WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Hardly anyone realizes it, but the U. S. Supreme Court in its term just begun may rule that spending legislation, such as that for the public works and work relief acts, is unconstitutional.

PWA lawyers recently warned Roosevelt of the possibility. They thought it might be wiser to drop the government's appeal in the Louisville housing case, where plaintiffs were sure to raise the issue before the high court.

Roosevelt, refusing to duck, told them to go ahead with the appeal.

When the $4,500,000,000 work relief bill was passed, you couldn't find an attorney in the whole New Deal legal army who thought it stood in any danger from the courts.

Because the court once held that a taxpayer couldn't sue to prevent appropriations, this was the one big New Deal measure considered immune from attack.

But property owners in Louisville obtained an injunction against condemnation of certain land for a PWA housing project.

And their lawyers insist that the discretion given to Roosevelt and Administrator Harold L. Ickes as to the spending of PWA funds is an illegal delegation of legislative authority.

THE U. S. court of appeals in Cincinnati, holding against the government, decided housing was not a public purpose. It failed to pass on the delegation of power issue.

Attorneys for both sides are now set to argue the issue in the big new supreme court building. If the act providing $1,300,000,000 of PWA funds should be held invalid, the work relief act would also seem to be unconstitutional by reason of the broad discretionary spending powers it confers. And scores of lawyers probably would leap into court to prove it.

Effects of a defeat for the government on the delegation issue can't be entirely forecast. But hundreds of millions in PWA funds not yet paid out presumably would be held up. And Comptroller General McClure would have to decide whether to keep on approving work-relief grants.

SECRETARY WALLACE and Administrator Chester Davis dream at nights of a queer-looking potato fashioned in the shape of a boomerang.

The unannounced big idea behind the recent potato hearing was that it would produce a hot demonstration against the unpopular potato control act. That would uphold the AAA in its intention not to try to enforce a law which everyone agreed couldn't be enforced and lead to early modification of the law by Congress.

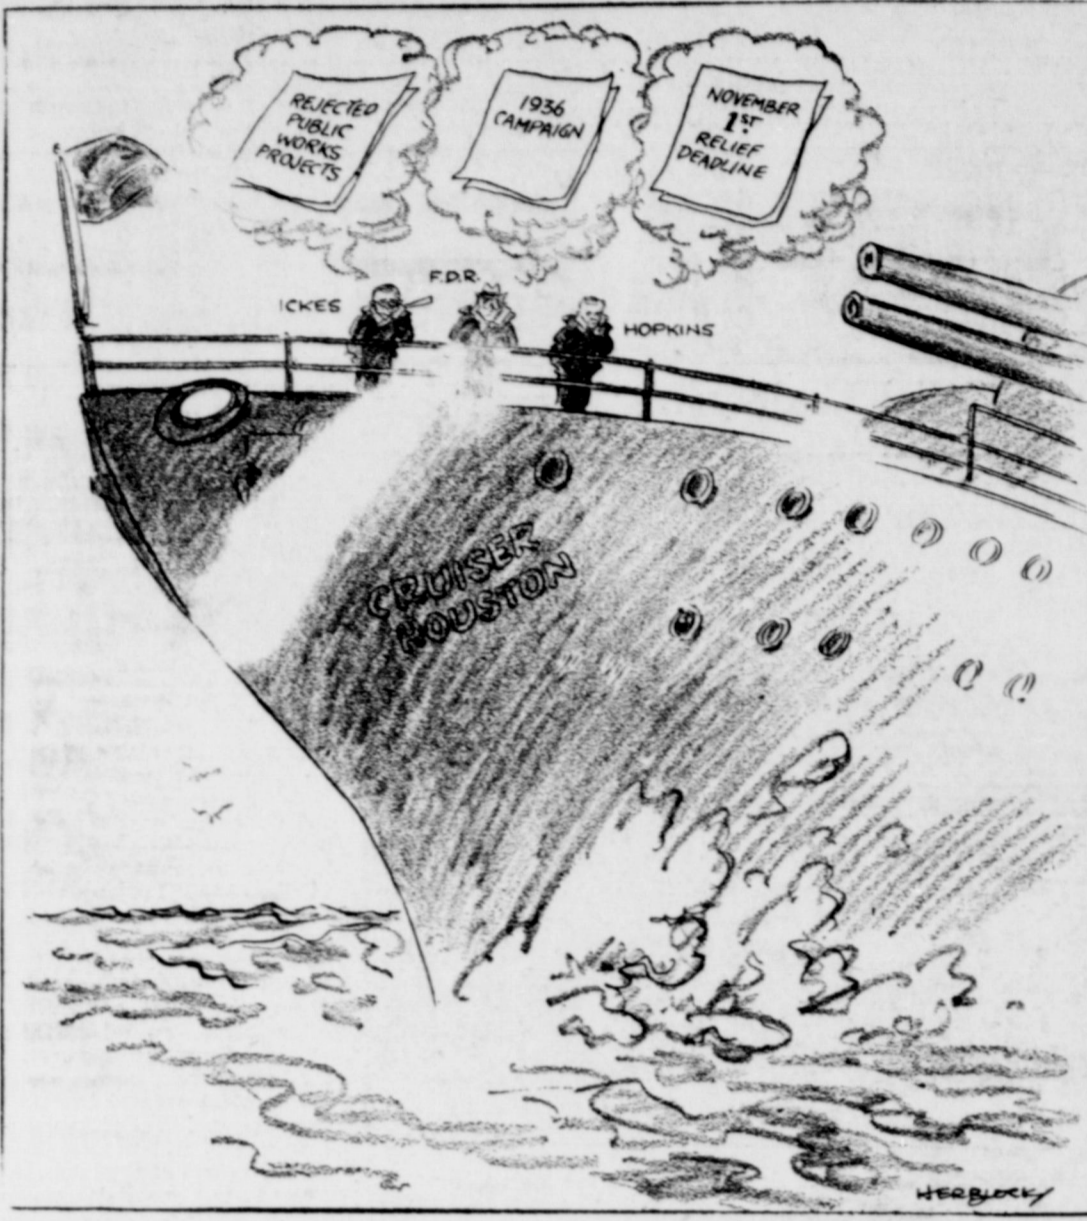

But the thousands of Republicans and small farmers who have been shrieking against the act stayed home. A few hundred big growers of potatoes swarmed into the AAA building for a field day and Senator Bailey and Congressman Warren, sponsors of the act, stole the show.

The only fellow who spoke against the act was a New Jerseyite. It turned out he raised only about 35 bushels a year and the big potato boys gave him a hearty horse-laugh that the AAA had an unhappy time.

Something will be done for potato growers. But no attempt will be made to enforce the act, no matter how loudly Republicans cry "nullification!"

OH, FOR THE LIFE OF A SAILOR!

Open Season For Common Colds Again Arrives

AUSTIN.—"The 'open season' for the so-called common cold has again arrived. Victims of this general complaint will constantly increase during the winter months, larger numbers of persons will become temporarily incapacitated, many will become dangerously ill, while yet others will succumb to complications," stated Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer.

not be handled in that way. The solution, in view of present-day limitations, rests somewhat upon Hale asserted. Practically all of individual. So far, this has proved to be an insurmountable barrier. The trouble arises because the victim fails to appreciate the possibility of 'only a cold.' In fact, with the day's work to be done, it is difficult to be self-persuaded that one should remain at home, and possibly in bed, if overtaken by such an infection. Feeling quite able to move around, it is hard to realize that rest and care represent the best treatment not only for the cold itself but as a preventive of more dangerous complications.

The average person argues that home and bed are all right when one is too sick to be any place else. However, the scientific facts prove that most of the salamines now charged to the common cold could be avoided if one would at least stay at home when this infection appears and remain there until it is cured. In fact, on a business basis, it is the economical and wise procedure. For 'only a cold' may develop into a very real illness; therefore, every precaution should be taken to minimize the spread of this infection.

CHICAGO—World series pickups and jolt downs.

Branch Rickey turns from Judge Landis long enough to say that the young Cubs should be in the thick of National League derbies for several campaigns. Rickey also sees the Reds as future trouble-makers. The director of the far-fung Cardinal system points to the Reds' improvement this year and to their efficient chain store arrangement, fashioned after that of the St. Louis club. . . . Larry MacPhail, active head of the Cincinnati Baseball Co., is a disciple of Rickey. . . . He formerly was in charge of the Cardinals' Columbus farm. Rickey admits that replacing the rapidly fading Frank Frisch at second base is his most pressing challenge at present. . . . Burgess Whitehead lacks the power demanded of a guardian of the keystone sack by the most exacting management in the business. . . . Lyle Judy, who came up from Springfield of the Western Association with the phenomenal record of something like 100 stolen bases, is a year or two away. . . . Rickey suspects that it may require some time to rebuild the Giants, with several veterans unmistakably on the decline. . . . The Cubs celebrated the winning of the pennant by cutting off each other's knickers.

Colgate Deploys Its Best Team Since '29

FRANK FRISCH, star halfback at Fordham during his college days, is a rabid Colgate fan. Johnny Lucey, freshman guard at Hamilton, is a nephew of Mrs. Frisch. . . . Even Andy Kerr says that Colgate has the finest-looking team physically since 1929. . . . Frisch, "and Marty McDonough, who fractured an ankle sliding into second base last summer, will be back in the backfield by mid-November. . . . It is unnecessary for the old Fordham Flash to add that Iowa, Holy Cross, Tulane, Syracuse, and Brown will find out what Kerr can do with an outfit like that. . . . Frisch would have liked to have landed McDonough, a second baseman, for the Cardinals, but the spectacular senior is headed for the Yankees. . . . Because he elected to stand on a three-point lead and failed to start in either end of the Indians' closing doubleheader with the Browns, the consensus is that Joe Vosmik did not deserve the American League batting crown, out of which he was edged by Buddy Myer.

Jacobs Digs 'Em Up; Joe Louis Buries 'Em

MIKE JACOBS remarks that he intends to keep Joe Louis busy, and someone asks where he will find opponents. . . . "I'll dig 'em up," replies the promoter. . . . "That's right, Mr. Jacobs," interposes John Roxborough, "you dig 'em up and Joe'll bury 'em." Illinois defeat by Ohio University was bad enough, but the loss of Les Lindbergh for several weeks is worse. . . . An opponent's cleat penetrated the shoe of the triple threat back's kicking foot while he was throwing a pass, breaking a bone. . . . Hank Greenberg's failure to hit safely in 15 trips in the last four games with the White Sox cost him the batting leadership among the Tigers. . . . The honor again went to Charley Gehringer, the strong silent man. . . . Greenberg explains the attitude of the Detroit club and himself. . . . "We win 'em when we have to. Why waste energy trying to work up a 20-game lead when a one-game lead at the finish does the same thing?" Which will be quite all right until the Tigers draw the line a bit too fine.

ment. To all her questions he returned joking answers, refusing to say more than that, as Mr. Montague's client, he had demanded and obtained the company of Mr. Montague's stenographer for a day in the country.

They had been here several times. After that canoe trip, Jean went into her apartment and changed her clothes. Then they were off again, and before long they had reached the riding academy and were mounted.

AN DUNN looked up from her typewriter with a start to see Mr. Harkins standing beside her desk, grinning at her.

"I'm the lucky one," said Sandy. "I got a date out of it, each time." "Well, it's pretty soft," said Jean contentedly.

HE gestured airily with his cigarette. Jean told herself that it was silly to feel any reluctance toward going to the police station with him.

Mr. Harkins is a client of mine," said Mr. Montague. "Now I know a lawyer exists to serve clients; and this particular one demands that I permit my biography to be written in the middle of the morning and out horseback riding with Jean gaped at him.

"Art Lanning, down at the Golden Feather, told me. The cops got a description of this hold-up man, and a couple of 'em were in the Golden Feather the other night and saw me. So they went home and talked it over and decided that since I looked like the bird they'd better pick me up.

Three quarters of an hour later he found a parking place near the gloomy police headquarters and led Jean up the worn steps. She followed him across a musty hall into a dilapidated elevator, which creaked and wheezed its way to the third floor.

"No, I mean it," said Mr. Montague. "Get your hat and get out here. I don't want to see you till tomorrow."

"Well, as soon as this ride is finished, I'm going down to police headquarters and explain the mistake and ask them to stop worrying about me," he said lightly.

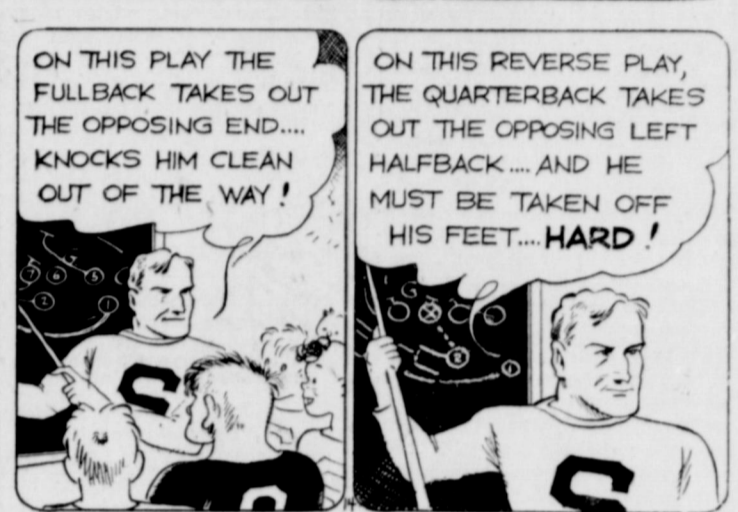

Sandy sat on a plain wooden bench. He looked over at Jean and she smiled at him. He looked at her and she smiled at him.

Seated Tea The Beethoven Junior and the Scale Runners Clubs with their counsellor, Mrs. A. F. Taylor, entertained about 62 of their relatives and friends at a seated tea in the Booster class room of the Methodist church, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The room was handsomely decorated throughout with a profusion of pink and white roses and ferns.

Misses Joyce Newman, Helen Lucas, and Johnnie Mae Murphy, were in the receiving line, and Sidney Scott acted as the hostess.

Misses Annie Jane Taylor and Josephine Murphy, presided over the silver tea service on a table laid in lace over pink, and centered with a silver bowl on mirror reflector, filled with pink rosebuds and ferns.

Misses Billie Gage, Martin Jean Lister, Betty Joe Newman, and Jociele Coffman served the tea plate of cookies iced in green, pink divinity candy, white pink and green mints, and tea with spiced lemon.

The color scheme of the tea carried out the green and white, colors of the scale runners, and the pink and white colors of the Beethoven Junior Music club.

Miss Billie Gage announced the program during the hour and introduced Miss Joyce Newman president of the Beethoven Junior Music club, who gave the address of welcome to the guests.

Miss Newman announced the program numbers as published and introduced Miss Helen Lucas, president of the Scal Runners club.

Mrs. A. F. Taylor, counsellor of both clubs, was assisted throughout the afternoon by Meses Charles T. Lucas, Sam Johnson, Johnny Hart, and Joe Coffman.

This was one of the most charming entertainments ever presented by the Juvenile Music clubs and all the numbers on the program were greeted with well merited applause.

The next meeting of the Scale Runners club is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 12, and that of the Beethoven Junior for Tuesday, Nov. 19, when Miss Ruby Lee Pritchard will be hostess.

Business Recovery Is Becoming More and More Apparent Each Day

AUSTIN, Tex.—It is becoming increasingly clear that the forces which were noted at the beginning of the summer as making for sustained business recovery are becoming more and more effective, and new constructive factors not discernible a few months ago are making their appearance, in the opinion of Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Late in June Dr. Buechel predicted that "the period of normal summer dullness will be shorter and milder this summer than a year ago." A number of factors were cited in support of this opinion, and events during the summer have fully vindicated the survey presented at the time, he now points out.

"Despite the undoubted improvement which has taken place in business 'visibility' and sentiment during the past three months the outlook for the intermediate and longer-term is by no means altogether 'crystal clear,'" he explained. "The foreign political situation is just now casting an ominous shadow over the business horizon. Although for the moment attention is being focused upon the Italo-Ethiopian situation, equally menacing possibilities are latent in the aspirations of Germany and Japan. Statesmanship of the highest order is needed among all the industrial nations of the world if another world catastrophe is to be avoided."

"Behind these political and military disturbances which are so prominent at present are silent economic forces which must be more accurately appraised and directed in the future than they have been in the past two decades. Economic war which has existed among the commercial nations of the world since the treaty of Versailles must be replaced by friendly international trade relations if lasting prosperity is to be restored in the world and military conflict averted. In a word, fundamental causes of world distress must be discovered and acted upon with greater wisdom than has prevailed during the past fifteen years or more."

"Barring a major war, the various individual indexes combine to give a favorable general picture. Turnips, lettuce, carrots, beets and kale are gracing the fall gardens of the Lamb county 4-H girls' club garden demonstrators.

From their earlier gardens, these girls have canned surpluses and even sold some fresh vegetables. Their families have co-operated with them by arranging shelving upon which to store the canned goods. One girl's father has even dug a new cellar.

Mustard, tendergreens, tomatoes, potatoes, and collards are now ready for use in the fall garden of Mrs. B. F. Newsom of the Rosebide Home Demonstration Club in Jefferson county.

By the end of August, Dorothy White, Victoria county 4-H club girl, had cleaned off the summer garden plot, and had the ground plowed, manured and pulverized ready for fall garden planting.

In a hotbed covered with canvas for protection against the heat and dry winds, she had tomato and lettuce plants to be transplanted when the rain came.

Just "for luck" in case it did rain, Theresa Byrd, Dallas county 4-H garden demonstrator, "risked" some garden seed in late August. And rain it did. So she now has 500 feet of pinto beans, 400 feet of black-eyed peas, 500 feet of sweet corn and 100 feet of crowd-pens. Carrots, turnips, lettuce, beets, and potatoes are coming right along too.

North, south, east, west, Texas home demonstration club garden demonstrators are proving every day that home gardens can be successfully managed in every part of the state. Their families are profiting from their labors, but not their families alone. The whole state is learning from these demonstrations.

VERNON—An investment of 10 cents, spent in the purchase of carrot seed last winter, has paid large dividends, according to garden reports of Sarah Hannon, West Vernon 4-H club girl from Wilbarger county.

From the 200 feet of carrots planted with the dime's worth of seed Sarah has canned 195 pints of carrots to be used in the family food budget during the coming winter months.

CLEBURNE.—"Nice, comfortable, light weight cover can be made from home-grown wool if the wool is secured perfectly," said Mrs. T. W. Jarrell, member of the Pecan Home Demonstration Club of Johnson county.

Mrs. Jarrell recommends that a good soft soap should be used. A little salt soda helps in hard water. "Th suds should have enough soap

During the months immediately ahead the consumer's goods industries may be expected to increase their contributions to aggregate production. For the longer term, the capital goods industries are likely to continue with growing momentum the improvement which began early in July. This situation is already being reflected in car loadings, electric power production, and steel production.

"The agricultural situation, particularly the animal industries, including meat, dairy, poultry, wool and mohair production, is especially promising. During the next year or more these industries are likely to witness increasing output at lower unit cost of production with widening margins of profit to farmers. Prospective returns from cash crops such as cotton and wheat also promise to be well above the depression low. Allied industries including food processing plants, manufacturers of building materials, farm implement manufacturers, and transportation agencies already are reflecting the improved farm income and outlook.

"It is to be hoped that out of the critical international situation there may emerge an order of statesmanship capable of appraising the causes underlying world economic maladjustments and of adopting policies which will gradually make for more harmonious international relations and the restoration of trade based on sound economic principles. And within our country there remains to be accomplished the solution of the unemployment problem on the basis of sound economics and not upon temporary and superficial expedients. This problem requires statesmen which not only are capable of analyzing the problem but which are willing to subordinate partisanship to human welfare. The longer-time economic outlook in this country and throughout the world is dependent upon how successful the people of industrial nations are in securing this type of statesmanship."

Salt from the ocean would be sufficient to buy the nation one and a half miles deep — science item. Or the salt taken with politicians' statements.

ON TEXAS FARMS

THE GREATEST MUSICAL HIT OF THE YEAR!

Enchanting music, spectacular dance routines set in backgrounds of unprecedented splendor, a pageant of the world's greatest entertainers headed by Jack Benny, and an intriguing story all combine to make "Broadway Melody of 1936," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most ambitious musical extravaganza the screen's outstanding eye and ear entertainment of the year. The five songs by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, "Broadway Rhythm," "I've Got a Feelin' You're Foolin'," "Sing Before Breakfast," "On a Sunday Afternoon" and "You Are My Lucky Star," all were well received and seem destined to be hits without exception.

Jack Benny, recently declared the most popular of all radio stars, repeats his success on the screen as the smart Broadway columnist. Sid Silvers, "king of the stooges," gets many a laugh with his droll humor. Other new screen personalities who definitely score in this elaborate musical are Eleanor Powell, for the past five years acclaimed as "the world's greatest tap dancer," who plays the lead opposite Robert Taylor. The latter does his best screen work to date.

Pope Proclaims Mission Sunday

NEW YORK CITY.—Pope Pius XI has proclaimed October 20th as Mission Sunday throughout the world when Catholics of every nation will be asked to pray and contribute to the support of both the foreign and home missions of the church. Mission Sunday, Oct. 20, will be observed by 21,000,000 Catholics in 15,000 parishes of 103 dioceses in the United States in behalf of the 77,000 missionaries and more than 130,000 catechists and teachers of the Church engaged in the most remote corners of the world.

Plans for the observance of Mission Sunday on Oct. 20th in the United States have been formulated by the Pontifical Society for the Propagation of the Faith, with national headquarters in New York, under the supervision of the Right Reverend Monsignor Wm. Quinn, National Director of the Society, as well as by each of the 103 Diocesan Directors located throughout the United States.

Monsignor Quinn, is speaking each Sunday evening during October on the Catholic Hour in a nationwide radio broadcast at 6 o'clock (N. Y. Standard Time) over the National Broadcasting Company WEAF network on "What Civilization Owes to Catholic Missions". The broadcasts are being given in preparation for Mission Sunday.

WINNER EATS AWARD

FAIRVIEW, Kans.—Orville Lance's 4-H club shorthorn calf recently won two ribbons at a county fair but Orville has only one ribbon to show for it. The calf reached into Orville's pocket and ate the second ribbon in front of the judge's stand after the youth had pocketed the award.
