Mavmen Lose Lion Game But Great Passing Attack with Key as Passer Shown

Eastland Mavericks vindicated themselves for pre-conference game losses when the nearest passing attack shown in the Oil Belt to date was uncovered as they lost to Brownwood Lions by the score of 18 to 12 at Brownwood Thursday night. It was a startling barrage of passes that surprised the Lions when Key majored with the chunking that marked the game of extraordinary and the Phoenix bird-like ascent of Eastland in estimation of the fans. Eastland netted eighth first downs in the last quarter by the aerial bombardment. Scores in the game were: Brownwood—Clardy on 65-yard run after receiving Eastland kickoff in first quarter; Thomason on 35-yard march in second quarter, and Thomason crossing goal line after Clardy advanced ball to the one yard stripe in third quarter. Eastland—H. Taylor dredged up block punt and ran 40 yards in first quarter; Key passes to Mavmen taking them 70 yards down goal line with H. Taylor taking the final heave on five-yard line and going over. Trantham missed the tries for extra points. The passing attack of Eastland started in the fourth quarter, after Harry Taylor made a shot gain around right end. The pass was incomplete. Key's next, to Sikes was good for 18 yards. Sikes received another heave from Key, netting the Mavs 13 yards. With Taylor as the intended receiver, Key's next heave was incomplete, Garrison received the next pass which was good for 12 yards. Sikes and Troy Taylor in around end runs made three yards with the former losing a yard on the next play. The score making heave came next with Key, throwing to H. Taylor, who made the five yard run to the pay stripe. Brownwood, surprised at the volley in the final quarter, received Taylor's punt on their own 20 yard line and returned to the 35-yard stripe. Clardy made short gains by going around right end and Thomason fumbled, recovering for a two yard loss. Thomason punted, and took the ball again on their own yard around left tackle and Stephens netted four yards on his return. A pass from Thomason to Foster was good for four yards. Eastland started passing again on its own 33 yard line after receiving Thomason's punt and went to the Lions' 13 for a first down and floundered there. First downs were 11 for each team. The attendance was estimated at 3,500. Starting Lineups: Eastland—T. Taylor, lg; Greer, lt; Dolberry, lg; R. Taylor, c; Van Geem, rg; Trantham, r; Garrison, re; Key, q; H. Taylor, lb; Hill, rb; Sikes, t; Brownwood—Miller, lg; Shaw, lt; Vernon, lg; Vaughn, c; Wall, rg; Bostick, rt; Crow, re; Clardy, q; Stephens, lb; Foster, rb; Thomason, f.

Lesson of Prohibition Ignored by Brewers

When the Bourbons were restored to power in France after the downfall of Napoleon, it was recorded that they had learned nothing and had forgotten nothing. They had been ridden out of town on a rail, so to speak, because their blind arrogance had provoked the people beyond endurance.

Some of the largest brewers in the country, say administration officials, are returning to the bad old practice of pre-prohibition daps when it was the rule for a big brewer to own many hundreds of saloons as a means of pushing his product.

This practice was outlawed under the New Deal's original alcohol administration. But this, like various other things, was carried to the realm of forgotten things when the Blue Eagle died, and the substitute legislation passed by the last Congress seems to be rather defective.

It provides that ownership or control of saloons by breweries is illegal—in states where there is a similar state law. The result is that the law is full of loopholes, and the brewers are beginning to take advantage of the fact.

An administration official says that one big midwest-brewery has already taken leases on 1000 pieces of real estate in Chicago alone.

The evils of this practice are obvious. A beer parlor owned by a brewery is interested in just one thing: in seeing as great a quantity of beer drunk as the neighboring stomachs and purses will stand for. It is out to push sales, regardless of the effect.

It was precisely this sort of thing that led ordinary men and women to grow so disgusted with the saloon that they voted for prohibition.

We gave up prohibition, at last, because its abuses were too great to be endured. Some of these brewers seem anxious to convince the public that the abuses of repeal are equally great. Back after more than a decade of exile, they seem to have learned nothing and forgotten nothing.

If the brewers generally go back to their pre-prohibition tactics, they will provoke a new wave of sentiment for prohibition just as surely as night follows day.

Roosevelt and the Need for Renewal of Welfare Services

President Roosevelt has returned to his desk on the banks of the Potomac river. He opened the 1935 "mobilization of human needs" meeting with the assertion that "in spite of definitely brighter economic strides, the problem of welfare services demands the best of both the government and private agencies."

It had to come in America. Gerald Swope of New York, a famous industrialist, is the chairman of the famous charity relief welfare organization of America. The head of the New Deal administration facing Chairman Swope and a vast number of delegates placed this in the record:

"For the third time we have the opportunity, face to face, to pledge at once the substance and sinews of government and of privately organized welfare agencies in the services of the less fortunate of the land. The fact that you have maintained your support of welfare services with a shrinkage of only 13 per cent of the amount raised since 1929, is remarkable. I am glad to know that you halted the retreat at that point a year ago and now are headed once more toward the front. Let there be a general advance from that point in the 350 campaigns which have been organized for the autumn of 1935."

In other words, the federal government has substituted a wage for the dole and the 48 states and their municipalities will be asked to take the load off the shoulders of federal taxpayers. This is the sixth year of the depression. It is agreed that the dole has no place in the economic life of the country. Billions have been spent by the federal government and will continue to be spent this winter and the coming summer to make it possible to relieve human distress and suffering as well as to provide work for idlers of the nation who are fit to work.

It is not a political issue. It should be non-partisan from top to bottom and from start to finish.

Sacramento lad injured in tussle with bear. Which explains why that Yankee Stadium affair was news.

To finance its war, Italy, according to authorities, may have to melt down its gold plate. Then, of course, they can fall back upon Mussolini's brass.

Old-Time Whisky Baron Says U.S. Is Cocktail-Minded

HOUSTON, Tex.—America is cocktail-minded, Julius Kessler, 80, old-time whisky baron, is the authority for the observation. "In the old days," he said, "people drank whisky, mixed with a little sugar or a little water, some lemon juice or mint. I think the reason they go in for cocktails is that the young whisky now on the market smells and tastes so bad that they prefer angostura and vermouth. Kessler, head of a huge distillery corporation, who got his start packing liquor over mountain passes on mules during the Colorado gold rush, has his own idea of thwarting evil-tasting young whisky.

He blends drinks, taking whiskies from one to four years old, adding a little heavy-bodied imported sherry, some old malt whisky and a tasteless, neutral spirit. "This produces a palatable, smooth and drinkable whisky with a fine bouquet," he said. He believes drunkenness is criminal and without justification. "It is a crime to eat too much; and just so, it is a crime to drink too much."

A little alcoholic stimulation is good for aged people, he believes and hopes he lives to be 200. "When I was 20," he said smiling, "my chief ambition was to reach the ripe age of 35 without dying in my boots."

Mark Twain was one of his closest friends, he said. The humorist used to visit him every summer. "He drank a good deal of whisky, but more wine."

Born in Budapest in 1855, Kessler came to America at the age of 17. He tried to join Custer, but was rejected because of his youth—thus being saved from massacre by the Indians. At 20, he went to Denver and became a whisky salesman. He has sold whisky ever since, except during prohibition. During the silver boom, he sold his whisky at $6 a gallon, which in turn was retailed at $2 for "three fingers."

A Colorado bank took over several whisky firms and engaged Kessler to operate them. This led to establishment of liquor houses in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth and Kessler prospered. In 1913 he became president of the Distillers Securities Corporation. In the pre-prohibition years, he bought from 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 gallons of blackstrap molasses in Cuba annually. He bought cigars, 10,000 at a time, for himself and when prohibition came, he had a personal stock of 38,000. "I still have a few cigars," he said. "I drink very little, but I don't claim to be a reformer or a prohibitionist."

Library 'Dont's' Are Displayed to Readers

AUSTIN—Book-lovers at the University of Texas this fall were greeted by a library "chamber of horrors" exhibit designed to prevent library vandalism. Librarians devised the display showing results of tearing out pages, turning down page corners, and longhand comments and pictures on page margins that destroy books. Other practical lessons in using library books are to follow. "Anything Goes" is soon to be made into a movie. The censors, however, will see it doesn't live up to its title.

Rice Prices Lower Than Since 1910

AUSTIN.—Prices offered farmers for their 1935 rice crop are the lowest since 1910, and those who hold their crop stand a good chance of profiting, according to J. E. McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture. The price now is $1.60 to $1.98 a barrel compared to $3.35 in 1912, $6.90 in 1918, and $3.58 in 1929, McDonald said. There is practically no carry over and a heavy export demand, McDonald said.

WIDOW SPIDER NO ODDITY

MOBERLY, Mo.—A newspaper displayed a black widow spider for the benefit of curious passersby. The exhibit brought a flood of exhibitors and the editor called a halt when 35 of the insects had been produced.

The GOLDEN FEATHER by Robert Bruce

Sandy was a good dancer. He asked, "I didn't bother you, did I, earlier, staring at you?"

CHAPTER II AS Bobby pushed his chair back they realized that the men had come up to their table. One of them was Art Lanning, the proprietor of the Golden Feather night club. He wore a dinner jacket and dazlingly sleek black hair brushed back from a pale forehead and he seemed just a little bit affable and sure to be enthralling, but then, Jean told herself, he must be all right, for hadn't her own boss introduced him to her? Lanning's companion, she realized with a little, startled thrill, was the good-looking young man who had been so noticeably waiting for her from his table on the other side of the room. He was tall, broad shouldered and although he wore his tuxedo as if he were used to it, he seemed to have an outdoor air about him, as if he belonged on the western plains somewhere instead of in this stuffy, verrowed night club. Perhaps was his hair that did it. It was sandy and it refused to lie down in the well-trained manner of Lanning's; instead, a long forelock drooped down over his forehead, making him look like a cowboy who had got used to the city life, nevertheless, intended to go back to the range some day. Lanning was smiling his stereotyped smile—the smile of a man who is everybody's friend but who watches all the angles, just the same. He put his hands on the table and leaned his big bulk over them. "You don't mind if I introduce an old friend of mine, do you?" he said. "This is Sandy Harkins—Sandy from the hair and Harkins from the family. Sandy, this charming young lady is Miss Jean Dunn, and the lucky man with her is Bobby Wallace."

safe and sound to your boy friend as soon as the music stops. "Then," said Jean, "we'd better start, because this number's going to be over in another minute." SHE got up, slipped into his arm and they glided away as smoothly as was possible, considering the crowded state of the dance floor. He was a good dancer, she discovered, moving with the effortless grace of the born athlete; for a moment he was silent, as he maneuvered her through the crowd. Presently he looked down and grinned. "I didn't bother you, did I, earlier, staring at you?" he asked. "Were you staring? I didn't notice."

"No? Baby, don't tell papa lies. Anyhow, I didn't mean to bother you, and I hoped you wouldn't be mad. But how could I help looking at the prettiest girl in the place?" This was pretty obvious, thought Jean; still, she admitted, it was rather pleasant. She made snappy flippant reply, and he went on talking in an easy, lazy drawl. She learned that he was in this city of Dover temporarily that he had no idea how soon he would leave that he was in some sort of business—she wasn't quite clear just what—that kept him traveling about a great deal, and that he had no hesitation whatever in declaring that she, Jean Dunn, was tops. She grew gay and flippant in response to his mood, and before long she discovered that she was enjoying this dance very much indeed; so much so that she felt a genuine pang of regret when the music finally stopped. "Would you just faint and fall in it if I should call you up some day?" he asked, as they started back to the table. "No," she said slowly, "but you don't know my phone number."

"What're you kids doing up here in Dover, anyway?" he was asking. "Kids!" said Bobby indignantly. "That's swell. We've been out of college exactly one year." "Bobby's selling autos, and I'm a swellegant stenographer," said Jean. "She's a bug on earning her own living now but some day she's going to marry me," said Bobby, ignoring the face she made at him. "Larry Glenn looked from me to the other."

BEERY-DEL RIO AT THE CONNELLEE

With the bookings for the month complete, the month of October will offer the movie patrons of Eastland the most excellent array of screen entertainment ever to be presented in a single month in Eastland. October releases of hit pictures makes this exceptional lineup of pictures possible and the Connellee Theatre management takes great pleasure in presenting them on such early play dates.

Opening today and continuing its run through Saturday the attraction "O'Shaughnessy's Boy" will be shown. Co-starring Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper, this attraction is a worthy successor to that most outstanding film, "The Champ," with the same stars and by the same producers, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The story has as its locale a traveling circus, which furnishes the background for excitement, thrills and color, while comedy, pathos, and a powerful story is deftly blended into the picture. "Spanky" McFarland, famous "Our Gang" comedy star, furnishes many laughs in the picture.

Opening Sunday for one day only the attraction, "I Live for Love" will be shown. This gay comedy-romance co-starring Dolores Del Rio and Everett Marshall has a plot with a most unusual comedy twist, and there are five catchy original songs sung by Marshall, who was formerly a member of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company. A grand pageant of beautiful girls has been staged as only Busby Berkeley, famed for his specialty number, can do it.

On Monday and Tuesday at the Connellee and Wednesday at the Lyric the attraction, "The Dark Angel," will be the attraction. With Frederic March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall in the leading roles, the most powerful and gripping romantic drama of the season will be seen in this attraction.

On Thursday only "Maybe It's Love" will be the attraction. Co-starring Gloria Stuart and Ross Alexander, this picture has a stellar comedy cast including Frank McHugh, Ruth Donnellee, and Joe Cawthorn. Based on a stage hit by Maxwell Anderson, it is clean, clever, funny and dramatic, and the humanness of the story makes that touching appealing.

Other outstanding attractions that will be presented during the month of October are Joan Crawford in "I Live My Life," "Accent on Youth," with Sylvia Sydney, "Broadway Melody of 1936," with Jack Benny and a host of radio stars, "Farmer Takes a Wife," with Janet Gaynor, "She Married Her Boss," with Claudette Colbert.

DEL RIO, MARSHALL OPEN SUNDAY IN "I LIVE FOR LOVE"

Dolores Del Rio, the exotic Mexican beauty, with Everett Marshall, famous radio, musical comedy and operatic star, comes to the Connellee Theatre Sunday in the new Warner Bros. comedy romance with music, "I Live for Love."

The picture is heralded as one of the most unique productions of the day. Catchy original songs were written for the picture by the famous team of Allie Wrubel and Mort Dixon, and sung by Everett Marshall.

Other music includes the favorite Neapolitan street song, "Ah, Marie," in which Eddie Conrad, and the famous vaudeville and musical comedy team of Shaw and Lee, join with Marshall in singing in humorous vein.

The story centers about Miss Del Rio, a temperamental Latin beauty and prima donna, whose stormy outbursts drive her Broadway producer frantic. Her impassioned love for a South American actor who cannot act, and her hatred for an American street singer, Everett Marshall, who later becomes a favorite on the radio, leads to complications that wind up in a most unusual climax.

Don Alvarado is the rival lover while others in the cast include Guy Kibbee, Allen Jenkins, Berton Churchill, Hobart Cavanaugh, Mary Treen, Robert Greig and Mike Morita.

The picture is set against the glamorous background of theatre and radio, with a beautiful, although hilarious, pageant staged by Busby Berkeley, who also directed the production.

The story and screen play are by Jerry Wald, Julius J. Epstein and Robert Andrews.

BEERY-COOPER SCORE IN GREAT CIRCUS DRAMA

The circus has come to town! Leading the big parade are Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper, together again in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture of circus life, "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," which opens today at the Connellee Theatre.

For their brilliant performances in "The Champ" and "Treasure Island," Wally and Jackie have been rewarded with their greatest triumph under the Big Top—Wally as "Windy," famous animal trainer, and Jackie, as his son.

Directed by Richard Boleslawski, whose star is one of the fast-

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM

Happy again, after suspense and strife, jealousy and misunderstandings, Gloria Stuart, the sweetheart of "Here Comes the Navy" and Ross Alexander, top cadet of "Flirtation Walk," determine to "live happy ever after," in the closing scenes of First National comedy of young married life "Maybe It's Love" at the Connellee Theatre.

He Won Her With A Song

Everett Marshall, grand opera star, and Dolores Del Rio in one of the musical moments of Warner Bros. comedy-with-music "I Live for Love" coming to the Connellee Theatre on Sunday.

resting in Hollywood, with such recent hits to his credit as "Clive of India" and "Les Miserables," it is packed with thrills, laughs and tears.

As "Windy," happy-go-lucky, swaggering animal trainer, who faced a ferocious tiger and frantic elephant for the love of his son, "Stubby," Beery has one of the finest roles of his long and illustrious screen career.

Jackie as his son, will be the envy of every boy who has dreamed of traveling with the circus.

The co-stars are surrounded by a splendid cast, which includes Spanky McFarland, as "Stubby" when a child; Leona Marie, as Cora, "Windy's" wife; Sarah Haden, as Martha, her spiteful sister; Willard Robertson, as the circus boss; Henry Stephenson, as Valkenburg; Clarence Muse, as Jeff, the colored roustabout, and Ben Hendricks, as Franz, circus ringmaster.

"DARK ANGEL" IS GREAT LOVE STORY

One of the most powerful and beautiful love stories ever filmed reaches the screen of the Connellee Theatre Monday, when Samuel Goldwyn's production, "The Dark Angel," starring Frederic March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall begins a day engagement.

Adapted from a play by Guy Bolton, the screen play of "The Dark Angel" was prepared by Lillian Hellman, author of the smash Broadway stage hit, "The Children's Hour," and Mordaunt Shairp, who will be remembered for his stage success, "The Green Bay Tree."

The story which is set in a quiet corner of lovely rural England follows the lives of a woman, Kitty Vane Merle Oberon and two men, Alan Trent (Frederic March) and Gerald Shannon (Herbert Marshall). Since childhood, Kitty has adored Alan, and Gerald has adored Kitty. The War takes both men and in the trenches there comes to Alan the realization of his love for Kitty. Home on leave, he tells her of his love, but their plans to marry are shattered by a sudden call canceling all leaves.

When Alan is reported killed, Kitty's life is broken. After the War, she becomes engaged to Gerald, but in the eleventh hour Fate steps in and the dream of her life is fulfilled in a gloriously happy ending.

"The Dark Angel" was directed by Sidney Franklin for release through United Artists.

Prominent in the imposing supporting cast are Janet Beecher, John Holliday, Henrietta Crossman, Frieda Inescort, Claude Allister, George Breakston, David Torrence, Cora Sue Collins and others.

A Quarrel Over a Child's Upbringing

Wallace Beery attempts to persuade his wife, Leona Marie, that the environment of a circus is not a detrimental atmosphere to the proper bringing up of their son, Jackie Cooper. The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture of excitement under the Big Top will be shown starting today at the Connellee Theatre.

Trick Cat Can't Find His Way Back Home
 DALLAS.—The many tricks learned by "Sun-Yat-Sen" prize tom cat owned by Tennie Atkins, Dallas, may have made him a valuable animal, but unlike most alley cats he is unable to find the way back home.
 Miss Atkins called the police when her cat, valued at $125, disappeared. In her report to police, she said her cat "actually had expression in his voice and almost talked."
 He was a Siamese cat, with short hair except on his legs, which were heavily coated with hair, making him look like a "semi-nude" dancer. He would retrieve objects just like a dog, Miss Atkins said, and knew many other similar tricks.
 Congressman ropes, throws, and ties a steer in 39.1 seconds at Oklahoma rodeo. That seems rather slow, but then he wasn't used to roping and tying.
