know—"

"Oh, isn't she AWFUL, dragging poor Bert—I mean, Mr. Crawford—into this mess?" Alice cried. "Just spite-work, I say! She had an awful crush on Bert—"

"Mr. Crawford—and when he couldn't see her, she took up with Roy Bland!"

"Ah-h-h! I see," Morgan smiled. "And were Miss Payne and Bland really engaged?"

"I guess so. Anyway, she was sporting a diamond ring—not quite a carat, and I always say: if a man can't give a girl at least a carat diamond—"

"Hm! Not quite a carat?" Morgan frowned. "Doesn't look as if he were using much of the money he was taking, does it? When did he give her the ring, Miss Bland?"

"Oh, call me Alice," she urged, fluttering her mascaraed lashes at Morgan. "Well, she showed it to us on Saturday—let's see: that must be the fifth of November. Yeah, the fifth! That was after he'd stolen more than half of all that money, wasn't it?—the cheap skate! If I was Gladys—"

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

DAN AND FRECKLES ARE GETTING DEEPER AND DEEPER INTO DARK CANYON IN SEARCH OF TAGALONG, WHO WAS KIDNAPPED FROM THE TRAIN BY NAN, A DISCHARGED FOREMAN OF UNCLE HARRY'S RANCH—UNCLE HARRY REMAINS AT BAR O, CONFIDENT OF LEAVING THE JOB IN DAN'S HANDS.

IT SURE GAVE ME A SUPERIOR FEELING TO GO SHOPPING WITH MY PURSE STUFFED WITH BILLS BUT I COULDN'T THINK OF A THING TO BUY BEFORE WE GOT ALL THIS MONEY. IT SEEMED LIKE EVERYTHING I COULDN'T AFFORD I WANTED.

WHO DO YOU SUPPOSE CAME DASHING ACROSS THE STREET TO SHAKE MY HAND? OLD LUKE HARRISON, THAT'S THE FIRST TIME HE EVEN SO MUCH AS TOSSED A NOB MY WAY. I GOT A GREAT KICK OUT OF THAT.

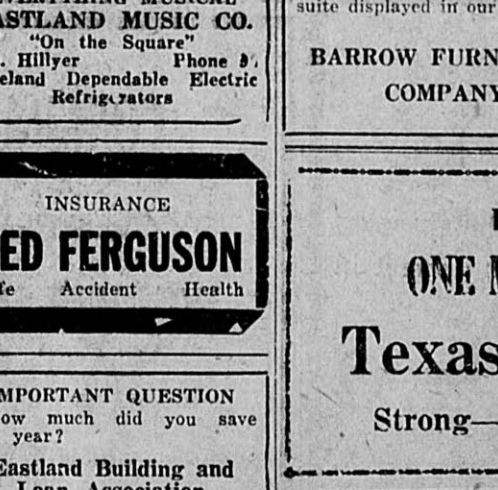

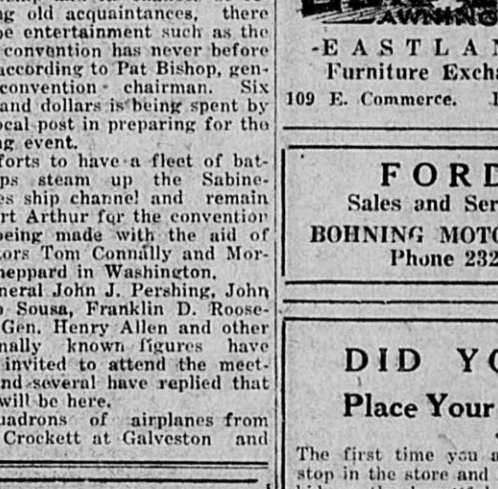

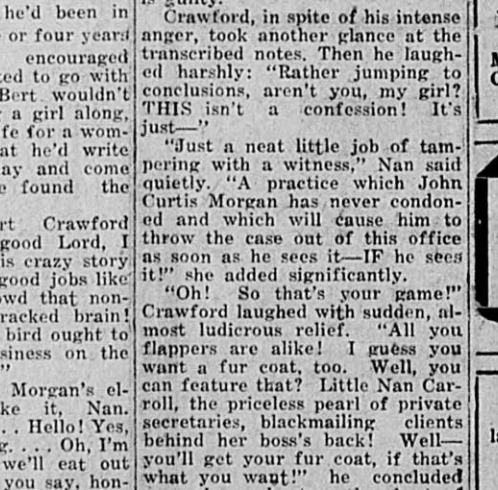

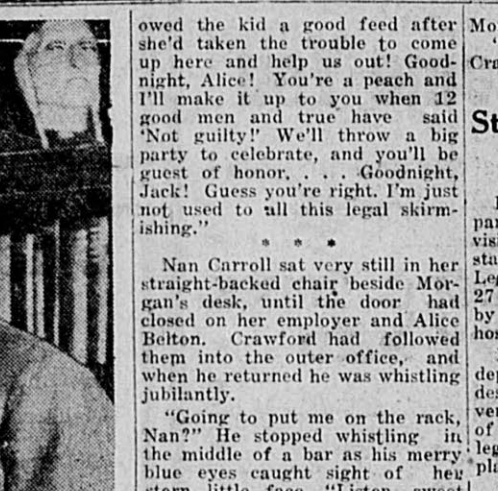

AFTER THE CREDIT MAN CALLED THE BANK HE WAS ALL SMILES AND INTRODUCED ME TO THE HEADS OF THE DEPARTMENTS AND TOLD THEM TO GIVE ME ANYTHING I WANTED. MONEY HAS ITS ADVANTAGES. I'VE GOT A LOT OF ADVERTISING AND A BIG REP OUT OF ALL THIS PEOPLE POINT ME OUT ON THE STREET AND IN DRUG STORES AND ASK TO BE INTRODUCED.

FROM UP HERE WE CAN SEE A FIRE, IF THERE'S ANY IN THE CANYON, AN' IF HE'S IN HERE IT'S A CINCH HE'S GOTTA EAT AN' KEEP WARM!

JES' AS I THOUGHT THERE IT IS!! NOW WE GOT SOMETHIN' TO WORK ON! COME ON, WE GOTTA WORK FAST!! IT'S SMOKE ALL RIGHT!

MY HEAVENS, DO YOU MEAN TO TELL ME THAT'S THE BIG KICK YOU GET OUT OF $100,000? POSING ON STREET CORNERS AND IN DRUG STORES SO PEOPLE CAN POINT YOU OUT? POP, YOU'RE A RIOT!

A RIOT? WOW! WHAT ABOUT GETTING A KICK OUT OF HAVING A SHOP TO YOUR SIMPLY BECAUSE THEY KNOW YOU'LL SWELL THE STORE'S PROFITS, SINCE YOU'VE A BARREL OF DOUGH TO SPEND?

"Read this, Mr. Crawford, then tell me what you honestly believe I think of you."

owed the kid a good feed after she'd taken a trouble to come up here and help us out! Good night, Alice! You're a peach and I'll make it up to you when 12 good men and true have said 'Not guilty!' We'll throw a big party to celebrate, and you'll be guest of honor. . . . Goodnight, Jack! Guess you're right. I'm just not used to all this legal skimming."

Nan Carroll sat very still in her straight-backed chair beside Morgan's desk, until the door had closed on her employer and Alice Belton. Crawford had followed them into the outer office, and when he returned he was whistling jubilantly.

"Going to put me on the rack, Nan?" He stopped whistling in the middle of a bar as his merry blue eyes caught the sign of her stern little face. "Listen, sweet child, I'd like to know what you really think of me! You've got me puzzled! Sometimes you look at me as if I were a cockroach, and it makes me uncomfortable. You're not against me in this thing, are you?"

Nan's eyes remained sternly on his flushed face as she slowly drew the folded sheet of paper from her pocket. "Read this, Mr. Crawford, then tell me what you honestly believe I think of you."

"Exactly!" Morgan smiled. "But tell us, Alice, if Gladys said anything to you girls about Mr. Crawford or Mr. Bland, in connection with this case, I mean," he added hastily, in an effort to stem her irrelevant disclosures.

"Well, on Thursday morning, the night after Roy Bland left for Chicago, or when he was supposed to have left for Chicago," Alice began impressively. "I found Gladys crying her eyes out in the rest room, and I said, 'Good grief! Why the ocean of tears? Your sweetie's only gone to Chicago, you poor nut,' and Gladys howled: 'Chicago! I wish it was Chicago! Bert Crawford's ribbed him up to go to South America, and I'll probably never see him again. He will die of fever or be eaten by wild animals or something.' Then she made me promise that I'd never breathe a word of what she'd said. She said she'd promise Roy on her sacred word of honor not to tell a soul, and that Bert had made HIM promise—"

"Well, for Pete's sake!" Crawford expostulated. "Why, good Lord, I can't imagine a little wart like Bland having the nerve and the imagination to 'frame' me like that? Of course he knew this Payne girl would spill the beans! Tried to make it look like I'd had him draw those checks, had taken the money, and then sent him to South America to get him out of the way! Well, I'll be—"

Morgan looked at him keenly. "You've stated the case for the prosecution with remarkable clarity, Bert! I doubt if Brainerd can do it better when he sums up! And I'm afraid, with this Payne girl's story to back him up, that Brainerd is going to sound pretty plausible. No, keep your shirt on, Bert! I've warned you before that we have to look at this thing from the prosecution's standpoint often rather than from our own. We've got to anticipate every move in their game, and it will be fatal to minimize their strength. . . . Now, Alice, did she tell you anything more? A lot depends on what you can tell us, child."

Alice was quivering with excitement and triumph. "Gladys was terribly sore at Bert. She said it was all his fault, that Roy would not have had the nerve to go traipsing off to—"

"Oh, all right! I just thought I

Morgan on one condition." "Well—what's the condition?" Crawford demanded thickly. (To Be Continued)

State Legion Meet To Be in August

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. — Preparations to take care of 5,000 visiting ex-service men during the state convention of the American Legion to be held here Aug. 26, 27 and 28, are now being made by local legionnaires who are to be hosts to the visitors.

Being the first time the state department has ever seen fit to designate Port Arthur as the convention city, the whole of this city of 50,000 population is behind the legionnaires in their extensive plans.

Beside the convention, with its fellowship and its chances of renewing old acquaintances, there will be entertainment such as the state convention has never before had, according to Pat Bishop, general convention chairman. Six thousand dollars is being spent by the local post in preparing for the coming event.

Efforts to have a fleet of battleships steam up the Sabine-Neches ship channel and remain in Port Arthur for the convention are being made with the aid of Senators Tom Connally and Morris Sheppard in Washington.

General John J. Pershing, John Philip Sousa, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Gen. Henry Allen and other nationally known figures have been invited to attend the meeting and several have replied that they will be here.

ALASKA GLAMOR SPOILED, PLAINT OF SOURDOUGH

By DAN CAMPBELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO.—Like many of its famous characters, the once roaring cities on the "trial of '98" are slowly dying.

From out of the fastness of the Yukon one of its few remaining adventurers "came back" the other day, to tell of the vanishing romance of the golden fields and offer cryptic comment on advancing "civilization."

Richard J. "Dick" Negus, grizzled "sourdough" of 30 years self-imposed exile in the outposts of northernmost Alaska had applause only for that part of modern life as exemplified by the flapper. "Damn fine," the old man said with a twinkle in his eyes, half hidden by bushy, straggling eyebrows. "Even though they don't wear enough to flag a handcar they look healthy," he declared, admitting the first sight was somewhat of a shock.

"Up in my country they sprinkle insect powder on the chairs at dances because the Eskimo girls wear so many clothes and furs."

Old Time Glamor Gone
Although Alaska is still "a land of wonders" to Dick, he related that little of the old time glamour of the gold rush days remains.

Readily recalling the "Great Northern" saloon and its equally famous proprietor, the late Tex Rickard, Dick declared that Nome is now a dead city.

The old heavy days of dog racing, dancing and gambling are gone. What a difference. Nome, once a city of 40,000 gold mad adventurers housed 168 souls this past winter. At St. Michaels there are but two white men and two white women.

To Tex Rickard, the old sourdough paid a short but earnest tribute—"he was a square shooter and a gambler to the hilt, a man of vision with nerve to back his judgment."

Although Dick declares there is still gold in Alaska, his efforts are

Flat Spuds

Dr. O. E. Pierce, former physician and friend of the late Luther Burbank, has succeeded in cultivating a plot of land in Elko county, Nev., where only flat potatoes are grown. These flat spuds, he says, are much desired by hotels and large restaurants and bring him 50 per cent greater yield and much greater income than the common varieties.

confined to trapping. His home is located at a point 600 miles north of Nome and 250 miles from St. Michaels.

Sun Shines 22 Hours
There the sun shines on the Yukon 22 hours a day from February to December and a man is not a "sourdough" unless he has seen the ice come and go in the Bering Sea.

Fox, mink, muskrat and ermine are his principal catches. He declared that reindeer and caribou were plentiful and expressed surprise that more of the meat is not used in this country.

Dog sled is the only means of

"fast" transportation. Dick makes the trip to the nearest settlement, which is 140 miles away, in a couple of days by dog team.

"But there's something about it kinda gets a fellow," he said in explaining his wish to go back. "When you have lived up there for a spell, and you've beaten its cold and dangers, you sorta want to stick it out to the finish."

GILBERT IS SPEAKER AT ROTARY MEET

(Cisco Daily News)

Victor E. Gilbert, of Cisco, chairman of the committee on revenue and taxation of the house of representatives, was the speaker for the meeting of the Cisco Rotary club today at noon. Mayor J. M. Williamson was program chairman for the day. The grandeur of Texas and the responsibilities which are imposed upon the members of the legislature in the preparation of laws for the guidance of the people of the great state was the theme of an eloquent address by Mr. Gilbert. He ended his address with a description of the course which a bill must follow before it becomes a law and pledged his best efforts toward discharging properly the task of the people of Eastland and Callahan counties have placed upon him as their fiduciary representative.

Leon Maner took a few of the closing minutes of the session to describe his experiences at the convention of Rotary International at Dallas. "I never knew before the tremendous force for worldwide advancement that is Rotary International," he declared. He urged every Rotarian who had not attended the convention to do so, pointing out that it will be years before another convention is held at a distance so convenient from Cisco. He spoke especially of the good fellowship that prevailed among those thousands of delegates from almost every foreign country in the world.

Wash clothes in water softened with Melo—save 1/3 to 1/2 the usual amount of soap

Clothes washed in hard water are hard to get clean. The hardness in the water combines with the soap and makes scum. The scum collects dirt. It gets into the fabric of the clothes. No amount of rinsing can get it all out.

But soften hard water with Melo and there isn't any scum. The water makes wonderful suds. Melo saves from 1/3 to 1/2 the amount of soap ordinarily used. With or without soap, water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner. Get it at your grocer's.

When Clyde Van Dusen Won Kentucky Derby

Mud, just plenty of mud—but Clyde Van Dusen, gallant gelding son of the noted Man o' War, didn't mind as he splashed his way to victory in the annual Kentucky Derby. Owned by H. P. Gardner of New York and ridden by "Pony" McAttee, Clyde Van Dusen led all the way. He is shown above in the inset. A view of the crowd in the stands and the infield that braved a downpour of rain to watch the race is also shown here.

ALASKA GLAMOR SPOILED, PLAINT OF SOURDOUGH

By DAN CAMPBELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO.—Like many of its famous characters, the once roaring cities on the "trial of '98" are slowly dying.

From out of the fastness of the Yukon one of its few remaining adventurers "came back" the other day, to tell of the vanishing romance of the golden fields and offer cryptic comment on advancing "civilization."

Richard J. "Dick" Negus, grizzled "sourdough" of 30 years self-imposed exile in the outposts of northernmost Alaska had applause only for that part of modern life as exemplified by the flapper.

"Damn fine," the old man said with a twinkle in his eyes, half hidden by bushy, straggling eyebrows. "Even though they don't wear enough to flag a handcar, they look healthy," he declared, admitting the first sight was somewhat of a shock.

"Up in my country they sprinkle insect powder on the chairs at dances because the Eskimo girls wear so many clothes and furs."

Old Time Glamor Gone
Although Alaska is still "a land of wonders" to Dick, he related that little of the old time glamor of the gold rush days remains.

Readily recalling the "Great Northern" saloon and its equally famous proprietor, the late Tex Rickard, Dick declared that Nome is now a dead city.

"The old hearty days of dog racing, dancing and gambling are gone. What a difference. Nome, once a city of 40,000 gold mad adventurers housed 168 souls this past winter. At St. Michaels there are but two white men and two white women."

To Tex Rickard, the old sourdough paid a short but earnest tribute—"he was a square shooter and a gambler to the hilt, a man of vision with nerve to back his judgment."

Although Dick declares there is still gold in Alaska, his efforts are

Flat Spuds

Dr. O. E. Pierce, former physician and friend of the late Luther Burbank, has succeeded in cultivating a plot of land in Elko county, Nev., where only flat potatoes are grown. These flat spuds, he says, are much restaurants and bring him 50 per cent greater yield and much greater income than the common varieties.

confined to trapping. His home is located at a point 600 miles north of Nome and 250 miles from St. Michaels.

Sun Shines 22 Hours
There the sun shines on the Yukon 22 hours a day from February to December and a man is not a "sourdough" unless he has seen the ice come and go in the Bering Sea.

Fox, mink, muskrat and ermine are his principal catches. He declared that reindeer and caribou were plentiful and expressed surprise that more of the meat is not used in this country.

Dog sled is the only means of

"fast" transportation. Dick makes the trip to the nearest settlement, which is 140 miles away, in a couple of days by dog team.
"But there's something about it kinda gets a fellow," he said in explaining his wish to go back. "When you have lived up there for a spell, and you've beaten its cold and dangers, you sorta want to stick it out to the finish."

(Cisco Daily News)

Victor B. Gilbert, of Cisco, chairman of the committee on revenue and taxation of the house of representatives, was the speaker for the meeting of the Cisco Rotary club today at noon. Mayor J. M. Williamson was program chairman for the day. The grandeur of Texas and the responsibilities which are imposed upon the members of the legislature in the preparation of laws for the guidance of the people of the great state was the theme of an eloquent address by Mr. Gilbert. He ended his address with a description of the course which a bill must follow before it becomes a law and pledged his best efforts toward discharging properly the task the people of Eastland and Callahan counties have placed upon him as their floral representative.

Leon Mauer took a few of the closing minutes of the session to describe his experiences at the convention of Rotary International at Dallas. "I never knew before the tremendous force for worldwide advancement that is Rotary International," he declared. He urged every Rotarian who had not attended the convention to do so, pointing out that it will be years before another convention is held at a distance so convenient from Cisco. He spoke especially of the good fellowship that prevailed among those thousands of delegates from almost every foreign country in the world.

Wash clothes in water softened with Melo save 1/3 to 1/2 the usual amount of soap

CLOTHES—washed in hard water are hard to get clean. The hardness in the water combines with the soap and makes scum. The scum collects dirt. It gets into the fabric of the clothes. No amount of rinsing can get it all out.
But soften hard water with Melo and there isn't any scum. The water makes wonderful suds. Melo saves from 1/3 to 1/2 the amount of soap ordinarily used. With or without soap, water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner. Get it at your grocer's.
